Wo nasty tramp: "Want something to eat, eh? Well, here's some cold hash." Tramp: "But I haven't got anything to eat with." Woman: "Just keep on a little further and you'll find a fork in the road."

Don't be too severe on the man who steals his wife's purse. Perhaps that is the only time he dares do so.

Mr. Topheavy—"Well, you share my bed, Penelope?" Penelope—"Yes, it is there a brown-stone bed to rent in it."

Matrimonial Toast—"Man proposes, woman disposes, marriage composes and divorce exposes."

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The Hanlons, who are always busy working out mechanical effects and startling illusions, have after weeks of preparation introduced into their "Fantasma" companies a brief sketch incidental to the piece, entitled "Off With His Head." The Ghoul Knights who are amusing themselves at the expense of Pico, the clown, have ordered the latter's execution. With slow and solemn tread an esquire enters with the block, placing it in the centre of the prison cell. He is followed by the executioner carrying the ax. A knight in chequered panoply enters, the seizure of Pico and his head is placed upon the block. The headsman is ordered to do his work. Slowly and deliberately the ax is raised, with resonating force the blow is struck and off rolls poor Pico's head. All this in the full glare of the calcium light. Although such a vein of fun prevails during the entire act, yet so perfectly is the illusion carried out that during its performance at the Haymarket in Chicago, recently, Mons. Pizzarello, the Pico, amid shouts of laughter and applause, was compelled to show himself to the audience before the performance could proceed. William Hanlon, the inventor of the act, has secured it by patent.

The Jefferson-Florence combination is a tremendous success and business at the Star Theatre, N. Y., is the largest that has ever been known at that house. The combination of such brilliant comedians as Joseph Jefferson, W. J. Florence and Mrs. John Drew in one company has never before been equalled and their success is not to be wondered at. The result of their first week at the Star Theatre indicates that their season will be a success.

A sketch of Mr. Lawrence Barrett by Elwyn A. Barron has been issued in a handsome pamphlet by Messrs. Knight & Leonard of Chicago. It is adorned with illustrations of the actor in such characters as Renzi, Harebell, Lanciotti, Yorick, etc. Mr. Barron is a sympathetic critic as well as a faithful chronicler. Even when his biography takes on a tinge of panagyric, as it sometimes does, one cannot grudge the praise to a man who is certainly the most American of American actors.

Evans & Hoey's "Parlor Match" Co. have just closed a contract with James Allison for Australia. They open in Melbourne in May, and will remain at the Antipodes until September.

The engagement of the Hanlons' "Fantasma" company at the Haymarket Theatre in Chicago was a remarkable one. They opened to the largest house the Haymarket has had this season and the same business was the rule the entire week. The new additions to "Fantasma" have made it an almost entirely new piece and by far the best the Hanlons

Lawrence Barrett has made a very great success in "Ganelon" at the Chicago Opera House, where many people are being turned away at every performance. Mr. Barrett will play in St. Louis Nov. 4th, Cincinnati Nov. 11th, Baltimore Nov. 18th and Washington Nov. 25th.

Mrs. D. P. Bowers has received an offer from Frederick Warde for a combination next year.

"The Corsican Brothers" at the Grand Opera House is the Boucicault version, the one made famous by the London productions of Charles Keane and Gustav V. Brooke.

The Great Gilmore Peace Jubilee at the Mechanics' Pavilion draws near. The Handel and Haydn Society have secured their grand chorus of five hundred of the best voices in the city and perfected all their portion of the arrangements in which they are so much interested, as the Jubilee is given under their auspices. Gilmore, the musical king, will contribute his great band, his famous soloists, his renowned vocal artists, his steel anvils and corps, and his electric battery of artillery that will add their peals to the swelling of the mighty chorus in triumph of Peace.

It is wired that charming Maria Dalton, the leading lady of the New York Casino, eloped Wednesday per steamer to Europe in company with a very "good man" with his money, by the name of Joseph Lewis, who owns rich diamond mines in South Africa. Well, in this present age of barter and sale, when senses princes and titled libertines are bought and sold for their empty decorations to American heiresses, it is no wonder that the Casino's charmer was captured by a diamond king. She was merely following the example of the self-exalted richest society people. It was a barter, and she made a good trade.

The telegraph tells us that Miss Craddock, of Cornwall, that dramatic conservatory across the bay, has achieved a noted success at the Madison Square Theatre, New York, in the leading comedy role of "A Man of the World."

Miss Marie Wainwright presents her new and handsome production of "Twelfth Night" at the Park Theatre in Boston this week for the first time. Miss Wainwright is due in New York at the Fifth Avenue Theatre in December.

"The Great Metropolis" which has just finished a fine run in Philadelphia, returned to New York at the Windsor Theatre, where it is given with all its mechanical effects, including the sensational shipwreck scene.

"The Old Homestead" is packing the big Academy, New York, and Denman Thompson has certainly renewed his success of last season. The demand for seats is so active that the management will probably be obliged to give extra matinees on Wednesday in order to satisfy the public.

Notice to Stage Managers.

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Funny Frank Daniels returns with his "Little Puck" comedy to the Bush, this week. Daniels made his mark as the creator of "Old Sport," and clinched his popularity in his last new piece, which gives wider scope for the exercise of his natural humor.

Daniels is the greatest humorist-comedian on the stage and a remarkable character builder. When he takes a character he builds it up and makes a great part of it by his unctious humor and quaint acting.

Mr. Daniels has surrounded himself with a first class company, with whose assistance he brings out all the fun there is in one of the funniest comedies ever written. His company includes his principal support, the popular soubrette, Miss Bessie Sanson, the well known comedienne, Miss Rose Chesneau, and a bevy of bright and pretty girls; Harry Courtaine, Robert Evans, Arthur E. Moulton, Harry Conor, William White and others.

The company is much stronger than that of last year. Taking new songs and chorus have been introduced in "Little Puck," and there is not a chestnut in it. The whole performance is most enjoyable.

The theatre overflows every night.

For cast and further particulars see the programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

Miss Nellie McHenry produces for her last week at the Alcazar her popular farcical comedy of "The Humming Bird." The scene is laid in New York, and this popular actress just revels in burlesque as the stage struck lady's maid. It is in her second act that she gives her famed burlesque of Ophelia in the mad scene in "Hamlet."

Miss Nellie McHenry, one of the most popular of soubrettes in light and lively range of characters, is the leading spirit in the fun, supported by John Webster, W. H. Lytell and her own well-selected comedy company. The comedy made its old mark, and the applause and laughter that greeted it showed it had secured its wonted success. Miss McHenry and company really appear at their best in this play.

That play of varied scenes and rapid action, "Tour of the World in Eighty Days," will be produced in a spectacular form by the Alcazar Company next week, with Amazon March, the three a ballet and new specialty features. The scenery will be entirely new and very handsome, especial care is taken to make the stage production a noted one.

Grand Opera House.

The opening of the Grand and the production of that weirdly supernatural and sensational play, "The Corsican Brothers," is a perfect success. The play is staged in a better manner than ever produced here before, and nearly every seat in the immense auditorium has been occupied by a well pleased audience.

Mr. Bandmann is grand in the dual role of the Corsican twins, whose sympathetic natures were so acutely organized that vital harm to one was made manifest to the other, though hundreds of miles away. His acting is very quiet, but vivified by immense mental force. In romantic, intense and fiery parts there is no actor on the stage more impressive than Bandmann, except Irving.

Mr. Wm. Morris, the new leading man, scored a success, and the support is generally strong. The company selected is exactly adapted.

An army of artisans have been at work on the stage of the Grand on the grand spectacular production of "The Corsican Brothers" for some days past, and the public will approve the good result of their labors every night.

Every scene is new, and has cost a lavish outlay, and such expensive and gorgeous settings and appointments as have never been seen in this play this side of an European stage before. The apparition scenes are absolutely startling.

The Hillarious Carnival Scene shows one hundred persons on the stage in elegant character and mythological bal masque costumes, it is the best scene of the kind ever presented on a San Francisco stage.

Our space will not permit of further details, but especial care is taken to make the production a noted one.

FIGARO furnishes the house programme for the Grand Opera House.

See cast and synopsis in adjacent column.

That gifted actress, Miss Sophie Eyre, will be the next stellar attraction, in her thrilling play of "The Witch," opening Nov. 11th.

New California Theatre.

This week we are to have "Mr. Barnes of New York," Gunter's comedy adaptation from his own novel, a New York success, handsomely staged and well cast. The scene is in the South of Europe and Corsica, and the theme is love, murder and vendettaism.

The play comes to us with its own scenery, mountings, and some very fine mechanical stage effects. The cast is a very full one, as will be seen by referring to the programme on first page.

The play is sketchy and light, and dramatic and intense, at times, but picturesque and full of action always. Besides the principals, Mr. Robert Hilliard and Miss Emily Rigle, there are plenty of good people in the cast who carry the play along swimmingly.

The scenes and appointments are new and handsome, and immense houses testified their approval of the play.

Baldwin Theatre.

Rosina Vokes, the gifted and well schooled actress and a charming comedienne, who has a reputation on both continents, is the attraction at the Baldwin.

Miss Vokes travels with her own company and the support is in every way good.

The bill for this week is another triple one; three mirth-inspiring little comedies: "The Old Musician," "The Circus Rider" and "A Pantomime Rehearsal."

In the first comedy, adapted from the French by Mr. Felix Morris, that admirable character actor gives in his performance of "The Old Musician" one of his most finished impersonations.

In the "Circus Rider" Rosina Vokes is inimitable in her imitation of the Queen of the Arena riding a bare-back steed tip toe on the parlor sofa, and sets the house in a roar. Nor is she less funny in the amateur pantomime performance as a hopping robin going about with a leaf in her mouth, and finding no children ready to cover with it.

See casts in programme elsewhere in FIGARO

Miss Vokes' bill next week will present three more of the same kind: "Crocodile Tears" (new), "A Double Lesson," "My Lord in Livery" (new).

Seats now ready.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

This famous Circus manager and accomplished ring-master returns to us again from an extended tour in the Orient, and will open with one of the most completely equipped circus he has yet had, at Central Park, corner Market and Eighth streets, Monday next.

Chiarini's Circus has always been famed for the handsomest and best trained horses, and the most expert and graceful riders, to say nothing of his incomparable manage acts.

His present grand equestrian establishment is rich in novelties: Ring artists from European hippodromes; trained blood-horses culled from various parts of the world; ponies from Corea, Java, China, and Japan; a trained elephant; Japanese acrobats; a band of Manila musicians, and in fact most everything that is different from the usual circuses.

Box office open Thursday. See announcemen and admission prices elsewhere in FIGARO.

Orpheum Theatre.

A double bill this week. The Jinglers Jubilee Singers, six in number, new, are a company in themselves, besides the addition of the Brothers Caine, premier gymnaste, and others.

The Great London Olympic Specialty Company put in their farewell appearances this week, on their way to Australia, sailing on next steamer. There is a troupe of Arab performers, a band of Indian warriors, Fred Watson's trained animals; Alma, the aerial artiste, and other celebrities.

The great novelties are the cowboy pastimes of Bridle Bill and Texas Jack, showing their proficiency in lariet throwing; Oneita's rifle shooting — across the stage — putting out a burning match held in the fingers and shooting off the end of a cigar held in the teeth; another cowboy's lightning expertness with a revolver, and the war-dance of the Sioux Indian troupe.

See announcement.

There will be an entire change of performance and company next week, with an elaborate production of Fritz Lafontaine's musical comedy, entitled "A Stew," with grand chorus, new songs, comic situations, etc.

General seats, 25 cents: reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrnes have made a special engagement with Mr. T. H. Glenny, a cosmopolitan actor and author, for a dramatic season at the East side popular theatre.

Mr. Glenny opens in his own sensational play, "The Murder in a Hansom Cab," in which he takes the part of Horatio McGoffin Crowley, an actor out of luck. It is the first production of this play on this coast.

Mr. Glenny's piece is stirringly sensational and he plays his part very effectively. He is a competent all-around actor, and his new pieces will prove a great treat to Morosco's clientage.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, H. Lee, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Newbury, Miss Conclite, Miss Kitty Belmoore and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a strong competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both managers and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Bella Union Theatre.

Mabie Santly's Female Burlesque Company, a fine display of beauty, is the constellation attraction this week. Delegations of the comtions fractions of the company — four serio-comics—put in appearances in the olio. In fact they pervade the programme pretty generally.

It is almost a double company here now, as most of the old favorites are retained.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The dansense, Mlle. La Cellie, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nesteil and others in a fine programme.

The three Les Encroyables in their novel specialties and the French "Can-Can; or, Scenes in La Jardin Mabile," are other features of the bill.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nesteil.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nesteil looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Ella Letcher, song and dance queen; Miss Alice Hall, serio-comic, and Miss Julia Grant, a soubrette, are late additions here.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

West & Fowler a clever and versatile team, do a fine change sketch.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "I Expect Them," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Ella Letcher, Ruby Grant, Alice Hall, John Gilmore, Jennie Fowler and Lottie Gardner and George West.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

Many new artists put in appearance this week, consisting of Mlle Mignetta of marvelous strength, and the acrobat Barretta, both from Orrin's Circus, Mexico; Prof. Peterson, European gymnast, and the great Ellwood. The remaining favorites are: Dryden & Mitchell, specialists; Wilhelm Westin, glass euphonist; Allen & Page, black face song and dance team; Flora Hastings, balladist; J. W. Kelly, the philosopher, and the oldest favorite, Thos. C. Leary.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Miss Minnie Drossell, Leonard & Leopoldt, Gus and Edward, musical and general performers, put in new appearances this week, the company being rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, Miss Lola Vernon, J. D. Fox, Rose Devere and others.

The bill opens with Fox's local comedy, "The Fishing Party," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Leonard's "Foiled Masbers," the specialty sketches, and Leonard

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Nellie McHenry will hum in "The Humming Bird" for the last time at the Alcazar on Sunday night.

Miss Sophie Eyre is in town superintending the rehearsals of her thrilling play and London success, "The Witch," at the Grand, that will have a grand production at that theatre Nov. 11th.

Chiarini and his circus company arrived on the steamer Australia on Friday. He opens on Central Park lot, corner Market and Eighth streets, Monday night.

Sid C. France now carries a splendidly mounted alligator-skin traveling grip-sack, that would make that three-million-prize husband, dude Prince Hatzfeldt, green with envy if he should ever see Sid skipping across the road with it. It was presented to him by Managers Morosco & Byrnes and is the finest in the country.

Katie Putnam, the popular soubrette and emotional actress, returned from Australia on Friday. She occupied a box at the Grand Friday night, and will play an engagement over Manager Maguire's Northwestern and Montana circuits; and probably may appear at the Grand later on.

Louis Imhaus has been specially engaged to play his old part of the French dialect character of Jean Passepartout in "Around the World" at the Alcazar.

Douglass White, advance manager of Gilmore's Peace Jubilee, has been indefatigable in working up interest in the coming Festival, and will herald the arrival of Gilmore and his special train with salvos of artillery. White deserves a return salute from Gilmore's battery for his energetic work.

Wilson Barrett is to play a six weeks' engagement in New York at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, opening in "Ben-My-Cree."

Manager Maguire announces the following as some of the bookings made by Acting Manager Rial and himself for the Grand Opera House in this city: Miss Sophie Eyre in her marvelous creation of the Witch; Milton Nobles and company in a new repertoire; the latest New York success, "The Great Metropolis;" Henry E. Abbey's Grand Italian Opera Company, with Patti and Signor Tamagno at its head; Augustin Daly's comedies, "Arabian Nights" and "A Night Off;" another New York success, from Niblo's, "The Fugitive," and John A. Stevens in a new repertoire. We have heard of others from outside sources, but as the management withhold them we will not put them on the list. As it now stands it presents a series of attractions of an enviable order for the Grand.

Henry E. Abbey and John B. Schoeffel's new and magnificent Tremont Theatre, Boston, was dedicated on the 14th inst. by Charles Wyndham's London company in "David Garrick" and a curtain raiser called "Why Women Weep" to an immense and very stylish audience. It is claimed that the Tremont is "the most tasteful and comfortable theatre in the country." Its opening was witnessed by a delegation of New York literateurs and fashionables, who became the guests of Messrs. Abbey and Schoeffel and their manager, Marcus R. Mayer. This house has a remarkably large foyer, in which promenade concerts are given prior to the beginning of the play, and it has also been provided with elegant boudoirs for the convenience of its lady patrons. Taken altogether the Tremont is, in the expressive language of Mr. De Wolf Hopper, a "corker."

Mrs. D. P. Bowers has received an offer from Frederick Warde for a combination next year.

A sketch of Mr. Lawrence Barrett by Elwyn A. Barron has been issued in a handsome pamphlet by Messrs. Knight & Leonard of Chicago. It is adorned with illustrations of the actor in such characters as Rienzi, Harebell, Lanciotti, Yorick, etc. Mr. Barron is a sympathetic critic as well as a faithful chronicler. Even when his biography takes on a tinge of panegyric, as it sometimes does, one cannot grudge the praise to a man who is eer anly the most American of American actors.

Clara Morris produces her new play, "Helene," by Miss Morton, this week at the Union Square Theatre, in which she will be seen as the daughter of a Nihilist.

The beautiful scenery in both the A and B "Fantasma" companies has been greatly admired, the transformations being especially brilliant.

Negotiations are in progress for a return engagement of Frederick Warde in New York at one of the Broadway theatres, where he will be seen in "The Mountebank."

The Edwin H. Price company are rehearsing "The Bells of Haslemere," in New York and begin their season Nov. 11th at the Grand Opera House, Boston.

Miss Cora Tanner continues to do a large business at the Fourteenth Street Theatre, N. Y., where she will be followed on November 4th by James O'Neill in "Monte Cri-to."

"The Drum Major" continues to draw very large audiences at the New York Casino. It will probably be sent on the road in January and followed by a revival of "The Brigands."

Hallen & Hart in "Later On" are at the Bijou, N. Y.

Miss Beatrice Lieb, a handsome and a really excellent actress, who has been playing the leading female part in "The Paymaster," has returned to New York. She should not be long out of an engagement.

The Jefferson-Florence combination is a tremendous success and business at the Star Theatre, N. Y., is the largest that has ever been known at that house. The combination of such brilliant comedians as Joseph Jefferson, W. J. Florence and Mrs. John Drew in one company has never before been equalled and their success is not to be wondered at. The result of their first week at the Star Theatre indicates that their season will be a success.

Evans & Hoey's "Parlor Match" Co. have just closed a contract with James Allison for Australia. They open in Melbourne in May, and will remain at the Antipodes until September.

The engagement of the Hanlons' "Fantasma" company at the Haymarket Theatre in Chicago was a remarkable one. They opened to the largest house the Haymarket has had this season and the same business was the rule the entire week. The new additions to "Fantasma" have made it an almost entirely new piece and by far the best the Hanlons ever produced.

Lawrence Barrett has made a very great success in "Ganelon" at the Chicago Opera House, where many people are being turned away at every performance. Mr. Barrett will play in St. Louis Nov. 4th, Cincinnati Nov. 11th, Baltimore Nov. 18th and Washington Nov. 25th.

The Great Gilmore Peace Jubilee at the Mechanics' Pavilion draws near. The Handel and Haydn Society have secured their grand chorus of five hundred of the best voices in the city and perfected all their portion of the arrangements in which they are so much interested, as the Jubilee is given under their auspices. Gilmore, the musical king, will contribute his great band, his famous soloists, his renowned vocal artists, his steel anvils and corps, and his electric battery of artillery that will add their peals to the swelling of the mighty chorus in triumph of Peace.

It is wired that charming Maria Halton, the leading lady of the New York Casino, eloped Wednesday per steamer to Europe in company with a very "good man" with his money, by the name of Joseph Lewis, who owns rich diamond mines in South Africa. Well, in this present age of barter and sale, when scurvy princes and titled libertines are bought and sold for their empty decorations to American heiresses, it is no wonder that the Casino's charmer was captured by a diamond king. She was merely following the example of the self-exalted richest society people. It was a barter, and she made a good trade.

"The Great Metropolis," which has just finished a fine run in Philadelphia, returned to New York at the Windsor Theatre, where it is given with all its mechanical effects, including the sensational shipwreck scene.

"The Old Homestead" is packing the big Academy, New York, and Denman Thompson has certainly renewed his success of last season. The demand for seats is so active that the management will probably be obliged to give extra matinees on Wednesday in order to satisfy the public.

FIGARO furnishes the programme for the Grand Opera House.

Edwin Booth and Mme. Modjeska in "The Merchant of Venice" are drawing some of the largest audiences ever seen in the Broadway Theatre, and their engagement promises to be a success in every way. They appear on November 4th in a magnificent production of "Hamlet."

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Two fine trunks passed the Custom House officer from the Australia without inspection. They belonged to Chiarini's big specialty artists—elephants.

Manager Gustav Walter, of the Orpheum, will manage Woodward's Gardens, opening it on Sunday with a genuine Wild West Show—now en route for Australia—with genuine cowboys in feats of horsemanship, larieting, etc.

The Bella Union Theatre will flash out Mable Santley's Female Burlesque Company on its patrons this week.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Miss Alice Dale, Miss Julia Grant and Miss Ella Letcher add their specialties to the Comique's bill.

The Cremorne introduces the clever Eastern solo dancer, La Cellie, and corps de ballet as their latest attraction.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Funny Frank Daniels returned with his "Little Puck" comedy to the Bush this week. Daniels made his mark as the creator of "Old Sport," and clinched his popularity in his last new piece, which gives wider scope for the exercise of his natural humor.

Daniels is the greatest humorist-comedian on the stage, and a remarkable character builder. When he takes a character he builds it up and makes a great part of it by his unctious humor and quaint acting.

Mr. Daniels has surrounded himself with a first-class company, with whose assistance he brings out all the fun there is in one of the funniest comedies ever written. His company includes his principal support, the popular soubrette Miss Bessie Sanson, the well known comedienne, Miss Rose Chesneau, and a bevy of bright and pretty girls; Harry Courtaine, Robert Evans, Arthur E. Moulton, Harry Conor, William White and others.

The company is much stronger than that of last year. Taking new songs and chorus have been introduced in "Little Puck," and there is not a chestnut in it. The whole performance is most enjoyable.

The theatre overflows every night.

For cast and further particulars see the programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

Miss Nellie McHenry produced for her last week at the Alcazar her popular farcical comedy of "The Humming Bird." The scene is laid in New York, and this popular actress just revels in burlesque as the stage-struck lady's maid, supported by John Webster, W. H. Lytell and her own well-selected comedy company.

Last performance Sunday night.

That play of varied scenes and rapid action, "Tour of the World in Eighty Days," will be produced in a spectacular form by the Alcazar Company next week, with Amazon March, Children's ballet and new specialty features. The scenery is entirely new and very fine, and especial care has been taken to make the whole production a noted one.

The cast includes E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell, Miss Ethel Brandon, Louis Imbaus (specially engaged for Passepartout), Jas. M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward and the full Alcazar company.

Grand Opera House.

Dumas' "Corsican Brothers," one of the strongest plays on the stage, is founded on the appearances of apparitions, visions and supernatural warnings. It is more spiritualistic in its treatment than any play of modern times. It quite rivals the "Hamlet" and "Macbeth" and other great plays of the master dramatist in its weird effects.

The production of "The Corsican Brothers" at this theatre is the best one ever given in this city, and Bandmann's acting is simply grand. The character of Fabian dei Franchi possesses the elements of Bandmann's greatest strength, a blending of the romantic and supernatural; as shown in his remarkable impersonations of "Narcisse," "Hamlet" and "Dr. Jeckyl and Mr. Hyde." Mr. Wm. Morris, the New York leading man, has already become a firm favorite, and the company is a strong and evenly balanced one.

Every scene is new. The apparition scenes are absolutely startling.

The Hilarious Carnival Scene shows one hundred persons on the stage in elegant character and mythological bal masque costumes. It is the best scene of the kind ever presented on a San Francisco stage.

See cast and synopsis in adjacent column.

Notwithstanding the large audiences the play is drawing it will have to give way to other attractions booked to follow.

That prime favorite, Miss Sophie Eyre, will be the next stellar attraction, in her thrilling play of "The Witch," opening Nov. 11th. Miss Eyre is now in this city superintending the preparations for her play, which she intends shall have the finest production at the Grand. The piece is now in close rehearsal. Miss Eyre played it four months in the St. James Theatre, London, and Harry Eggelow, of the New California Theatre.

This week we have enjoyed "Mr. Barnes of New York," Gunter's comedy adaptation from his own novel, a New York success, handsomely staged and well cast. The scene is in the South of Europe and Corsica, and the theme is love, murder and vendettaism.

The play comes to us with its own scenery, mountings, and some very fine mechanical stage effects. The cast is a very full one, as will be seen by referring to the programme on first page.

The play is sketchy and light, and dramatic and intense, at times, but picturesque and full of action always. Besides the principals, Mr. Robert Hilliard and Miss Emily Rigle, there are plenty of good people in the cast who carry the play along swimmingly.

The scenes and appointments are new and handsome, and immense houses testified their approval of the play.

Same bill next week.

Baldwin Theatre.

Rosina Vokes, the gifted and well schooled actress and a charming comedienne, who has a reputation on both continents, is the attraction at the Baldwin.

Miss Vokes travels with her own company and the support is in every way good.

The bill for this week is another triple one; three mirth-inspiring little comedies: "The Old Musician," "The Circus Rider" and "A Pantomime Rehearsal," that have been well received by fine audiences.

In the first comedy, adapted from the French by Mr. Felix Morris, that admirable character actor gives in his performance of "The Old Musician" one of his most finished impersonations.

In the "Circus Rider" Rosina Vokes is inimitable in her imitation of the Queen of the Arena riding a bare-back steed tip toe on the parlor sofa, and sets the house in a roar. Nor is she less funny in the amateur pantomime performance as a hopping robin going about with a leaf in her mouth, and finding no children ready to cover with it.

See casts in programme elsewhere in FIGARO.

Miss Vokes' bill next week will present three more of the same kind: "Crocodile Tears" (new), "A Double Lesson," "My Lord in Livery" (new).

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

This famous Circus manager and accomplished ring-master returns to us again from an extended tour in the Orient, and will open with one of the most completely equipped circus he has yet had, at Central Park, corner Market and Eighth streets, Monday next.

Chiarini's Circus has always been famed for the handsomest and best trained horses, and the most expert and graceful riders, to say nothing of his incomparable manage acts.

His present grand equestrian establishment is rich in novelties: Ring artists from European hippodromes; trained blood-horses culled from various parts of the world; ponies from Corea, Java, China, and Japan; a trained elephant; Japanese acrobats; a band of Manila musicians, and in fact most everything that is different from the usual circuses.

See announcement and admission prices elsewhere in FIGARO.

Orpheum Theatre.

A double bill this week. The Jinglers Jubilee Singers, six in number, new, are a company in themselves, besides the addition of the Brothers Caine, premier gymnasts, and others.

The Great London Olympic Specialty Company put in their farewell appearance Sunday night, on their way to Australia, sailing on next steamer. There is a troupe of Arab performers, a band of Indian warriors, Fred Watson's trained animals; Alma, the aerial artiste, and other celebrities.

The great novelties are the cowboy pastimes of Bridle Bill and Texas Jack, showing their proficiency in lariet throwing; Onetta's rifle shooting — across the stage — putting out a burning match held in the fingers and shooting off the end of a cigar held in the teeth; another cowboy's lightning expertness with a revolver, and the war-dance of the Sioux Indian troupe.

See announcement.

There will be an entire change of performance and company next week, with an elaborate production of Fritz Lafontaine's musical comedy, entitled "A Stew," with grand chorus, new songs, comic situations, etc.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrnes have made a special engagement with Mr. T. H. Glenney, a cosmopolitan actor and author, for a dramatic season at the East side popular theatre.

Mr. Glenney opens in his own sensational play, "The Murder in a Hansom Cab," in which he takes the part of Horatio McGuffin Crowley, an actor out of luck. It is the first production of this play on this coast.

Mr. Glenny's piece is stirringly sensational and he plays his part very effectively. He is a competent all-around actor, and his new pieces will prove a great treat to Morosco's clientage.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Naudary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Mr. Glenney produces for his second week his own sensational play of "The Bushrangers," a play of Australian life and adventures in Melbourne, the gold diggings and in the bushrangers' stamping ground. It is a drama full of adventures.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Bella Union Theatre.

Mabie Sandly's Female Burlesque Company, a fine display of beauty, is the constellation attraction this week. Delegations of the company appear in the Female Minstrel first part.

tious fractions of the company — four serio-comics — put in appearances in the olio. In fact they pervade the programme pretty generally.

It is almost a double company here now, as most of the old favorites are retained.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The danseuse, Mlle. La Cellie, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

The three Les Encroyables in their novel specialties and the French "Can-Can; or, Scenes in La Jardin Mabile," are other features of the bill.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Ella Letcher, song and dance queen; Miss Alice Hall, serio-comic, and Miss Julia Grant, a soubrette, are late additions here.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

West & Fowler, a clever and versatile team, do a fine change sketch.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "I Expect Them," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burne, Ella Letcher, Ruby Grant, Alice Hall, John Gilmore, Jennie Fowler and Lottie Gardner and George West.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

Many new artists put in appearance this week, consisting of Mlle Minnetta, of marvelous strength, and the acrobat Barretta, both from Orrin's Circus, Mexico; Prof. Peterson, European gymnast, and the great Ellwood. The remaining favorites are: Dryden & Mitchell, specialists; Wilhelm Westin, glass euphonist; Allen & Page, b ack-face song and dance team; Flora Hastings, balladist; J. W. Kelly, the philosopher, and the oldest favorite, Thos. C. Leary.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Miss Minnie Drossell, Leonard & Leopoldt, Gus and Edward, musical and general performers, put in new appearances this week, the company being rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, Miss Lola Vernon, J. D. Fox, Rose Devere and others.

The bill opens with Fox's local comedy, "The Fishing Party," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Leonard's "Trolled Masters," the specialty sketches, and Leonard & Leopoldt's novel musical act, in which a monkey plays a solo on a cornet.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Miss Sophie Eyre is in town superintending the rehearsals of her thrilling play and London success, "The Witch," at the Grand, that will have a grand production at that theatre Nov. 11th.

Charini and his circus company arrived on the steamer Australia on Friday. He shows on Central Park lot, corner Market and Eighth streets, this week.

Sid C. France now carries a splendidly mounted alligator-skin traveling grip-sack, that would make that three-million-prize husband, dude Prince Hatzfeldt, green with envy if he should ever see Sid skipping across the road with it. It was presented to him by Managers Morosco & Byrnes and is the finest in the country.

Katie Putnam, the popular soubrette and emotional actress, returned from Australia on Friday. She occupied a box at the Grand Friday night, and will play an engagement over Manager Gilmore's Northwestern and Montana circuits; and probably may appear at the Grand later on.

Louis Imhaus has been specially engaged to play his old part of the French dialect character of Jean Passepartout in "Around the World" at the Alcazar.

Douglass White, advance manager of Gilmore's Peace Jubilee, has been indefatigable in working up interest in the coming Festival, and will herald the arrival of Gilmore and his special train with salvos of artillery. White deserves a return salute from Gilmore's battery for his energetic work.

Wilson Barrett is to play a six weeks' engagement in New York at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, opening in "Ben-My-Chree."

Manager Maguire announces the following as some of the bookings made by Acting Manager Rice and himself for the Grand Opera House in this city: Miss Sophie Eyre in her marvelous creation of the Witch, Milton Nobles and company in a new repertoire; the latest New York success, "The Great Metropolis;" Henry E. Abbey's Grand Italian Opera Company, with Patti and Signor Tamagno at its head; Augustin Daly's comedies, "Arabian Nights" and "A Night Off;" another New York success from Nobles, "The Fugitive," and John A. Stevens in a new repertoire. We have heard of others from outside sources, but as the management withhold them we will not put them on the list. As it now stands it presents a season of rare excellence for the people.

Henry E. Abbey and Jacob B. Schoeffel's new and magnificent Theatre Pleasure Boston was opened on the 31st inst. by Clarence Wyndham's Lyceum company in "Davis and Co." and a curtain raiser called "A Woman Wins." It is claimed that the Theatre is the most tasteful and comfortable theatre in the country. The company was welcomed by a delegation of New York dramatists and fashionables, who came in the guise of Messrs. Abbey and Schoeffel and their manager, Marcus R. Mayer. This house has a remarkably large foyer, in which promenade concerts are given prior to the beginning of the play, and it has also been provided with elegant boudoirs for the convenience of its lady patrons. Taken altogether the Tremont St. is the expressive language on Mr. De Wolf Hopper, a "screamer."

The Edwin H. Price company are rehearsing "The Bells of Hasletmere," in New York and begin their season Nov. 11th at the Grand Opera House, Boston.

A sketch of Mr. Lawrence Barrett by Edwyn A. Barron has been issued in a handsome pamphlet by Messrs. Knight & Leonard of Chicago. It is adorned with illustrations of the actor in such characters as Rienzi, Harebell, Lanciotti, Yorick, etc. Mr. Barrett is a student of art as well as a talented comedian, and when his Thespian tasks are over he can find pleasure as a sculptor, since one cannot give the palm to a man who is certainly the most American of American actors.

Marcus R. Mayer, the champion traveler, will shortly start for Mexico and South America to arrange for the appearance of Patti and Bernhardt.

Edwin Booth and Mme. Modjeska in the beautiful scenery in both the A and B "Fantasma" companies has been greatly admired, the transformations being especially brilliant.

Negotiations are in progress for a return engagement of Frederick Warde in New York at one of the Broadway theatres, where he will be seen in "The Mountebank."

"The Old Homestead" is packing the big Academy, New York, and Denman Thompson has certainly renewed his success of last season. The demand for seats is so active that the management will probably be compelled to give extra matinees on Wednesday in order to satisfy the public.

Miss Cora Tanner continues to do a large business at the Fourteenth Street Theatre, N. Y., where she will be followed by Nance O'Neil in "Monte Cristo."

"The Drum Major" continues to draw very large audiences at the New York Casino. It will probably be sent on the road in January and followed by a revival of "The Brigands."

Hallen & Hart in "Later On" are at the Bijou, N. Y.

Miss Beatrice Lieb, a handsome and a really excellent actress, who has been playing the leading female part in "The Paymaster," has returned to New York. She should not be long out of an engagement.

The Jefferson-Florence combination is a tremendous success and business at the Star Theatre, N. Y., is the largest that has ever been known at that house. The combination of such brilliant comedians as Joseph Jefferson, W. J. Florence and Mrs. John Drew in one company has never before been equalled and their success is not to be wondered at. The result of their first week at the Star Theatre indicates that their season will be a success.

Evans & Hoey's "Parlor Match" Co. have just closed a contract with James Allison for Australia. They open in Melbourne in May, and will remain at the Antipodes until September.

The engagement of the Hanlons' "Fantasma" company at the Haymarket Theatre in Chicago was a remarkable one. They opened to the largest house the Haymarket has had this season and the same business was the rule the entire week. The new additions to "Fantasma" have made it an almost entirely new piece and by far the best the Hanlons ever produced.

Lawrence Barrett has made a very great success in "Ganelon" in Chicago. Mr. Barrett will play it in St. Louis Nov. 4th, Cincinnati Nov. 11th, Baltimore Nov. 18th and Washington Nov. 25th.

The Great Gilmore Peace Jubilee at the Mechanics' Pavilion draws near. The Handel and Haydn Society have secured their grand chorus of five hundred of the best voices in the city and perfected all their portion of the arrangements in which they are so much interested, as the Jubilee is given under their auspices. Gilmore, the musical king, will contribute his great band, his famous soloists, his renowned vocal artists, his steel anvils and corps, and his electric battery of artillery that will add their peals to the swelling of the mighty chorus in triumph of Peace.

DALY'S LAST COMEDY.

Mr. Augustin Daly introduced his new comedy, "The Great Unknown," to a splendid first night's assemblage at his theatre in New York on the 22nd. The new work is based upon Schontau and Kadelburg's German comedy, "Die Beruhmte Frau (A Celebrated Woman)," and elicited continuous mirth from a rather sedate collection of fashionables. Ada Rehan has been fitted with a part well suited to her talents as that of the scheming and willful Elsa. Her part responses and playful vent illation of the slang vocabulary now potent among the "high" of upper and lower London is a revelation and thoroughly startling upon the verge vulgarity which yet clings to "shoddy" [illegible] Americanisms. It is evident that Mr. Daly has put his energies to making "The Great Unknown" a purely enjoyable entertainment in which the [illegible] powers of the spectator are not necessarily exercised. Therefore [illegible] secrets of [illegible] and [illegible]. As a result Miss Rehan made a brilliant hit as the romping [illegible], and next to her in general esteem came Mr. Wilton Lackaye, who played the role of a "push" yet reserved [illegible]. He is [illegible] a great acquisition to Mr. Daly's company. James Lewis, as a matter of course, was the good-natured, flirting old father, and Mrs. Gilbert posed as the determined aunt of his unprotected daughters. John Drew had little to do, but did it well, and Miss Chalmers, as the coy young maiden wooed by O'Donnell, and Mrs. Yeamans, as the Great Unknown, were good. The story concerns a mother who aspires to literary fame and who deserts her family mother to gratify that ambition. The comedy is in three acts and in one drawing-room set, which is a marvel of modern house decoration. "The Great Unknown" promises to achieve a run.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

EVENING EDITION

MONDAY..... NOVEMBER 4, 1889

Notice to Stage Managers.

We cannot make changes in Programmes after two (2) P. M. All changes handed in after that hour will have to lay over until next day.

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Fanny Frank Daniels is drawing immense houses in his "Little Puck" at the Bush. Daniels made his mark as the creator of "Old Sport" and clinched his popularity in his last new piece, which gives wider scope for the exercise of his natural humor.

Daniels is the greatest humorist-comedian on the stage, and a remarkable character builder. When he takes a character he builds it up and makes a great part of it by his unctious humor and quaint acting.

Mr. Daniels has surrounded himself with a first class company, with whose assistance he brings out all the fun there is in one of the funniest comedies ever written. His company includes his principal support, the popular soubrette, Miss Bessie Sanson, the well known comedienne, Miss Rose Chesneau, and a bevy of bright and pretty girls; Harry Courtaine, Robert Evans, Arthur E. Moulton, Harry Connor, William White and others.

The company is much stronger than that of last year. Taking new songs and chorus have been introduced in "Little Puck," and there is not a chestnut in it. The whole performance is most enjoyable, and the greatest go.

The theatre overflows every night.

For cast and further particulars see the programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

That play of varied scenes and rapid action, "Tour of the World in Eighty Days," is produced in a spectacular form by the Alcazar Company this week, with Amazon March, Children's ballet and new specialty features. The scenery is entirely new and very fine, and especial care has been taken to make the whole production a noted one.

The cast includes E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell, Miss Ethel Brandon, Louis Imbaus (specially engaged for Pauspartout), Jas. M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward and the full Alcazar company.

Grand Opera House.

Tomas' "Corsican Brothers," one of the strongest plays on the stage, is founded on the appearance of apparitions, visions and supernatural workings. It is more spiritualistic in the treatment than any play of modern times, quite rivals the "Hamlet" and "Macbeth" of the great plays of the master dramatist in that weird effect.

Herr Bandmann in "The Corsican Brothers" at this theatre is the best one person in the play, and Bandmann's acting is simply grand. The character of Fabian dei Franchi combines the elements of Bandmann's greatest strength, a blending of the romantic and supernatural; as shown in his remarkable impersonations of "Narcisse," "Hamlet" and "Dr. Jeckyl and Mr. Hyde." Mr. Wm. Morris, the New York leading man, has already become a firm favorite, and the company is a strong and evenly balanced one.

Every scene is new. The apparition scenes are absolutely startling.

The ballet and spectacular Carnival Scene shows one hundred persons on the stage in elegant character and mythological bal masque costumes, this the best scene of the kind ever presented on a San Francisco stage.

For cast and synopsis see another column.

Notwithstanding the large audiences the house is drawing it will have to give way to other attractions booked to follow.

That gifted actress, Miss Sophie Eyre, will be the next stellar attraction in her thrilling play of "The Witch," opening Nov. 11th. Miss Eyre is now filling very successful engagements for her play, which she intends shall have the first production at the Grand. The piece is now in close rehearsal. Miss Eyre played it four months in the St. James Theatre, London, and Harry Bigelow, of the Examiner staff, who saw the play there, proclaims it a wonder."

New California Theatre.

This is the last week of "Mr. Barnes of New York," Gunter's comedy adaptation from the [illegible] New York [illegible] has drawn crowded houses. Next week Mr. Frohman will present Mr. Sothern in "The Highest Bidder."

The play comes to us with its own scenery, mountings, and some very fine mechanical stage effects. The cast is a very full one, as will be seen by referring to the programme on first page.

The play is sketchy and light, and dramatic and [illegible], at times but picturesque and full of action always. Besides the principals, Mr. Robert Hilliard and Miss Emily Rigbie, there are plenty of good people in the cast who carry the play along swimmingly.

The scenes and appointments are new and handsome, and immense houses testified their approval of the play.

Bolossy Kiralfy's grand ballet extravaganza, "Antiope," opens at the California Monday night. Box plan ready Thursday.

Baldwin Theatre.

Rosina Vokes, the gifted and well schooled actress and a charming comedienne, who has a reputation on both continents, is the attraction at the Baldwin.

Miss Vokes travels with her own company and the support is in every way good.

Miss Vokes' bill this week presents three more and finished mirth-inspiring little comedies: "Crocodile Tears" (new), "A Double Lesson," "My Lord in Livery" (new). These breezy little plays of the Vokes repertory are so admirably acted, staged and costumed, that they should serve as models for the production of the lighter school of pieces at other theatres.

See casts in programme elsewhere in FIGARO

For the next and last week of Miss Rosina Vokes the bill will be a varied one: "In Honor Bound," "Uncle's Will" and a repetition of "A Game of Cards;" "My Milliner's Bill," "The Rough Diamond," "The Old Musician," "The Circus Rider" and "A Pantomime Rehearsal."

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

This famous Circus manager and accomplished ring-master returns to us again from an extended tour in the Orient, and opens with one of the most completely equipped circus he has yet had, at Central Park, corner Market and Eighth streets, this week.

Chiarini's Circus has always been famed for the handsomest and best trained horses, and the most expert and graceful riders, to say nothing of his incomparable manage acts.

His present grand equestrian establishment is rich in novelties: Ring artists from European hippodromes; trained blood-horses culled from various parts of the world; ponies from Cores, Java, China, and Japan; trained elephants, Japanese acrobats, and in fact most everything that is different from the usual circuses.

See announcement and admission prices elsewhere in FIGARO.

Orpheum Theatre.

There is an entire change of performance and company this week, with an elaborate production of Fritz Lafontaine's musical comedy, entitled "A Stew," with grand chorus, new songs, comic situations, gorgeous costumes, new scenery, etc.

The cast contains some clever comedians, singers and burlesque artists; including the erudite Geo. H. Wood, Imogene Eberle, Freddie Stockmeyer, Fred Reynolds, Harry Moore, a half score of pretty girls as pupils of the seminary, etc.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrnes have made a special engagement with Mr. T. H. Glenney, a cosmopolitan actor and author, for a dramatic season at the East side popular theatre.

Mr. Glenney produces for his second week his own sensational play of "The Bushrangers," a play of Australian life and adventures in Melbourne, the gold diggings and in the bushrangers' stamping ground. It is a drama full of adventures.

Mr. Glenny's piece is stirringly sensational and he plays his part very effectively. He is a competent all-around actor, and his new pieces will prove a great treat to Morosco's clientage.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Concilia, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Bella Union Theatre.

Gardner and Arnold's Female Mastodons and Mable Santly's Female Burlesque Company, a fine display of beauty, is the constellation attraction this week. Delegations of the company appear in the Female Minstrel first part, and the whole appear in the burlesque of "Prince Faithful," which closes the bill. Factionsfractions of the company — four serio-comics—put in appearances in the olio. In fact they pervade the programme pretty generally.

It is almost a double company here now, as most of the old favorites are retained, and yet we have more to come.

Harry Montague, author and actor; the Duncan Sisters; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world" and other new people put in appearances Monday night in connection with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Baldwin's Academy of Music Theatre.

The dancers, Mlle. [illegible], and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week, with J. W. Kelly, the monologue artist and verse improvisator, and Miss Jennie Heywood, the favorite vocalist, in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Morgan, the rough-to-go-ers, Miss Claudia [illegible], Miss Lizzie Mulvey, Miss Lizzie Wilson, Miss Lizzie Hall, Miss Lizzie Hall, Miss Lizzie Hall

EVENING ⊹ EDITION

TUESDAY..... NOVEMBER 5, 1889

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO the only paper that has them.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Harry Montague, who always makes things hum, returns to his home at the Bella Union Theatre, Monday night, bringing with him the Duncan Sisters, Carroll & Lewis said to rank as the best female impersonators on the stage and other talent. The Lida Gardner-Billy Arnold Mable Santley Burlesque Company will be retained, and the old Union will blaze with a coruscation of talent.

Manager Morosco has just returned from a week off, having treated himself to a health invigorating hunting trip to the deer country on Cottonwood Creek, Tehama County. He looks like a man who had been fed on venison for a month. Seeing the growing prosperity of that section he purchased ten lots in the flourishing town of Cottonwood. We hope we may live long enough to see a Morosco theatre on them.

The latest sensation at the Paris Hippodrome, and its chief attraction, is the spectacle of a lion taking equestrian exercise; the animal readily mounting on the back of a horse and being carried several times round an inclosure. The receipts accruing from this novel performance, according to a Paris paper, are stated to amount up to the present to $500,000, and it is expected that at the end of a month, when the lion will "rest" for a time, they will exceed $600,000. The animals are kept in close companionship and have the strongest attachment for each other. This is something like the attachment that Chiarini's two performing Ceylon elephants have formed for the little sacred Burmanese bull. When this circus arrived here, on the Australia last week, it was found impossible to persuade or goad the elephants to come ashore until the experiment was tried of taking the bull ashore first; when the elephants became eager to take the gangplank to join him on the wharf. The bull is stalled between the elephants at the circus. As the restless beasts move about if they step in a too dangerous proximity to the nose of his reclining bullship, he simply asks them who they are shoving, by giving the offending leg a butt like thrust with his little horns, and the huge monster will sheer off obediently. The caprices of animal attachments where they are kept in company with each other is an interesting study.

The Bella Union Theatre will flash out Mable Santley's Female Burlesque Company on its patrons this week.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

The Cremorne introduces the clever Eastern solo dancer, La Cellie, and corps de ballet as their latest attraction.

Manager Wallerstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

Two dog trunks passed the Custom House officer from the Australia without inspection. They belonged to Chiarini's big specialty artists—elephants.

Manager Maguire announces the following as some of the bookings made by Acting Manager Rial and himself for the Grand Opera House in this city: Miss Sophie Eyre in her marvelous creation of the Witch; Milton Nobles and company in a new repertoire; the latest New York success, "The Great Metropolis;" Henry E. Abbey' Grand Italian Opera Company, with Patti and Signor Tamagno at its head; Augustin Daly's comedies, "Arabian Nights" and "A Night Off;" another New York success, from Niblo's, "The Fugitive," and John A. Stevens in a new repertoire. We have heard of others from outside sources, but as the management withhold them we will not put them on the list. As it now stands it presents a series of attractions of an enviable order for the Grand.

The Edwin H. Price company are rehearsing "The Bells of Hasbemere," in New York and begin their season Nov. 11th at the Grand Opera House, Boston.

Marcus R. Mayer, the champion traveler, will shortly start for Mexico and South America to arrange for the appearance of Patti and Bernhardt.

Edwin Booth and Mme. Modjeska in "The Merchant of Venice" has drawn some of the largest audiences ever seen in the Broadway Theatre, and their engagement promises to be a success in

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Kiraly's ballet extravaganza, "Antiope," will be the California's attraction next week.

Duke Murray, advance agent for Milton Noble's company, will be here in a few days.

Popular George Osbourne returns here as leading man in Minnie Maddern's "Featherbrain" Co., that comes to the Bush to be under Frank Daniels.

The first gun of the Patrick Sarsfield Gilmore Jubilee is fired in to-day's FIGARO. See programme announcement in adjoining column.

Charles C. McCarthy and his "One of the Bravest" Co. played at the Howard Athenæum Theatre, Boston, recently. He is so well pleased with his Pacific Coast reception that he contemplates making another tour this way next season of longer duration.

Ada and Rillie Deaves, two California girls, are making a fine reputation on their starring tour in the East in "Chaos Fat." The piece doesn't please everybody, but the sisters do.

The New York papers compliment Miss Louise Allen on her graceful dancing in "The Spider and Fly."

The Academy of Music, Cleveland, having been announced by its manager as a first-class theatre, the "My Mother-in-Law" Company recently opened there to a good house, but after the first performance declined to appear again, alleging that their contract was based upon misrepresentation. The manager of the Academy then attached the company's baggage, claiming $300 damages, which the "Mother-in-Law" manager preferred to pay rather than to have his company play again at that house.

In the Dresden (Germany) State Theatre it is a breach of discipline for any artist to accept flowers or tokens of admiration or in any other way to recognize the presence of the audience during the performance.

The beautiful scenery in both the A and B "Fantasma" companies has been greatly admired, the transformations being especially brilliant.

Negotiations are in progress for a return engagement of Frederick Warde in New York at one of the Broadway theatres, where he will be seen in "The Mountebank."

"The Old Homestead" is packing the big Academy, New York, and Denman Thompson has certainly renewed his success of last season. The demand for seats is so active that the management will probably be obliged to give extra matinees on Wednesday in order to satisfy the public.

Miss Cora Tanner continues to do a large business at the Fourteenth Street Theatre, N. Y., where she will be followed on November 4th by James O'Neill in "Monte Cristo."

"The Drum Major" continues to draw very large audiences at the New York Casino. It will probably be sent on the road in January and followed by a revival of "The Brigands."

Miss Beatrice Lieb, a handsome and a really excellent actress, who has been playing the leading female part in "The Paymaster," has returned to New York. She should not be long out of an engagement.

Evans & Hoey's "Parlor Match" Co. have just closed a contract with James Adlison for Australia. They open in Melbourne in May, and will remain at the Antipodes until September.

Lawrence Barrett has made a very great success in "Ganelon" in Chicago. Mr. Barrett will play it in St. Louis Nov. 4th, Cincinnati Nov. 11 h, Baltimore Nov. 18th and Washington Nov. 25th.

The Great Gilmore Peace Jubilee at the Mechanics' Pavilion draws near. The Handel and Haydn Society have secured their grand chorus of five hundred of the best voices in the city and perfected all their portion of the arrangements in which they are so much interested, as the Jubilee is given under their auspices. Gilmore, the musical king, will contribute his great band, his famous soloists, his renowned vocal artists, his steel anvils and corps, and his electric battery of artillery that will add their peals to the swelling of the mighty chorus in triumph of Peace.

Miss Sophie Eyre is in town superintending the rehearsals of her thrilling play and London success, "The Witch," at the Grand, that will have a grand production at that theatre Nov. 11th.

Chiarini and his circus company arrived on the steamer Australia on Friday. He shows on Central Park lot, corner Market and Eighth streets, this week.

Sid C. France now carries a splendidly mounted alligator-skin traveling gripsack, that would make that three-million-prize husband, dude Prince Hatzfeidt, green with envy if he should ever see Sid skipping across the road with it. It was presented to him by Managers Morosco & Byrnes and is the finest in the country.

Douglass White, advance manager of Gilmore's Peace Jubilee, has been indefatigable in working up interest in the coming Festival, and will herald the arrival of Gilmore and his special train with salvos of artillery. White deserves a return salute from Gilmore's battery for his energetic work.

Katie Putnam, the popular soubrette and emotional actress, returned from Australia on Friday. She occupied a box at the Grand Friday night, and will play an engagement over Manager Maguire's Northwestern and Montana circuits, and probably may appear at

EVENING EDITION

TUESDAY.....NOVEMBER 5, 1889

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Funny Frank Daniels is drawing immense houses in his "Little Puck" at the Bush. Daniels made his mark as the creator of "Old Sport," and clinches his popularity in his last new piece, which gives wider scope for the exercise of his natural humor.

Daniels is the greatest humorist-comedian on the stage, and a remarkable character builder. When he takes a character he builds it up and makes a great part of it by his unctious humor and quaint acting.

Mr. Daniels has surrounded himself with a first-class company, with whose assistance he brings out all the fun there is in one of the funniest comedies ever written. His company includes his principal support, the popular soubrette, Miss Bessie Sanson, the well known comedienne, Miss Rose Chesneau, and a bevy of bright and pretty girls; Harry Courtaine, Robert Evans, Arthur E. Moulton, Harry Conor, William White and others.

The company is much stronger than that of last year. Taking new songs and chorus have been introduced in "Little Puck," and there is not a chestnut in it. The whole performance is most enjoyable, and the greatest go.

The theatre overflowed every night for the first week.

For cast and further particulars see the programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

That play of varied scenes and rapid action, "Tour of the World in Eighty Days," is produced in a spectacular form by the Alcazar Company this week, with Amazon March, Children's ballet and new specialty features.

The cast includes E. J. Buckley, L. B. Stockwell, Miss Ethel Brandon, Louis Imhaus (specially engaged for Passepartout), Jas. M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward and the full Alcazar company. The principal characters are in the hands of good people, who give to their parts the reliable interest of individual characterizations well sustained.

The scenery is entirely new and very fine, and especial care has been taken to make the whole production a noted one in that respect. It wins deserved recognition from the audience. The play has the handsomest mounting it ever had here.

The spectacular features are a great go. The marches, the children's ballet, and the various tableaux, give the scenes rich and entertaining settings that the audiences can observe much commendation for. They have done wonders and deserve the success the piece will have.

Grand Opera House.

Dumas' "Corsican Brothers," one of the strongest plays on the stage, is founded on the appearances of apparitions, visions and supernatural warnings. It is more spiritualistic in its treatment than any play of modern times. It quite rivals the "Hamlet" and "Macbeth" and other great plays of the master dramatist in its weird effects.

The production of "The Corsican Brothers" at this theatre is the best one ever given in this city, and Bandmann's acting is simply grand. The character of Fabian dei Franchi possesses the elements of Bandmann's greatest strength, a blending of the romantic and supernatural; as shown in his remarkable impersonations of "Narcisse," "Hamlet" and "Dr. Jeckyl and Mr. Hyde." Mr. Wm. Morris, the New York leading man, has already become a firm favorite, and the company is a strong and evenly balanced one.

Every scene is new. The apparition scenes are absolutely startling.

The Hillarious Carnival Scene shows one hundred persons on the stage in elegant character and mythological bal masque costumes. It is the best scene of the kind ever presented on a San Francisco stage.

For cast and synopsis in adjacent column.

Notwithstanding the large audiences the play is drawing it will have to give way to other attractions booked to follow.

That gifted actress, Miss Sophie Eyre, will be the next stellar attraction, in her thrilling play of "The Witch," opening Nov. 11th. Miss Eyre is now in this city superintending the preparations for her play, which she intends shall have the finest production at the Grand. The piece is now in close rehearsal. Miss Eyre played it four months in the St. James

New California Theatre.

This is the last week of "Mr. Barnes of New York," Gunter's comedy adaptation from his own novel, a New York success, handsomely staged and well cast. The scene is in the South of Europe and Corsica, and the theme is love, murder and vendettaism.

The play comes to us with its own scenery, mountings, and some very fine mechanical stage effects. The cast is a very full one, as will be seen by referring to the programme on first page.

The play is sketchy and light, and dramatic and intense, at times, but picturesque and full of action always. Besides the principals, Mr. Robert Hilliard and Miss Emily Rigle, there are plenty of good people in the cast who carry the play along swimmingly.

The scenes and appointments are new and handsome, and immense houses testified their approval of the play.

Bolossy Kiralfy's grand ballet extravaganza, "Antilope," opens at the California Monday night. Box plan ready Thursday.

Baldwin Theatre.

Rosina Vokes, the gifted and well schooled actress and a charming comedienne, who has a reputation on both continents, is the attraction at the Baldwin.

Miss Vokes travels with her own company and the support is in every way good.

Miss Vokes' bill this week presents three more and finished mirth-inspiring little comedies: "Crocodile Tears" (new), "A Double Lesson," "My Lord in Livery" (new). These breezy little plays of the Vokes repertory are so admirably acted, staged and costumed, that they should serve as models for the production of the lighter school of pieces at other theatres.

See casts in programme elsewhere in FIGARO.

For the next and last week of Miss Rosina Vokes the bill will be a varied one: "In Honor Bound," "Uncle's Will" and a repetition of "A Game of Cards;" "My Milliner's Bill," "The Rough Diamond," "The Old Musician," "The Circus Rider" and "A Pantomime Rehearsal."

Mechanics' Pavilion—Gilmore's Jubilee.

Gilmore's San Francisco Musical Festival will hold high carnival next week at the Pavilion, with his great band of 100 pieces, his Anvil and Artillery-Battery corps, and his vocal soloists of renowned singers, augmented by our Handel and Haydn Society, with its 500 trained voices, under whose auspices the Jubilee is given.

For further particulars see programme announcement published elsewhere in FIGARO.

The Pavilion auditorium has been reconstructed for the Jubilee. The seats have been arranged in tiers, with the requisite rise to give 6,000 auditors an equal chance of seeing and hearing. The chorus will occupy a horse-shoe-shaped elevation, in front of which will be grouped the band of Gilmore.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

This famous Circus manager and accomplished ring-master returns to us again from an extended tour in the Orient, and opens with one of the most completely equipped circus he has yet had, at Central Park, corner Market and Eighth streets, this week.

Chiarini's Circus has always been famed for the handsomest and best trained horses, and the most expert and graceful riders, to say nothing of his incomparable manage acts. The feats of his two ponies are new and diverting. His splendid black horse, Prince, is made to show almost human intelligence. He brings him things across the ring, walking on his hind legs like a French poodle, and dances with the grace of a Kiralfy premier. Chiarini is still the boss horse-trainer. M'lle Le Blonde, a Paris artiste, does a bounding jockey act, doing all that Budd Gorman does, and his trained elephants do wonders that would make "Sid" blush.

His present grand equestrian establishment is rich in novelties: Ring artists from European hippodromes; trained blood-horses culled from various parts of the world; ponies from Corea, Java, China, and Japan; trained elephants, Japanese acrobats, and in fact most everything that is different from the usual circuses.

See announcement and admission prices elsewhere in FIGARO.

Orpheum Theatre.

There is an entire change of performance and company this week, with an elaborate production of Fritz Lafontaine's musical comedy, entitled "A Step," with grand chorus, new songs, comic situations, gorgeous costumes, new scenery, etc.

The cast contains some clever comedians, singers and burlesque artists; including the erudite Geo. H. Wood, Imogene Eberle, Freddie Stockmeyer, Fred Reynolds, Harry Moore, a half score of pretty girls as pupils of the seminary, etc.

Mr. Wood comes again to the front with a well spiced and humorous performance that is particularly relished by the Orpheum audiences.

Among other good musical numbers is the "Revenge Chorus," specially composed for this comedy by Dyonis Romandy.

The piece is light, lively and musical.

"Doctor Quack," another comedy, taking off the Brown-Sequarde cure alls of the day, will be produced next week.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrnes have made a special engagement with Mr. T. H. Glenney, a cosmopolitan actor and author, for a dramatic season at the East side popular theatre.

Mr. Glenney produces for his second week his own sensational play of "The Bushrangers," a play of Australian life and adventures in Melbourne, the gold diggings and in the bushrangers' stamping ground. It is a drama full of adventures.

Mr. Glenny's piece is stirringly sensational and he plays his part very effectively. He is a competent all-around actor, and his new pieces will prove a great treat to Morosco's clientage.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden,

Bella Union Theatre.

Gardner and Arnold's Female Mastodons and Mable Santly's Female Burlesque Company, a fine display of beauty, is the constellation attraction this week. Delegations of the company appear in the Female Minstrel first part, and the whole appear in the burlesque of "Prince Faithful," which closes the bill. Factionsfractions of the company — four serio-comics—put in appearances in the olio. In fact they pervade the programme pretty generally.

It is almost a double company here now, as most of the old favorites are retained, and yet we have more to come.

Harry Montague, author and actor; the Duncan Sisters; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people put in appearances Monday night in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The danseuse, Mlle. L. Collie, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week, with J. W. Kelly, the monologue artist and verse improvisatore, and Miss Jennie Heywood, the favorite vocalist, in conjunction with Gilbert & Gold. Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

The three Les Encroyables in their novel specialties and the French "Can-Can; or, Scenes in La Jardin Mabile," are other features of the bill.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Ida Farno, serio-comic; Miss Rose De Vere, vocalist, and Tommy Glenn, vocalist, punster and comedian, are new this week.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "The Three Troubadours," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Ella Letcher, Ida Farno, Rose Devere, Alice Dale, John Gilmore and Tommy Glenn.

The Comique's company is a strong one in musical features. Glees, duets and con-

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

They have P. T. Barnum's Beauty at Meier's this week, Miss Dolly Paxton. She will be introduced by Manager Fox every evening, and attended by Rose Devere.

Brown & Mayville, fine aerial artists, are new, and the new acts are "In the Business" and "Mixed," both of the comical order.

The olio acts are Brown & Mayville's dashing aerial act and Leonard & Leopoldt's novel musical act, in which a monkey plays a solo on a cornet.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

Brown & Mayville, Leonard & Leopoldt, Gus and Edward, musical and general performers, put in new appearances this week, the company being rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, Minnie Drossell, J. D. Fox, Rose Devere and others.

WEDNESDAY....NOVEMBER 6, 1889

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Mr. J. S. Haswell, who has lately been touring in Utah and Montana, has returned after four months' absence, and has resumed his position at the door of Morosco's Theatre.

The funeral of Annie Price, the Irish giantess, known as "Barnum's fat woman," who weighed 600 pounds, was a notable event in New York on the 27th ult. It required sixteen men to carry the coffin to the hearse. Her burial clothes were the same as she wore in life, and, in accordance with her dying request, the family Bible was buried with her.

The experiment of interchangeable vaudeville at two Philadelphia theatres (the Chestnut and South Broad) worked successfully. Herrmann's Transatlantiques was the attraction. The performance at one house opened with the first act, with which the programme ended at the other house. The theatres are about six blocks apart. A four-in-hand was kept on the constant go between the houses, both of which were crowded.

Harry Montague, who always makes things hum, returns to his home at the Bella Union Theatre, Monday night, bringing with him Miss Carrie Duncan, Carroll & Lewis—said to rank as the best female impersonators on the stage—and other talent. The Lida Gardner Billy Arnold-Mable Santly Burlesque Company will be retained, and the old Union will blaze with a consecration of talent.

The latest sensation at the Paris Hippodrome, and its chief attraction, is the spectacle of a lion taking equestrian exercise; the animal readily mounting on the back of a horse and being carried several times round an inclosure. The receipts accruing from this novel performance, according to a Paris paper, are stated to amount up to the present to $500,000, and it is expected that at the end of a month, when the lion will "rest" for a time, they will exceed $600,000. The animals are kept in close companionship and have the strongest attachment for each other. This is something like the attachment that Charini's two performing Ceylon elephants have formed for the little sacred Burmanese bull. When this circus arrived here, on the Australia last week, it was found impossible to persuade or goad the elephants to come ashore until the experiment was tried of taking the bull ashore first; when the elephants became eager to take the gangplank to join him on the wharf. The bull is stalled between the elephants at the circus. As the restless beasts move about if they step in a too dangerous proximity to the nose of his reclining bull-ship, he simply asks them who they are fooling by giving one offending leg a tender caress with his little horns. It is the finest exhibition of sheer cleverness. The customs of animal attachments where they are kept in companionship with each other is an interesting study.

The Bella Union Theatre will flash out Mable Santley's Female Burlesque Company on its patrons this week.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

The Cremorne introduces the clever Eastern solo dancer, La Cellie, and corps de ballet as their latest attraction.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

Louis Imhaus has been specially engaged to play his old part of the French dialect character of Jean Passepartout in "Around the World" at the Metropolitan.

The Jefferson-Florence combination [illegible] success and business at the Star Theatre, N. Y., is the largest that has ever been known at that house. [illegible] a team of such well and favorably known artists as Joseph Jefferson, W. J. Florence and Mrs. John Drew in one company has never before been organized and their success is not to be wondered at. The result of their first week at the Star Theatre indicates that their season will be a success.

Harley & Hart in "Later On" are at the Bijou, N. Y.

Kiralfy's ballet extravaganza, "Antiope," will be the California's attraction next week.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Manager Eugene Tomkins has arranged with Director Edmund C. Stanton for the New York Metropolitan Opera House Company to play in German opera at the Boston Theatre for two weeks to begin on Easter Monday.

Mrs. Potter and Kyrle Bellew have written to Manager Charles Burnham, of the Star Theatre, New York, for open dates, with a view of playing at that theatre this Winter.

Budd Ross, Vernona Jarbeau's comedian, lately broke his left arm at Detroit while making a grotesque stage "fall" in her new comedy, "Strictly Confidential."

Wesley Venua, the insane actor, and one of California's pioneer actors, has been placed in the Brunswick Home, Amityville, L. I.

Dion Boucicault and Ben Teal are jointly engaged in playwriting.

Christine Nilsson recently obtained a verdict in a New York court against the Bogota City Railroad, the claim being for unpaid coupons of May, 1889.

Otis Skinner, who is pronounced by leading critics the best actor in the Booth-Modjeska combination, is the son of a Hartford (Conn.) clergyman.

Lydia Thompson is on her way from England. She proposes to try comedy on us this trip.

The wreck scene and rescue by the life-saving line in "The Great Metropolis" creates a great sensation everywhere. The New York Dramatic News says: "When Captain Norton, editor of the Marine Journal, saw 'The Great Metropolis' some weeks ago at the 23d Street Theatre, he remarked in referring to the play, 'I felt like jumping over the footlights and lending the crew a helping hand. It was so realistic.' The gallant captain's spirit was emulated by a jolly tar at the Walnut Street Theatre, last Saturday night in Philadelphia, who not only felt like doing so, but actually went pell-mell over the footlights upon the stage and took hold of the hawsers. As he was not on Klaw and Erlanger's salary list he was hustled off without ceremony, amid the enthusiastic cheers of the audience." We shall have "The Great Metropolis" at the Grand as its holiday attraction. Its grand scenic effects will have a fine field on the big stage of the Grand.

The copyrights of Boucicault's plays were lately sold at auction in London with the following results: "London Assurance" brought $785, "Flying Scud" $250, "Arrah-na-Pogue" $625 "The Long Strike" $210, "After Dark" $350, "Formosa" $270, and the remainder much smaller sums.

Manager A. C. Miner has secured control of "Roger La Honte," now playing at Niblo's, and will send it on the road November 9th.

Augustin Daly will begin a season in London July 1st.

The suit of Mme. Fursch-Madi against the National Conservatory of Music has been settled through a compromise. The sum involved was between $11,000 and $12,000, and the payment of one-quarter of the amount due led to the abandonment of further proceedings.

Duke Murray, advance agent for Milton Noble's company, will be here in a few days.

Popular George Osbourne returns here as leading man in Minnie Maddern's "Featherbrain" Co., that comes to the Bush after Frank Daniels.

The first gun of the Patrick Sarsfield Gilmore Jubilee is fired in to-day's FIGARO. See programme announcement in adjoining column.

Charles C. McCarthy and his "One of the Bravest" Co. played at the Howard Athenæum Theatre, Boston, recently. He is so well pleased with his Pacific Coast reception that he contemplates making another tour this way next season of longer duration.

Ada and Rillie Deaves, two California girls, are making a fine reputation on their starring tour in the East in "Chaos Flat." The piece doesn't please everybody, but the sisters do.

The New York papers compliment Miss Louise Allen on her graceful dancing in "The Spider and Fly."

A new English opera, "The Castle of Como," dealing with the story of "The Lady of Lyons," has just made a hit at the Opera Comique, London. If the opera achieves only a quantum of the success of Bulwer's play it will make fortunes for all concerned in it. "The Lady of Lyons" was produced nearly a half century ago, and so lasting is its popularity in England to the present day, that a recent London paper said there was not a week-day night in the year but what the good old play was performed in some part of the United Kingdom.

The Great Gilmore Peace Jubilee at the Mechanics' Pavilion draws near. The Handel and Haydn Society have secured their grand chorus of five hundred of the best voices in the city and perfected all their portion of the arrangements in which they are so much interested, as the Jubilee is given under their auspices. Gilmore, the musical king, will contribute his great band, his famous soloists, his renowned vocal artists, his steel anvils and corps, and his electric battery of artillery that will add their peals to the swelling of the mighty chorus in triumph of Peace.

Miss Sophie Eyre is in town superintending the rehearsals of her thrilling play and London success, "The Witch," at the Grand, that will have a grand production at that theatre Nov. 11th.

Douglass White, advance manager of Gilmore's Peace Jubilee, has been indefatigable in working up interest in the coming Festival, and will herald the ar-

EVENING -:- EDITION

WEDNESDAY....NOVEMBER 6, 1889

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Funny Frank Daniels is drawing immense houses in his "Little Puck" at the Bush. Daniels made his mark as the creator of "Old Sport," and clinched his popularity in his last new piece, which gives wider scope for the exercise of his natural humor.

Daniels is the greatest humorist-comedian on the stage, and a remarkable character builder. When he takes a character he builds it up and makes a great part of it by his unctious humor and quaint acting.

Mr. Daniels has surrounded himself with a first-class company, with whose assistance he brings out all the fun there is in one of the funniest comedies ever written. His company includes his principal support, the popular soubrette, Miss Bessie Sansou, the well known comedienne, Miss Rose Chesneau, and a bevy of bright and pretty girls; Harry Courtaine, Robert Evans, Arthur E. Moulton, Harry Color, William White and others.

The company is much stronger than that of last year. Taking new songs and chorus have been introduced in "Little Puck," and there is not a chestnut in it. The whole performance is most enjoyable, and the greatest go.

The theatre overflowed every night for the first week.

For cast and further particulars see the programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

That play of varied scenes and rapid action, "Tour of the World in Eighty Days," is produced in a spectacular form by the Alcazar Company this week, with Amazon March, Children's ballet and new specialty features.

The cast includes E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell, Miss Ethel Brandon, Louis Imbaus (specially engaged for Passepartout), Jas. M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward and the full Alcazar company. The principal characters are in the hands of good people, who give to their parts the reliabable interest of individual characterizations well sustained.

The scenery is entirely new and very fine, and especial care has been taken to make the whole production a noted one in that respect. It wins deserved recognition from the audience. The play has the handsomest mounting it ever had here.

The spectacular features are a great go. The marches, the children's ballet, and the various tableaux, give the drama rich and entertaining settings that the management deserve much commendation for. They have done wonders and deserve the success the piece has had.

Grand Opera House.

There are but a few more nights left to see the fine production of "The Corsican Brothers" at the Grand with Bandmann's strong blending of the romantic and supernatural, as shown in his remarkable impersonation of the Die Franchi twins, with its Grand Carnival Ball scene, its startling apparition scenes, and fine stage effects. We have spoken in full of the play and of Mr. Bandmann's performance, to the neglect of the merits of the company—owing only to our limited space. We now make room for the following endorsement of the company, copied from a recent Evening Bulletin:

"The strong company of the Grand is giving thoroughly good representation of 'The Corsican Brothers.' The cast includes more well-known names than will be found in any two traveling combinations. Mr. Bandmann does full justice to the dual role, and J. W. Thompson as 'Alfred Meynard,' and Charles Edmonds as 'Le Baron Montgeron' do good work. The heads of Corsican families are represented by John Jack and Charles Burton, and they give color and character to a scene that illustrates the Corsican spirit. Mrs. Edmonds is a dignified 'Madame Franchi,' and Ida Aubrey makes 'Marie' interesting. Celia Allsberg acted under constraint early in the week, but is now giving the character due prominence. The carnival scene is made bright and lively with special acts and characteristic dancing. The De Mar Sisters, with Miss Courtney, personate vivacious grisettes in their true character, and Miss May in the next act sings a lively drinking song with bits of dialogue in which Miss Gertie takes part. The tableaux are made remarkably effective. The piece has been drawing well."

Notwithstanding the large audiences the play is drawing it will have to give way to other attractions booked to follow.

—o—

That gifted actress, Miss Sophie Eyre, will be the next stellar attraction, in her thrilling play of "The Witch," opening Nov. 11th. Miss Eyre is now in this city superintending the preparations for her play, which she intends shall have the finest production at the Grand The piece is now in close rehearsal. Miss Eyre played it four months in the St. James Theatre, London, and Fleet, Sunday, of the

New California Theatre.

This is the last week of "Mr. Barnes of New York," Gunter's comedy adaptation from his own novel, a New York success, handsomely staged and well cast. The scene is in the South of Europe and Corsica, and the theme is love, murder and vendettaism.

The play comes to us with its own scenery, mountings, and some very fine mechanical stage effects. The cast is a very full one, as will be seen by referring to the programme on first page.

The play is sketchy and light, and dramatic and intense, at times, but picturesque and full of action always. Besides the principals, Mr. Robert Hilliard and Miss Emily Rigle, there are plenty of good people in the cast who carry the play along swimmingly.

The scenes and appointments are new and handsome, and immense houses testified their approval of the play.

Bolossy Kiralfy's grand ballet extravaganza, "Antiope," opens at the California Monday night. Box plan ready Thursday.

Baldwin Theatre.

Rosina Vokes, the gifted and well schooled actress and a charming comedienne, who has a reputation on both continents, is the attraction at the Baldwin.

Miss Vokes travels with her own company and the support is in every way good.

Miss Vokes' bill this week presents three more and finished mirth-inspiring little comedies: "Crocodile Tears" (new), "A Double Lesson," "My Lord in Livery" (new). These breezy little plays of the Vokes repertory are so admirably acted, staged and costumed, that they should serve as models for the production of the lighter school of pieces at other theatres.

See casts in programme elsewhere in FIGARO.

For the next and last week of Miss Rosina Vokes the bill will be a varied one: "In Honor Bound," "Uncle's Will" and a repetition of "A Game of Cards;" "My Milliner's Bill," "The Rough Diamond," "The Old Musician," "The Circus Rider" and "A Pantomime Rehearsal."

Mechanics' Pavilion—Gilmore's Jubilee.

Gilmore's San Francisco Musical Festival will hold high carnival next week at the Pavilion, with his great band of 100 pieces, his Anvil and Artillery-Battery corps, and his vocal soloists of renowned singers, augmented by our Handel and Haydn Society, with its 600 trained voices, under whose auspices the Jubilee is given.

For further particulars see programme announcement published elsewhere in FIGARO.

The Pavilion auditorium has been reconstructed for the Jubilee. The seats have been arranged in tiers, with the requisite rise to give 6,000 auditors an equal chance of seeing and hearing. The chorus will occupy a horse-shoe-shaped elevation, in front of which will be grouped the band of Gilmore.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

This famous Circus manager and accomplished ring-master returns to us again from an extended tour in the Orient, and opens with one of the most completely equipped circus he has yet had, at Central Park, corner Market and Eighth streets, this week.

Chiarini's Circus has always been famed for the handsomest and best trained horses, and the most expert and graceful riders, to say nothing of his incomparable manage acts. The feats of his two ponies are new and diverting. His splendid black horse, Prince, is made to show almost human intelligence. He brings him things across the ring, walking on his hind legs like a French poodle, and dances with the grace of a Kiralfy premier. Chiarini is still the boss horse-trainer. M'lle Le Blonde, a Paris artiste, does a bounding jockey act, doing all that Budd Gorman does, and his trained elephants do wonders that would make "Sid" blush.

His present grand equestrian establishment is rich in novelties: Ring artists from European hippodromes; trained blood-horses culled from various parts of the world; ponies from Corea, Java, China, and Japan; trained elephants, Japanese acrobats, and in fact most everything that is different from the usual circuses.

See announcement and admission prices elsewhere in FIGARO.

Orpheum Theatre.

There is an entire change of performance and company this week, with an elaborate production of Fritz Lafontaine's musical comedy, entitled "A Stew" with grand chorus, new songs, comic situations, gorgeous costumes, new scenery, etc.

The cast contains some clever comedians, singers and burlesque artists; including the erudite Geo. H. Wood, Imogene Eberle, Freddie Stockmeyer, Fred Reynolds, Harry Moore, a half score of pretty girls as pupils of the seminary, etc.

Mr. Wood comes again to the front with a well spiced and humorous performance that is particularly relished by the Orpheum audiences.

Among other good musical numbers is the "Revenge Chorus," specially composed for this comedy by Dyonis Romaudy.

The piece is light, lively and musical.

"Doctor Quack," another comedy, taking off the Brown-Sequarde cure alls of the day, will be produced next week.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrnes have made a special engagement with Mr. T. H. Glenney, a cosmopolitan actor and author, for a dramatic season at the East side popular theatre.

Mr. Glenney produces for his second week his own sensational play of "The Bushrangers," a play of Australian life and adventures in Melbourne, the gold diggings and in the bush-rangers' stamping ground. It is a drama full of adventures.

Mr. Glenny's piece is stirringly sensational and he plays his part very effectively. He is a competent all-around actor, and his new pieces will prove a great treat to Morosco's clientage.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary,

Bella Union Theatre.

Gardner and Arnold's Female Mastodons and Mable Santly's Female Burlesque Company, a fine display of beauty, is the constellation attraction this week. Delegations of the company appear in the Female Minstrel first part, and the whole appear in the burlesque of "Prince Faithful," which closes the bill. Factionsfractions of the company—four serio-comics—put in appearances in the olio. In fact they pervade the programme pretty generally.

It is almost a double company here now, as most of the old favorites are retained, and yet we have more to come.

Harry Montague, author and actor; the Duncan Sisters; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people put in appearances Monday night in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The danseuse, Mlle. L. Cellie, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week, with J. W. Kelly, the monologue artist and verse improvisatore, and Miss Jennie Heywood, the favorite vocalist, in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

The three Les Encroyables in their novel specialties and the French "Can-Can; or, Scenes in La Jardin Mabile," are other features of the bill.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Ida Farno, serio-comic; Miss Rose De Vere, vocalist, and Tommy Glenn, vocalist, punster and comedian, are new this week.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "The Three Troubadours," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Travers, J. Burns, Ella Letcher, Ida Farno, Rose Dovere, Alice Dale, John Gilmore and Tommy Glenn.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and ex-

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

It is funny to see that presumptuous little sacred bull at the circus standing under one of the elephants making a scratching post out of one of his forelegs, while the huge beast pats his pet gently with his runk.

Ted D. Marks, the present business manager of Herrmann's Transatlantique Vaudevilles, will shortly sever his connection with Prof. Herrmann and proceed to Europe, there to organize for the coming season "T. D. Marks' International Vaudevilles." Mr. Marks says he will organize a company that will be second to none traveling in this country, and will search every city on the continent for his artists, and play only the leading first-class theatres of America and Canada. If "hustling" will do it he is bound to be successful. He is backed by Western capitalists, and the proprietorship will be known as J. F. Ullman & Co.

The funeral of Annie Price, the Irish giantess, known as "Barnum's fat woman," who weighed 600 pounds, was a notable event in New York on the 27th ult. It required sixteen men to carry the coffin to the hearse. Her burial clothes were the same as she wore in public, and, in accordance with her dying request, the family Bible was buried with her.

The experiment of interchangeable vaudeville at two Philadelphia theatres—the Chestnut and South Broad—worked successfully. Herrmann's Transatlantiques was the attraction. The performance at one house opened with the main act, with which the programme ended at the other house. The theatres are about six blocks apart. A four-in-hand was kept on the constant go between the houses, both of which were crowded.

Harry Montague, who always makes things hum, returns to his home at the Bella Union Theatre, Monday night, bringing with him Miss Carrie Duncan. Carroll & Lewis said to rank as the best female impersonators on the stage—and other talent. The Lida Gardner-Billy Arnold-Mable Santly Burlesque Company will be retained, and the old Union will blaze with a coruscation of talent.

The Bella Union Theatre will flash out Mable Santley's Female Burlesque Company on its patrons this week.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

The Cremorne introduces the clever Eastern solo dancer, La Cellie, and corps de ballet as their latest attraction.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

Ha'len & Hart in "Later On" are at the Bijou, N. Y.

Kiralfy's ballet extravaganza, "Antiope," will be the California's attraction next week.

Frank L. Goodwin has secured Georgie Parker and the American Four, who will shortly appear in a musical comedy entitled "A Lucky Penny."

The copyrights of Boucicault's plays were lately sold at auction in London with the following results: "London Assurance" brought $785, "Flying Scud" $250, "Arrah-na Pogue" $625, "The Long Strike" $210, "After Dark" $350, "Formosa" $270, and the remainder much smaller sums.

Manager A. C. Miner has secured control of "Roger La Honte," now playing at Niblo's, and will send it on the road November 9th.

Augustin Daly will begin a season in London July 1st.

The suit of Mme. Fursch-Madi against the National Conservatory of Music has been settled through a compromise. The amount involved was between $11,000 and $12,000, and the payment of one-quarter of the amount decided to the abandonment of further proceedings.

Mark Murray, advance agent for Milton Nobles's company, will be here in a few days.

Miss Sophie Eyre is in town superintending the rehearsals of her thrilling play and London success, "The Witch," at the Grand, that will have a grand production at that theatre, Nov. 11th.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Director Louis Jacobson deserves more than a passing notice for good selections and well rendered orchestrations at the Grand. His accompaniments in "The Corsican Brothers" prove a good musician at the bow. "He discourses well," as Hamlet says.

Bolossy Kiralfy is in town superintending the production of his spectacle, "Antiope," at the California.

Paul F. Nicholson, representative of Patrick Sarsfield Gilmore, of band fame, is here to make preparations for Gilmore's coming great Musical Jubilee.

A New York dispatch tells us that Miss Etta Weaver, a sister of Blanche Weaver, a member of Frohman & Hayman's San Francisco and Chicago "Shenandoah" Company, was married to a Hoboken gentleman Sunday. But who the gentleman is is one of those things that no fellow can find out, as Sothern used to say; though it is rumored, says the dispatch, "that he is a relative of Duryea, the Glen Cove starch man, and is possessed of cosiderable wealth and good looks." If that is so he ought to have had more starch in him and stood up to his marriage contract like a man. The bride started right after with the company on its five months' trip, opening first in Cincinnati, and to play six weeks in California en tour. Nobody knew whether the husband would accompany his wife or not, but it was supposed he would stiffen up enough resolution to do so. Miss Weaver is described as "never having made a distinct hit. She was valued by her managers for her taste in dress and ladylike appearance." And these were the simple charms with which Miss Weaver wove the web of matrimony around the Hoboken Crœsus.

The annual joint benefit of the Alcazar's ushers, doorkeepers and assistant treasurer takes place at that theatre on Monday week. Bill: Steele Mackey's melodrama, "A Noble Rogue." These "front" representatives have troops of friends won by their courteous and painstaking attentions and seats will be in demand for their benefit.

A new comic opera, "Iona," book by the late Hugh Conway, music by M. Berbing, was produced at the Comedy Theatre, Manchester, England, Oct. 23th.

The Haverly-Cleveland Minstrels broke the record at the New Orleans Grand Opera House, recently, by crowding it to its fullest capacity. Long before the curtain rose no admission tickets were to be had at the box office. The performance was excellently and gorgeously gotten up, and went with considerable dash from the start. John Queen, a New Orleans boy, was given a royal reception, and beautiful flowers were showered down on him. In addition to a handsome floral design, Billy Emerson also received a grand ovation.

Mrs. Langtry has leased the St. James Theatre, London, Eng., for one year.

A Paris inventor has patented a new theatrical snow which flutters as it falls and melts on reaching the stage. [It must be a sloppy snow.]

Clara Chester (Mrs. Geo. Lederer) has left the Herrmann Vaudeville Co.

Charles B. Jefferson and H. S. Taylor have purchased "Hands Across the Sea" from Gustave Kahn.

Cora Edsall is the name of a young lady who will soon make her stage debut under the direction of J. M. Hill.

Miss Loie Fuller appears to have made a success in London, where she made her debut in "Caprice."

James O'Neil is in New York this week at the Fourteenth Street Theatre, where he is seen in "Monte Cristo."

Mrs. Bowers has been engaged by Manager A. M. Palmer to appear with Salvini. She will play Emelia in "Othello," and will open in Boston with the Italian tragedian.

Lloyd Breeze will re-establish Chaff very soon, and publish it in Chicago, where his bright comments on music and the drama should find prompt appreciation.

Wesley Venua, the insane actor, and one of California's pioneer actors, has been placed in the Brunswick Home, Amityville, L. I.

Dion Boucicault and Ben Teal are jointly engaged in playwriting.

Christine Nilsson recently obtained a verdict in a New York court against the Bogota City Railroad, the claim being for unpaid coupons of May, 1889.

Popular George Osbourne returns here as leading man in Minnie Maddern's "Featherbrain" Co., that comes to the Bush after Frank Daniels.

Otis Skinner, who is pronounced by leading critics the best actor in the Booth-Modjeska combination, is the son of a Hartford (Conn.) clergyman.

Lydia Thompson is on her way from England. She proposes to try comedy on us this trip.

The wreck scene and rescue by the life-saving line in "The Great Metropolis" creates a great sensation everywhere. The New York Dramatic News says: "When Captain Norton, editor of the Marine Journal, saw 'The Great Metropolis' some week ago at the 23d Street Theatre, he remarked in referring to the play, 'I felt like jumping over the footlights and lending the crew a helping hand, it was so realistic.' The gallant captain's spirit was emulated by a jolly tar at the Walnut Street Theatre last Saturday night in Philadelphia, who not only felt like doing so, but actually went pell-mell over the footlights upon the stage and took hold of the hawsers. As he was not on Klaw and Erlanger's salary list he was hustled off without ceremony, the audience [illegible] cheers of

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Funny Frank Daniels is drawing immense houses in his "Little Puck" at the Bush. Daniels made his mark as the creator of "Old Sport," and clinched his popularity in his last new piece, which gives wider scope for the exercise of his natural humor.

Daniels is the greatest humorist-comedian on the stage, and a remarkable character builder. When he takes a character he builds it up and makes a great part of it by his unctious humor and quaint acting.

Mr. Daniels has surrounded himself with a first-class company, with whose assistance he brings out all the fun there is in one of the funniest comedies ever written. His company includes his principal support, the popular soubrette, Miss Bessie Sanson, the well known comedienne, Miss Rose Cheeseau, and a bevy of bright and pretty girls; Harry Courtaine, Robert Evans, Arthur E. Moulton, Harry Conor, William White and others.

The company is much stronger than that of last year. Taking new songs and chorus have been introduced in "Little Puck," and there is not a chestnut in it. The whole performance is most enjoyable, and the greatest go.

The theatre overflowed every night for the first week.

For cast and further particulars see the programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

That play of varied scenes and rapid action, "Tour of the World in Eighty Days," is produced in a spectacular form by the Alcazar Company this week, with Amazon March, Children's ballet and new specialty features.

The cast includes E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell, Miss Ethel Brandon, Louis Imbaus (specially engaged for Passepartout), Jas. M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward and the full Alcazar company. The principal characters are in the hands of good people, who give to their parts the reliabable interest of individual characterizations well sustained.

The scenery is entirely new and very fine, and especial care has been taken to make the whole production a noted one in that respect. It wins deserved recognition from the audience. The play has the handsomest mounting it ever had here.

The spectacular features are a great go. The marches, the children's ballet, and the various tableaux, give the drama rich and entertaining settings that the management deserve much commendation for. They have done wonders and deserve the success the piece has had.

Grand Opera House.

There are but a few more nights left to see the fine production of "The Corsican Brothers" at the Grand with Bandmann's strong blending of the romantic and supernatural, as shown in his remarkable impersonation of the Dei Franchi twins, with its Grand Carnival Ball scene, its startling apparition scenes, and fine stage effects. We have spoken in full of the play and of Mr. Bandmann's performance, to the neglect of the merits of the company—owing only to our limited space. We now make room for the following endorsement of the company, copied from a recent Evening Bulletin:

"The strong company of the Grand is giving thoroughly good representation of 'The Corsican Brothers.' The cast includes more well-known names than will be found in any two traveling combinations. Mr. Bandmann does full justice to the dual role, and J. W. Thompson as 'Alfred Meynard,' and Charles Edmonds as 'Le Baron Montgeron' do good work. The heads of Corsican families are represented by John Jack and Charles Burton, and they give color and character to a scene that illustrates the Corsican spirit. Mrs. Edmonds is a dignified 'Madame Franchi,' and Ida Aubrey makes 'Marie' interesting. Celia Allsberg acted under constraint early in the week, but is now giving the character due prominence. The carnival scene is made bright and lively with special acts and characteristic dancing. The De Mar Sisters, with Miss Courtney, personate vivacious grisettes in their true character, and Miss May in the next act sings a lively drinking song with bits of dialogue in which Miss Gertie takes part. The tableaux are made remarkably effective. The piece has been drawing well."

Notwithstanding the large audiences the play is drawing it will have to give way to other attractions booked to follow.

—o—

That gifted actress, Miss Sophie Eyre, will be the next stellar attraction, in her thrilling play of "The Witch," opening Nov. 11th. Miss Eyre is now in this city superintending the preparations for her play, which she intends shall have the finest production at the Grand The piece is now in close rehearsal. Miss

New California Theatre.

This is the last week of "Mr. Barnes of New York," Gunter's comedy adaptation from his own novel, a New York success, handsomely staged and well cast. The scene is in the South of Europe and Corsica, and the theme is love, murder and vendettaism.

The play comes to us with its own scenery, mountings, and some very fine mechanical stage effects. The cast is a very full one, as will be seen by referring to the programme on first page, and the good people in it carry the play along swimmingly.

The scenes and appointments are new and handsome, and immense houses testified their approval of the play.

Bolossy Kiralfy's grand ballet extravaganza, "Antiope," opens at the California Monday night. It is sufficient to add that it is a Kiralfy production, and a new one.

Seats can be secured three weeks in advance.

Baldwin Theatre.

Rosina Vokes, the gifted and well schooled actress and a charming comedienne, who has a reputation on both continents, is the attraction at the Baldwin.

Miss Vokes travels with her own company and the support is in every way good.

Miss Vokes' bill this week presents three more and finished mirth-inspiring little comedies: "Crocodile Tears" (new), "A Double Lesson," "My Lord in Livery" (new). These breezy little plays of the Vokes repertory are so admirably acted, staged and costumed, that they should serve as models for the production of the lighter school of pieces at other theatres.

See casts in programme elsewhere in FIGARO.

For the next and last week of Miss Rosina Vokes the bill will be a varied one: "In Honor Bound," "Uncle's Will" and a repetition of "A Game of Cards;" "My Milliner's Bill," "The Rough Diamond," "The Old Musician," "The Circus Rider" and "A Pantomime Rehearsal."

Mechanics' Pavilion—Gilmore's Jubilee.

Gilmore's San Francisco Musical Festival will hold high carnival next week at the Pavilion, with his great band of 100 pieces, his Anvil and Artillery-Battery corps, and his vocal soloists of renowned singers, augmented by our Handel and Haydn Society, with its 500 trained voices, under whose auspices the Jubilee is given.

For further particulars and prices, see programme announcement published elsewhere in FIGARO.

The Pavilion auditorium has been reconstructed for the Jubilee. The seats have been arranged in tiers, with the requisite rise to give 6,000 auditors an equal chance of seeing and hearing. The chorus will occupy a horse-shoe-shaped elevation, in front of which will be grouped the band of Gilmore.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

This famous Circus manager and accomplished ring-master returns to us again from an extended tour in the Orient, and opens with one of the most completely equipped circus he has yet had, at Central Park, corner Market and Eighth streets, this week.

Chiarini's Circus has always been famed for the handsomest and best trained horses, and the most expert and graceful riders, to say nothing of his incomparable manage acts. The feats of his two ponies are new and diverting. His splendid black horse, Prince, is made to show almost human intelligence. He brings Chiarini things across the ring, walking on his hind legs like a French poodle, and dances with the grace of a Kiralfy premier. Chiarini is still the boss horse-trainer. M'lle Le Blonde, a Paris artiste, does a bounding jockey act, doing all that Budd Gorman does, and his trained elephants do wonders that would make "Sid" blush.

His present grand equestrian establishment is rich in novelties: Ring artists from European hippodromes; trained blood-horses culled from various parts of the world; ponies from Corea, Java, China, and Japan; trained elephants, Japanese acrobats, and in fact most everything that is different from the usual circuses.

See announcement and admission prices elsewhere in FIGARO.

Orpheum Theatre.

There is an entire change of performance and company this week, with an elaborate production of Fritz Lafontaine's musical comedy, entitled "A Stew," with grand chorus, new songs, comic situations, gorgeous costumes, new scenery, etc.

The cast contains some clever comedians, singers and burlesque artists; including the erudite Geo. H. Wood, Imogene Eberle, Freddie Stockmeyer, Fred Reynolds, Harry Moore, a half score of pretty girls as pupils of the seminary, etc.

Mr. Wood comes again to the front with a well spiced and humorous performance that is particularly relished by the Orpheum audiences, and the company do creditable work.

The piece is light, lively and musical.

A good specialty programme will be presented next week, of which more anon.

Manager Walter announces Grand Hippodrome and Roman Races, from Madison Square Garden, New York, as leading features at Woodward's Garden on Saturday and Sunday.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrnes have made a special engagement with Mr. T. H. Glenney, a cosmopolitan actor and author, for a dramatic season at the East side popular theatre.

Mr. Glenney produces for his second week his own sensational play of "The Bushrangers," a play of Australian life and adventures in Melbourne, the gold diggings and in the bushrangers' stamping ground. It is a drama full of adventures.

Mr. Glenny's piece is stirringly sensational and he plays his part very effectively. He is a competent all-around actor, and his new pieces will prove a great treat to Morosco's clientage.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conolite, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the

Bella Union Theatre

Gardner and Arnold's Female Mastodons and Mable Santly's Female Burlesque Company, a fine display of beauty, is the constellation attraction this week. Delegations of the company appear in the Female Minstrel first part, and the whole appear in the burlesque of "Prince Faithful," which closes the bill. Factionsfractions of the company — four serio-comics—put in appearances in the olio. In fact they pervade the programme pretty generally.

It is almost a double company here now, as most of the old favorites are retained, and yet we have more to come.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people put in appearances Monday night in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The dansense, Mlle. La Cellie, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week, with J. W. Kelly, the monologue artist and verse improvisatore, and Miss Jennie Heywood, the favorite vocalist, in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldi, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

The three Les Encroyables in their novel specialties and the French "Can-Can; or, Scenes in La Jardin Mabile," are other features of the bill.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Ida Farno, serio-comic; Miss Rose De Vere, vocalist, and Tommy Glenn, vocalist, punster and comedian, are new this week.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "The Three Troubadours," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Ella Letcher, Ida Farno, Rose Devere, Alice Dale, John Gilmore and Tommy Glenn.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and con-

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Mr. Arthur Miller, representative of Miss Maddern and company, of which George Osbourne returns to us as principal male support, is in town. Miss Maddern follows Frank Daniels at the Bush, on the 18th, in the bright and rattling comedy of "Featherbrain," which is a pronounced Eastern success.

Milton Nobles is just sweeping all before him in Montana. His season in Butte City was unprecedented, and his opening night at Helena filled the gallery (600) at 50 cents admission, every box and every seat in the lower circles and 100 standing room admissions. His receipts exceeded the record by $40.

"Stuttz' New York Theatre Co.," that started out from San Diego, Cal., about a year ago that gentleman having managed a theatre in that haven of climatic rest until he got all broke up and had to start out on the road—has marched as far into the interior of the land as Junction City, Kansas, where they were playing to a "splendid house" on Nov. 1st.

Charley Bert is back from his Southern trip engineering Roberts' Humpty-Dumpty Co. He reports business good. Roberts takes his pantomime for a Winter season through New Mexico, and Mr. Bert leaves Saturday to resume his advance position at Denver.

Signors Tamagno and Perugini, tenors for Abbey's Patti Italian Opera, have sailed from Havre for New York.

Manager Amberg's new tenor, Streitman, has struck, and his role in "The Gypsy Baron" was taken by Herr Schultze. Streitmann claims that he has been "snubbed" to give undue prominence to the tragedian, Possart, and a lawsuit is to follow.

The Kendals will produce "Impulse" and "The Queen's Shilling" at Palmer's Theatre, N. Y., in February next.

Elmer Ruan Coates, a well known dramatist, died lately in Philadelphia.

The Turkish Minister at Paris has protested against the production of "Mahomet," a tragedy, at the Theatre Francaise, but the management deems "Mahomet" no less sacred than "Moses," "The Prophet" and Rossini's opera, "Mahomet," and objects to Turkish interference with its business.

Manager Island, of the Empire Theatre, Troy, N. Y., lately "skinned out" with the receipts, and his deluded employees are financially "left."

Kiralfy's ballet extravaganza, "Antiope," will be the California's attraction next week.

Duke Murray, advance agent for Milton Noble's company, will be here in a few days.

Miss Sophie Eyre is in town superintending the rehearsals of her thrilling play and London success, "The Witch," at the Grand, that will have a grand production at that theatre Nov. 11th.

James O'Neil is in New York this week at the Fourteenth Street Theatre, where he is seen in "Monte Cristo."

Mrs. Bowers has been engaged by Manager A. M. Palmer to appear with Salvini. She will play Emelia in "Othello," and will open in Boston with the Italian tragedian.

Lloyd Breeze will re-establish Chaff very soon, and publish it in Chicago, where his bright comments on music and the drama should find prompt appreciation.

Dion Boucicault and Ben Teal are jointly engaged in playwriting.

Popular George Osbourne returns here as leading man in Minnie Maddern's "Featherbrain" Co., that comes to the Bush after Frank Daniels.

Lydia Thompson is on her way from England. She proposes to try comedy on us this trip.

Manager Eugene Tomkins has arranged with Director Edmund C. Stanton for the New York Metropolitan Opera House Company to play in German opera at the Boston Theatre for two weeks to begin on Easter Monday.

Mrs. Potter and Kyrle Bellew have written to Manager Charles Burnham, of the Star Theatre, New York, for open dates, with a view of playing at that theatre this Winter.

Miss Marie Wainwright presents her new and handsome production of "Twelfth Night" at the Park Theatre in Brooklyn, on Monday next.

The "next" at the Bush will be Miss Maddern, accompanied by George Osbourne, on Monday week, in the successful comedy of "Featherbrain," a very lively and entertaining piece.

Dates ahead at the Grand has confined Sophie Eyre and her strong play of "The Witch" down to one week's time. Milton Nobles follows on the 18th, with his own company, with "From Sire to Son" for his first week, and "Love and Law" and "Phœnix" for his last week. The latest English melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," follows on Dec. 2nd for two weeks, and the spectacular drama of New York life, "The Great Metropolis," with its great wreck and life-saving scene, will be the Grand's holiday attraction.

Wilton Lackaye has resigned from Augustin Daly's company because he was cast for Oliver in "As You Like It." Mr. Daly's contracts require the members of his company to play any part he may assign them; but Mr. Lackaye drew the line at Oliver, claiming that it is "too small" for his recognized capabilities.

Charles H. Macklin, late of Edwin Arden's Co., died recently in Brooklyn, N. Y., aged 32.

A London court has ordered Dion Boucicault to pay the sum of $150 monthly to his divorced wife, Agnes Robertson.

Ibsen's "Doll's Home," produced at the matinee Oct. 30th by Mansfield's company, made a hit at the Globe Theatre, Boston.

Manager William Dunlevy, of the Park Theatre, New York, invited all the local newsboys to attend a matinee performance of Barry & Fay, recently, in honor of his birthday. Manager Dunlevy is an ex-newsboy.

Director Louis Jacobson deserves more than a passing notice for good selections and well rendered orchestrations at the Grand. His accompaniments in "The Corsican Brothers" prove a good musician at the bow. "He discourses well," as Hamlet says.

Bolossy Kiralfy is in town superintending the production of his spectacle, "Antiope," at the California.

Paul F. Nicholson, representative of Patrick Sarsfield Gilmore, of band fame, is here to make preparations for Gilmore's coming great Musical Jubilee.

The annual joint benefit of the Alcazar's ushers, doorkeepers and assistant treasurer takes place at that theatre on Monday week. Bill: Steele Mackey's melodrama, "A Noble Rogue." These "front" representatives have troops of friends won by their courteous and painstaking attentions and seats will be in demand for their benefit.

A new comic opera, "Iona," book by the late Hugh Conway, music by M. Berhing, was produced at the Comedy Theatre, Manchester, England, Oct. 23th.

The Haverly-Cleveland Minstrels broke the record at the New Orleans Grand Opera House, recently, by crowding it to its fullest capacity. Long before the curtain rose no admission tickets were to be had at the box office. The performance was excellently and gorgeously gotten up, and went with considerable dash from the start. John Queen, a New Orleans boy, was given a royal reception, and beautiful flowers were showered down on him. In addition to a handsome floral design, Billy Emerson also received a grand ovation.

Mrs. Langtry has leased the St. James Theatre, London, Eng., for one year.

A Paris inventor has patented a new theatrical snow which flutters as it falls and melts on reaching the stage. [It must be a sloppy snow.]

Clara Chester (Mrs. Geo. Lederer) has left the Herrmann Vaudeville Co.

Charles B. Jefferson and H. S. Taylor have purchased "Hands Across the Sea" from Gustave Kahn.

Cora Edsall is the name of a young lady who will soon make her stage debut under the direction of J. M. Hill.

Miss Loie Fuller appears to have made a success in London, where she made her debut in "Caprice."

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

It is funny to see that presumptuous little sacred bull at the circus standing under one of the elephants making a scratching post out of one of his forelegs, while the huge beast pats his pet gently with his trunk.

Ted D. Marks, the present business manager of Herrmann's Transatlantique Vaudevilles, will shortly sever his connection with Prof. Herrmann and proceed to Europe, there to organize for the coming season "T. D. Marks' International Vaudevilles." Mr. Marks says he will organize a company that will be second to none traveling in this country, and will search every city on the continent for his artists, and play only the leading first-class theatres of America and Canada. If "hustling" will do it he is bound to be successful. He is backed by Western capitalists, and the proprietorship will be known as J. F. Ullman & Co.

Harry Montague, who always makes things hum, returns to his home at the Bella Union Theatre, Monday night, bringing with him Miss Carrie Duncan, Carroll & Lewis said to rank as the best female impersonators on the stage—and other talent. The Lida Gardner-Billy Arnold-Mable Santly Burlesque Company will be retained, and the old Union will blaze with a coruscation of talent.

The Bella Union Theatre will flash out Mable Santley's Fern on Burlesque Company on its patrons this week.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

The Cremorne introduces the clever Eastern solo dancer, La Cellie, and corps de ballet as their latest attraction.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Funny Frank Daniels is drawing immense houses in his "Little Puck" at the Bush. Daniels made his mark as the creator of "Old Sport," and clinched his popularity in his last new piece, which gives wider scope for the exercise of his natural humor.

Daniels is the greatest humorist-comedian on the stage, and a remarkable character builder. When he takes a character he builds it up and makes a great part of it by his unctious humor and quaint acting.

Mr. Daniels has surrounded himself with a first-class company, with whose assistance he brings out all the fun there is in one of the funniest comedies ever written. His company includes his principal support, the popular soubrette, Miss Bessie Sanson the well known comedienne, Miss Rose Chesbeau, and a bevy of bright and pretty girls; Harry Courtaine, Robert Evans, Arthur E. Moulton, Harry Connor, William White and others.

The company is much stronger than that of last year. Taking new songs and chorus have been introduced in "Little Puck," and there is not a chestnut in it. The whole performance is most enjoyable, and the greatest go.

The theatre overflowed every night for the first week.

For cast and further particulars see the programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

That play of varied scenes and rapid action, "Tour of the World in Eighty Days," is produced in a spectacular form by the Alcazar Company this week, with Amazon March, Children's ballet and new specialty features.

The cast includes E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell, Miss Ethel Brandon, Louis Imhaus (specially engaged for Passepartout), Jas. M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward and the full Alcazar company. The principal characters are in the hands of good people, who give to their parts the reliable interest of individual characterizations well sustained.

The scenery is entirely new and very fine, and especial care has been taken to make the whole production a noted one in that respect. It wins deserved recognition from the audience. The play has the handsomest mounting it ever had here.

The spectacular features are a great go. The marches, the children's ballet, and the various tableaux, give the drama rich and entertaining settings that the management deserve much commendation for. They have done wonders and deserve the success the piece has had.

Grand Opera House.

There are but a few more nights left to see the fine production of "The Corsican Brothers" at the Grand with Bandmann's strong blending of the romantic and supernatural, as shown in his remarkable impersonation of the Dei Franchi twins, with its Grand Carnival Ball scene, its startling apparition scenes, and fine stage effects. We have spoken in full of the play and of Mr. Bandmann's performance, to the neglect of the merits of the company owing only to our limited space. We now make room for the following endorsement of the company, copied from a recent Evening Bulletin:

"The strong company of the Grand is giving thoroughly good representation of 'The Corsican Brothers.' The cast includes more well-known names than will be found in any two traveling combinations. Mr Bandmann does full justice to the dual role, and J W Thompson as 'Alfred Meynard,' and Charles Edmonds as 'Le Baron Montgeron' do good work. The heads of Corsican families are represented by John Jack and Charles Burton, and they give to their role character to a degree that illustrates the Corsican spirit. Mrs Edmonds is a delightful 'Madame Franchi,' and Ida Aubrey makes 'Marie' interesting. Celia Allsberg acted under constraint early in the week, but is now giving the character due prominence. The carnival scene is made bright and lively with special song and characteristic dancing. The De Mar sisters with Miss Courtney, personate vivacious young ladies in their true character, and Miss Morton the next act sings a lively drinking song with bits of dialogue in which Miss Gertie bears part. The tableaux are made remarkably effective. The piece has been drawing well."

Notwithstanding the large audiences the play is drawing it will have to give way to other attractions booked to follow.

That gifted actress, Miss Sophie Eyre, will be the next stellar attraction in her thrilling play of "The Witch," opening Nov. 11th. Miss Eyre is now in this city superintending the preparations for her play, which she intends

New California Theatre.

This is the last week of "Mr. Barnes of New York," Gunter's comedy adaptation from his own novel, a New York success, handsomely staged and well cast. The scene is in the South of Europe and Corsica, and the theme is love, murder and vendettaism.

The play comes to us with its own scenery, mountings, and some very fine mechanical stage effects. The cast is a very full one, as will be seen by referring to the programme on first page, and the good people in it carry the play along swimmingly.

The scenes and appointments are new and handsome, and immense houses testified their approval of the play.

Bolossy Kiralfy's grand ballet extravaganza, "Antiope," opens at the California Monday night. It is sufficient to add that it is a Kiralfy production, and a new one.

Seats can be secured three weeks in advance.

Baldwin Theatre.

Rosina Vokes, the gifted and well schooled actress and a charming comedienne, who has a reputation on both continents, is the attraction at the Baldwin.

Miss Vokes travels with her own company and the support is in every way good.

Miss Vokes' bill this week presents three more and finished mirth-inspiring little comedies: "Crocodile Tears" (new), "A Double Lesson," "My Lord in Livery" (new). These breezy little plays of the Vokes repertory are so admirably acted, staged and costumed, that they should serve as models for the production of the lighter school of pieces at other theatres.

See casts in programme elsewhere in FIGARO.

For the next and last week of Miss Rosina Vokes the bill will be a varied one: "In Honor Bound," "Uncle's Will" and a repetition of "A Game of Cards;" "My Milliner's Bill," "The Rough Diamond," "The Old Musician," "The Circus Rider" and "A Pantomime Rehearsal."

Mechanics' Pavilion—Gilmore's Jubilee.

Gilmore's San Francisco Musical Festival will hold high carnival next week at the Pavilion, with his great band of 100 pieces, his Anvil and Artillery-Battery corps, and his vocal soloists of renowned singers, augmented by our Handel and Haydn Society, with its 500 trained voices, under whose auspices the Jubilee is given.

For further particulars and prices, see programme announcement published elsewhere in FIGARO.

The Pavilion auditorium has been reconstructed for the Jubilee. The seats have been arranged in tiers, with the requisite rise to give 6,000 auditors an equal chance of seeing and hearing. The chorus will occupy a horse-shoe-shaped elevation, in front of which will be grouped the band of Gilmore.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

This famous Circus manager and accomplished ring-master returns to us again from an extended tour in the Orient, and opens with one of the most completely equipped circus he has yet had, at Central Park, corner Market and Eighth streets, this week.

Chiarini's Circus has always been famed for the handsomest and best trained horses, and the most expert and graceful riders, to say nothing of his incomparable manage acts. The feats of his two ponies are new and diverting. His splendid black horse, Prince, is made to show almost human intelligence. He brings Chiarini things across the ring, walking on his hind legs like a French poodle, and dances with the grace of a Kiralfy premier. Chiarini is still the boss horse-trainer. M'lle Le Blonde, a Paris artiste, does a bounding jockey act, doing all that Budd Gorman does, and his trained elephants do wonders that would make "Sid" blush.

His present grand equestrian establishment is rich in novelties: Ring artists from European hippodromes; trained blood-horses culled from various parts of the world; ponies from Corea, Java, China, and Japan; trained elephants, Japanese acrobats, and in fact most everything that is different from the usual circuses.

See announcement and admission prices elsewhere in FIGARO.

Orpheum Theatre.

There is an entire change of performance and company this week, with an elaborate production of Fritz Lafontaine's musical comedy, entitled "A Stew" with grand chorus, new songs, comic situations, gorgeous costumes, new scenery, etc.

The cast contains some clever comedians, singers and burlesque artists; including the erudite Geo. H. Wood, Imogene Eberle, Freddie Stockmeyer, Fred Reynolds, Harry Moore, a half score of pretty girls as pupils of the seminary, etc.

Mr. Wood comes again to the front with a well spiced and humorous performance that is particularly relished by the Orpheum audiences, and the company do creditable work.

The piece is light, lively and musical.

A good specialty programme will be presented next week, of which more anon.

Manager Walter announces Grand Hippodrome and Roman Races, from Madison Square Garden, New York, as leading features at Woodward's Garden on Saturday and Sunday.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrnes have made a special engagement with Mr. T. H Glenney, a cosmopolitan actor and author, for a dramatic season at the East side popular theatre.

Mr. Glenney produces for his second week his own sensational play of "The Bushrangers," a play of Australian life and adventures in Melbourne, the gold diggings and in the bushrangers' stamping ground. It is a drama full of adventure.

Mr. Glenny's piece is stirringly sensational and he plays his part very effectively. He is a competent all-around actor, and his new pieces will prove a great treat to Morosco's clientage.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary,

Stella Union Theatre

Gardner and Arnold's Female Mastodons and Mable Santly's Female Burlesque Company, a fine display of beauty, is the constellation attraction this week. Delegations of the company appear in the Female Minstrel first part, and the whole appear in the burlesque of "Prince Faithful," which closes the bill. Factionsfractions of the company — four serio-comics—put in appearances in the olio. In fact they pervade the programme pretty generally.

It is almost a double company here now, as most of the old favorites are retained, and yet we have more to come.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people put in appearances Monday night in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The danseuse, Mlle. La Cellie, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week, with J. W. Kelly, the monologue artist and verse improvisatore, and Miss Jennie Heywood, the favorite vocalist, in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

The three Les Encroyables in their novel specialties and the French "Can-Can; or, Scenes in La Jardin Mabile," are other features of the bill.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Ida Farno, serio-comic; Miss Rose De Vere, vocalist, and Tommy Glenn, vocalist, punster and comedian, are new this week.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "The Three Troubadours," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Travers, J. Burns, Ella Letcher, Ida Farno, Rose Devere, Alice Dale, John Gilmore and Tommy Glenn.

The Comique's company is a strong one in

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

"The Corsican Brothers" at the Grand was a most creditable production for the new management. It drew a good two weeks' business and has done much to establish the Grand in popular favor.

Next week we will have the Kiralfy "ballet divertissements" and all that sort of thing at the California in his new spectacle of "Antiope."

Funny Frank Daniels and all the pretty girls of his company put in their last nights at the Bush next week.

Next week is Rosina Vokes' last at the Baldwin.

Lew Dockstader, of Dockstader's Theatre, N. Y., intends this season to produce burlesques on popular grand and comic operas, with a prima donna and a full chorus of men and women, and appropriate scenery and costumes.

W. F. Rochester has joined the Nellie McHenry Co. for an interior tour.

Henry E. Dixey's "Seven Ages," playing at the Standard Theatre, N. Y., is still drawing the capacity of the house. Some new and pleasing musical numbers have been introduced by Edward E. Rice.

But three well known professionals wear rings on their thumb: Henry Dixey, Nellie McHenry and Laura Burt, and each attribute their fortunes to it. Mrs. Langtry, when it becomes necessary in playing certain parts to remove her ring from her finger, never permits it to leave her person. Lillian Russell attributes her brilliant success in "The Brigands" to her beautiful necklace of turquoise and diamonds, and Pauline Hall her success to her $15,000 pearl earrings. Maggie Mitchell is content to wear a new wedding ring, and trust to luck.

James Connor Roach has finished a new Irish play, which he has named "Rory O'Malley."

Mr. Arthur Miller, representative of Miss Maddern and company, of which George Osbourne returns to us as principal male support, is in town. Miss Maddern follows Frank Daniels at the Bush, on the 18th, in the bright and rattling comedy of "Featherbrain," which is a pronounced Eastern success.

Milton Nobles is just sweeping all before him in Montana. His season in Butte City was unprecedented, and his opening night at Helena filled the gallery (600) at 50 cents admission, every box and every seat in the lower circles and 100 standing-room admissions. His receipts exceeded the record by $40.

"Stuttz' New York Theatre Co.," that started out from San Diego, Cal., about a year ago—that gentleman having managed a theatre in that haven of climatic rest until he got all broke up and had to start out on the road—has marched as far into the interior of the land as Junction City, Kansas, where they were playing to a "splendid house" on Nov. 1st.

Charley Bert is back from his Southern trip engineering Roberts' Humpty-Dumpty Co. He reports business good. Roberts takes his pantomime for a season through New Mexico, and Mr. Bert left to-day to resume his advance position at Denver.

Signors Tamagno and Perugini, tenors for Abbey's Patti Italian Opera, have sailed from Havre for New York.

Manager Amberg's new tenor, Streitman, has struck, and his role in "The Gypsy Baron" was taken by Herr Schultze. Streitmann claims that he has been "snubbed" to give undue prominence to the tragedian, Possart, and a lawsuit is to follow.

The Turkish Minister at Paris has protested against the production of "Mahomet," a tragedy, at the Theatre Francais. He thinks the management deems "Mahomet" no less sacred than "Moses," "The Prophet" and Rossini's opera, "Mahomet," and objects to Turkish interference with its business.

Manager Island, of the Empire Theatre, Troy, N. Y., lately "skipped out" with the receipts, and his deluded employees are financially "etc."

Kiralfy's ballet extravaganza, "Antiope," will be the California's attraction next week.

Duke Murray, advance agent for Milton Noble's company, will be here in a few days.

Mrs. Bowers has been engaged by Manager A. M. Palmer to appear with Salvini. She will play Emelia in "Otello," and will open in Boston with

Charles H. Davis, a well known and popular advance agent, formerly of Mrs. Brown Potter's company, comes here as representative of the great New York spectacular attraction, "The Great Metropolis," which will be presented at the Grand Opera House during the holidays.

Fanny Rice, who came here as Venus in Hoyt's "Rag Baby" Co., made a tremendous hit at Chicago in "The Brigands" where she has received more social attention than any actress that has yet visited the inter-ocean city.

Burt Haverly will resign from the Patti Rosa Company after playing in Salt Lake, and will return to this coast.

Harry Courtaine has not lost any of his old-time popularity, judging from the rounds of applause with which he is greeted every night from an appreciative audience.

Bandmann plays the Northern circuit after leaving here in "Hamlet" and a round of Shakespearean characters.

Kellogg, the mind-reader, who does the wonderful tests performed by the late celebrated Bishop, and many more difficult feats, has engaged Ed Bert as business manager.

Manager Jay Rial has booked Sophie Eyre for an interior tour, to begin after her engagement at the Grand Opera House.

The demand for single seats at Sherman & Clay's for the Gilmore Jubilee Concerts is something enormous.

The opera house at Port Leyden, N. Y., was lately destroyed by fire.

Raoul Koczalski, a 5-year-old Polish pianist, has just created a sensation in Berlin by his masterly execution of Mendelssohn's concerto in D and a Chopin mazourka.

Smoulder's Opera House, Nanticoke, Pa., ominous name, was lately burned to the ground. Loss, $16,000; insurance, $10,000.

Mary Anderson has returned to London from the highlands of Scotland very much improved in health.

H. R. Jacobs' Clark Street Theatre is the name given to the handsome theatre now nearly completed and situated on the corner of Clark and Kinzie streets, Chicago, upon the site of the old Museum. It used to be said that there wasn't a dollar for any theatre north of Chicago River, but with M. B. Leavitt and Jacobs north of the open sewer things must have changed.

The "next" at the Bush will be Miss Maddern, accompanied by George Osbourne, on Monday week, in the successful comedy of "Featherbrain," a very lively and entertaining piece.

Dates ahead at the Grand has confined Sophie Eyre and her strong play of "The Witch" down to one week's time. Milton Nobles follows on the 18th, with his own company, with "From Sire to Son" for his first week, and "Love and Law" and "Phœnix" for his last week. The latest English melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," follows on Dec. 2nd for two weeks, and the spectacular drama of New York life, "The Great Metropolis," with its great wreck and life-saving scene, will be the Grand's holiday attraction.

Wilton Lackaye has resigned from Augustin Daly's company because he was cast for Oliver in "As You Like It." Mr. Daly's contracts require the members of his company to play any part he may assign them; but Mr. Lackaye drew the line at Oliver, claiming that it is "too small" for his recognized capabilities.

Charles H. Macklin, late of Edwin Arden's Co., died recently in Brooklyn, N. Y., aged 32.

Ibsen's "Doll's Home," produced at the matinee Oct. 30th by Mansfield's company, made a hit at the Globe Theatre, Boston.

Manager William Dunlevy, of the Park Theatre, New York, invited all the local newsboys to attend a matinee performance of Barry & Fay, recently, in honor of his birthday. Manager Dunlevy is an ex-newsboy.

The annual joint benefit of the Alcazar's ushers, doorkeepers and assistant treasurer takes place at that theatre on Monday week. Bill: Steele Mackey's melodrama, "A Noble Rogue." These "front" representatives have troops of friends won by their courteous and painstaking attentions and seats will be in demand for their benefit.

Clara Chester (Mrs. Geo. Lederer) has left the Herrmann Vaudeville Co.

Charles B. Jefferson and H. S. Taylor have purchased "Hands Across the Sea" from Gustave Kahn.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Harry Montague presents two new pieces at the Bella Union Theatre next week—his sketch act of "The Typewriter" and his local comedy of "My Uncle."

It is funny to see that presumptuous little sacred bull at the circus standing under one of the elephants making a scratching post out of one of his forelegs, while the huge beast pats his pet gently with his trunk.

Harry Montague, who always makes things hum, returns to his home at the Bella Union Theatre, Monday night, bringing with him Miss Carrie Duncan, Carroll & Lewis—said to rank as the best female impersonators on the stage—and other talent. The Lida Gardner-Billy Arnold-Mabie Santly Burlesque Company will be retained, and the old Union will blaze with a corruscation of talent.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

The Cremorne introduces the clever Eastern solo dancer, La Cellie, and corps de ballet as their latest attraction.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

Funny Frank Daniels is drawing immense houses in his "Little Puck" at the Bush. Daniels made his mark as the creator of "Old Sport," and clinched his popularity in his last new piece, which gives wider scope for the exercise of his natural humor.

Daniels is the greatest humorist-comedian on the stage, and a remarkable character builder. When he takes a character he builds it up and makes a great part of it by his unctious humor and quaint acting.

Mr. Daniels has surrounded himself with a first-class company, with whose assistance he brings out all the fun there is in one of the funniest comedies ever written. His company includes his principal support, the popular soubrette, Miss Bessie Sanson, the well known comedienne, Miss Rose Cheseman, and a bevy of bright and pretty girls; Harry Courtaine, Robert Evans, Arthur E. Moulton, Harry Conor, William White and others.

The company is much stronger than that of last year. Taking new songs and chorus have been introduced in "Little Puck," and there is not a chestnut in it. The whole performance is most enjoyable, and the greatest go.

The theatre overflowed every night for the first week.

For cast and further particulars see the programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

That play of varied scenes and rapid action, "Tour of the World in Eighty Days," is produced in a spectacular form by the Alcazar Company this week, with Amazon March, Children's ballet and new specialty features.

The cast includes E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell, Miss Ethel Brandon, Louis Imbaus (specially engaged for Passepartout), Jas. M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward and the full Alcazar company. The principal characters are in the hands of good people, who give to their parts the reliable interest of individual characterizations well sustained.

The scenery is entirely new and very fine, and especial care has been taken to make the whole production a noted one in that respect. It wins deserved recognition from the audience. The play has the handsomest mounting it ever had here.

The spectacular features are a great go. The marches, the children's ballet, and the various tableaux, give the drama rich and entertaining settings that the management deserve much commendation for. They have done wonders and deserve the success the piece has had.

Grand Opera House.

There are but two more nights left to see the fine production of "The Corsican Brothers" at the Grand with Bandmann's strong blending of the romantic and supernatural, as shown in his remarkable impersonation of the Die Franchi twins, with its Grand Carnival Ball scene, its startling apparition scenes, and fine stage effects. We have spoken in full of the play and of Mr. Bandmann's performance, as well as of the merits of the company.

"The Corsican Brothers" has had a good two weeks' run, and the new management can be complimented upon the decided success of their first venture.

—o—

That gifted actress, Miss Sophie Eyre, will be the next stellar attraction in her thrilling play of "The Witch," opening Nov. 11th. Miss Eyre has been personally superintending the preparations for her play, which she intends shall have the finest production at the Grand. The piece is now in close rehearsal. Miss Eyre played it four months in the St. James Theatre, London, and Harry Bigelow, of the Examiner staff, who saw the play there, proclaims it "a wonder."

New California Theatre.

This is the last week of "Mr. Barnes of New York," Gunter's comedy adaptation from his own novel, a New York success, handsomely staged and well cast.

The cast is a very full one, as will be seen by referring to the programme on first page, and the good people have carried the play along swimmingly in a two weeks' fine business.

Bolossy Kiralfy's grand ballet spectacle, "Antiope," opens at the California Monday.

Baldwin Theatre.

Rosina Vokes, the gifted and well schooled actress and a charming comedienne, closes her third week here to-night.

See casts in programme elsewhere in FIGARO.

For the next and last week of Miss Rosina Vokes the bill will be a varied one: "In Honor Bound," "Uncle's Will" and a repetition of "A Game of Cards;" "My Milliner's Bill," "The Rough Diamond," "The Old Musician," "The Circus Rider" and "A Pantomime Rehearsal."

Mechanics' Pavilion—Gilmore's Jubilee.

Gilmore's San Francisco Musical Festival will hold high carnival next week at the Pavilion, with his great band of 100 pieces, his Anvil and Artillery-Battery corps, and his vocal soloists of renowned singers, augmented by our Handel and Haydn Society, with its 500 trained voices, under whose auspices the Jubilee is given.

For further particulars and prices, see programme announcement published elsewhere in FIGARO.

The Pavilion auditorium has been reconstructed for the Jubilee. The seats have been arranged in tiers, with the requisite rise to give 6,000 auditors an equal chance of seeing and hearing. The chorus will occupy a horse-shoe-shaped elevation, in front of which will be grouped the band of Gilmore.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

This famous Circus manager and accomplished ring-master returns to us again from an extended tour in the Orient, and opens with one of the most completely equipped circus he has yet had, at Central Park, corner Market and Eighth streets, this week.

Chiarini's Circus has always been famed for the handsomest and best trained horses, and the most expert and graceful riders, to say nothing of his incomparable manage acts. The feats of his two ponies are new and diverting. His splendid black horse, Prince, is made to show almost human intelligence. He brings Chiarini things across the ring, walking on his hind legs like a French poodle, and dances with the grace of a Kiralfy premier. Chiarini is still the boss horse-trainer. M'lle Le Blonde, a Paris artiste, does a bounding jockey act, doing all that Budd Gorman does, and his trained elephants do wonders that would make "Sid" blush.

His present grand equestrian establishment is rich in novelties: Ring artists from European hippodromes; trained blood-horses culled from various parts of the world; ponies from Corea, Java, China, and Japan; trained elephants, Japanese acrobats, and in fact most everything that is different from the usual circuses.

See announcement and admission prices elsewhere in FIGARO.

Orpheum Theatre.

There was an entire change of performance and company this week, with an elaborate production of Fritz Lafontaine's musical comedy, entitled "A Stew," with grand chorus, new songs, comic situations, gorgeous costumes, new scenery, etc. The "Stew" did not have the proper flavor to become very palatable, and will not be served up after Sunday night.

The Hume Brothers, in their mediumistic and Spiritualistic exhibitions, head a specialty company at the Orpheum next week consisting of Felix Haney, Jean & Victor, the London Quartette, Mason & Morton, Miss Nellie Stow, De Greau & Leon, Freddie Stockmeyer, Geo. H. Wood and others.

Manager Walter announces Grand Hippodrome and Roman Races, from Madison Square Garden, New York, as leading features at Woodward's Garden on Saturday and Sunday.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrnes have made a special engagement with Mr. T. H. Glenney, a cosmopolitan actor and author, for a dramatic season at the East side popular theatre.

Mr. Glenney produces for his second week his own sensational play of "The Bushrangers," a play of Australian life and adventures in Melbourne, the gold diggings and in the bushrangers' stamping ground. It is a drama full of adventures.

Mr. Glenny's piece is stirringly sensational and he plays his part very effectively. He is a competent all-around actor, and his new pieces will prove a great treat to Morosco's clientage.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

"Love and Gold," a sensational play of emotions and adventure, in which there is a dynamite explosion, a flooded mine and entrapped miners, and other sensations, will be Mr. T. H. Glenney's next week dramatic cast at Morosco's.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Bella Union Theatre.

Gardner and Arnold's Female Mastodons and Mable Santly's Female Burlesque Company, a fine display of beauty, is the constellation attraction this week. Delegations of the company appear in the Female Minstrel first part, and the whole appear in the burlesque of "Prince Faithful," which closes the bill.

It is almost a double company here now, as most of the old favorites are retained, and yet we have more to come.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people put in appearances Monday night in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe.

Montague's contributions to the bill are his

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The dansense, Mlle. La Cellie, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week, with J. W. Kelly, the monologue artist and verse improvisatore, and Miss Jennie Heywood, the favorite vocalist, in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nesteil and others in a fine programme.

The three Les Encroyables in their novel specialties and the French "Can-Can; or, Scenes in La Jardin Mabile," are other features of the bill.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nesteil.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nesteil looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Ida Farno, serio-comic; Miss Rose De Vere, vocalist, and Tommy Glenn, vocalist, punster and comedian, are new this week.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "The Three Troubadours," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Ella Letcher, Ida Farno, Rose Dovere, Alice Dale, John Gilmore and Tommy Glenn.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

They have P. T. Barnum's Beauty at Meier's this week, Miss Dolly Paxton. She will be introduced by Manager Fox every evening, and attended by Marie Morino.

Brown & Mayville, fine aerial artists, are new, and the new acts are "In the Business" and "Mixed," both of the comical order.

The olio acts are Brown & Mayville's dashing aerial act and Leonard & Leopoldt's novel musical act, in which a monkey plays a solo on a cornet.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

Brown & Mayville, Leonard & Lepoldt, Gus and Edward, musical and general performers, put in new appearances this week, the company being rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, Minnie Drossell, J. D. Fox, Marie Morino and others.

Bottle Meier's is the popular north-end resort. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horse-shoe gallery of larger houses.

DEATH OF DAVID S. WAMBOLD.

The telegraph brings the news of the death of David S. Wambold, the minstrel, in New York, on the 10th inst., of Bright's disease, at the age of 54 years. Wambold was out Friday with a party of old California friends and when he returned to his hotel in the evening complained of severe pains in the spine. He was unconscious for twenty-four hours previous to his death.

"Dave" Wambold was one of the originators of the San Francisco pioneer Birch & Backus Minstrels, that near a quarter of a century ago went from here to New York and became the reigning minstrel favorites there for twenty years afterwards. He had a magnificent voice and was one of its ballad stars. Backus, Bernard, Wambold, and nearly every one of the company organized in this city, have "passed in their checks," as the boys used to say, except the jolliest of them all, Billy Birch; whose wonderful escape from a storm-wrecked steamer off Cape Hatteras, after floating on some pieces of the wreck for hours in a stormy sea proved him to be a tough customer for old Death to tackle. Billy has "outlasted" them all.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Harry Montague presents two new pieces at the Bella Union Theatre this week—his sketch act of "The Typewriter" and his local comedy of "My Uncle."

It is funny to see that presumptuous little sacred bull at the circus standing under one of the elephants making a scratching post out of one of his forelegs, while the huge beast pats his pet gently with his trunk.

Harry Montague, who always makes things hum, returns to his home at the Bella Union Theatre, this week, bringing with him Miss Carrie Duncan, Carroll & Lewis—said to rank as the best female impersonators on the stage—and other talent. The Lida Gardner-Billy Arnold-Mable Santly Burlesque Company will be retained, and the old Union will blaze with a coruscation of talent.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

The Cremorne introduces the clever Eastern solo dancer, La Cellie, and corps de ballet as their latest attraction.

Manager Walderstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

"The Corsican Brothers" at the Grand was a most creditable production for the new management. It drew a good two weeks' business and has done much to establish the Grand in popular favor.

This week we will have the Kiralfy "ballet diverti ements" and all that sort of thing at the California in his new spectacle of "Antiope."

Funny Frank Daniels and all the pretty girls of his company put in their last nights at the Bush this week.

This week is Rosina Vokes' last at the Baldwin.

Lew Dockstader, of Dockstader's Theatre, N. Y., intends this season to produce burlesques on popular grand and comic operas, with a prima donna and a full chorus of men and women, and appropriate scenery and costumes.

W. F. Rochester has joined the Nellie McHenry Co. for an interior tour.

Henry E. Dixey's "Seven Ages," playing at the Standard Theatre, N. Y., is still drawing the capacity of the house. Some new and pleasing musical numbers have been introduced by Edward E. Rice.

But three well known professionals wear rings on their thumb: Henry Dixey, Nellie McHenry and Laura Burt, and each attribute their fortunes to it. Mrs. Langtry, when it becomes necessary in playing certain parts to remove her ring from her finger, never permits it to leave her person. Lillian Russell attributes her brilliant success in "The Brigands" to her beautiful necklace of turquoise and diamonds and Pauline Hall her success to her $5,000 pearl earrings. Maggie Mitchell is content to wear a new wedding ring, and trust to luck.

James Conner Roach has finished a new Irish play, which he has named "Rory O'Malley."

Clara Chester (Mrs. Geo. Lederer) has left the Herrmann Vaudeville Co.

Dion Boucicault and Ben Teal are joint exponents in playwriting.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The first night of the Patti grand Italian opera season at the Auditorium, Chicago, has been fixed for December 10th, the date following the dedication of the building. The company comprises Mmes. Adelina Patti, Emma Albani, Lillian Nordica, Giulia Valdi and a host of distinguished artists. The orchestra will consist of seventy musicians. The ballet and chorus will be unusually effective.

"Kajanka," the new spectacular piece, will be produced at Niblo's Theatre, N. Y., in December.

A new and superb production of "Twelfth Night" was presented by Marie Wainwright in Boston recently to an enthusiastic audience. Miss Wainwright was called before the curtain frequently during the performance. She will be at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, New York, in December.

There has been such a great demand to see "Little Lord Fauntleroy" in New York that A. M. Palmer and T. Henry French have arranged to give "Little Lord Fauntleroy" matinees every afternoon of the week except Saturday.

Anna Belmont is engaged for the company supporting Robert Mantell.

Alice Fisher and Mrs. Sol Smith have been added to the Booth-Modjeska Co.

Blanche Marsden did not appear at Koster & Bial's, N. Y., in the part of Mephistopheles lately produced, as Mr. Bial wisely concluded to reserve her for the production of "Don Juan," which will take place in two weeks, and in which Miss Marsden will create the title role.

Charles H. Davis, a well known and popular advance agent, formerly of Mrs. Brown Potter's company, comes here as representative of the great New York spectacular attraction, "The Great Metropolis," which will be presented at the Grand Opera House during the holidays.

Fanny Rice, who came here as Venus in Hoyt's "Rag Baby" Co., made a tremendous hit at Chicago in "The Brigands" where she has received more social attention than any actress that has yet visited the inter-ocean city.

Burt Haverly will resign from the Patti Rosa Company after playing in Salt Lake, and will return to this coast.

Harry Courtaine has not lost any of his old-time popularity, judging from the rounds of applause with which he is greeted every night from an appreciative audience.

Bandmann plays the Northern circuit after leaving here in "Hamlet" and a round of Shakespearean characters.

Kellogg, the mind-reader, who does the wonderful tests performed by the late celebrated Bishop, and many more difficult feats, has engaged Ed Bert as business manager.

Manager Jay Rial has booked Sophie Eyre for an interior tour, to begin after her engagement at the Grand Opera House.

The demand for single seats at Sherman & Clay's for the Gilmore Jubilee Concerts is something enormous.

The opera house at Port Leyden, N. Y., was lately destroyed by fire.

Raoul Koczalski, a 5-year-old Polish pianist, has just created a sensation in Berlin by his masterly execution of Mendelssohn's concerto in D and a Chopin mazourka.

Smoulder's Opera House, Nanticoke, Pa., ominous name, was lately burned to the ground. Loss, $16,000; insurance, $10,000.

Mary Anderson has returned to London from the highlands of Scotland very much improved in health.

H. R. Jacobs' Clark Street Theatre is the name given to the handsome theatre now nearly completed and situated on the corner of Clark and Kinzie streets, Chicago, upon the site of the old Museum. It used to be said that there wasn't a dollar for any theatre north of Chicago River, but with M. B. Leavitt and Jacobs north of the open sewer things must have changed.

The "next" at the Bush will be Miss Maddern, accompanied by George Osbourne, on Monday night, in the successful comedy of "Featherbrain," a very lively and entertaining piece.

Dates ahead at the Grand has confined Sophie Eyre and her strong play of "The Witch" down to one week's time. Milton Nobles follows on the 18th, with his own company, with "From Sire to Son" for his first week, and "Love and Law" and "Phœnix" for his last week. The latest English melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," follows on Dec. 2nd for two weeks, and the spectacular drama of New York life, "The Great Metropolis," with its great wreck and life-saving scene, will be the Grand's holiday attraction.

Wilton Lackaye has resigned from Augustin Daly's company because he was cast for Oliver in "As You Like It." Mr. Daly's contracts require the members of his company to play any part he may assign them; but Mr. Lackaye drew the line at Oliver, claiming that it is "too small" for his recognized capabilities.

Charles H. Macklin, late of Edwin Arden's Co., died recently in Brooklyn, N. Y., aged 32.

Ibsen's "Doll's Home," produced at the matinee Oct. 30th by Mansfield's company, made a hit at the Globe Theatre, Boston.

The annual joint benefit of the Alcazar's ushers, doorkeepers and assistant treasurer takes place at that theatre on Monday night. Bill: Steele Mackey's melodrama, "A Noble Rogue." These "front" representatives have troops of friends won by their courteous and painstaking attentions and seats will be in demand for their benefit.

Charles B. Jefferson and H. S. Taylor have purchased "Hands Across the Sea" from Gustave Kahn.

EVENING -:- EDITION

MONDAY.....NOVEMBER 11, 1889

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and only paper that publishes their full programmes

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

Fanny Frank Daniels is in his last week in his "Little Puck" at the Bush, which has been refurnished with new scenes, dances, music and costumes for its farewell nights.

Daniels is the greatest humorist-comedian on the stage and a remarkable character builder. When he takes a character he builds it up and contributes a great part of it by his unctious comic and quaint actinz. He has even burlesqued up the Gridiron broker with new business for his last week.

Mr. Daniels has surrounded himself with a first class company, with whose assistance he brings out all the fun there is in one of the funniest comedies ever written. His company includes his principal support, the popular actress Miss Bessie Sanson, the well known concertina Miss Rose Chesneau, and a bevy of bright and pretty girls; Harry Courtaine, Robert Evans, Arthur E. Moulton, Harry Connor, William White and others.

The company is much stronger than that of last year. Taking new songs and chorus have been introduced in "Little Puck," and there is not a chestnut in it. The whole performance is most enjoyable, and the greatest go.

For cast and further particulars see the programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

That play of varied scenes and rapid action, "The Tour of the World in Eighty Days," produced in a spectacular form by the Alcazar Company, with Amazon March, children's ballet and new specialty features, is in its last week here.

The cast includes E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell, Miss Ethel Bradden, Louis Imhaus (specially engaged for Passepartout), Jas. M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward and the full Alcazar company. The principal characters are in the hands of good people, who give to their parts the reliable interest of individual characterizations well sustained.

The scenery is entirely new and very fine, and especial care has been taken to make the whole production a noted one in that respect. It richly deserved recognition from the audience. The play has the handsomest mounting ever had here.

The spectacular features are a great go. The marches, the children's ballet, and the various tableaux, give the drama rich and entertaining settings that the management deserve much commendation for. They have done wonders and deserve the success the piece has had.

Grand Opera House.

The talented actress, Miss Sophie Eyre, is the stellar attraction at the Grand, in her thrilling, emotional play of "The Witch." Miss Eyre has been personally superintending the preparations for her play, which she intends shall have the finest production at the Grand.

Miss Eyre achieved a great success as "The Witch" in London. The Standard pronounced her impersonation of the character to be "one of the grandest pieces of acting of the present age."

New California Theatre

Bolossy Kiralfy's grand ballet spectacle, "Antiope," opens at the California this Monday night. It is sufficient to add that it is a Kiralfy production, and a new one, and abounds in tableaux marches, grand ballets and entertaining specialty features.

Seats can be secured three weeks in advance.

Mechanics Pavilion Gilmore's Jubilee.

Gilmore's San Francisco Musical Festival will hold high carnival this week at the Pavilion, with his great band of 100 pieces, his Anvil and Artillery-Battery corps, and his vocal soloists of renowned singers, augmented by our Handel and Haydn Society, with its 500 trained voices, under whose auspices the Jubilee is given.

For further particulars and prices, see programme announcement published elsewhere in FIGARO.

The Pavilion auditorium has been reconstructed for the Jubilee. The seats have been

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

General admission has been reduced to 25 cents to give everybody an opportunity to see this famous circus manager and accomplished ring-master, who returns to us again from an extended tour in the Orient with one of the most completely equipped circuses he has yet had, at Central Park, corner Market and Eighth streets,

Chiarini's Circus has always been famed for the handsomest and best trained horses, and the most expert and graceful riders, to say nothing of his incomparable manage acts. The feats of his two ponies are new and diverting. His splendid black horse, Prince, is made to show almost human intelligence. He brings Chiarini things across the ring, walking on his hind legs like a French poodle, and dances with the grace of a Kiralfy premier. Chiarini is still the boss horse-trainer. M'lle Le Blonde, a Paris artiste, does a bounding jockey act, doing all that Budd Gorman does, and his trained elephants do wonders that would make "Sid" blush.

His present grand equestrian establishment is rich in novelties: Ring artists from European hippodromes; trained blood-horses culled from various parts of the world; ponies from Cores, Java, China, and Japan; trained elephants, Japanese acrobats, and in fact most everything that is different from the usual circuses.

See announcement and admission prices elsewhere in FIGARO.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Hume Brothers, in their mediumistic and Spiritualistic exhibitions, head a specialty company at the Orpheum this week consisting of Feltx Haney, Jean & Victor, the London Quartette, Mason & Morton, Miss Nellie Stow, De Greau & Leon, Freddie Stockmeyer, Geo. H. Wood and others.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrnes have made a special engagement with Mr. T. H. Glenney, a cosmopolitan actor and author, for a dramatic season at the East side popular theatre.

"Love and Gold," a sensational play of emotions and adventure, in which there is a dynamite explosion, a flooded mine and entrapped miners, and other sensations, will be Mr T. H. Glenney's this week's dramatic card at Morosco's.

Mr. Glenny's piece is stirringly sensational and he plays his part very effectively. He is a competent all-around actor, and his new pieces will prove a great treat to Morosco's clientage.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conclits, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people put in appearances this week in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe.

Montague's contributions to the bill are his local sketch, "The Typewriter," and a local comedy from his pen, entitled "My Uncle."

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The danseuse, Mlle. Le Celhe, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week, with J. W. Kelly, the monologue artist and verse improvisatore, and Miss Jennie Heywood, the favorite vocalist, in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Edith Morrison, the popular balladist; Miss Ruby Grant, premiere danseuse, and Soldene, female impersonator, are new.

Miss Ida Farno, serio-comic; Miss Rose De Vere, vocalist, and Tommy Glenn, vocalist, punster and comedian, are late additions.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "Out in the Woods," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Ruby Grant, Ida Farno, Rose Dovere, Alice Dale, Edith Morrison, Soldene and Tommy Glenn.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

The Polks, musical artists and Tyrolean warblers, are new this week.

Brown & Mayville, fine artistic artists, are new, and the new acts are "Four on a Quarter" and "The Upper Flat," both of the comical order.

The olio acts are Brown & Mayville's dashing aerial act, Living Pictures and the Polks' specialties.

Bottle Meier's is the popular north-end resort. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horse-shoe gallery of larger houses.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Pete Smith and Lottie Ellis, popular performers, are new, and pretty Pearl Iola puts in a reappearance.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, Lulu Martell, Stella Walton, Mamie Woods, Billy Akarman and John Merritt make up the company.

The first part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

The olio piece is the comedy of "The Henpecked Husband," with Akarman, Merritt, Smith and most of the ladies in the cast.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

Our imported actors all smoke the Pipe and "Seal of North Carolina Plug Cut." It's English, you know.

Mr. Arthur Miller, representative of Miss Maddern and company, of which George Osborne returns to us as principal male support, is in town. Miss Maddern follows Frank Daniels at the Bush, next week, in the brigat and rattling comedy of "Featherbrain," which is a pronounced Eastern success.

Milton Nobles is just sweeping all before him in Montana. His season in Butte City was unprecedented, and his opening night at Helena filled the gallery (600) at 50 cents admission, every box and every seat in the lower circles and 100 standing-room admissions. His receipts exceeded the record by $40.

"Stutz' New York Theatre Co.," that started out from San Diego, Cal., about a year ago—that gentleman having managed a theatre in that haven of climatic rest until he got all broke up and had to start out on the road—has marched as far into the interior of the land as Junction City, Kansas, where they were playing to a "splendid house" on Nov. 1st.

Charley Bert is back from his Southern trip engineering Roberts' Humpty-Dumpty Co. He reports business good. Roberts takes his pantomime for a season through New Mexico, and Mr. Bert left Sunday to resume his advance position at Denver.

Signors Tamagno and Perugini, tenors for Abbey's Patti Italian Opera, have sailed from Havre for New York.

Manager Amberg's new tenor, Streitman, has struck, and his role in "The Gypsy Baron" was taken by Herr Schultze. Streitmann claims that he has been "snubbed" to give undue prominence to the tragedian, Possart, and a lawsuit is to follow.

The Turkish Minister at Paris has protested against the production of "Mahomet," a tragedy, at the Theatre Francaise, but the management deems "Mahomet" no less sacred than "Moses," "The Prophet" and Rossini's opera, "Ma-

THE BOOTH-MODJESKA CALUMNY.

As we suspected, the sensational telegram published in some of the papers on Monday to the effect that Mme. Modjeska was preparing to sever her connection with Edwin Booth's dramatic company, and file an application in court asking for an accounting and release from the contract which binds her to the Booth-Barrett organization, on account of Booth's "ungentlemanly and unchivalrous" conduct toward her, is without foundation. Both the interested parties indignantly deny it, and Mme. Modjeska feels much hurt that so vicious a falsehood should have been promulgated through the columns of the press. A New York morning dispatch says that when Booth and Modjeska appeared in "Hamlet" last night the house was packed, and they were given an ovation such as few actors ever received. It seemed as though every man and woman rose in their seats and cheered to make manifest their disbelief of the vile story.

DEATH OF DAVID S. WAMBOLD.

The telegraph brings the news of the death of David S. Wambold, the minstrel, in New York, on the 10th inst., of Bright's disease, at the age of 54 years. Wambold was out Friday with a party of old California friends and when he returned to his hotel in the evening complained of severe pains in the spine. He was unconscious for twenty-four hours previous to his death.

"Dave" Wambold was one of the originators of the San Francisco pioneer Birch & Backus Minstrels, that near a quarter of a century ago went from here to New York and became the reigning minstrel favorites there for twenty years afterwards. He had a magnificent voice and was one of its ballad stars. Backus, Bernard, Wambold, and nearly every one of the company organized in this city, have "passed in their checks," as the boys used to say, except the jolliest of them all, Billy Birch; whose wonderful escape from a storm-wrecked steamer off Cape Hatteras, after floating on some pieces of the wreck for hours in a stormy sea proved him to be a tough customer for old Death to tackle. Billy has "outlasted" them all.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

A London cablegram says that over twenty thousand persons attended the opening of Barnum's Circus and Menagerie on Monday night.

Harry Montague presents two new pieces at the Bella Union Theatre this week—his sketch act of "The Typewriter" and his local comedy of "My Uncle."

It is funny to see that presumptuous little sacred bull at the circus standing under one of the elephants making a scratching post out of one of his forelegs, while the huge beast pats his pet gently with his trunk.

Harry Montague, who always makes things hum, returns to his home at the Bella Union Theatre, this week, bringing with him Miss Carrie Duncan, Carroll & Lewis—said to rank as the best female impersonators on the stage—and other talent. The Lida Gardner-Billy Arnold-Mable Santly Burlesque Company will be retained, and the old Union will blaze with a coruscation of talent.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

The Cremorne introduces the clever Eastern solo dancer, La Cellie, and corps de ballet as their latest attraction.

Manager Walkerstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

"The Corsican Brothers" at the Grand was a most creditable production for the new management. It drew a good two weeks' business and has done much to establish the Grand in popular favor.

This week we will have the Kiralfy "ballet diverti ements" and all that sort of thing at the California in his new spectacle of "Antiope."

Funny Frank Daniels and all the merry gods of his company put in their

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The authorities of Cincinnati have interdicted theatrical performances on Sundays, and the telegraph tells us that three theatre managers, together with one opera company, one gaiety company and one dramatic, were before the police court yesterday charged with a violation of the law by giving a Sunday performance on the 10th inst. The managers were fined $15 each, and all the performers were sentenced to pay the costs of the prosecution. In the case of one theatre this was the second offense. The judge gave notice that another violation of the law would subject all parties concerned to arrest any time during the performance and to such additional fine within the law as might seem best by the court to put an end to the violation of the law. This looks as though there would be no more Sunday performances in Cincinnati just at present.

It is wired from Kansas City on the 11th that "Daniel Sully, the actor, received word that evening through his attorney at his home in Newport, R. I., that he has been advised of the death of his uncle in Dublin, Ireland, who leaves the bulk of an immense property to the actor." Well, we are glad of it; though it is sad to think that we will be debarred hereafter of ever seeing "Daddy Nolan" on the stage again. Of course Mr. Sully will proceed at once to take residence in Dublin, especially as his uncle has left him the whole of Dublin Bay—to sail on.

Duke Murray, advance agent for Milton Noble's company, arrived Monday.

The first night of the Patti grand Italian opera season at the Auditorium, Chicago, has been fixed for December 10th, the date following the dedication of the building. The company comprises Mmes. Adelina Patti, Emma Albani, Lillian Nordica, Giulia Valdi and a host of distinguished artists. The orchestra will consist of seventy musicians. The ballet and chorus will be unusually effective. The Patti company comes to the Grand Opera House in this city later on.

"Kajanka," the new spectacular piece, will be produced at Niblo's Theatre, N. Y., in December.

A new and superb production of "Twelfth Night" was presented by Marie Wainwright in Boston recently to an enthusiastic audience. Miss Wainwright was called before the curtain frequently during the performance. She will be at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, New York, in December.

Anna Belmont is engaged for the company supporting Robert Mantell.

Alice Fisher and Mrs. Sol Smith have been added to the Booth-Modjeska Co.

Blanche Marsden did not appear at Koster & Bial's, N. Y., in the part of Mephistopheles lately produced, as Mr. Bial wisely concluded to reserve her for the production of "Don Juan," which will take place in two weeks, and in which Miss Marsden will create the title role.

Charles H. Davis, a well known and popular advance agent, formerly of Mrs. Brown Potter's company, comes here as representative of the great New York spectacular attraction, "The Great Metropolis," which will be presented at the Grand Opera House during the holidays.

Fanny Rice, who came here as Venus in Hoyt's "Rag Baby" Co., made a tremendous hit at Chicago in "The Brigands" where she has received more social attention than any actress that has yet visited the inter-ocean city.

Burt Haverly will resign from the Patti Rosa Company after playing in Salt Lake, and will return to this coast.

Harry Courtaine has not lost any of his old-time popularity, judging from the rounds of applause with which he is greeted every night from an appreciative audience.

Bandmann plays the Northern circuit after leaving here in "Hamlet" and a round of Shakespearean characters.

Kellogg, the mind-reader, who does the wonderful tests performed by the late celebrated Bishop, and many more difficult feats, has engaged Ed Bert as business manager.

Manager Jay Rial has booked Sophie Eyre for an interior tour, to begin after her engagement at the Grand Opera House.

The demand for single seats at Sherman & Clay's for the Gilmore Jubilee Concerts is something enormous.

H. R. Jacobs' Clark Street Theatre is the name given to the handsome theatre now nearly completed and situated on the corner of Clark and Kinzie streets, Chicago, upon the site of the old Museum. It used to be said that there wasn't a dollar for any theatre north of Chicago River, but with M. B. Leavitt and Jacobs north of the open sewer things must have changed.

The "next" at the Bush will be Miss Maddern, accompanied by George Osbourne, on Monday night, in the successful comedy of "Featherbrain," a very lively and entertaining piece.

Dates ahead at the Grand has confined Sophie Eyre and her strong play of "The Witch" down to one week's time. Milton Nobles follows on the 18th, with his own company, with "From Sire to Son" for his first week, and "Love and Law" and "Phœnix" for his last week. The latest English melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," follows on Dec. 2nd for two weeks, and the spectacular drama of New York life, "The Great Metropolis," with its great wreck and life-saving scene, will be the Grand's holiday attraction.

The annual joint benefit of the Alcazar's ushers, doorkeepers and assistant treasurer takes place at that theatre on

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and only paper that publishes their full programmes

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

Funny Frank Daniels is in his last week in his "Little Puck" at the Bush, which has been enlivened with new songs, dances, music and costumes for its farewell nights.

Daniels is the greatest humorist-comedian on the stage, and a remarkable character builder. When he takes a character he builds it up and makes a great part of it by his unctious humor and quaint acting. He has even burnished up his Giltedge broker with new things for his last week.

The company is much stronger than that of last year. Taking new songs and chorus have been introduced in "Little Puck," and there is not a chestnut in it. The whole performance is most enjoyable, and the greatest go.

For cast and further particulars see the programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

—o—

Miss Maddern, the popular comedienne, opens next week, accompanied by Mr. George Osbourne and a fine company in support, in the rattling comedy of "Featherbrain." This comedy has recorded runs of two years in Paris, a long run in Berlin, a ten months' run in London, and a sixty-night run at the Madison Square Theatre, New York.

Miss Maddern sustains the part of the capricious light-hearted "Featherbrain." Geo. Osbourne has a strong character part in the gallant and romantic Portugese. The company includes Mr. Charles L. Harris, Mr. Wm. Taversham, Mr. Samuel Edwards, Mr. Frank Clayton, Mr. Harry Rawlins, Miss Emma Maddern Miss Helen Osbourne, Miss Lulu Kline and Miss Elsie Lombard.

Special scenery is brought with the comedy, including the famed spiral staircase scene, as originally seen at the Madison Square Theatre.

Alcazar Theatre.

That play of varied scenes and rapid action, "The Tour of the World in Eighty Days," produced in a spectacular form by the Alcazar Company, with Amazon March, children's ballet and new specialty features, is in its last week here.

The cast includes E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell, Miss Ethel Brandon, Louis Imbaus (specially engaged for Passepartout), Jas. M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward and the full Alcazar company. The principal characters are in the hands of good people, who give to their parts the reliable interest of individual characterizations well sustained.

The scenery is entirely new and very fine and especial care has been taken to make the whole production a noted one in that respect. It wins deserved recognition from the audience. The play has the handsomest mounting it ever had here.

The spectacular features are a great go. The marches, the children's ballet, and the various tableaux, give the drama rich and entertaining settings that the management deserve much commendation for. They have done wonders and deserve the success the piece has had.

Augustin Daly's amusing comedy of "Nancy & Co." will have a careful production by the Alcazar Company on Monday night.

Grand Opera House.

That gifted actress, Miss Sophie Eyre, is the stellar attraction at the Grand, in her emotional play of "The Witch." Miss Eyre personally superintended the production of her play here, which is a notably effective one. The stage settings are elegant ones.

Miss Eyre achieved a great success as "The Witch" in London. The Standard pronounced her impersonation of the character to be "one of the grandest pieces of acting of the present age," and no one who saw her tragic power in the third and fourth acts of "The Witch" will dispute the assertion. Her presence fills the eye, her voice charms the ear with its soft cadences, and her movements are grace itself. The Chronicle truly says of Miss Eyre, "There is no actress, perhaps on the English-speaking stage who could give to the character of Thalia the same dignified, superb quality, or fit into the picture with so much effect."

Mr. Morris sustains Count Rupert in a manly, soldierly way, and John Jack plays his Sergeant Falka—full of Bunsby-like saws—with fitting breadth and humor. Charles J. Edmonds and John W. Burton render their parts

Misses Celia Allsberg and Ida Aubrey have the sustaining female roles in their hands and sustain them effectively.

Great attention has been paid to scenery and costumes of the piece, as well as in managing the mob scenes.

The two lower circles of the theatre were thronged.

—c—

Next week Milton Nobles, famed for the eccentric humor of his character acting, commences a two weeks' engagement at the Grand in his play, "From Sire to Son," supported by his own company.

New California Theatre.

Bolossy Kiralfy's grand ballet spectacle, "Antiope," opens at the California this week, and it is sufficient to add that it is a Kiralfy production, and a new one, and abounds in tableaux, marches, grand ballets and entertaining specialty features.

In pieces of this kind the play is not the thing, but the features introduced in it. "Antiope" is rich in specialties. The ballet, tableaux, marches and scenery are all diverting to the eye, and the notable specialty features are the solo dance by Helena Konradt; the dancing of the Parisian premier, Mlle. Paris; the illusions shown by Yank Hoe and Omene; the gavotte by Miss Alice Gilbert; the Spanish dance by Carmencita; the athletic exhibition by the Pialras, and the performance of the Tissots. Miss Gilbert introduces the dance in long skirts, made so popular in the East by the Gaiety troupe, of which she was a member, and is very pleasing and graceful. Carmencita's dancing is of the genuine Spanish type, and totally different from the ordinary stage dancing.

The house was packed.

Seats can be secured three weeks in advance.

Mechanics' Pavilion—Gilmore's Jubilee.

Gilmore's San Francisco Musical Festival will hold high carnival this week at the Pavilion, with his great band of 100 pieces, his Anvil and Artillery-Battery corps, and his vocal soloists of renowned singers, augmented by our Handel and Haydn Society, with its 500 trained voices, under whose auspices the Jubilee is given.

The evening tide of amusement seekers tenders towards the Pavilion just now to take in the grand Gilmore Jubilee nights. The band, the great choruses of the Handel-Haydn Society, Signorina De Vere, Campanini, Myron W. Whitney and other soloists, and everything is fully up to expectation and everybody is taking them in.

Great is Gilmore and let us loudly sing his praises. Hath he not converted the Pavilion into Temple of Music, if not of the Muses?

Wednesday and Thursday nights are the last Gilmore ones.

Matinees only Wednesday and Thursday.

The Pavilion auditorium has been reconstructed for the Jubilee. The seats have been arranged in tiers, with the requisite rise to give 6,000 auditors an equal chance of seeing and hearing. The chorus occupy a horse-shoe-shaped elevation, in front of which will be grouped the band of Gilmore.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

General admission has been reduced to 25 cents to give everybody an opportunity to see this famous circus manager and accomplished ring-master, who returns to us again from an extended tour in the Orient with one of the most completely equipped circuses he has yet had, at Central Park, corner Market and Eighth streets.

Chiarini's Circus has always been famed for the handsomest and best trained horses, and the most expert and graceful riders, to say nothing of his incomparable manage acts. The feats of his two ponies are new and diverting. His splendid black horse, Prince, is made to show almost human intelligence. He brings Chiarini things across the ring, walking on his hind legs like a French poodle, and dances with the grace of a Kiralfy premier. Chiarini is still the boss horse-trainer. M'lle Le Blonde, a Paris artiste, does a bounding jockey act, doing all that Budd Gorman does, and his trained elephants do wonders that would make "Sid" blush.

His present grand equestrian establishment is rich in novelties: Ring artists from European hippodromes; trained blood-horses culled from various parts of the world; ponies from Corea, Java, China, and Japan; trained elephants, Japanese acrobats, and in fact most everything that is different from the usual circuses.

See announcement and admission prices elsewhere in FIGARO.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Hume Brothers, in their mediumistic and Spiritualistic exhibitions, head a specialty company at the Orpheum this week consisting of Feltx Haney, Jean & Victor, the London Quartette, Mason & Morton, Miss Nellie Stow, De Greau & Leon, Freddie Stockmeyer, Geo. H. Wood and others.

The Hume Brothers awaken great interest in their exhibitions, and the special performers meet with general favor.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrnes have made a special engagement with Mr. T. H. Glenney, a cosmopolitan actor and author, for a dramatic season at the East side popular theatre.

"Love and Gold," a sensational play of emotions and adventure, in which there is a dynamite explosion, a flooded mine and entrapped miners, and other sensations, will be Mr. T. H. Glenney's this week's dramatic card at Morosco's.

Mr. Glenny's piece is stirringly sensational and he plays his part very effectively. He is a competent all-around actor, and his new pieces will prove a great treat to Morosco's clientage.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people put in appearances this week in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe.

Montague's contributions to the bill are his local sketch, "The Typewriter," and a local comedy from his pen, entitled "My Uncle."

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's new pieces have the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness. He got a rousing reception. The house was packed to the doors.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The danseuse, Mlle. La Cellie, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week, with J. W. Kelly, the monologue artist and verse improvisatore, and Miss Jennie Heywood, the favorite vocalist, in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Miss Edith Morrison, the popular balladist; Miss Ruby Grant, premiere danseuse, and Soldene, female impersonator, are new.

Miss Ida Farno, serio-comic; Miss Rose De Vere, vocalist, and Tommy Glenn, vocalist, punster and comedian, are late additions.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "Out in the Woods," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Ruby Grant, Ida Farno, Rose Dovere, Alice Dale, Edith Morrison, Soldene and Tommy Glenn.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

The Polks, musical artists and Tyrolean warblers, are new this week.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

The price of admission to Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus has been reduced to 25 cents. It is worth that alone to see his wonderful trained ponies, Brilliant and Diamond, to say nothing of the best trained elephants ever in the country and his array of arenic talent.

John Morrissey, the popular business manager of the Orpheum, will be the recipient of a benefit at that house on Friday night, November 22nd. A host of volunteers of the best talent in town will appear.

A London cablegram says that over twenty thousand persons attended the opening of Barnum's Circus and Menagerie on Monday night.

Harry Montague presents two new pieces at the Bella Union Theatre this week—his sketch act of "The Typewriter" and his local comedy of "My Uncle."

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

The Cremorne introduces the clever Eastern solo dancer, La Cellie, and corps de ballet as their latest attraction.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

THE BOOTH-MODJESKA CALUMNY.

As we suspected, the sensational telegram published in some of the papers on Monday to the effect that Mme. Modjeska was preparing to sever her connection with Edwin Booth's dramatic company and file an application in court asking for an accounting and release from the contract which binds her to the Booth-Barrett organization, on account of Booth's "ungentlemanly and unchivalrous" conduct toward her, is without foundation. Both the interested parties indignantly deny it, and Mme. Modjeska feels much hurt that so vicious a falsehood should have been promulgated through the columns of the press. A New York morning dispatch says that when Booth and Modjeska appeared in "Hamlet" last night the house was packed, and they were given an ovation such as few actors ever received. It seemed as though every man and woman rose in their seats and cheered to make manifest their disbelief of the vile story.

DEATH OF DAVID S. WAMBOLD.

The telegraph brings the news of the death of David S. Wambold, the minstrel, in New York, on the 10th inst., of Bright's disease, at the age of 54 years. Wambold was out Friday with a party of old California friends and when he returned to his hotel in the evening complained of severe pains in the spine. He was unconscious for twenty-four hours previous to his death.

"Dave" Wambold was one of the originators of the San Francisco pioneer Birch & Backus Minstrels, that near a quarter of a century ago went from here to New York and became the reigning minstrel favorites there for twenty years afterwards. He had a magnificent voice and was one of its ballad stars. Backus, Bernard, Wambold, and nearly every one of the company organized in this city, have "passed in their checks," as the boys used to say, except the jolliest of them all, Billy Birch; whose wonderful escape from a storm-wrecked steamer off Cape Hatteras, after floating on some pieces of the wreck for hours in a stormy sea proved him to be a tough customer to cold Death to tackle. Billy has "outlasted" them all.

The "next" at the Bush will be Miss Maddern, accompanied by George Osbourne, on Monday night, in the successful comedy of "Featherbrain," a very lively and entertaining piece.

Dates ahead at the Grand has continued Sophie Eyre and her strong play of "The Witch" down to one week's time. Milton Nobles follows on the 18th, with his own company, with "From Sire to Son" for his first week, and "Love and Law" and "Phœnix" for his last week. The latest English melodrama, "Hands Across the

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Harry Courtaine failed to put in an appearance at to-day's matinee to take his character of Dr. Savage, and Robert Evans played the part. This summarily severs his connection with the Frank Daniels "Little Puck" Company. Manager Cox contemplated making the change next week, but Courtaine's action hastened matters. Mr. Evans is in the cast as Dr. Savage, and will play the part hereafter.

"A prominent young manager and a well known Irish comedian contemplate putting on the road next season a romantic Irish drama called "The Blackbird," in which there are several startling scenic effects." We hope it will not be that blackbird's fate to get shot.

Minnie Palmer is much talked of on the other side as the coming American star of the Christmas production of "Cinderella" at Her Majesty's Theatre, London.

Burt Haverly becomes one of the members of the "Little Puck" company next week. He severed his connection with the Patti Rosa company to join the Daniels company.

Duncan Harrison injured his leg in doing the tank jump in "The Paymaster" last Fall. It will be remembered that Mr. Harrison nobly played the remainder of his engagement on crutches, rather than disappoint managers and the public, when he ought to have been in the hospital. As a result gangrene set in and spread from foot to thigh, and it was with difficulty his leg was saved. He escaped, however, with the amputation o a couple of toes, where the disease had settled, and still limps somewhat.

Frank Daniels will play the following dates on his return route East: San Jose, 18; Oakland, 19-20; Sacramento, 21-22; jumping from there to Omaha, 28-29-30; Minneapolis and St. Paul, three nights each; Chicago, Dec. 10th, for two weeks, and St. Louis Christmas week.

The new boy prodigy pianist, Haguer, made his first appearance before an American audience, recently, at the Metropolitan Opera House, N. Y.

"Shenandoah" has made such a success at Proctor's Twenty-Third Street Theatre, N. Y., that the management have signed contracts to remain until January.

Mr. Lee Thompson, advance representative of Stuart Robson, who opens in Bronson Howard's comedy of "The Henrietta" at the Baldwin next week, is in town and letting the people know of the coming attraction.

Harry Vaughn takes out "Turned Up," one of Nat Goodwin's successes. He has already engaged George Fanri, Edward P. Paulton, Thomas Dunn, N. Dana, T. Murphy, Marietta Nash, Ethel Gray, Pauline Markham, Dorothy Warren and Venie Nobriga.

Charles Holton has resigned as agent of the Haverly-Cleveland Minstrels to accept a position as business manager with the "Wages of Sin" Company, comprising the following members: Rose Osborn, Daisy Andrews, Alice Endres, Annie Walton, Hal Clarendon, Julian Greene, Gus A. Striker, Alf, Hampton; Burton Aldridge, manager; Frank Rich, stage manager; Charles Holton, business manager.

The authorities of Cincinnati have interdicted theatrical performances on Sundays, and the telegraph tells us that three theatre managers, together with one opera company, one gaiety company and one dramatic, were before the police court yesterday charged with a violation of the law by giving a Sunday performance on the 10th inst. The managers were fined $15 each, and all the performers were sentenced to pay the costs of the prosecution. In the case of one theatre this was the second offense. The judge gave notice that another violation of the law would subject all parties concerned to arrest any time during the performance and to such additional fine within the law as might seem best by the court to put an end to the violation of the law. This looks as though there would be no more Sunday performances in Cincinnati just at present.

It is wired from Kansas City on the 11th that "Daniel Sully, the actor, received word that evening through his attorney at his home in Newport, R. I., that he has been advised of the death of his uncle in Dublin, Ireland, who leaves the bulk of an immense property to the actor." Well, we are glad of it; though it is sad to think that we will be debarred hereafter of ever seeing "Daddy Nolan" on the stage again. Of course Mr. Sully will proceed at once to take residence in Dublin, especially as his uncle has left him the whole of Dublin Bay—to sail on.

The first night of the Patti grand Italian opera season at the Auditorium, Chicago, has been fixed for December 10th, the date following the dedication of the building. The company comprises Mmes. Adelina Patti, Emma Albani, Lillian Nordica, Giulia Valdi and a host of distinguished artists. The orchestra will consist of seventy musicians. The ballet and chorus will be unusually effective. The Patti company comes to the Grand Opera House in this city later on.

"Kajanka," the new spectacular piece, will be produced at Niblo's Theatre, N. Y., in December.

Anna Belmont is engaged for the company supporting Robert Mantell.

Alice Fisher and Mrs. Sol Smith have been added to the Booth-Modjeska Co.

Kellogg, the mind-reader, who does the wonderful tests performed by the late celebrated Bishop, and many more difficult feats, has engaged Ed Bert as business manager.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

Funny Frank Daniels is in his last week in his "Little Puck" at the Bush, which has been enlivened with new songs, dances, music and costumes for its farewell nights.

Daniels is the greatest humorist-comedian on the stage, and a remarkable character builder. When he takes a character he builds it up and makes a great part of it by his unctious humor and quaint acting. He has even burnished up his Gilteedge broker with new things for his last week.

The company is much stronger than that of last year. Taking new songs and chorus have been introduced in "Little Puck," and there is not a chestnut in it. The whole performance is most enjoyable, and the greatest go.

For cast and further particulars see the programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

—o—

Miss Maddern, the popular comedienne, opens next week, accompanied by Mr. George Osbourne and a fine company in support, in the rattling comedy of "Featherbrain." This comedy has recorded runs of two years in Paris, a long run in Berlin, a ten months' run in London, and a sixty-night run at the Madison Square Theatre, New York.

Miss Maddern sustains the part of the capricious light-hearted "Featherbrain." Geo. Osbourne has a strong character part in the gallant and romantic Portugese. The company includes Mr. Charles L. Harris, Mr. Wm. Taversham, Mr. Samuel Edwards, Mr. Frank Clayton, Mr. Harry Rawlins, Miss Emma Maddern Miss Helen Osbourne, Miss Lulu Kline and Miss Elsie Lombard.

Special scenery is brought with the comedy, including the famed spiral staircase scene, as originally seen at the Madison Square Theatre.

Alcazar Theatre.

That play of varied scenes and rapid action, "The Tour of the World in Eighty Days," produced in a spectacular form by the Alcazar Company, with Amazon March, children's ballet and new specialty features, is in its last week here.

The cast includes E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell, Miss Ethel Bradden, Louis Imbaus (specially engaged for Passepartout), Jas. M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward and the full Alcazar company. The principal characters are in the hands of good people, who give to their parts the reliable interest of individual characterizations well sustained.

The scenery is entirely new and very fine and especial care has been taken to make the whole production a noted one in that respect. It wins deserved recognition from the audience. The play has the handsomest mounting it ever had here.

The spectacular features are a great go. The marches, the children's ballet, and the various tableaux, give the drama rich and entertaining settings that the management deserve much commendation for. They have done wonders and deserve the success the piece has had.

Augustin Daly's amusing comedy of "Nancy & Co." will have a careful production by the Alcazar Company on Monday night.

Grand Opera House.

That gifted actress, Miss Sophie Eyre, is the stellar attraction at the Grand, in her emotional play of "The Witch." Miss Eyre personally superintended the production of her play here, which is a notably effective one. The stage settings are elegant ones.

Miss Eyre achieved a great success as "The Witch" in London. The Standard pronounced her impersonation of the character to be "one of the grandest pieces of acting of the present age," and no one who saw her tragic power in the third and fourth acts of "The Witch" will dispute the assertion. Her presence fills the eye, her voice charms the ear with its soft cadences, and her movements are grace itself. The Chronicle truly says of Miss Eyre, "There is no actress, perhaps, on the English-speaking stage who could give to the character of Thalia the same dignified, superb quality, or fit into the picture with so much effect."

Mr. Morris sustains Count Rupert in a manly, soldierly way, and John Jack plays his Sergeant Falka—full of Bunsby-like saws—with Misses Celia Allsberg and Ida Aubrey have the sustaining female roles in their hands and sustain them effectively.

Great attention has been paid to scenery and costumes of the piece, as well as in managing the mob scenes.

The two lower circles of the theatre were thronged.

Next week Milton Nobles, famed for the eccentric humor of his character acting, commences a two weeks' engagement at the Grand in his play, "From Sire to Son," supported by his own company.

New California Theatre.

Bolossy Kiralfy's grand ballet spectacle, "Antiope," opens at the California this week, and it is sufficient to add that it is a Kiralfy production, and a new one, and abounds in tableaux, marches, grand ballets and entertaining specialty features.

In pieces of this kind the play is not the thing, but the features introduced in it. "Antiope" is rich in specialties. The ballet, tableaux, marches and scenery are all diverting to the eye, and the notable specialty features are the solo dance by Helena Konradt; the dancing of the Parisian premier, Mlle. Paris; the illusions shown by Yank Hoe and Omene; the gavotte by Miss Alice Gilbert; the Spanish dance by Carmencita; the athletic exhibition by the Plairas, and the performance of the Tissots. Miss Gilbert introduces the dance in long skirts, made so popular in the East by the Gaiety troupe, of which she was a member, and is very pleasing and graceful. Carmencita's dancing is of the genuine Spanish type, and totally different from the ordinary stage dancing.

The house was packed.

Seats can be secured three weeks in advance.

Baldwin Theatre.

The popular comedian, Mr. Stuart Robson, succeeds Rosina Vokes in Bronson Howard's last comedy, "The Henrietta," on Monday night. The Baldwin production will be the first one this comedy has had on this coast. Bronson Howard's last play, "Shenandoah," has established his reputation as the best dramatic author in the country.

Mr. Robson brings his own company in support, and from the reputation "Henrietta" achieved East we can count upon its assured success here.

Seats now on sale.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

General admission has been reduced to 25 cents to give everybody an opportunity to see this famous circus manager and accomplished ring-master, who returns to us again from an extended tour in the Orient with one of the most completely equipped circuses he has yet had, at Central Park, corner Market and Eighth streets,

Chiarini's Circus has always been famed for the handsomest and best trained horses, and the most expert and graceful riders, to say nothing of his incomparable manage acts. The feats of his two ponies are new and diverting. His splendid black horse, Prince, is made to show almost human intelligence. He brings Chiarini things across the ring, walking on his hind legs like a French poodle, and dances with the grace of a Kiralfy premier. Chiarini is still the boss horse-trainer. M'lle Le Blonde, a Paris artiste, does a bounding jockey act, doing all that Budd Gorman does, and his trained elephants do wonders that would make "Sid" blush.

His present grand equestrian establishment is rich in novelties: Ring artists from European hippodromes; trained blood-horses culled from various parts of the world; ponies from Cores, Java, China, and Japan; trained elephants, Japanese acrobats, and in fact most everything that is different from the usual circuses.

See announcement and admission prices elsewhere in FIGARO.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Hume Brothers, in their mediumistic and Spiritualistic exhibitions, head a specialty company at the Orpheum this week consisting of Feltz Haney, Jean & Victor, the London Quartette, Mason & Morton, Miss Nellie Stow, De Greau & Léon, Freddie Stockmeyer, Geo. H. Wood and others.

The Hume Brothers awaken great interest in their exhibitions, and the special performers meet with general favor.

General seats, 25 cents: reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrnes have made a special engagement with Mr. T. H. Glenney, a cosmopolitan actor and author, for a dramatic season at the East side popular theatre.

"Love and Gold," a sensational play of emotions and adventure, in which there is a dynamite explosion, a flooded mine and entrapped miners, and other sensations, will be Mr. T. H. Glenney's this week's dramatic card at Morosco's.

Mr. Glenny's piece is stirringly sensational and he plays his part very effectively. He is a competent all-around actor, and his new pieces will prove a great treat to Morosco's clientage.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conclia, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association is announced elsewhere in FIGARO. The races will come off over the Bay District course, so easily accessible by a half-dozen car lines. The track, a very fast one, is noted for its record-smashing meetings, and as it is in the most perfect order we shall, in all probability, have more record lowering events during this meeting.

For the opening day the first race will be a mile heat for two-year-old fillies, for a $400 purse; second race, all ages, a three-quarters dash; the third, all ages, one mile and a half

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people put in appearances this week in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe.

Montague's contributions to the bill are his local sketch, "The Typewriter," and a local comedy from his pen, entitled "My Uncle."

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's new pieces have the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness. He got a rousing reception. The house was packed to the doors.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The danseuse, Mlle. La Cellie, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week, with J. W. Kelly, the monologue artist and verse improvisatore, and Miss Jennie Heywood, the favorite vocalist, in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Edith Morrison, the popular balladist; Miss Ruby Grant, premiere danseuse, and Soldene, female impersonator, are new.

Miss Ida Farno, serio-comic; Miss Rose De Vere, vocalist, and Tommy Glenn, vocalist, punster and comedian, are late additions.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "Out in the Woods," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Ruby Grant, Ida Farno, Rose Devere, Alice Dale, Edith Morrison, Soldene and Tommy Glenn.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Kottle Meier's Theatre.

The Polks, musical artists and Tyrolean warblers, are new this week.

Brown & Mayville, fine aerial artists, are new, and the new acts are "Four for a Quarter" and "The Upper Flat," both of the comical order.

The olio acts are Brown & Mayville's dashing aerial act, Living Pictures and the Polka' specialties.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Miss Dolly

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Miss Stella Marion, a native of Bridgeport, Conn., lately employed at the Eureka Music Hall in this city as a vocalist, died yesterday after a short illness, at the age of 20 years. The funeral will take place at 3 o'clock Friday from the undertaking parlors of C. J. B. Metzler, 636 Washington street.

John Cort takes possession of his New Standard Theatre, Seattle, on the 18th. It is by far the handsomest and best appointed variety theatre on the Pacific Coast and will rival the very best ones in the Union. He calls it "The Vaudeville Palace of America." His opening company consists of 35 artists.

W. S. Cleveland and Billy Emerson have completed arrangements to sail for the other side to arrange for their London and Paris engagements on or about June 1st. The first-named will take charge of the London camp, while Emerson superintends the Paris end. Energetic Mr. Cleveland seems to be getting a corner on minstrelsy the world over.

The price of admission to Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus has been reduced to 25 cents. It is worth that alone to see his wonderful trained ponies, Brilliant and Diamond, to say nothing of the best trained elephants ever in the country and his array of arenic talent.

John Morrissey, the popular business manager of the Orpheum, will be the recipient of a benefit at that house on Friday night, November 22nd. A host of volunteers of the best talent in town will appear.

A London cablegram says that over twenty thousand persons attended the opening of Barnum's Circus and Menagerie on Monday night.

Harry Montague presents two new pieces at the Bella Union Theatre this week—his sketch act of "The Typewriter" and his local comedy of "My Uncle."

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

The Cremorne introduces the clever Eastern solo dancer, La Cellie, and corps de ballet as their latest attraction.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

Charles Holton has resigned as agen of the Haverly-Cleveland Minstrels to accept a position as business manager with the "Wages of Sin" Company, comprising the following members: Rose Osborn, Daisy Andrews, Alice Endres, Annie Walton, Hal Clarendon, Julian Greene, Gus A. Striker, Alf, Hampton; Burton Aldridge, manager; Frank Rich, stage manager; Charles Holton, business manager.

Clara Chester (Mrs. Geo. Lederer) has left the Herrmann Vaudeville Co.

The "next" at the Bush will be Miss Maddern, accompanied by George Osbourne, on Monday night, in the successful comedy of "Featherbrain," a very lively and entertaining piece.

H. R. Jacobs' Clark Street Theatre is the name given to the handsome theatre now nearly completed and situated on the corner of Clark and Kinzie streets, Chicago, upon the site of the old Museum. It used to be said that there wasn't a dollar for any theatre north of Chicago River, but with M. B. Leavitt and Jacobs north of the open sewer things must have changed.

Dates ahead at the Grand has confined Sophie Eyre and her strong play of "The Witch" down to one week's time. Milton Nobles follows on the 18th, with his own company, with "From Sire to Son" for [illegible] week, and "Love and Law" and [illegible] for his last week. The latest English melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," follows on Dec. 2nd for two weeks, with the spectacular drama of New York life, "The Great Metropolis," with its [illegible] wreck and life-saving scenes, will be the Grand's holiday attraction.

Mr. Lee Thompson, advance representative of Stuart Robson, who opens in Bronson Howard's comedy of "The Henrietta" at the Baldwin next week, is in town and letting the people know of the coming attraction.

There has been such a great demand to see "Little Lord Fauntleroy" in New [illegible] to Mr. Palmer and T. H. Hall [illegible]

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Al. Hayman, our local manager, has struck it rich since he went East in his investments in "Shenandoah"—of which he owns a half interest—and other lucky plays in the quick acting returns of dramatic ventures. Money is just flowing in to him. He will hereafter make New York his home, having purchased a site for a fine residence in that city at the cost of $50,000. Mr. Hayman will not relinquish his theatric l interest in San Francisco, though he will transact his business from New York. He will partially divide his time between both cities. He comes here next month, and will pass most of the Winter here.

Daniel A. Ralton, the actor, died recently at Lawrence, Mass., aged 57 years.

Young Mayo has given up working his "Silver Age" lead, finding no silver in it, and will join his father's company in California in January.

Dixey's "Seven Ages" Co. gave a professional matinee at the Standard Theatre, N. Y., one day last week. The following professionals occupied boxes: Joseph Jefferson, W. J. Florence, Salvini, Mme. Modjeska, Denman Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Kendal and a number of celebrated people. All over the house familiar faces were to be seen. When Mr. Dixey came upon the stage he was received with burst after burst of applause that lasted for many minutes.

Charley Reed has left the "City Directory" Company, and is at present in New York looking out for another engagement.

Daniel Frohman's Lyceum Theatre Company has arrived in New York after a tour of seventeen weeks, extending from San Francisco to Boston. The profits are stated to be $40,000, exceeding the previous tour by nearly $10,000. The best results were secured in San Francisco and Chicago.

Daniel Daly, of the celebrated Daly Family, has been doing a phenomenal business on the New England circuit with "Upside Down." The piece was re-written for this season by its author, Mr. John J. McNally, of the Boston Herald, and it is everywhere pronounced brighter and funnier than ever. As a money-maker and laugh-producer it has few equals.

Edward Terry is making a fortune out of "Sweet Lavender" in London, which is drawing so big, running to its six hundredth performance, that he has decided to give a Wednesday matinee in addition to the usual Saturday one. It is the only theatre in London running two matinees a week.

A new opera, entitled "Don Quixote," by Harry B. Smith and Reginald De Koven, will shortly be produced in Boston.

A. M. Palmer has acquired the American rights for "The Middleman" and Paul Merritt's new melodrama, "A Soulless Crime."

Harry Courtaine failed to put in an appearance Wednesday matinee to take his character of Dr. Savage, and Robert Evans played the part. This summarily severs his connection with the Frank Daniels "Little Puck" Company. Manager Cox contemplated making the change next week, but Courtaine,s action hastened matters. Mr. Evans is in the cast as Dr. Savage, and will play the part hereafter.

"A prominent young manager and a well known Irish comedian contemplate putting on the road next season a romantic Irish drama called "The Blackbird," in which there are several startling scenic effects." We hope it will not be that blackbird's fate to get shot.

Minnie Palmer is much talked of on the other side as the coming American star of the Christmas production of "Cinderella" at Her Majesty's Theatre, London.

Burt Haverly becomes one of the members of the "Little Puck" company next week. He severed his connection with the Patti Rosa company to join the Daniels company.

Duncan Harrison injured his leg in doing the tank jump in "The Paymaster" last Fall. It will be remembered that Mr. Harrison nobly played the remainder of his engagement on crutches, rather than disappoint managers and the public, when he ought to have been in the hospital. As a result gangrene set in and spread from foot to thigh, and it was with difficulty his leg was saved. He escaped, however, with the amputation of a couple of toes, where the disease had settled, and still limps somewhat.

Frank Daniels will play the following dates on his return route East: San Jose, 18; Oakland, 19-20; Sacramento, 21-22; jumping from there to Omaha, 28-29-30; Minneapolis and St. Paul, three nights each; Chicago, Dec. 10th, for two weeks, and St. Louis Christmas week.

The new boy prodigy pianist, Haguer, made his first appearance before an American audience, recently, at the Metropolitan Opera House, N. Y.

"Shenandoah" has made such a success at Proctor's Twenty-Third Street Theatre, N. Y., that the management have signed contracts to remain until January.

Kellogg, the mind-reader, who does the wonderful tests performed by the late celebrated Bishop, and many more difficult feats, has engaged Ed Bert as business manager.

This week is Rosina Vokes' last at the Baldwin.

Funny Frank Daniels and all the pretty girls of his company put in their last nights at the Bush this week.

Harry Vaughn takes out "Turned Up," one of Nat Goodwin's successes He has already engaged George Fanri,

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and only paper that publishes their full programmes

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

Funny Frank Daniels is in his last week in his "Little Puck" at the Bush, which has been enlivened with new songs, dances, music and costumes for its farewell nights.

Daniels is the greatest humorist-comedian on the stage, and a remarkable character builder. When he takes a character he builds it up and makes a great part of it by his unctious humor and quaint acting. He has even burnished up his Gilteage broker with new things for his last week.

The company is much stronger than that of last year Taking new songs and chorus have been introduced in "Little Puck," and there is not a chestnut in it. The whole performance is most enjoyable, and the greatest go.

For cast and further particulars see the programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

—o—

Miss Maddern, the popular comedienne, opens next week, accompanied by Mr. George Osbourne and a fine company in support, in the rattling comedy of "Featherbrain." This comedy has recorded runs of two years in Paris, a long run in Berlin, a ten months' run in London, and a sixty-night run at the Madison Square Theatre, New York.

Miss Maddern sustains the part of the capricious light-hearted "Featherbrain." Geo. Osbourne has a strong character part in the gallant and romantic Portugese. The company includes Mr. Charles L. Harris, Mr. Wm. Taversham, Mr. Samuel Edwards, Mr. Frank Clayton, Mr. Harry Rawline, Miss Emma Maddern Miss Helen Osbourne, Miss Lulu Kline and Miss Elsie Lombard.

Special scenery is brought with the comedy, including the famed spiral staircase scene, as originally seen at the Madison Square Theatre.

Alcazar Theatre.

That play of varied scenes and rapid action, "The Tour of the World in Eighty Days," produced in a spectacular form by the Alcazar Company, with Amazon March, children's ballet and new specialty features, is in its last week here.

The cast includes E. J. Buckley, L. B. Stockwell, Miss Ethel Brandon, Lewis Imbaus (specially engaged for Passepartout), Jos. M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward and the full Alcazar company The principal characters are in the hands of good people, who give to their parts the reliable interest of individual characterizations well sustained.

The scenery is entirely new and very fine and especial care has been taken to make the whole production a noted one in that respect. It wins deserved recognition from the audience. The play has the handsomest mounting it ever had here.

The spectacular features are a great go. The marches, the children's ballet, and the various tableaux, give the drama rich and entertaining settings that the management deserve much commendation for. They have done wonders and deserve the success the piece has had.

Augustin Daly's amusing comedy of "Nancy & Co" will have a careful production by the Alcazar Company on Monday night.

Grand Opera House.

That gifted actress, Miss Sophie Eyre, is the stellar attraction at the Grand, in her emotional play of "The Witch." Miss Eyre personally superintended the production of her play here, which is a notably effective one. The stage settings are elegant ones.

Miss Eyre achieved a great success as "The Witch" in London. The Standard pronounced her impersonation of the character to be "one of the grandest pieces of acting of the present age," and no one who saw her tragic power in the third and fourth acts of "The Witch" will dispute the assertion. Her presence fills the eye, her voice charms the ear with its soft cadences, and her movements are grace itself. The Chronicle truly says of Miss Eyre, "There is no actress, perhaps on the English-speaking stage who could give to the character of Thalia the same dignified, superb quality, or fit into the picture with so much effect."

Mr. Morris sustains Count Rupert in a manly, soldierly way, and John Jack plays his Sergeant Falka—full of Captain Cuttle-like proverbs—with fitting breadth and humor. Chas. Misses Celia Allsberg and Ida Aubrey have the sustaining female roles in their hands and sustain them effectively.

The attendance is good.

—o—

Next week Milton Nobles, famed for the eccentric humor of his character acting, commences a two weeks' engagement at the Grand in his play, "From Sire to Son," supported by his own company. Second week, "Love and Law" and "Phœnix."

Mr. Nobles is just the kind of an actor the patrons of the Grand want. His quick acting, sensational plays, his graphic characterizations, and the peculiar elements of his own impersonations will be strong drawing factors at the Grand. The roomy stage will give his plays splendid scope for their settings.

New California Theatre.

Bolossy Kiralfy's grand ballet spectacle, "Antiope," opens at the California this week, and it is sufficient to add that it is a Kiralfy production, and a new one, and abounds in tableaux, marches, grand ballets and entertaining specialty features.

In pieces of this kind the play is not the thing, but the features introduced in it. "Antiope" is rich in specialties. The ballet, tableaux, marches and scenery are all diverting to the eye, and the notable specialty features are the solo dance by Helena Konradt; the dancing of the Parisian premier, Mlle. Paris; the illusions shown by Yank Hoe and Omene; the gavotte by Miss Alice Gilbert; the Spanish dance by Carmencita; the athletic exhibition by the Plairas, and the performance of the Tissotr. Miss Gilbert introduces the dance in long skirts, made so popular in the East by the Gaiety troupe, of which she was a member, and is very pleasing and graceful. Carmencita's dancing is of the genuine Spanish type, and totally different from the ordinary stage dancing.

The house was packed.

Seats can be secured three weeks in advance.

Baldwin Theatre.

The popular comedian, Mr. Stuart Robson, succeeds Rosina Vokes in Bronson Howard's last comedy, "The Henrietta," on Monday night. The Baldwin production will be the first one this comedy has had on this coast. Bronson Howard's last play, "Shenandoah," has established his reputation as the best dramatic author in the country.

Mr. Robson brings his own company in support, and from the reputation "Henrietta" achieved East we can count upon its assured success here.

Seats now on sale.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

General admission has been reduced to 25 cents to give everybody an opportunity to see this famous circus manager and accomplished ring-master, who returns to us again from an extended tour in the Orient with one of the most completely equipped circuses he has yet had, at Central Park, corner Market and Eighth streets.

Chiarini's Circus has always been famed for the handsomest and best trained horses, and the most expert and graceful riders, to say nothing of his incomparable manage acts. The feats of his two ponies are new and diverting. His splendid black horse, Prince, is made to show almost human intelligence. He brings Chiarini things across the ring, walking on his hind legs like a French poodle, and dances with the grace of a Kiralfy premier. Chiarini is still the boss horse-trainer. M'lle Le Blonde, a Paris artiste, does a bounding jockey act, doing all that Budd Gorman does, and his trained elephants do wonders that would make "Sid" blush.

His present grand equestrian establishment is rich in novelties: Ring artists from European hippodromes; trained blood-horses culled from various parts of the world; ponies from Cores, Java, China, and Japan; trained elephants, Japanese acrobats, and in fact most everything that is different from the usual circuses.

See announcement and admission prices elsewhere in FIGARO.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Hume Brothers, in their mediumistic and Spiritualistic exhibitions, head a specialty company at the Orpheum this week consisting of Felix Harvey, Jean & Victor, the London Quartette Mason & Morton, Miss Nellie Stow, De Grau & Leon, Freddie Stockmeyer, Geo. H. Wood and others.

The Hume Brothers awaken great interest in their exhibitions, and the special performers meet with general favor.

Mr. John Morrissey, the efficient manager of this house, will be the recipient of a grand testimonial on Friday week. A great bill. One hundred volunteers.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrnes have made a special engagement with Mr. T. H. Glenney, a cosmopolitan actor and author, for a dramatic season at the East side popular theatre.

"Love and Gold," a sensational play of emotions and adventure, in which there is a dynamite explosion, a flooded mine and entrapped miners, and other sensations, will be Mr. T. H. Glenney's this week's dramatic card at Morosco's.

Mr. Glenny's piece is stirringly sensational and he plays his part very effectively. He is a competent all-around actor, and his new pieces will prove a great treat to Morosco's clientage.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conclite, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association is announced elsewhere in FIGARO. The races will come off over the Bay District course, so easily accessible by a half-dozen car lines. The track, a very fast one, is noted for its record-smashing meetings, and as it is in the most perfect order we shall, in

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people put in appearances this week in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe.

Montague's contributions to the bill are his local sketch, "The Typewriter," and a local comedy from his pen, entitled "My Uncle."

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's new pieces have the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness. He got a rousing reception. The house was packed to the doors.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The danseuse, Mlle. La Cellie, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week, with J. W. Kelly, the monologue artist and verse improvisatore, and Miss Jennie Heywood, the favorite vocalist, in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldi, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Edith Morrison, the popular balladist; Miss Ruby Grant, premiere danseuse, and Soldene, female impersonator, are new.

Miss Ida Farno, serio-comic; Miss Rose De Vere, vocalist, and Tommy Glenn, vocalist, punster and comedian, are late additions.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "Out in the Woods," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burne, Ruby Grant, Ida Farno, Rose Dovere, Alice Dale, Edith Morrison, Soldene and Tommy Glenn.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

The Polks, musical artists and Tyrolean warblers, are new this week.

Brown & Mayville, fine aerial artists, are new, and the new acts are "Four for a Quarter" and aerial act, Living Pictures and the Polks' specialities.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, Minnie Drossell, J. D. Fox, Rosa Stange and others.

Bottle Meier's is the popular north-end resort. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horse-shoe gallery of larger houses.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Pete Smith and Lottie Ellis, popular performers, are new, and pretty Pearl Iola puts Lulu Martell, Jennie Fowl... Billy Akarman and John M... company.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The awful news comes to us by wire that Lillian Russell, of much matrimonial experiences, who has been playing at McVicker's Theatre, Chicago, in "The Brigands" with Aronson's Casino Company, failed to appear on Thursday night; and moreover it is reported that the fair Fiorella of the opera had eloped with a New York gallant of large expectations by the name of Sanford. The gay butterfly had followed her to Chicago, and had been most devote in his worshipping at the shrine of the too susceptible prima donna.

Bronson Howard is on top. He is now in receipt of $1400 a week from his play, "Shenandoah." In a short time the piece will be running in four cities, and he will enjoy royalties amounting to $4,000 or $5,000 a week.

Shakespeare is now being done in Japan. "The Merchant of Venice" is "Ninniku Shichire Sarban;" "Romeo and Juliet" is "Seyo Musume Setsuyo;" "Julius Cæsar" is "Shisaru Kidan," and the great poet himself is Sekisuplya. Imagine what his grand blank verse must be in that distorted language.

A London dispatch of the 14th says the Gaiety Company Abbey contracted with for an American tour is stricken down with typhoid fever in Scotland. George Stone, who played the part of Valentine and Edward, once leading man in Wallack's Theatre, is dead. Florence St. John is very ill, and five female choristers are dangerously sick.

The somewhat startling appearance of Miss Sophie Eyre in the fourth act of "The Witch" at the Grand Opera House when she escapes from the clutches of the mob, was too much for the nerves of a susceptible young lady in the audience last night, who fainted away at the sight and created a little sensation on her own account.

The "next" at the Bush will be Miss Maddern, accompanied by George Osbourne, on Monday night, in the successful comedy of "Featherbrain," a very lively and entertaining piece.

Al. Hayman, our local manager, has struck it rich since he went East in his investments in "Shenandoah"—of which he owns a half interest—and other lucky plays in the quick acting returns of dramatic ventures. Money is just flowing in to him. He will hereafter make New York his home, having purchased a site for a fine residence in that city at the cost of $50,000. Mr. Hayman will not relinquish his theatrical interest in San Francisco, though he will transact his business from New York. He will partially divide his time between both cities. He comes here next month, and will pass most of the Winter here.

Frank Daniels will play the following dates on his return route East: San Jose, 18; Oakland, 19-20; Sacramento, 21-22; jumping from there to Omaha, 28-29-30; Minneapolis and St. Paul, three nights each; Chicago, Dec. 10th, for two weeks, and St. Louis Christmas week.

Mr. Lee Townsend, advance representative of Stuart Robson, who opens in Bronson Howard's comedy of "The Henrietta" at the Baldwin next week, is in town and letting the people know of the coming attraction.

Dates ahead at the Grand has confined Sophie Eyre and her strong play of "The Witch" down to this week's time. Milton Nobles follows on the 18th, with his own company, with "From Sire to Son" for his first week, and "Love and Law" and "Phœnix" for his last week. The latest English melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," follows on Dec. 2nd for two weeks, and the spectacular drama of New York life, "The Great Metropolis," with its great wreck and life-saving scene, will be the Grand's holiday attraction.

Funny Frank Daniels and all the pretty girls of his company put in their last nights at the Bush this week.

Harry Courtaine failed to put in an appearance Wednesday matinee to take his character of Dr. Savage, and Robert Evans played the part. This summarily severs his connection with the Frank Daniels "Little Puck" Company. Manager Cox contemplates making the change next week, but Courtaine's action hastened matters. Mr. Evans is in the cast as Dr. Savage, and will play the

AN ELEPHANT LOSES HIS HEAD.

Prince, that bumptuous elephant, has been at it again. He woke up Hoboken by rushing wildly through the streets in the early morning, trumpeting loudly, and clearing everything in his path as he went; with a particular design on milk wagons. They were about to ship him on a freight car to Peru, Ind., when a locomotive's whistle frightened him.

Two keepers overtook and pacified the frantic beast and were leading him back by long hooks which they had thrust into his ears when he again took fright at a moving train and ran bellowing up the street, leaving his captors floundering in the mud. A colored man attempted to head him off, when the animal tried to crush him against a wall, and the negro was glad to escape with his life.

Finally Prince was captured and was being led toward the ferry for the second time, when an Erie train, thundering over a viaduct, caused him to make another break for freedom.

Herman Reiche, his owner, at this moment appeared on the scene, faultlessly attired in a silk hat, stylish clothes, kid gloves and patent leather shoes. "Hah, there! Prince!" cried Reiche authoritively, when Prince made straight at him. Reiche flew through five inches of mud and took refuge on a porch of a small wooden dwelling near by. Prince tried to crush Reiche against the wall, and failing in that wound his trunk around one of the pillars, trying, Samson-like, to bring the whole edifice to the ground.

Reiche called out to the keepers near by, offering $50 or a hook, getting which he soon had the elephant under control, but not until he frightened half of Hoboken out of their wits with his roars of pain and covered Reiche with blood. Altogether two hours were consumed in getting him into the car.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show closed its Paris engagement on the 13th inst. Its season broke the Parisian record of successes. The dispatch tells us that the American colony attended and shouted "Hoop la!" The show will open at Lyons on Sunday. Thence it goes to Marseilles, Barcelona and Naples.

J. B. Gaylord, the half-proprietor and manager of the Wild American Show now in this city en route to Australia, arrived from the East yesterday. The disappointment arising by the jumping out of some of the performers engaged East, after having received their cash advances, necessitating delay in procuring others, and the mismanagement of his advance agent sent here, who Mr. Gaylord accuses of bad faith and misappropriations, have been unpleasant setbacks for him. His agent had not communicated with him, and he was surprised at the confusion existing when he got here. He proceeded at once to pay all indebtedness incurred by the company tarrying here, and will take them intact, Indians, cowboys and all, on the Mariposa tomorrow for Australia. Mr. Gaylord held important disbursing positions for years for both Barnum and Forepaugh, and his integrity is unquestionable.

John Cort takes possession of his New Standard Theatre, Seattle, on the 18th. It is by far the handsomest and best appointed variety theatre on the Pacific Coast and will rival the very best ones in the Union. He calls it "The Vaudeville Palate of America." His opening company consists of 35 artists.

The price of admission to Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus has been reduced to 25 cents. It is worth that alone to see his wonderful trained ponies, Brilliant and Diamond, to say nothing of the best trained elephants ever in the country and his array of arenic talent.

John Morrissey, the popular business manager of the Orpheum, will be the recipient of a benefit at that house on Friday night, November 22nd. A host of volunteers of the best talent in town will appear.

W. S. Cleveland and Billy Emerson have completed arrangements to sail for the other side to arrange for their London and Paris engagements on or about June 1st. The first-named will take charge of the London camp, while Emerson superintends the Paris end. Energetic Mr. Cleveland seems to be getting a corner on minstrelsy the world over.

Harry Montague presents two new pieces at the Bella Union Theatre this week—his sketch act of "The Typewriter" and his local comedy of "My Uncle."

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

The Cremorne introduces the clever Eastern solo dancer, La Cellie, and corps de ballet as their latest attraction.

Manager Walderstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

This week is Rosina Vokes' last at the Baldwin.

Burt Haverly becomes one of the members of the "Little Puck" company next week. He severed his connection with the Patti Rosa company to join the Daniels company.

Daniel Daly, of the celebrated Daly Family, has been doing a phenomenal business on the New England circuit with "Upside Down." The piece was re-written for this season by its author, Mr. John J. McNally, of the Boston Herald, and it is everywhere pronounced brighter and funnier than ever. As a money-maker and laugh-producer it has few equals.

Daniel A. Ralton, the actor, died recently at Lawrence, Mass., aged 57 years.

FRIDAY.....NOVEMBER 15, 1889

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and only paper that publishes their full programmes

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

Funny Frank Daniels is in his last week in his "Little Puck" at the Bush, which has been enlivened with new songs, dances, music and costumes for its farewell nights.

—o—

Miss Maddern, the popular comedienne, opens next week, accompanied by Mr. George Osbourne and a fine company in support, in the rattling comedy of "Featherbrain." This comedy has recorded runs of two years in Paris, a long run in Berlin, a ten months' run in London, and a sixty-night run at the Madison Square Theatre, New York.

Miss Maddern sustains the part of the capricious light-hearted "Featherbrain." Geo. Osbourne has a strong character part in the gallant and romantic Portugese. The company includes Mr. Charles L. Harris, Mr. Wm. Tavereham, Mr. Samuel Edwards, Mr. Frank Clayton, Mr. Harry Rawlins, Miss Emma Maddern Miss Helen Osbourne, Miss Lulu Kline and Miss Elsie Lombard.

Special scenery is brought with the comedy, including the famed spiral staircase scene, as originally seen at the Madison Square Theatre.

Alcazar Theatre.

That play of varied scenes and rapid action, "The Tour of the World in Eighty Days," produced in a spectacular form by the Alcazar Company, with Amazon March, children's ballet and new specialty features, is in its last week here.

The cast includes E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell, Miss Ethel Brandon, Louis Imbaus (specially engaged for Passepartout), Jas. M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward and the full Alcazar company. The principal characters are in the hands of good people, who give to their parts the reliable interest of individual characterizations well sustained.

Augustin Daly's amusing comedy of "Nancy & Co." will have a careful production by the Alcazar Company on Monday night.

Grand Opera House.

That gifted actress, Miss Sophie Eyre, is the stellar attraction at the Grand, in her emotional play of "The Witch." Miss Eyre personally superintended the production of her play here, which is a notably effective one. The stage settings are elegant ones.

The attendance is good.

—o—

Next week Milton Nobles, famed for the eccentric humor of his character acting, commences a two weeks' engagement at the Grand in his play, "From Sire to Son," supported by his own company Second week, "Love and Law" and "Phœnix."

Mr. Nobles is just the kind of an actor the patrons of the Grand want. His quick acting, sensational plays, his graphic characterizations, and the peculiar elements of his own impersonations will be strong drawing factors at the Grand. The roomy stage will give his plays splendid scope for their settings.

New California Theatre.

Belcssy Kiralfy's grand ballet spectacle, "Antiope," opens at the California this week, and it is sufficient to add that it is a Kiralfy production, and a new one, and abounds in tableaux, marches, grand ballets and entertaining specialty features.

In pieces of this kind the play is not the thing, but the features introduced in it. "Antiope" is rich in specialties. The ballet, tableaux, marches and scenery are all diverting to the eye, and the notable specialty features are the solo dance by Helena Konradt; the dancing of the Parisian premier, Mlle. Paris; the illusions shown by Yank Hoe and Omene; the serpentine by Miss Alice Gilbert; the Spanish dance by Carmencita; the athletic exhibition of the Pialtas, and the performance of the Risleys. Miss Gilbert introduces the dance in Japanese costume, made so popular in the East by the Gaiety troupe, of which she was a member, and is very pleasing and graceful. Carmencita's dancing is of the genuine Spanish type, and is very different from the ordinary stage dancing.

The house was packed.

Seats can be secured three weeks in advance.

Baldwin Theatre.

The popular comedian, Mr. Stuart Robson, succeeds Rosina Vokes in Bronson Howard's last comedy, "The Henrietta," on Monday night. The Baldwin production will be the first one this comedy has had on this coast.

Mr. Robson brings his own company in support, and from the reputation "Henrietta" achieved East we can count upon its assured success here.

Seats now on sale.

Pavilion—Last Gilmore Concerts.

Gilmore's Grand Band and opera vocalists will give their last concerts on Sunday at 2 P. M., evening at 8, at the Pavilion at popular prices—50 cents, reserved seats $1—with the gems of their repertoire, under the management of Jay Rial, manager of the Grand Opera House. The attendance should tax the capacity of the Pavilion.

Seats on sale at Sherman, Clay & Co.'s.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

General admission has been reduced to 25 cents to give everybody an opportunity to see this famous circus manager and accomplished ring-master, who returns to us again from an extended tour in the Orient with one of the most completely equipped circuses he has yet had, at Central Park, corner Market and Eighth streets,

His present grand equestrian establishment is rich in novelties: Ring artists from European hippodromes; trained blood-horses culled from various parts of the world; ponies from Corea, Java, China, and Japan; trained elephants, Japanese acrobats, and in fact most everything that is different from the usual circuses.

Last performances Saturday and Sunday nights.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Hume Brothers, in their mediumistic and Spiritualistic exhibitions, head a specialty company at the Orpheum this week consisting of Feltx Haney, Jean & Victor, the London Quartette, Mason & Morton, Miss Nellie Stow, De Grau & Leon, Freddie Stockmeyer, Geo. H. Wood and others.

The Hume Brothers awaken great interest in their exhibitions, and the special performers meet with general favor.

Mr. John Morrissey, the efficient manager of this house, will be the recipient of a grand testimonial on Friday week. A great bill. One hundred volunteers.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrnes have made a special engagement with Mr. T. H. Glenney, a cosmopolitan actor and author, for a dramatic season at the East side popular theatre.

"Love and Gold," a sensational play of emotions and adventure, in which there is a dynamite explosion, a flooded mine and entrapped miners, and other sensations, will be Mr. T. H. Glenney's this week's dramatic card at Morosco's.

Mr. Glenny's piece is stirringly sensational and he plays his part very effectively. He is a competent all-around actor, and his new pieces will prove a great treat to Morosco's clientage.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conclite, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association is announced elsewhere in FIGARO. The races will come off over the Bay District course, so easily accessible by a half-dozen car lines. The track, a very fast one, is noted for its record-smashing meetings, and as it is in the most perfect order we shall, in all probability, have more record lowering events during this meeting.

For the opening day the first race will be a mile heat for two-year-old fillies, for a $400 purse; second race, all ages, a three-quarters dash: the third, all ages, one mile and a half contest for the November stakes, and the last event, for three-year-olds and upwards, three-quarter mile heats for the Selling Purse.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people put in appearances this week in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe.

Montague's contributions to the bill are his local sketch, "The Typewriter," and a local comedy from his pen, entitled "My Uncle."

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's new pieces have the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness. He got a rousing reception. The house was packed to the doors.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The danseuse, Mlle. La Cellie, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week, with J. W. Kelly, the monologue artist and verse improvisatore, and Miss Jennie Heywood, the favorite vocalist, in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nesteli and others in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Edith Morrison, the popular balladist; Miss Ruby Grant, premiere chanteuse, and Soldene, female impersonator, are new.

Miss Ida Farno, serio-comic; Miss Rose De Vere, vocalist, and Tommy Glenn, vocalist, punster and comedian, are late additions.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Take in the last Gilmore concert at the Pavilion to-morrow afternoon or evening if you would hear fine music.

The awful news comes to us by wire that Lillian Russell, of much matrimonial experiences, who has been playing at McVicker's Theatre, Chicago, in "The Brigands" with Aronson's Casino Company, failed to appear on Thursday night; and moreover it is reported that the fair Fiorella of the opera had eloped with a New York gallant of large expectations by the name of Sanford. The gay butterfly had followed her to Chicago, and had been most devote in his worshipping at the shrine of the too susceptible prima donna. A New York dispatch of the 15th says Miss Russell is there, but denies the elopement story. She "merely sought a few days needed rest before the coming Philadelphia engagement."

Sunday night, last night of Sophie Eyre and "The Witch" at the Grand.

Wilton Lackaye has signed a five years' contract to star under the joint management of Charles E. Locke and J. Charles Davis.

Louise Thorndyke-Boucicault is playing the part of Margery Sylvester in "Our Flat" at the Lyceum Theatre, New York.

Frank Daniels makes his last appearance for over a year at the Bush on Sunday night.

Bronson Howard is on top. He is now in receipt of $1400 a week from his play, "Shenandoah." In a short time the piece will be running in four cities, and he will enjoy royalties amounting to $4,000 or $5,000 a week.

Shakespeare is now being done in Japan. "The Merchant of Venice" is "Ninniku Shichire Sarban;" "Romeo and Juliet" is "Seyo Musume Setsuyo;" "Julius Cæsar" is "Shisaru Kidan," and the great poet himself is Sekisuplya. Imagine what his grand blank verse must be in that distorted language.

A London dispatch of the 14th says the Gaiety Company Abbey contracted with for an American tour is stricken down with typhoid fever in Scotland. George Stone, who played the part of Valentine and Edward, once leading man in Wallack's Theatre, is dead. Florence St. John is very ill, and five female choristers are dangerously sick.

The somewhat startling appearance of Miss Sophie Eyre in the fourth act of "The Witch" at the Grand Opera House when she escapes from the clutches of the mob, was too much for the nerves of a susceptible young lady in the audience last night, who fainted away at the sight and created a little sensation on her own account.

The "next" at the Bush will be Miss Maddern, accompanied by George Osbourne, on Monday night, in the successful comedy of "Featherbrain," a very lively and entertaining piece.

Al. Hayman, our local manager, has struck it rich since he went East in his investments in "Shenandoah"—of which he owns a half interest—and other lucky plays in the quick acting returns of dramatic ventures. Money is just flowing in to him. He will hereafter make New York his home, having purchased a site for a fine residence in that city at the cost of $50,000. Mr. Hayman will not relinquish his theatrical interest in San Francisco, though he will transact his business from New York. He will partially divide his time between both cities. He comes here next month, and will pass most of the Winter here.

Frank Daniels will play the following dates on his return route East: San Jose, 18; Oakland, 19-20; Sacramento, 21-22; jumping from there to Omaha, 28-29-30; Minneapolis and St. Paul, three nights each; Chicago, Dec. 10th, for two weeks, and St. Louis Christmas week.

Edward Terry is making a fortune out of "Sweet Lavender" in London, which is drawing so big, running to its six hundredth performance, that he has decided to give a Wednesday matinee in addition to the usual Saturday one. It is the only theatre in London running two matinees a week.

Clara Chester (Mrs. Geo. Lederer) has left the Herrmann Vaudeville Co.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show closed its Paris engagement on the 13th inst. Its season broke the Parisian record of successes. The dispatch tells us that the American colony attended and shouted "Hoop-la!" The show will open at Lyons on Sunday. Thence it goes to Marseilles, Barcelona and Naples.

J. B. Gaylord, the half-proprietor and manager of the Wild American Show now in this city en route to Australia, arrived from the East Thursday. The disappointment arising by the jumping out of some of the performers engaged East, after having received their cash advances, necessitating delay in procuring others, and the mismanagement of his advance agent sent here, who Mr. Gaylord accuses of bad faith and misappropriations, have been unpleasant setbacks for him. His agent had not communicated with him, and he was surprised at the confusion existing when he got here. He proceeded at once to pay all indebtedness incurred by the company tarrying here, and took them intact, Indians, cowboys and all, on the steamer Mariposa to-day for Australia. Mr. Gaylord held important disbursing positions for years for both Barnum and Forepaugh, and his integrity is unquestionable.

John Cort takes possession of his New Standard Theatre, Seattle, on the 18th. It is by far the handsomest and best appointed variety theatre on the Pacific Coast and will rival the very best ones in the Union. He calls it "The Vaudeville Palate of America." His opening company consists of 35 artists.

The price of admission to Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus has been reduced to 25 cents. It is worth that alone to see his wonderful trained ponies, Brilliant and Diamond, to say nothing of the best trained elephants ever in the country and his array of arenic talent.

John Morrissey, the popular business manager of the Orpheum, will be the recipient of a benefit at that house on Friday night, November 22nd. A host of volunteers of the best talent in town will appear.

W. S. Cleveland and Billy Emerson have completed arrangements to sail for the other side to arrange for their London and Paris engagements on or about June 1st. The first-named will take charge of the London camp, while Emerson superintends the Paris end. Energetic Mr. Cleveland seems to be getting a corner on minstrelsy the world over.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

The Cremorne introduces the clever Eastern solo dancer, La Cellie, and corps de ballet as their latest attraction.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

AN ELEPHANT LOSES HIS HEAD.

Prince, that bumptuous elephant, has been at it again. He woke up Hoboken by rushing wildly through the streets in the early morning, trumpeting loudly, and clearing everything in his path as he went; with a particular design on milk wagons. They were about to ship him on a freight car to Peru, Ind., when a locomotive's whistle frightened him.

Two keepers overtook and pacified the frantic beast and were leading him back by long hooks which they had thrust into his ears when he again took fright at a moving train and ran bellowing up the street, leaving his captors floundering in the mud. A colored man attempted to head him off, when the animal tried to crush him against a wall, and the negro was glad to escape with his life.

Finally Prince was captured and was being led toward the ferry for the second time, when an Erie train, thundering over a viaduct, caused him to make another break for freedom.

Herman Reiche, his owner, at this moment appeared on the scene, faultlessly attired in a silk hat, stylish clothes, kid gloves and patent leather shoes. "Hah, there! Prince!" cried Reiche authoritively, when Prince made straight at him. Reiche flew through five inches of mud and took refuge on a porch of a small wooden dwelling near by. Prince tried to crush Reiche against the wall, and failing in that wound his trunk around one of the pillars, trying, Samson-like, to bring the whole edifice to the ground.

Reiche called out to the keepers near by, offering $50 for a hook, getting which he soon had the elephant under control, but not until he frightened half of Hoboken out of their wits with his roars of pain and covered Reiche with blood. Altogether two hours were consumed in getting him into the car.

Burt Haverly becomes one of the members of the "Little Puck" company next week. He severed his connection with the Patti Rosa company to join the Daniels company.

Dates ahead at the Grand has confined Sophie Eyre and her strong play of "The Witch" down to this week's time. Milton Nobles follows on the 18th, with his own company, with "From Sire to Son" for his first week, and "Love and Law" and "Phœnix" for his last week. The latest English melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," follows on Dec. 2nd for two weeks, and the spectacular drama of New York life, "The Great Metropolis," with its great wreck and life-saving scene, will be the Grand's holiday attraction.

Funny Frank Daniels and all the pretty girls of his company put in their last nights at the Bush this week.

Daniel Frohman's Lyceum Theatre Company has arrived in New York after a tour of seventeen weeks, extending from San Francisco to Boston. The

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

Sunny Frank Daniels will close a fine three weeks' engagement at the Bush on Sunday night, which will be the last opportunity to see one of the best comedians on the stage for a year or more.

—o—

Miss Maddern, the popular comedienne, opens next week, accompanied by Mr. George Osbourne and a fine company in support, in the rattling comedy of "Featherbrain." This comedy has recorded runs of two years in Paris, a long run in Berlin, a ten months' run in London, and a sixty-night run at the Madison Square Theatre, New York.

Miss Maddern sustains the part of the capricious light-hearted "Featherbrain." Geo. Osbourne has a strong character part in the gallant and romantic Portugese. The company includes Mr. Charles L. Harris, Mr. Wm. Tavernham, Mr. Samuel Edwards, Mr. Frank Clayton, Mr. Harry Rawlins, Miss Emma Maddern Miss Helen Osbourne, Miss Lulu Kline and Miss Elsie Lombard.

Special scenery is brought with the comedy, including the famed spiral staircase scene, as originally seen at the Madison Square Theatre.

Alcazar Theatre.

That play of varied scenes and rapid action, "The Tour of the World in Eighty Days," has drawn a good two weeks' business here, and has its last flash in the footlights on Sunday night.

Augustin Daly's amusing comedy of "Nancy & Co." will have a careful production by the Alcazar Company on Monday night. This is one of Daly's bright, finished and amusing comedies, and the Alcazar company will do their best to give it zest in action.

Grand Opera House.

That gifted actress, Miss Sophie Eyre, the stellar attraction at the Grand, in her emotional play of "The Witch," makes her last appearance here on Sunday night. The play is well cast and most creditably staged.

The attendance has been good.

—o—

Next week Milton Nobles, famed for the eccentric humor of his character acting, commences a two weeks' engagement at the Grand in his play, "From Sire to Son," supported by his own company. Second week, "Love and Law" and "Phœnix."

Mr. Nobles is just the kind of an actor the patrons of the Grand want. His quick acting, sensational plays, his graphic characterizations, and the peculiar elements of his own impersonations will be strong drawing factors at the Grand. The roomy stage will give his plays splendid scope for their settings.

New California Theatre.

Bolossy Kiralfy's grand ballet spectacle, "Antiope," opens at the California this week, and it is sufficient to add that it is a Kiralfy production, and a new one, and abounds in tableaux, marches, grand ballets and entertaining specialty features.

In pieces of this kind the play is not the thing, but the features introduced in it. "Antiope" is rich in specialties. The ballet, tableaux, marches and scenery are all diverting to the eye, and the notable specialty features are the solo dance by Helena Konradi; the dancing of the Parisian premier, Mlle. Paris; the illusions shown by Yank Hoe and Omene; the gavotte by Miss Alice Gilbert; the Spanish dance by Carmencita; the athletic exhibition by the Pisiras, and the performance of the Trixets. Miss Gilbert introduces the dance in long skirts, made so popular in the East by the Lotty troupe, of which she was a member, and is very pleasing and graceful. Carmencita's dancing is of the genuine Spanish type, and totally different from the ordinary stage dancer, and Arnold Kiralfy's grotesque dancing is the best on the stage.

Same bill next week.

Baldwin Theatre.

The popular comedian, Mr. Stuart Robson, succeeds Rosina Vokes in Bronson Howard's last comedy, "The Henrietta," on Monday night. The Baldwin production will be the first one this comedy has had on this coast. Bronson Howard's last play, "Shenandoah," has established his reputation as the best dramatic author in the country.

Mr. Robson brings his own company in support.

Pavilion—Last Gilmore Concerts.

Gilmore's Grand Band and opera vocalists will give their last concerts on Sunday at 2 P. M., evening at 8, at the Pavilion at popular prices—50 cents, reserved seats $1—with the gems of their repertoire, under the management of Jay Rial, manager of the Grand Opera House. The attendance should tax the capacity of the Pavilion.

Seats on sale at Sherman, Clay & Co.'s, and at the Pavilion on Sunday. The sale to-day was very big.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

Last performances Saturday and Sunday nights.

General admission has been reduced to 25 cents to give everybody an opportunity to see this famous circus manager and accomplished ring-master, who returns to us again from an extended tour in the Orient with one of the most completely equipped circuses he has yet had, at Central Park, corner Market and Eighth streets,

Orpheum Theatre.

The Hume Brothers, in their mediumistic and Spiritualistic exhibitions, and the specialty company they head close on Sunday night.

The Hume Brothers awaken great interest in their exhibitions, and the special performers have met with general favor.

The Oakes' Swiss Bell Ringers and Comedy Sketch Company, from Chicago, put in their first appearances in San Francisco at the Orpheum next week. This company has a fixed popularity East, as it has been in the amusement field since 1877.

Mr. John Morrissey, the efficient manager of this house, will be the recipient of a grand testimonial on Friday night. A great bill. One hundred volunteers.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrnes have made a special engagement with Mr. T. H. Glenney, a cosmopolitan actor and author, for a dramatic season at the East side popular theatre.

"Love and Gold," a sensational play of emotions and adventure, in which there is a dynamite explosion, a flooded mine and entrapped miners, and other sensations, has been Mr. T. H. Glenney's this week's dramatic card at Morosco's.

Mr. Glenny's piece is stirringly sensational and he plays his part very effectively. He is a competent all-around actor, and his new pieces will prove a great treat to Morosco's clientage.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

That strong drama, "Storm-Beaten," with its pictures of life on ship board in the Polar seas surrounded by ice, with tableaux of frost and fire, of wreck, iceberg life, and rescue, will be next week's bill at Morosco's, with Glenney as rattlebrained Pat O'Reilly.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association is announced elsewhere in FIGARO. The races will come off over the Bay District course, so easily accessible by a half-dozen car lines. The track, a very fast one, is noted for its record-smashing meetings, and as it is in the most perfect order we shall, in all probability, have more record lowering events during this meeting.

The first race on Tuesday will be a three-quarters of a mile dash, for three-year-olds and upwards, for a $400 purse; second race, three-year-old fillies, one mile and a quarter, $500 purse; third race, the Record Stakes, all ages, five furlongs, and last event a dash of seven furlongs for two-year-olds.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people put in appearances this week in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe.

Montague's contributions to the bill are his local sketch, "The Typewriter," and a local comedy from his pen, entitled "My Uncle."

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's new pieces have the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness. He got a rousing reception. The house was packed to the doors.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The danseuse, Mlle. La Cellie, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week, with J. W. Kelly, the monologue artist and verse improvisatore, and Miss Jennie Heywood, the favorite vocalist, in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Edith Morrison, the popular balladist; Miss Ruby Grant, premiere [illegible]ouse, and Soldene, female impersonator, are new.

Miss Ida Farno, serio-comic; Miss Rose De Vere, vocalist, and Tommy Glenn, vocalist, punster and comedian, are late additions.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "Out in the Woods," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Ruby Grant, Ida Farno, Rose Dovere, Alice Dale, Edith Morrison, Soldene and Tommy Glenn.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

The Polka, musical artists and Tyrolean warblers, are new this week.

Brown & Mayville, fine aerial artists, are new.

aerial set, Living Pictures and the Polka specialties.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, Minnie Drossell, J. D. Fox, Rosa Stange and others.

Bottle Meier's is the popular north-end resort. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horse-shoe gallery of larger houses.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akerman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Miss Maddern, accompanied by Geo. Osbourne, in the successful comedy of "Featherbrain," a very lively and entertaining piece, this week at the Bush.

Bart Haverly becomes one of the members of the "Little Puck" company this week. He severed his connection with the Patti Rosa company to join the Daniels company. He plays the eccentric part of the English butler, Sluggers.

Dates ahead at the Grand after Milton Nobles' engagement: the latest English melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," follows on Dec. 2nd for two weeks, and the spectacular drama of New York life, "The Great Metropolis,' with its great wreck and life-saving scene, will be the Grand's holiday attraction.

Wilton Lackaye has signed a five years' contract to star under the joint management of Charles E. Locke and J. Charles Davis.

Louise Thorndyke-Boucicault is playing the part of Margery Sylvester in "Our Flat" at the Lyceum Theatre, New York.

Bronson Howard is on top. He is now in receipt of $1400 a week from his play, "Shenandoah." In a short time the piece will be running in four cities, and he will enjoy royalties amounting to $4,000 or $5,000 a week.

Shakespeare is now being done in Japan. "The Merchant of Venice" is "Ninniku Shichire Sarban;" "Romeo and Juliet" is "Seyo Mujume Setsuyo;" "Julius Cæsar" is "Shisaru Kidan," and the great poet himself is Sekisuplya. Imagine what his grand blank verse must be in that distorted language.

A London dispatch of the 14th says the Gaiety Company Abbey contracted with for an American tour is stricken down with typhoid fever in Scotland. George Stone, who played the part of Valentine and Edward, once leading man in Wallack's Theatre, is dead. Florence St. John is very ill, and five female choristers are dangerously sick.

Daniel Frohman's Lyceum Theatre Company has arrived in New York after a tour of seventeen weeks, extending from San Francisco to Boston. The profits are stated to be $40,000, exceeding the previous tour by nearly $10,000. The best results were secured in San Francisco and Chicago.

Frank Daniels will play the following dates on his return route East: San Jose, 18; Oakland, 19-20; Sacramento, 21-22; jumping from there to Omaha, 28-29-30; Minneapolis and St. Paul, three nights each; Chicago, Dec. 10th, for two weeks, and St. Louis Christmas week.

Edward Terry is making a fortune out of "Sweet Lavender" in London, which is drawing so big, running to its six hundredth performance, that he has decided to give a Wednesday matinee in addition to the usual Saturday one. It is the only theatre in London running two matinees a week.

Charley Reed has left the "City Directory" Company, and is at present in New York looking out for another engagement.

Dixey's "Seven Ages" Co. gave a professional matinee at the Standard Theatre, N. Y., one day last week. The following professionals occupied boxes: Joseph Jefferson, W. J. Florence, Salvini, Mme. Modjeska, Denman Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Kendal and a number of celebrated people. All over the house [illegible] were to be seen. When Mr. Dixey came on the stage he was greeted with a burst after burst of applause that lasted for many minutes.

Charles Horton has resigned as agent of the Haverly-Cleveland Minstrels to accept a position as business manager of the "Wages of Sin" Company, comprising the following members: Rose Osborne, Posy Andrews, Alice Evares, Annie Wilson, Hal Clarendon, Josiah Greene, Gus A. Striker, Alf. Hampton; Burton Aldridge, manager; Frank Rich, stage manager; Charles Horton, business manager.

H. R. Jacobs' Clark Street Theatre is the name given to the handsome theatre now nearly completed and situated on the corner of Clark and Kinzie streets, Chicago.

THE THEATRICAL MECHANICS' ASSOCIATION.

Lodge No. 21 of the Theatrical Mechanics' Association held their installation ceremonies, after the curtains had been rung down at the theatres, followed by a sumptuous banquet, at Golden Gate Hall, Alcazar Building, on Saturday night, and had what everybody said was "a good time."

The following recently elected officers were installed: James Lang, president; S. I. Simmons, vice-president; F. E. McLeod, recording secretary; S. J. Ryan, financial secretary; Frank Marcus, treasurer; George Van Ness, sergeant-at-arms; C. J. Kloss, D. C. Rolfs, John Quarrels, William Dove and T. F. Burkhardt, trustees; Dr. D. McLean, physician. T. H. Andrews, master machinist of the Grand Opera House, and F. W. Bruce, of the Tivoli, conducted the installation ceremonies.

Many actors and performers were present. After the presentation of a handsome gold brooch to Miss Ethel Brandon as a testimonial of the kindly feeling entertained for her by the attaches of San Francisco playhouses, the guests sat down to their well ladened tables, and toasts, speeches, stories, recitations and vocal and instrumental music succeeded each other in the merry hours that followed. The orchestration was by volunteers from the Grand, Bush, Alcazar and California orchestras, led by J. E. Josephs, and was notably good.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show closed its Paris engagement on the 13th inst. Its season broke the Parisian record of successes. The dispatch tells us that the American colony attended and shouted "Hoop-la!" The show will open at Lyons on Sunday. Thence it goes to Marseilles, Barcelona and Naples.

J. B. Gaylord, the half-proprietor and manager of the Wild American Show now in this city en route to Australia, arrived from the East Thursday. The disappointment arising by the jumping out of some of the performers engaged East, after having received their cash advances, necessitating delay in procuring others, and the mismanagement of his advance agent sent here, who Mr. Gaylord accuses of bad faith and misappropriations, have been unpleasant setbacks for him. His agent had not communicated with him, and he was surprised at the confusion existing when he got here. He proceeded at once to pay all indebtedness incurred by the company tarrying here. Mr. Gaylord held important disbursing positions for years for both Barnum and Forepaugh, and his integrity is unquestionable.

John Cort takes possession of his New Standard Theatre, Seattle, this week. It is by far the handsomest and best appointed variety theatre on the Pacific Coast and will rival the very best ones in the Union. He calls it "The Vaudeville Palace of America." His opening company consists of 35 artists.

John Morrissey, the popular business manager of the Orpheum, will be the recipient of a benefit at that house on Friday night. A host of volunteers of the best talent in town will appear.

W. S. Cleveland and Billy Emerson have completed arrangements to sail for the other side to arrange for their London and Paris engagements on or about June 1st. The first-named will take charge of the London camp, while Emerson superintends the Paris end. Energetic Mr. Cleveland seems to be getting a corner on minstrelsy the world over.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

The Cremorne introduces the clever Eastern solo dancer, La Cellie, and corps de ballet as their latest attraction.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

AN ELEPHANT LOSES HIS HEAD.

Prince, that bumptuous elephant, has been at it again. He woke up Hoboken by rushing wildly through the streets in the early morning, trumpeting loudly, and clearing everything in his path as he went; with a particular design on milk wagons. They were about to ship him on a freight car to Peru, Ind., when a locomotive's whistle frightened him.

Two keepers overtook and pacified the frantic beast and were leading him back by long hooks which they had thrust into his ears when he again took fright at a moving train and ran bellowing up the street, leaving his captors floundering in the mud. A colored man attempted to head him off, when the animal tried to crush him against a wall, and the negro was glad to escape with his life.

Finally Prince was captured and was being led toward the ferry for the second time, when an Erie train, thundering over a viaduct, caused him to make another break for freedom.

Herman Reiche, his owner, at this moment appeared on the scene, faultlessly attired in a silk hat, stylish clothes, kid gloves and patent leather shoes. "Hah, there! Prince!" cried Reiche authoritively, when Prince made straight at him. Reiche flew through five inches of mud and took refuge on a porch of a small wooden dwelling near by. Prince tried to crush Reiche against the wall, and failing in that wound his trunk around one of the pillars, trying, Samson-like, to bring the whole edifice to the ground.

Reiche called out to the keepers near by, offering $50 or a hook, getting which he [illegible] the elephant under control.

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

Miss Maddern, the popular comedienne, appears here, accompanied by Mr. George Osbourne and a fine company in support, in the rattling comedy of "Featherbrain." This comedy has recorded runs of two years in Paris, a long run in Berlin, a ten months' run in London, and a sixty-night run at the Madison Square Theatre, New York.

Miss Maddern sustains the part of the capricious light-hearted "Featherbrain." Geo. Osbourne has a strong character part in the gallant and romantic Portugese. The company includes Mr. Charles L. Harris, Mr. Wm. Taversham, Mr. Samuel Edwards, Mr. Frank Clayton, Mr. Harry Rawlins, Miss Emma Maddern Miss Helen Osbourne, Miss Lulu Kline and Miss Elsie Lombard. A goodly company in one of the most popular of modern-day comedies.

Special scenery is brought with the comedy, including the famed spiral staircase scene, as seen at the Madison Square Theatre.

Alcazar Theatre.

Augustin Daly's amusing comedy of "Nancy & Co." will have a careful production by the Alcazar Company this week. This is one of Daly's bright, finished and amusing comedies, and the Alcazar company will do their best to give it zest in action.

E. J. Buckley is the Kiefe O'Kiefe, Esq.; Miss Ethel Brandon is Nancy Brasher with her comedy, and Stockwell plays the part of her jealous husband, "Tippy."

Grand Opera House.

This week Milton Nobles, famed for the eccentric humor of his character acting, commences a two weeks' engagement at the Grand in his play, "From Sire to Son," supported by his own company.

Mr. Nobles is just the kind of an actor the patrons of the Grand want. His quick acting, sensational plays, his graphic characterizations, and the peculiar elements of his own impersonations will be strong drawing factors at the Grand. The roomy stage will give his plays splendid scope for their settings.

This is a California play, and it is worth the price of admission to see the four-horse Yuba stage coach drive on the stage of the Grand and land its passengers and baggage at the Yuba Hotel, "in the mines"

New California Theatre

Bolossy Kiralfy's grand ballet spectacle, "Antiope," rules at the California this week, and it is sufficient to add that it is a Kiralfy production, and a new one, and abounds in tableaux, marches, grand ballets and entertaining specialty features.

In pieces of this kind the play is not the thing, but the features introduced in it. "Antiope" is rich in specialties. The ballet, tableaux, marches and scenery are all diverting to the eye, and the notable specialty features are the solo dance by Helena Konradt; the dancing of the Parisian premier, Mlle. Paris; the illusions shown by Yank Hoe and Omene; the gavotte by Miss Alice Gilbert; the Spanish dance by Carmencita; the athletic exhibition by the Pialras, and the performance of the Tissots. Miss Gilbert introduces the dance in long skirts, made so popular in the East by the Gaiety troupe, of which she was a member, and is very pleasing and graceful. Carmencita's dancing is of the genuine Spanish type, and totally different from the ordinary stage dancing, and Arnold Kiralfy's grotesque dancing is the best on the stage.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Oakes' Swiss Bell Ringers and Specialty Sketch Company, from Chicago, put in their first appearances in San Francisco at the Orpheum this week. This company has a fixed popularity East, as it has been in the amusement field since 1877.

Mr. John Morrissey, the efficient manager of this house, will be the recipient of a grand testimonial on Friday night. A great bill. One hundred volunteers.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

That strong drama, "Storm-Beaten," with its pictures of life on ship board in the Polar seas surrounded by ice, with tableaux of frost and fire, of wreck, iceberg life, and rescue, will be this week's bill at Morosco's, with Glenney as rattlebrained Pat O'Reilly. This is Mr Glenney's last week.

and he plays his part very effectively. He is a competent all-around actor, and has played a good four weeks' season at Morosco's.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association is announced elsewhere in FIGARO. The races will come off over the Bay District course, so easily accessible by a half-dozen car lines. The track, a very fast one is noted for its record-smashing meetings when in condition.

The races set for Tuesday are a three-quarters of a mile dash, for three-year-olds and upwards, for a $400 purse; second race, three-year-old fillies, one mile and a quarter, $500 purse; third race, the Record Stakes, all ages, five furlongs, and last event a dash of seven furlongs for two-year-olds.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe are filling the Union every night.

Montague's contribution to the bill is his comedy of "The Bridal Chamber," with most of the company in the cast.

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's comedy has the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness.

Those popular favorites, Thatcher & Drew, have been re-engaged.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The danseuse, Mlle. La Cellie, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week, with J. W. Kelly, the monologue artist and verse improvisatore, and Miss Jennie Heywood, the favorite vocalist, in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

Another new feature is Hallinan's Mastodon Minstrels with six comedians on the ends.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Helena Richman and Miss Blanche Long are new this week.

Miss Edith Morrison, the popular balladist; Miss Ruby Grant, premiere danseuse; also Miss Ida Farno, serio-comic; Miss Rose De Vere, vocalist, and Tommy Glenn, vocalist, punster and comedian, are late additions.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the new comedy of "Mr. Barnes of N. Y. and Mr. Burns of S. F.," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Ruby Grant, Blanche Long, Rose Devere, Edith Morrison, Helena Richman and Tommy Glenn.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

John Gilmore, comedian, and Miss Alice Dale, vocalist, are the new faces here.

The Polks, musical artists and Tyrolean warblers, and all the company appear in "A Trip Around the World" this week.

The olio acts are "Fun at Home" and the Polks specialties.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, Marie Morino, J. D. Fox, Rosa Stange and others.

Bottle Meier's is the popular north-end resort. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horse-shoe gallery of larger houses.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Pete Smith and Lottie Ellis, popular performers, are new, and pretty Pearl Iola puts in a reappearance.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, Lulu Martell, Jennie Fowler, Mamie Woods, Billy Akarman and John Merritt make up the company.

The first part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

The olio piece is the comedy of "The Henpecked [illegible]d," with Akarman, Mitt Smith and most of the ladies in the cast.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

If you are troubled with bald spots, or falling out of hair, by all means use Diefenbacher's Hair Tonic. It is invaluable. Try it and be convinced. Its merits are well attested. All his testimonials are from well-known people

A. M. Palmer has acquired the American rights for "The Middleman" and Paul Merritt's new melodrama, "A Soulless Crime."

Daniel A. Ralton, the actor, died recently at Lawrence, Mass., aged 57 years.

Young Mayo has given up working his "Silver Age" lead, finding no silver in it, and will join his father's company in California in January.

Daniel Daly, of the celebrated Daly Family, has been doing a phenomenal business on the New England circuit with "Upside Down." The piece was re-written for this season by its author, Mr. John J. McNally, of the Boston Herald, and it is everywhere pronounced brighter and funnier than ever. As a money-maker and laugh-producer it has few equals.

Minnie Palmer is much talked of on the other side as the coming American star of the Christmas production of "Cinderella" at Her Majesty's Theatre, London.

Harry Vaughn takes out "Turned Up," one of Nat Goodwin's successes He has already engaged George Fanri, Edward P. Paulton, Thomas Dunn, N. Dana, T. Murphy, Marietta Nash, Ethel Gray, Pauline Markham, Dorothy Warren and Venie Nobriga.

The new boy prodigy pianist, Haguer, made his first appearance before an American audience, recently, at the Metropolitan Opera House, N. Y.

"Shenandoah" has made such a success at Proctor's Twenty-Third Street Theatre, N. Y., that the management have signed contracts to remain until January.

Kellogg, the mind-reader, who does the wonderful tests performed by the late celebrated Bishop, and many more difficult feats, has engaged Ed Bert as business manager.

Clara Chester (Mrs. Geo. Lederer) has left the Herrmann Vaudeville Co.

There has been such a great demand to see "Little Lord Fauntleroy" in New York that A. M. Palmer and T. Henry French have arranged to give "Little Lord Fauntleroy" matinees every afternoon of the week except Saturday.

Duncan Harrison injured his leg in doing the tank jump in "The Paymaster" last Fall. It will be remembered that Mr. Harrison nobly played the remainder of his engagement on crutches, rather than disappoint managers and the public, when he ought to have been in the hospital. As a result gangrene set in and spread from foot to thigh, and it was with difficulty his leg was saved. He escaped, however, with the amputation of a couple of toes, where the disease had settled, and still limps somewhat.

It is wired from Kansas City on the 11th that "Daniel Sully, the actor, received word that evening through his attorney at his home in Newport, R. I., that he has been advised of the death of his uncle in Dublin, Ireland, who leaves the bulk of an immense property to the actor." Well, we are glad of it; though it is sad to think that we will be debarred hereafter of ever seeing "Daddy Nolan" on the stage again. Of course Mr. Sully will proceed at once to take residence in Dublin, especially as his uncle has left him the whole of Dublin Bay—to sail on.

"Kajanka," the new spectacular piece, will be produced at Niblo's Theatre, N.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

After the present Booth-Modjeska season terminates Booth and Barrett will join forces again. Their business partnership to be continued for a period of two years.

The arrival of the Red Dog stage in "From Sire to Son," at the Grand, loaded down with passengers, is an exciting scene with its prancing horses and general excitement accompanying it.

The Gilmore Band vacated the Pavilion as they tooted their last horn on Sunday night to take a farewell horn and a special train for the East.

Our Lotta, who used to be called the "Dramatic Cocktail," was badly shaken up in Boston recently by a runaway accident. With her mother she had entered their carriage without noticing that the driver was not on the box. The horses started on a run, and, discovering the absence of the driver, Lotta forced open the door and sprang out, intending to stop the team herself, but her dress caught and she was thrown to the ground, striking on her head and side. The dispatch adds that "she was picked up in a half-conscious state. A physician found that her injuries were a contusion on the head and severe bruises on the left leg and foot. Mrs. Crabtree remained in the carriage, and the horses were stopped after they had run two blocks further" We have always advocated that Lotta should have married. If she had done so this accident could not have happened to her. It would have been the husband, of course, that would have dashed out of the carriage and got the fall. She will be sorry she has not married some day.

The new French version of "Mikado," by Armand Sylvestre, will soon be produced at the Eden Theatre, Paris.

John Kreling's California Opera Company made its appearance at the Hammerstein Harlem Opera House, N. Y., in "Said Pasha," and was pronounced a great success."

Miss Maddern, accompanied by Geo. Osbourne, in the successful comedy of "Featherbrain," a very lively and entertaining piece, this week at the Bush.

Burt Haverly becomes one of the members of the "Little Puck" company this week. He severed his connection with the Patti Rosa company to join the Daniels company. He plays the eccentric part of the English butler, Sluggers.

Dates ahead at the Grand after Milton Nobles' engagement: the latest English melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," follows on Dec. 2nd for two weeks, and the spectacular drama of New York life, "The Great Metropolis," with its great wreck and life-saving scene, will be the Grand's holiday attraction.

Wilton Lackaye has signed a five years' contract to star under the joint management of Charles E. Locke and J. Charles Davis.

Louise Thorndyke-Boucicault is playing the part of Margery Sylvester in "Our Flat" at the Lyceum Theatre, New York.

Bronson Howard is on top. He is now in receipt of $1400 a week from his play, "Shenandoah." In a short time the piece will be running in four cities, and he will enjoy royalties amounting to $4,000 or $5,000 a week.

Shakespeare is now being done in Japan. "The Merchant of Venice" is "Nimuku Shichiro Sarban;" "Romeo and Juliet" is "Seyo Musume Setsuyo;" "Julius Cæsar" is "Shosaru Kotan," and the great poet himself is Sekisnpiya, "a writer who has grand brush verse [illegible] that astonished an age."

Frank Daniels will play the following dates on his return route East: San Jose, 28-29; Stockton, 30-0, Sacramento, 21-22; jumping from there to Omaha, 28-29-30; Chicago 3 and St. Paul, three nights each, Chicago, Dec. 16th, for two weeks, and St. Louis Christmas week.

Edward Terry is making a fortune out of "Sweet Lavender" in London, which is drawing so big, running to its six hundredth performance, that he has decided to give a Wednesday matinee in addition to the usual Saturday one. It is the only theatre in London running two matinees a week.

Charley Reed has left the "City Direc-

The A. M. Palmer stock company will play a sixteen weeks engagement next Summer under the management of Al. Haymar. This organization will be the first of the Eastern stock companies to visit Portland, Or., where their different performances will be sold out during the coming Winter by subscription.

Mr. Edmund C. Stanton has retired from the position of representative of the stage calling on the World's Fair Committee, and Mr. Frank W. Sanger has been given the place.

W. J. Scanlan's new song, "See, There She Goes," which he has lately introduced in "Myles Aroon," promises to become even more popular than his famous "Peek-a-Boo."

Manager Ben Stern has booked "Kajanka" for a six weeks' run at Niblo's Theatre, N. Y., beginning Dec. 2nd.

Ettie Griswold's "Child Stealer" Company played at Franklin, Mass., on Monday night of last week in their street clothes because a greedy Attleboro landlord has scooped in their baggage. There was no show on Tuesday, although the announcements were full of dramatic promise for that evening.

Robert F. Cotton, of "Our Flat" Co., playing at the Lyceum Theatre, N. Y., was lately married to Miss Le Baron, late of Nat Goodwin's company.

Lately, during Adelaide Moore's performance at Dubuque, Ia., it is alleged that McCulloch Ross, one of her actors, who is said to be suffering from cranial enlargement, "queered" her scene by throwing a loaded revolver intended for her use beyond her reach at the critical moment.

Managers Durst & Bergfield, of the Grand Opera House, Tyler, Tex., attached the box office receipts of Murray & Murphy for $100, claimed as damages for their non-fulfillment of a previous contract. Murray & Murphy settled by paying $35 and costs.

The latest Liverpool (Eng.) music hall novelty is a "dog pianist."

Eugene D'Albert and Pablo Sarasate, the great soloists engaged by Henry E. Abbey, have arrived in New York.

Manager Alexander Comstock, business manager for Denman Thompson's "Old Homestead" Company, will shortly sail for Europe, to arrange for the production of that play in London next Summer.

Daniel Frohman's Lyceum Theatre Company has arrived in New York after a tour of seventeen weeks, extending from San Francisco to Boston. The profits are stated to be $40,000, exceeding the previous tour by nearly $10,000. The best results were secured in San Francisco and Chicago.

THE THEATRICAL MECHANICS' ASSOCIATION.

Lodge No. 21 of the Theatrical Mechanics' Association held their installation ceremonies, after the curtains had been rung down at the theatres, followed by a sumptuous banquet, at Golden Gate Hall, Alcazar Building, on Saturday night, and had what everybody said was "a good time."

The following recently elected officers were installed: James Lang, president; S. I. Simmons, vice-president; F. E. McLeod, recording secretary; S. J. Ryan, financial secretary; Frank Marcus, treasurer; George Van Ness, sergeant-at-arms; C. J. Kloss, D. C. Rolfs, John Quarrels, William Dove and T. F. Burkhardt, trustees; Dr. D. McLean, physician. T. H. Andrews, master machinist of the Grand Opera House, and F. W. Bruce, of the Tivoli, conducted the installation ceremonies.

Many actors and performers were present. After the presentation of a handsome gold brooch to Miss Ethel Brandon as a testimonial of the kindly feeling entertained for her by the attaches of San Francisco playhouses, the guests sat down to their well ladened tables, and toasts, speeches, stories, recitations and vocal and instrumental music succeeded each other in the merry hours that followed. The orchestration was by volunteers from the Grand, Bush, Alcazar and California orchestras, led by J. E. Josephs, and was notably good.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show closed its Paris engagement on the 13th inst. Its season broke the Parisian record of successes. The dispatch tells us that the American colony attended and shouted "Hoop-la!" The show will open at Lyons on Sunday. Thence it goes to Marseilles, Barcelona and Naples.

John Cort takes possession of his New Standard Theatre, Seattle, this week. It is by far the handsomest and best appointed variety theatre on the Pacific Coast and will rival the very best ones in the Union. He calls it "The Vaudeville Palate of America." His opening company consists of 35 artists.

John Morrissey, the popular business manager of the Orpheum, will be the recipient of a benefit at that house on Friday night. A host of volunteers of the best talent in town will appear.

W. S. Cleveland and Billy Emerson have completed arrangements to sail for the other side to arrange for their London and Paris engagements on or about June 1st. The first-named will take charge of the London camp, while Emerson superintends the Paris end. Energetic Mr. Cleveland seems to be getting a corner on minstrelsy the world over.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

The Cremorne introduces the clever Eastern solo dancer, La Cellie, and corps de ballet as their latest attraction.

EVENING ⊹ EDITION

TUESDAY.....NOVEMBER 19, 1889

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

Miss Maddern, the popular comedienne, appears here, accompanied by Mr. George Osbourne and a fine company in support, in the rattling comedy of "Featherbrain." This comedy has recorded runs of two years in Paris, a long run in Berlin, a ten months' run in London, and a sixty-night run at the Madison Square Theatre, New York.

Miss Maddern sustains the part of the capricious light-hearted "Featherbrain." Geo. Osbourne has a strong character part in the gallant and romantic Portugese. The company includes Mr. Charles L. Harris, Mr. Wm. Feversham, Mr. Samuel Edwards, Mr. Frank Clayton, Mr. Harry Rawlins, Miss Emma Maddern Miss Helen Osbourne, Miss Lulu Kline and Miss Elsie Lombard. A goodly company in one of the most popular of modern-day comedies.

The Chronicle pronounces "Featherbrain" to be "a very amusing farcical comedy, with situations cleverly conceived and numerous complications very cunningly constructed."

The Examiner says: "'Featherbrain' will be a success here. It has touch and go, snap, action. The plot turns a dramatic flip-flap every five minutes. There is a bright line wherever it is possible to work one in amidst the bewildering number of entrances and exits. There are just enough reaches of quiet enjoyment to make the hits loom large and full in the atmosphere of hilarity."

The Call claims that Miss Minnie Maddern "is simply exquisite as Mrs. Coney (Featherbrain) in her crisp speech, neat movement and the incomprehensible blunders she makes," and that George Osbourne "carried the audience with a rush" as the impetuous Portuguese love.

Mr. Samuel Edwards as the good-natured husband, Mr. Harris, Mr. Feversham, Miss Lulu Kline, Miss Helen M. Osbourne, and the company generally, acquitted themselves with honorable records.

The whole company were honored with a call before the curtain at the end of the second act.

Special scenery is brought with the comedy, including the famed spiral staircase scene, as seen at the Madison Square Theatre.

Alcazar Theatre.

Augustin Daly's amusing comedy of "Nancy & Co" has a careful production by the Alcazar Company this week. This is one of Daly's bright, finished and amusing comedies, and the Alcazar company by their excellent performance give it great zest in action.

E. J. Buckley is the Kiefe O'Kiefe, Esq.; Miss Ethel Brandon is Nancy Brasher with her comedy, and Stockwell plays the part of her jealous husband, "Tippy." Mr. Buckley plays with his usual spirit and with many nice bits of shading. Miss Brandon is perfectly at home as Nancy, having played it for a long time in the Eastern road company, and doubtless it is owing to her instructions that the Alcazar company do so well in the Daly comedy. Stockwell makes the jolliest kind of a well-managed husband. It is unctious with his humor. Nellie Buckley plays Daisy Griffing charmingly, and Fanny Young and Carrie Clarke Ward give good character impersonations.

"Nancy & Co." has this week allotted to it "A Noble Rogue," Steele Mackaye's five-act comedy-drama, will be the Alcazar's attraction next week, with John Jack, John Armstrong, Ned Thayer, Miss Emmie Wilmot and Miss Nellie Young added to the company.

Grand Opera House.

This week Milton Nobles, famed for the effective vigor of his character acting, commences a two weeks' engagement at the Grand. This week in his play, "From Sire to Son," next week in "Phœnix," supported by his own company.

Mr. Nobles is just the kind of an actor the patrons of the Grand want. His quick acting, sensational plays, his graphic characterizations, and the peculiar elements of his own impersonations will be strong drawing factors at the Grand. The roomy stage will give his plays splendid scope for their settings.

This is a California play, and it is worth the price of admission to see the 4-horse Red Dog stage coach drive on the stage of the Grand and land its passengers and baggage at the Bohe Hotel "in the raines."

Mr. Nobles acts with all his old time vigor and intensity, and sustains his dual role with versatility. Miss Dollie Nobles also plays a dual role and shows how good and how pleasing an actress she is in doing so. The company is really a strong one in character acting. Messrs. Howard, Dempsey, Hunter, Willard, Mortimer, all do good work in their assumptions, and Misses Davenport, Lambert, Gerome and Vinton play the female roles cleverly.

The weather does not seem to have much effect upon the Grand's audiences. There was a large attendance present.

Next week, Mr. Nobles' play of "Phoenix."

A grand production of that great melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," a success in three continents, is announced for December 2nd, with Miss Isabel Morris and Mr. William Morris in the principal roles.

New California Theatre.

Bolossy Kiralfy's grand ballet spectacle, "Antiope," rules at the California this week, and it is sufficient to add that it is a Kiralfy production, and a new one, and abounds in tableaux, marches, grand ballets and entertaining specialty features.

In pieces of this kind the play is not the thing, but the features introduced in it. "Antiope" is rich in specialties. The ballet, tableaux, marches and scenery are all diverting to the eye, and the notable specialty features are the solo dance by Helena Konradt; the dancing of the Parisian premier, Mlle. Paris; the illusions shown by Yank Hoe and Omene; the gavotte by Miss Alice Gilbert; the Spanish dance by Carmencita; the athletic exhibition by the Pialras, and the performance of the Tissots. Miss Gilbert introduces the dance in long skirts, made so popular in the East by the Gaiety troupe, of which she was a member, and is very pleasing and graceful. Carmencita's dancing is of the genuine Spanish type, and totally different from the ordinary stage dancing, and Arnold Kiralfy's grotesque dancing is the best on the stage.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Oakes' Swiss Bell Ringers and Specialty Sketch Company, from Chicago, put in their first appearances in San Francisco at the Orpheum this week. This company has a fixed popularity East, as it has been in the amusement field since 1877. The Oakes' Company consist of John and Alice Oakes, Frank Hollister, 'Laughable" Eades, William Weston and Frances Oakes

The Hassan Ali and Hadj Tahar Troupe of Arabs, Mons. Le Compt, and Minnetta and Barretta also put in first appearances.

Everything and everybody new to San Francisco this week at the Orpheum.

Mr. John Morrissey, the efficient manager of this house, will be the recipient of a grand testimonial on Friday night. A great bill. One hundred volunteers.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Elks' Carnival and Bal Masque.

The Annual Carnival Ball of the Elks in aid of its Charity Fund comes off at the Pavilion on Thanksgiving Eve. This will be the ball of the season. See the announcement of its features elsewhere in FIGARO.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

That strong drama, "Storm-Beaten," with its pictures of life on ship board in the Polar seas surrounded by ice, with tableaux of frost and fire, of wreck, iceberg life, and rescue, will be this week's bill at Morosco's, with Glenney as rattlebrained Pat O'Reilly. This is Mr. Glenney's last week.

Mr. Glenny's piece is stirringly sensational and he plays his part very effectively. He is a competent all-around actor, and has played a good four weeks' season at Morosco's.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The races of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association will come off over the Bay District course, so easily accessible by a half-dozen car lines. The rain-fall has interfered with the regularly appointed days. Tuesday's races have been postponed until Saturday, when it is hoped the fast track will be in good condition.

The races set for Saturday are a three-quarters of a mile dash, for three-year-olds, and upwards, for a $400 purse; second race, three-year-old fillies, one mile and a quarter, $500 purse; third race, the Record Stakes, all ages, five furlongs, and last event a dash of seven furlongs for two-year-olds.

The events set for the third day of the meeting, Thursday the 21st, will be run on Thursday the 28th, Thanksgiving Day, and those for the fourth day will be decided on Saturday Nov. 30th.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe are filling the Union every night.

Montague's contribution to the bill is his comedy of "The Bridal Chamber," with most of the company in the cast.

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's comedy has the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness.

Those popular favorites, Thatcher & Drew, have been re-engaged.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The danseuse, Mlle. La Cellie, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week, with J. W. Kelly, the monologue artist and verse improvisatore, and Miss Jennie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

Another new feature is Hallinan's Mastodon Minstrels with six comedians on the ends.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Helena Richman and Miss Blanche Long are new this week.

Miss Edith Morrison, the popular balladist; Miss Ruby Grant, premiere danseuse; also Miss Ida Farno, serio-comic; Miss Rose De Vere, vocalist, and Tommy Glenn, vocalist, punster and comedian, are late additions.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the new comedy of "Mr. Barnes of N. Y. and Mr. Burns of S. F.," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Ruby Grant, Blanche Long, Rose De-vere, Edith Morrison, Helena Richman and Tommy Glenn.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

John Gilmore, comedian, and Miss Alice Dale, vocalist, are the new faces here.

The Polks, musical artists and Tyrolean warblers, and all the company appear in "A Trip Around the World" this week.

The olio acts are "Fun at Home" and the Polks specialties.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, Marie Mortno, J. D. Fox, Rosa Stange and others.

Bottle Meier's is the popular north-end resort. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horse-shoe gallery of larger houses.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Pete Smith and Lottie Ellis, popular performers, and pretty Pearl Iola, are late comers, and Ed. La Telle, comedian and banjoist, is new.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, Lulu Martell, Jennie Fowler, Mamie Woods, Billy Akarman and John Merritt make up the company.

The first-part is a Female Minstrel one with songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

The olio piece is the comedy of "Papa's

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

After the present Booth-Modjeska season terminates Booth and Barrett will join forces again. Their business partnership to be continued for a period of two years.

The arrival of the Red Dog stage in "From Sire to Son," at the Grand, loaded down with passengers, is an exciting scene with its prancing horses and general excitement accompanying it.

The Gilmore Band vacated the Pavilion as they tooted their last horn on Sunday night to take a farewell horn and a special train for the East.

Our Lotta, who used to be called the "Dramatic Cocktail," was badly shaken up in Boston recently by a runaway accident. With her mother she had entered their carriage without noticing that the driver was not on the box. The horses started on a run, and, discovering the absence of the driver, Lotta forced open the door and sprang out, intending to stop the team herself, but her dress caught and she was thrown to the ground, striking on her head and side. The dispatch adds that "she was picked up in a half-conscious state. A physician found that her injuries were a contusion on the head and severe bruises on the left leg and foot. Mrs. Crabtree remained in the carriage, and the horses were stopped after they had run two blocks further" We have always advocated that Lotta should have married. If she had done so this accident could not have happened to her. It would have been the husband, of course, that would have dashed out of the carriage and got the fall. She will be sorry she has not married some day.

The new French version of "Mikado," by Armand Sylvestre, will soon be produced at the Eden Theatre, Paris.

John Kreling's California Opera Company made its appearance at the Hammerstein Harlem Opera House, N. Y., in "Said Pasha," and was pronounced "a great success."

Miss Maddern, accompanied by Geo. Osbourne, in the successful comedy of "Featherbrain," a very lively and entertaining piece, this week at the Bush.

Burt Haverly becomes one of the members of the "Little Puck" company this week. He severed his connection with the Paten Rosa company to join the Daniels company. He plays the eccentric part of the Englishwalker, Sluggers.

Dates ahead at the Grand after Milton Nobles' engagement: the latest English melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," follows on Dec. 2nd for two weeks, and the spectacular drama of New York life, "The Great Metropolis," with its great wreck and life-saving scene, will be the Grand's holiday attraction.

Wilton Lackaye has signed a five years' contract to star under the joint management of Charles E. Locke and J. Charles Davis.

Louise Thorndyke-Boucicault is playing the part of Margery Sylvester in "Our Flat" at the Lyceum Theatre, New York.

Bronson Howard is on top. He is now in receipt of $1400 a week from his play, "Shenandoah." In a short time the piece will be running in four cities, and he will enjoy royalties amounting to $4,000 or $5,000 a week.

Shakespeare is now being done in Japan. "The Merchant of Venice" is "Ninniku Shichire Sarban;" "Romeo and Juliet" is "Seyo Musume Setsuyo;" "Julius Cæsar" is "Shisaru Kidan," and the great poet himself is Sekisupiya. Imagine what his grand blank verse must be in at distorted language.

Frank Daniels will play the following dates on his return route East: San Jose, 25; Oakland, 19-20; Sacramento, 21-22; jumping from there to Omaha, 28-29-30; Minneapolis and St. Paul, three nights each; Chicago, Dec. 10th, for two weeks, and St. Louis Christmas week.

Edward Terry is making a fortune out of "Sweet Lavender" in London, which is drawing so big, running to its six hundredth performance, that he has decided to give a Wednesday matinee in addition to the usual Saturday one. It is the only theatre in London running

The A. M. Palmer stock company will play a sixteen weeks engagement next Summer under the management of Al. Hayman. This organization will be the first of the Eastern stock companies to visit Portland, Or., where their different performances will be sold out during the coming Winter by subscription.

Mr. Edmund C. Stanton has retired from the position of representative of the stage calling on the World's Fair Committee, and Mr. Frank W. Sanger has been given the place.

W. J. Scanlan's new song, "See, There She Goes," which he has lately introduced in "Myles Aroon," promises to become even more popular than his famous "Peek-a-Boo."

Manager Ben Stern has booked "Kajanka" for a six weeks' run at Niblo's Theatre, N. Y., beginning Dec. 2nd.

Ettie Griswold's "Child Stealer" Company played at Franklin, Mass., on Monday night of last week in their street clothes because a greedy Attleboro landlord has scooped in their baggage. There was no show on Tuesday, although the announcements were full of dramatic promise for that evening.

Robert F. Cotton, of "Our Flat" Co., playing at the Lyceum Theatre, N. Y., was lately married to Miss Le Baron, late of Nat Goodwin's company.

Lately, during Adelaide Moore's performance at Dubuque, Ia., it is alleged that McCulloch Ross, one of her actors, who is said to be suffering from cranial enlargement, "queered" her scene by throwing a loaded revolver intended for her use beyond her reach at the critical moment.

Managers Durst & Bergfield, of the Grand Opera House, Tyler, Tex., attached the box office receipts of Murray & Murphy for $100, claimed as damages for their non-fulfillment of a previous contract. Murray & Murphy settled by paying $35 and costs.

The latest Liverpool (Eng.) music hall novelty is a "dog pianist."

Eugene D'Albert and Pablo Sarasate, the great soloists engaged by Henry E. Abbey, have arrived in New York.

Manager Alexander Comstock, business manager for Denman Thompson's "Old Homestead" Company, will shortly sail for Europe, to arrange for the production of that play in London next Summer.

Daniel Frohman's Lyceum Theatre Company has arrived in New York after a tour of seventeen weeks, extending from San Francisco to Boston. The profits are stated to be $40,000, exceeding the previous tour by nearly $10,000. The best results were secured in San Francisco and Chicago.

THE THEATRICAL MECHANICS' ASSOCIATION.

Lodge No. 21 of the Theatrical Mechanics' Association held their installation ceremonies, after the curtains had been rung down at the theatres, followed by a sumptuous banquet, at Golden Gate Hall, Alcazar Building, on Saturday night, and had what everybody said was "a good time."

The following recently elected officers were installed: James Lang, president; S. I. Simmons, vice-president; F. E. McLeod, recording secretary; S. J. Ryan, financial secretary; Frank Marcus, treasurer; George Van Ness, sergeant-at-arms; C. J. Kloss, D. C. Rolfs, John Quarrels, William Dove and T. F. Burkhardt, trustees; Dr. D. McLean, physician. T. H. Andrews, master machinist of the Grand Opera House, and F. W. Bruce, of the Tivoli, conducted the installation ceremonies.

Many actors and performers were present. After the presentation of a handsome gold brooch to Miss Ethel Brandon as a testimonial of the kindly feeling entertained for her by the attaches of San Francisco playhouses, the guests sat down to their well ladened tables, and toasts, speeches, stories, recitations and vocal and instrumental music succeeded each other in the merry hours that followed. The orchestration was by volunteers from the Grand, Bush, Alcazar and California orchestras, led by J. E. Josephs, and was notably good.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show closed its Paris engagement on the 13th inst. Its season broke the Parisian record of successes. The dispatch tells us that the American colony attended and shouted "Hoop-la!" The show will open at Lyons on Sunday. Thence it goes to Marseilles, Barcelona and Naples.

John Cort takes possession of his New Standard Theatre, Seattle, this week. It is by far the handsomest and best appointed variety theatre on the Pacific Coast and will rival the very best ones in the Union. He calls it "The Vaudeville Palate of America." His opening company consists of 35 artists.

John Morrissey, the popular business manager of the Orpheum, will be the recipient of a benefit at that house on Friday night. A host of volunteers of the best talent in town will appear.

W. S. Cleveland and Billy Emerson have completed arrangements to sail for the other side to arrange for their London and Paris engagements on or about June 1st. The first-named will take charge of the London camp, while Emerson superintends the Paris end. Energetic Mr. Cleveland seems to be getting a corner on minstrelsy the world over.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

EVENING - EDITION

WEDNESDAY...NOVEMBER 20, 1889

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and only paper that publishes their full programmes

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

Miss Maddern, the popular comedienne, appears here, accompanied by Mr. George Osbourne and a fine company in support, in the rattling comedy of "Featherbrain." This comedy has recorded runs of two years in Paris, a long run in Berlin, a ten months' run in London, and a sixty-night run at the Madison Square Theatre, New York.

Miss Maddern sustains the part of the capricious light-hearted "Featherbrain." Geo. Osbourne has a strong character part in the gallant and romantic Portugese. The company includes Mr. Charles L. Harris, Mr. Wm. Faversham Mr. Samuel Edwards, Mr. Frank Clayton, Mr. Harry Rawlins, Miss Emma Maddern Miss Helen Osbourne, Miss Lulu Kline and Miss Elsie Lombard. A goodly company in one of the most popular of modern-day comedies

The Chronicle pronounces "Featherbrain" to be "a very amusing farcical comedy, with situations cleverly conceived and numerous complications very cunningly constructed."

The Examiner says: "'Featherbrain' will be a success here. It has touch and go, snap, action The plot turns a dramatic flip-flap every five minutes. There is a bright line wherever it is possible to work one in amidst the bewildering number of entrances and exits. There are just enough reaches of quiet enjoyment to make the hits loom large and full in the atmosphere of hilarity."

The Call claims that Miss Minnie Maddern "is simply exquisite as Mrs. Coney (Featherbrain) in her crisp speech, neat movement and the incomprehensible blunders she makes," and that George Osbourne "carried the audience with a rush" as the impetuous Portugnese lover.

Mr. Samuel Edwards as the good-natured husband, Mr. Harris, Mr. Faversham, Miss Lulu Kline, Miss Helen M. Osbourne, and the company generally, acquitted themselves with honorable records.

The whole company were honored with a call before the curtain at the end of the second act.

Special scenery is brought with the comedy, including the famed spiral staircase scene, as seen at the Madison Square Theatre.

Alcazar Theatre.

Augustin Daly's amusing comedy of "Nancy & Co." has a careful production by the Alcazar Company this week. This is one of Daly's bright, finished and amusing comedies, and the Alcazar company by their excellent performance give it great zest in action.

E. J. Buckley is the Kiefe O'Kiefe, Esq.; Miss Ethel Brandon is Nancy Brasher with her comedy, and Stockwell plays the part of her jealous husband, "Tippy." Mr. Buckley plays with his usual spirit and with many nice bits of shading Miss Brandon is perfectly at home as Nancy, having played it for a long time in the Eastern road company, and doubtless it is owing to her instructions that the Alcazar company do so well in the Daly comedy. Stockwell makes the jolliest kind of a well-managed husband. It is unctious with his humor. Nellie Buckley plays Daisy Griffing charmingly, and Fanny Young and Carrie Clarke Ward give good character impersonations.

"Nancy & Co." has this week allotted to it

"A Noble Rogue," Steele Mackaye's five-act comedy-drama, will be the Alcazar's attraction next week, with John Jack, John Armstrong, Ned Thayer, Miss Emmie Wilmot and Miss Nellie Young added to the compan

Grand Opera House.

This week Milton Nobles, famed for the effective vigor of his character acting, commences a two weeks' engagement at the Grand. This week in his play, "From Sire to Son," next week in "Phœnix," supported by his own company

Mr. Nobles is just the kind of an actor the patrons of the Grand want. His quick acting, sensational plays, his graphic characterizations, and the peculiar elements of his own impersonations will be strong drawing factors at the Grand. The roomy stage will give his plays splendid scope for their settings.

This is a California play, and it is worth the price of admission to see the 4-horse Red Dog stage coach drive on the stage of the Grand and land its passengers and baggage at the Yuba Hotel, "in the mines." All the scenes of the drama are most effectively staged, and it is a picturesque and interesting play all through.

Mr. Nobles acts with all his old time vigor and intensity, and sustains his dual role with versatility. Miss Dollie Nobles also plays a dual role and shows how good and how pleasing an actress she is in doing so. The company is really a strong one in character acting. Messrs. Howard, Dempsey, Hunter, Willard, Mortimer, all do good work in their assumptions, and Misses Davenport, Lambert, Gerome and Vinton play the female roles cleverly.

The weather does not seem to have much effect upon the Grand's audiences. There have been good audiences in the rainy nights.

Next week, Mr. Nobles' play of "Phœnix."

A grand production of that great melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," a success in three continents, is announced for December 2nd, with Miss Isabel Morris and Mr. William Morris in the principal roles.

New California Theatre.

Bolossy Kiralfy's grand ballet spectacle, "Antiope," rules at the California this week, and it is sufficient to add that it is a Kiralfy production, and a new one, and abounds in tableaux, marches, grand ballets and entertaining specialty features.

In pieces of this kind the play is not the thing, but the features introduced in it. "Antiope" is rich in specialties. The ballet, tableaux, marches and scenery are all diverting to the eye, and the notable specialty features are the solo dance by Helena Konradt; the dancing of the Parisian premier, Mlle. Paris; the illusions shown by Yank Hoe and Omene; the gavotte by Miss Alice Gilbert; the Spanish dance by Carmencita; the athletic exhibition by the Pialras, and the performance of the Tissots. Miss Gilbert introduces the dance in long skirts, made so popular in the East by the Gaiety troupe, of which she was a member, and is very pleasing and graceful. Carmencita's dancing is of the genuine Spanish type, and totally different from the ordinary stage dancing, and Arnold Kiralfy's grotesque dancing is the best on the stage.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Oakes' Swiss Bell Ringers and Specialty Sketch Company, from Chicago, put in their first appearances in San Francisco at the Orpheum this week. This company has a fixed popularity East, as it has been in the amusement field since 1817. The Oakes' Company consist of John and Alice Oakes, Frank Hollister, 'Laughable" Eades, William Weston and Frances Oakes.

The Hassan Ali and Hadj Tahar Troupe of Arabs, Mons. Le Compt, and Minnetta and Barretta also put in first appearances.

Everything and everybody new to San Francisco this week at the Orpheum.

Mr. John Morrissey, the efficient manager of this house, will be the recipient of a grand testimonial on Friday night. A great bill. One hundred volunteers.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Elks' Carnival and Bal Masque.

The Annual Carnival Ball of the Elks in aid of its Charity Fund comes off at the Pavilion on Thanksgiving Eve. This will be the ball of the season. See the announcement of its features elsewhere in FIGARO.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

That strong drama, "Storm-Beaten," with its pictures of life on ship board in the Polar seas surrounded by ice, with tableaux of frost and fire, of wreck, iceberg life, and rescue, will be this week's bill at Morosco's, with Glenney as rattlebrained Pat O'Reilly. This is Mr. Glenney's last week.

Mr. Glenny's piece is stirringly sensational and he plays his part very effectively. He is a competent all-around actor, and has played a good four weeks' season at Morosco's.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conclita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The races of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association will come off over the Bay District course, so easily accessible by a half-dozen car lines. The rain-fall has interfered with the regularly appointed days. Tuesday's races have been postponed until Saturday, when it is hoped the fast track will be in good condition.

The races set for Saturday are a three-quarters of a mile dash, for three-year-olds, and upwards, for a $400 purse; second race, three-year-old fillies, one mile and a quarter, $500 purse; third race, the Record Stakes, all ages, five furlongs, and last event a dash of seven furlongs for two-year-olds.

The events set for the third day of the meeting, Thursday the 21st, will be run on Thursday the 28th, Thanksgiving Day, and those for the fourth day will be decided on Saturday Nov. 30th.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe are filling the Union every night.

Montague's contribution to the bill is his comedy of "The Bridal Chamber," with most of the company in the cast.

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's comedy has the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness.

Those popular favorites, Thatcher & Drew, have been re-engaged.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The danseuse, Mlle. La Cellie, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week, with J. W. Kelly, the monologue artist and verse improvisatore, and Miss Jennie Heywood, the favorite vocalist, in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

Another new feature is Hallinan's Mastodon Minstrels with six comedians on the ends.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Helena Richman and Miss Blanche Long are new this week.

Miss Edith Morrison, the popular balladist; Miss Ruby Grant, premiere danseuse; also Miss Ida Farno, serio-comic; Miss Rose De Vere, vocalist, and Tommy Glenn, vocalist, punster and comedian, are late additions.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the new comedy of "Mr. Barnes of N. Y. and Mr. Burns of S. F.," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Ruby Grant, Blanche Long, Rose Devere, Edith Morrison, Helena Richman and Tommy Glenn.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

A. J. McNiece, comedian, and Miss Alic Dale, vocalist, are the new faces here.

The Polks, musical artists and Tyrolean warblers, and all the company appear in "A Trip Around the World" this week.

The olio acts are "Fun at Home" and the Polks specialities.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, Marie Morino, J. D. Fox, Rosa Stange and others.

Bottle Meier's is the popular north-end resort. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horse-shoe gallery of larger houses.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Pete Smith and Lottie Ellis, popular performers, and pretty Pearl Iola, are late comers, and Ed. La Telle, comedian and banjoist, is new.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, Lulu Martell, Jennie Fowler, Mamie Woods, Billy Akarman and John Merritt make up the company.

The first-part is a Female Minstrel one with songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

The olio piece is the comedy of "Papa's Baby Boy," with Akarman, Pete Smith and most of the ladies in the cast.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

Miss Maddern, the popular comedienne, appears here, accompanied by Mr. George Osbourne and a fine company in support, in the rattling comedy of "Featherbrain." This comedy has recorded runs of two years in Paris, a long run in Berlin, a ten months' run in London, and a sixty-night run at the Madison Square Theatre, New York.

Miss Maddern sustains the part of the capricious light-hearted "Featherbrain." Geo. Osbourne has a strong character part in the gallant and romantic Portugese. The company includes Mr. Charles L. Harris, Mr. Wm. Faversham, Mr. Samuel Edwards, Mr. Frank Clayton, Mr. Harry Rawlins, Miss Emma Maddern Miss Helen Osbourne, Miss Lulu Kline and Miss Elsie Lombard. A goodly company in one of the most popular of modern-day comedies.

The Chronicle pronounces "Featherbrain" to be "a very amusing farcical comedy, with situations cleverly conceived and numerous complications very cunningly constructed."

The Examiner says: "'Featherbrain' will be a success here. It has touch and go, snap, action. The plot turns a dramatic flip-flap every five minutes. There is a bright line wherever it is possible to work one in amidst the bewildering number of entrances and exits. There are just enough reaches of quiet enjoyment to make the hits loom large and full in the atmosphere of hilarity.'

The Call claims that Miss Minnie Maddern "is simply exquisite as Mrs. Coney (Featherbrain) in her crisp speech, neat movement and the incomprehensible blunders she makes," and that George Osbourne "carried the audience with a rush" as the impetuous Portuguese love.

Mr. Samuel Edwards as the good-natured husband, Mr. Harris, Mr. Faversham, Miss Lulu Kline, Miss Helen M. Osbourne, and the company generally, acquitted themselves with honorable records.

The whole company were honored with a call before the curtain at the end of the second act.

Special scenery is brought with the comedy, including the famed spiral staircase scene, as seen at the Madison Square Theatre.

Alcazar Theatre.

Augustin Daly's amusing comedy of "Nancy & Co." has a careful production by the Alcazar Company this week. This is one of Daly's bright, finished and amusing comedies, and the Alcazar company by their excellent performance give it great zest in action.

E. J. Buckley is the Kiefe O'Kiefe, Esq.; Miss Ethel Brandon is Nancy Brasher with her comedy, and Stockwell plays the part of her jealous husband, "Tippo." Mr Buckley plays with his usual spirit and with many nice bits of shading. Miss Brandon is perfectly at home as Nancy, having played it for a long time in the Eastern road company, and doubtless it is owing to her instructions that the Alcazar company do so well in the Daly comedy. Stockwell makes the jolliest kind of a well-managed husband. It is infectious with his humor. Nellie Buckley plays Daisy Griffing charmingly, and Fanny Young and Carrie Clarke Ward give good character impersonations.

"Nancy & Co.' has this week allotted to it "A Noble Rogue," Steele Mackaye's five-act comedy-drama, will be the Alcazar's attraction next week, with John Jack, John Armstrong, Ned Thayer, Miss Emmie Wilmot and Miss Nellie Young added to the compan

Grand Opera House.

This week Milton Nobles, famed for the effective vigor of his character acting, commences a two week's engagement at the Grand. This week in the play "From Sire to Son," next week in "Phœnix," supported by his own company.

Mr Nobles is just the kind of an actor the patrons of the Grand want. His quick acting, sensational plays, his graphic characterizations, and the peculiar elements of his own impersonations will be strong drawing factors at the Grand. The roomy stage will give his plays splendid scope for their settings.

This is a California play, and it is worth the price of admission to see the 4-horse Red Dog stage coach drive on the stage of the Grand and land its passengers and baggage at the Yuba Hotel, "in the mines." All the scenes of the drama are most effectively staged, and it is a picturesque and interesting play all through.

Mr. Nobles acts with all his old time vigor and intensity, and sustains his dual role with versatility. Miss Dollie Nobles also plays a dual role and shows how good and how pleasing an actress she is in doing so. The company is really a strong one in character acting. Messrs. Howard, Dempsey, Hunter, Willard, Mortimer, all do good work in their assumptions, and Misses Davenport, Lambert, Gerome and Vinton play the female roles cleverly.

The weather does not seem to have much effect upon the Grand's audiences. There have been good audiences in the rainy nights.

Next week, Mr Nobles' play of "Phœnix."

A grand production of that great melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," a success in three continents, is announced for December 2nd, with Miss Isabel Morris and Mr. William Morris in the principal roles.

New California Theatre.

Bolossy Kiralfy's grand ballet spectacle, "Antiope," rules at the California this week, and it is sufficient to add that it is a Kiralfy production, and a new one, and abounds in tableaux, marches, grand ballets and entertaining specialty features.

In pieces of this kind the play is not the thing, but the features introduced in it. "Antiope" is rich in specialties. The ballet, tableaux, marches and scenery are all diverting to the eye, and the notable specialty features are the solo dance by Helena Konradt; the dancing of the Parisian premier, Mlle. Paris; the illusions shown by Yank Hoe and Omene; the gavotte by Miss Alice Gilbert; the Spanish dance by Carmencita; the athletic exhibition by the Pisiras, and the performance of the Tissots. Miss Gilbert introduces the dance in long skirts, made so popular in the East by the Gaiety troupe, of which she was a member, and is very pleasing and graceful. Carmencita's dancing is of the genuine Spanish type, and totally different from the ordinary stage dancing, and Arnold Kiralfy's grotesque dancing is the best on the stage.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Oakes' Swiss Bell Ringers and Specialty Sketch Company, from Chicago, put in their first appearances in San Francisco at the Orpheum this week. This company has a fixed popularity East, as it has been in the amusement field since 1877. The Oakes' Company consist of John and Alice Oakes, Frank Hollister, 'Laughable" Eades, William Weston and Frances Oakes

The Hassan Ali and Hadj Tahar Troupe of Arabs, Mons. Le Compt, and Minnetta and Barretta also put in first appearances.

Everything and everybody new to San Francisco this week at the Orpheum.

Mr. John Morrissey, the efficient manager of this house, will be the recipient of a grand testimonial on Friday night. A great bill. One hundred volunteers.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Elks' Carnival and Ba asque.

The Annual Carnival Ball of the Elks in aid of its Charity Fund comes off at the Pavilion on Thanksgiving Eve. This will be the ball of the season. See the announcement of its features elsewhere in FIGARO.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

That strong drama, "Storm-Beaten," with its pictures of life on ship board in the Polar seas surrounded by ice, with tableaux of frost and fire, of wreck, iceberg life, and rescue, will be this week's bill at Morosco's, with Glenney as rattlebrained Pat O'Reilly. This is Mr. Glenney's last week.

Mr. Glenny's piece is stirringly sensational and he plays his part very effectively. He is a competent all-around actor, and has played a good four weeks' season at Morosco's.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The races of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association will come off over the Bay District course, so easily accessible by a half-dozen car lines. The rain-fall has interfered with the regularly appointed days. Tuesday's races have been postponed until Saturday, when it is hoped the fast track will be in good condition.

The races set for Saturday are a three-quarters of a mile dash, for three-year-olds, and upwards, for a $400 purse; second race, three-year-old fillies, one mile and a quarter, $500 purse; third race, the Record Stakes, all ages, five furlongs, and last event a dash of seven furlongs for two-year-olds.

The events set for the third day of the meeting, Thursday the 21st, will be run on Thursday the 28th, Thanksgiving Day, and those for the fourth day will be decided on Saturday Nov. 30th.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe are filling the Union every night.

Montague's contribution to the bill is his comedy of "The Bridal Chamber," with most of the company in the cast.

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's comedy has the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness.

Those popular favorites, Thatcher & Drew, have been re-engaged.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The danseuse, Mlle. La Cellie, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week, with J. W. Kelly, the monologue artist and verse improvisatore, and Miss Jennie Heywood, the favorite vocalist. In conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

Another new feature is Hallinan's Mastodon Minstrels with six comedians on the ends.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Helena Richman and Miss Blanche Long are new this week.

Miss Edith Morrison, the popular balladist; Miss Ruby Grant, premiere danseuse; also Miss Ida Farno, serio-comic; Miss Rose De Vere, vocalist, and Tommy Glenn, vocalist, punster and comedian, are late additions.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the new comedy of "Mr. Barnes of N. Y. and Mr. Burns of S. F.," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Ruby Grant, Blanche Long, Rose Devere, Edith Morrison, Helena Richman and Tommy Glenn.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

A. J. McNiece, comedian, and Miss Alic Dale, vocalist, are the new faces here.

The Polks, musical artists and Tyrolean warblers, and all the company appear in "A Trip Around the World" this week.

The olio acts are "Fun at Home" and the Polks specialties.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, Marie Morino, J. D. Fox, Rosa Stange and others.

Bottle Meier's is the popular north-end resort. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horse-shoe gallery of larger houses.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Pete Smith and Lottie Ellis, popular performers, and pretty Pearl Iola, are late comers, and Ed. La Telle, comedian and banjoist, is new.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, Lulu Martell, Jennie Fowler, Mamie Woods, Billy Akarman and John Merritt make up the company.

The first part is a Female Minstrel one with songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

The olio piece is the comedy of "Papa's Baby Boy," with Akarman, Pete Smith and most of the ladies in the cast.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Lydia Thompson has abandoned burlesque and will drop into comedy hereafter, having bought the American rights of "A Double Lesson," one of Rosina Vokes' plays, written by Burnand, the editor of Punch. We know of no one who is better fitted by long years of experience to give us a double lesson on anything than Lydia Thompson.

Mr. A. M. Palmer has bought a play called "Helen's Inheritance," written by Mr. Richard Davey and Mrs. Hooper, which he will produce at the Union Square Theatre, New York, in December.

Alice Harrison has been added to the cast of "Our Flat," playing at the Lyceum Theatre, New York.

E. H. Sothern will come to San Francisco this Spring, and will also take in Portland, Or., on his return.

Manager Hayman has filled the bookings for the New Marquam Opera House, Portland, for the entire season.

Gilbert & Sullivan's latest opera will be produced at the Shaftesbury Avenue Theatre, London.

Managers Dickson and Talbott, of the Park Theatre, Indianapolis, have been sued for $10,000 by a man who was recently ejected from that theatre. If he should get a verdict for that amount every man in the country will want to be fired out of a theatre.

The arrival of the Red Dog stage in "From Sire to Son," at the Grand, loaded down with passengers, is an exciting scene with its prancing horses and general excitement accompanying it, and the last scene of the play, the interior of a castle and an exterior view of the Rhine, is one of remarkable beauty. Both scenes show the great resources of the Grand's stage.

The Bulletin, after speaking good words in praise of Miss Maddern and "Featherbrain," says: "The next best part to the star's was that of Ferdinand Pettigrew, acted by Charles L. Harris, who to us seemed to be an unctuous comedian, full of life and spirit, with a deep sense of humor depicted by facial expression and tone of voice. Mr. Harris is a good comedian, and shared the honors with Miss Maddern. Samuel Edwards played Samuel Coney in an agreeable manner, and is also a good comedian." The Bulletin is right. There is "talent" in the "Featherbrain" Company.

Messrs. Jefferson and Taylor have engaged seventeen people for their "Hands Across the Sea" Co., which will open at the Grand Opera House, Philadelphia Nov. 25th, and at the Grand Opera House, New York, December 2d. We are to have a splendid production of "Hands Across the Sea" at the Grand Opera House in this city on December 2nd, got up from Eastern models and in a most effective manner. All the stage hands of the Grand with considerable extra force are hard at work on it. This spectacular drama requires big stages to produce its effects advantageously. It will be the attraction of three Grand Opera Houses at the same time. Mr. Charles Jefferson, the son of Joseph Jefferson, the famous American comedian, one of the owners of the American rights of the drama, is on his way here to superintend the details of the San Francisco production of "Hands Across the Sea."

The annual benefit of the Society of Independent Old Friends comes off at the New Bush Street Theatre on Tuesday evening. Minnie Maddern's delightful comedy, "Featherbrain," will be the attraction and a full house is assured. Reserve your seats in advance.

It has been said by one of the New York papers that American plays were not in demand in England, and yet there will shortly be produced there "Shenandoah," "Little Lord Fauntleroy" and Bronson Howard's "Old Love Letters" by Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, and many more have been booked for next Summer.

The latest Liverpool (Eng.) music hall novelty is a "dog pianist."

"Aunt Jack" is an enormous success at the Madison Square Theatre, N. Y., where Mrs. Agnes Booth has made one the best hits of her life in the title part.

They are having a siege of English "Kleptomania," the farce comedy which is to be produced at the Bush Street Theatre on December 2nd, has been running upwards of one thousand nights in London and the English provinces. "Kleptomania" will be presented by Mr. Edward J. Henley and the Keogh Comedy Company.

An exciting encounter occurred in the West End Hotel, Minneapolis, on the 20th inst. between fiery Colonel Foster, of the Boston Ideal Opera Company, and Manager Conklin, of the Grand Opera House. Col. Foster repudiated a contract to refund $1,000 advanced by Conklin for railroad fares, and ended the controversy by assaulting Conklin. The latter wiped the floor with him. Conklin subsequently posted a notice at the theatre that there would be no performance that night, but the trouble was temporarily bridged over and the show given. Foster was in a quandrry. His prima donna demanded his portion of the receipts or she would not sing, and Manager Conklin wanted all that came in towards repaying the money advanced to land his company in Minneapolis. No wonder he got mad.

"Mahomet," a tragedy of five acts, will be produced at the Theatre Francais, Paris, this Winter; while "Jesus Christ," another five-act tragedy, will be produced at the Odeon Theatre at the same time. There is a report that several Eastern ambassadors have raised objections to "Mahomet" being put on the stage. Some other ambassadors may follow suit re "Jesus Christ." But Allah is great, and Mahomet will be none the less his prophet for appearing in the classic get-up of Mounet Sully. The character of Jesus will be ably impersonated by Mons. Silvain Maurel. With "Brahma" at the Eden Theatre, there will be a complete Trinity minus the Amen.

After the present Booth-Modjeska season terminates Booth and Barrett will join forces again. Their business partnership to be continued for a period of two years.

"Kajanka," the new spectacular piece will be produced at Niblo's Theatre, N. Y., in December.

Manager Ben Stern has booked "Kajanka" for a six weeks' run at Niblo's Theatre, N. Y., beginning Dec. 2nd.

The new French version of "Mikado," by Armand Sylvestre, will soon be produced at the Eden Theatre, Paris.

John Kreling's California Opera Company made its appearance at the Hammerstein Harlem Opera House, N. Y., in "Said Pasha," and was pronounced "a great success."

Miss Maddern, accompanied by Geo. Osbourne, in the successful comedy of "Featherbrain," a very lively and entertaining piece, this week at the Bush.

Dates ahead at the Grand after Milton Nobles' engagement: the latest English melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," follows on Dec. 2nd for two weeks, and the spectacular drama of New York life, "The Great Metropolis," with its great wreck and life-saving scene, will be the Grand's holiday attraction.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Chiarini's Circus, the entire company, Oakes' Swiss Bell Ringers, the Arab Troupe and the Hungarian Quartette, instrumentalists, will furnish the entertainment at Woodward's Gardens on Sunday.

The Cremorne has Hallinan's Mastodon Minstrels in addition to their usual company this week.

Edwin Orrin, Charles Fish and several circus performers sailed recently for Havana for a Winter season.

Charley Day has sent us a handsome photo of his classical features, and informs us that Thanksgiving week will be celebrated by Manager Cleveland of minstrel fame at the Grand Opera House, New York, by the union of his two great traveling companies, which will number one hundred and fifty of the most celebrated artists in their respective lines. The roster is headed by high-priced Billy Emerson; Willis P. Sweatnam, the mirthful monologueist; Hughey Dougherty, so quaint and unctious; Billy Rice, obese of flesh and fat of fun; Ed. Marble, learned and loquacious; Burt Sheppard, glib-tongued; the rival musical teams, the Virtos and Frazer & Bunnell; the rising comedians, John Queen and J. Marcus Doyle, and Banks Winter and Julian Jordan, the eminent composers and singers. The first part will be a sumptuous spectacular display called "Venetian Nights," representing a festive scene in the Palace of Doge of "Venice the Beautiful." The "combine" will form the largest minstrel company ever known, and have a grand orchestra of thirty-five musicians.

Nearly every specialty professional in town will appear at John Morrissey's benefit at the Orpheum, this evening, including George La Blanche "The Marine," in a three-round contest with a well known competitor.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Extra Matinees will be given on Thanksgiving Day at all the Theatres.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

Miss Maddern, the popular comedienne, appears here, accompanied by Mr. George Osbourne and a fine company in support, in the rattling comedy of "Featherbrain." This comedy has recorded runs of two years in Paris, a long run in Berlin, a ten months' run in London, and a sixty-night run at the Madison Square Theatre, New York.

Miss Maddern sustains the part of the capricious light-hearted "Featherbrain." Geo. Osbourne has a strong character part in the gallant and romantic Portugese. The company includes Mr. Charles L. Harris, Mr. Wm. Faversham, Mr. Samuel Edwards, Mr. Frank Clayton, Mr. Harry Rawline, Miss Emma Maddern, Miss Helen Osbourne, Miss Lulu Kline and Miss Elsie Lombard. A goodly company in one of the most popular of modern-day comedies.

The Chronicle pronounces "Featherbrain" to be "a very amusing farcical comedy, with situations cleverly conceived and numerous complications very cunningly constructed."

The Examiner says: "'Featherbrain' will be a success here. It has touch and go, snap, action. The plot turns a dramatic flip-flap every five minutes. There is a bright line wherever it is possible to work one in amidst the bewildering number of entrances and exits. There are just enough reaches of quiet enjoyment to make the hits loom large and full in the atmosphere of hilarity."

The Call claims that Miss Minnie Maddern "is simply exquisite as Mrs. Coney (Feather-brain) in her crisp speech, neat movement and the incomprehensible blunders she makes," and that George Osbourne "carried the audience with a rush" as the impetuous Portuguese lover.

Mr Samuel Edwards as the good-natured husband, Mr. Harris, Mr. Faversham, Miss Lulu Kline, Miss Helen M. Osbourne, and the company generally, acquitted themselves with honorable records.

The whole company were honored with a call before the curtain at the end of the second act.

Special scenery is brought with the comedy, including the famed spiral staircase scene, as seen at the Madison Square Theatre.

The society of "Independent Order of Old Friends" has its annual benefit at this theatre on Tuesday evening. An overflowing house may be anticipated. Secure your seats at once. "Featherbrain" will constitute the bill.

Alcazar Theatre.

Augustin Daly's amusing comedy of "Nancy & Co." has a careful production by the Alcazar Company this week. This is one of Daly's bright, finished and amusing comedies, and the Alcazar company by their excellent performance give it great zest in action.

E. J. Buckley is the Kiefe O'Kiefe, Esq.; Miss Ethel Brandon is Nancy Brasher with her comedy, and Stockwell plays the part of her jealous husband, "Tippy." Mr. Buckley plays with his usual spirit and with many nice bits of shading. Miss Brandon is perfectly at home as Nancy, having played it for a long time in the Eastern road company, and doubtless it is owing to her instructions that the Alcazar company do so well in the Daly comedy. Stockwell makes the jolliest kind of a well-managed husband. It is unctious with his humor. Nellie Buckley plays Daisy Griffing charmingly, and Fanny Young and Carrie Clarke Ward give good character impersonations.

"Nancy & Co." has this week allotted to it "A Noble Rogue," Steele Mackaye's five-act comedy-drama, will be the Alcazar's attraction next week, with John Jack, John Armstrong, Ned Thayer, Miss Emmie Wilmot and Miss Nellie Young added to the company

Grand Opera House.

This week Milton Nobles, famed for the effective vigor of his character acting, commenced a two weeks' engagement at the Grand. This week in his play, "From Sire to Son." Next week in "Phœnix," supported by his own company life-scenes "in the mines." All the scenes of the drama are most effectively staged, and it is a picturesque and interesting play all through.

Mr. Nobles is just the kind of an actor the patrons of the Grand want. His quick acting, sensational plays, his graphic characterizations, and the peculiar elements of his own impersonations will be strong drawing factors at the Grand. The roomy stage will give his plays ample and scope for their setting.

Mr. Nobles acts with all his old time vigor and intensity, and sustains his dual role with versatility. Miss Dollie Nobles also plays a dual role and shows how good and how pleasing an actress she is in doing so. The company is really a strong one in character acting, and carry the the interesting supporting roles very ably.

The weather does not seem to have much effect upon the Grand's audiences. There have been good audiences in the rainy nights.

Mr. Nobles presents for his last week at the Grand his original melodrama of "The Phoenix," in which he sustains his famous character of Carroll Graves, a rattlebrained New York story-writing Bohemian, with Dollie Nobles in her charming impersonation of Sadie, the flower girl. The play opens in New York. The first act has a big sensational fire scene. The second act has a startling gambling house conflict in Texas, and the whole play bristles with action and has many amusing incidental scenes in relief.

A grand production of that great melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," a success in three continents, is announced for December 2nd, with Miss Isabel Morris and Mr. William Morris in the principal roles.

New California Theatre.

Bolossy Kiralfy's grand ballet spectacle, "Antiope," rules at the California this week, and it is sufficient to add that it is a Kiralfy production, and a new one, and abounds in tableaux, marches, grand ballets and entertaining specialty features.

In pieces of this kind the play is not the thing, but the features introduced in it. "Antiope" is rich in specialties. The ballet, tableaux, marches and scenery are all diverting to the eye, and the notable specialty features are the solo dance by Helena Konradt; the dancing of the Parisian premier, Mlle. Paris; the illusions shown by Yank Hoe and Omene; the gavotte by Miss Alice Gilbert; the Spanish dance by Carmencita; the athletic exhibition by the Pialras, and the performance of the Tissots. Miss Gilbert introduces the dance in long skirts, made so popular in the East by the Gaiety troupe, of which she was a member, and is very pleasing and graceful. Carmencita's dancing is of the genuine Spanish type, and totally different from the ordinary stage dancing, and Arnold Kira f,'s grotesque dancing is the best on the stage.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Oakes' Swiss Bell Ringers and Specialty Sketch Company, from Chicago, put in their first appearances in San Francisco at the Orpheum this week. This company has a fixed popularity East, as it has been in the amusement field since 1877. The Oakes' Company consist of John and Alice Oakes, Frank Hollister, 'Laughable' Eades, William Weston and Frances Oakes

The Hassan Ali and Hadj Tahar Troupe of Arabs, Mons. Le Compt, and Minnetta and Barretta also put in first appearances.

Everything and everybody new to San Francisco this week at the Orpheum.

Next week there will be an entire change of bill at the Orpheum in the production of the sensational comedy of "Cad, the Tom Boy," Carrie Swain's success, sustained by a well selected company.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Elks' Carnival and Bal Masque.

The Annual Carnival Ball of the Elks in aid of its Charity Fund comes off at the Pavilion on Thanksgiving Eve. This will be the ball of the season. The proprietors and managers together with the members of the companies of the Alcazar, Baldwin, Bush Street, California, Grand Opera House, Orpheum, Tivoli and other theatres will be present, and become participators in the revels of their representative professional society on this coast.

Everything will be on a grand scale. The opening march will be gorgeous with its multitudinous character impersonations, and allegorical floats representing the seven leading daily newspapers of San Francisco (with FIGARO at their head). Other features will be the "Phorty Phunny Phellows;" the Ballet of Twenty Young Ladies; the Transformation Divertisements; the professional characterizations in competition for the prize awards, and the original and unique designs that will be displayed in the "concerted pieces."

The committee has reserved a section on the left of the main floor for the honored guests to witness their grand pageant, and have already disposed of over 2,000 tickets.

Delegations from the principal interior towns will be present and the Elks' Carnival will be the event of the Winter.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

That strong drama, "Storm-Beaten," with its pictures of life on ship board in the Polar seas surrounded by ice, with tableaux of frost and fire, of wreck, iceberg life, and rescue, will be this week's bill at Morosco's, with Glenney as rattlebrained Pat O'Reilly. This is Mr. Glenney's last week.

Mr. Glenny's piece is stirringly sensational and he plays his part very effectively. He is a competent all-around actor, and has played a good four weeks' season at Morosco's.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The races of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association will come off over the Bay District course, so easily accessible by a half-dozen car lines. The rain-fall has interfered with the regularly appointed days. Tuesday's races have been postponed until Saturday, when it is hoped the fast track will be in good condition.

The races set for Saturday are a three-quarters of a mile dash, for three-year-olds, and upwards, for a $400 purse; second race, ages, five furlongs, and last event a dash of seven furlongs for two-year-olds.

The events set for the third day of the meeting, Thursday the 21st, will be run on Thursday the 28th, Thanksgiving Day, and those for the fourth day will be decided on Saturday Nov. 30th

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe are filling the Union every night.

Montague's contribution to the bill is his comedy of "The Bridal Chamber," with most of the company in the cast.

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's comedy has the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness.

Those popular favorites, Thatcher & Drew, have been re-engaged.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The danseuse, Mlle. La Celle, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week, with J. W. Kelly, the monologue artist and verse improvisatore, and Miss Jennie Heywood, the favorite vocalist, in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

Another new feature is Hallinan's Mastodon Minstrels with six comedians on the ends.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Helena Richman and Miss Blanche Long are new this week.

Miss Edith Morrison, the popular balladist; Miss Ruby Grant, premiere danseuse; also Miss Ida Farno, serio-comic; Miss Rose De Vere, vocalist, and Tommy Glenn, vocalist, punster and comedian, are late additions.

The interlude act is the new comedy of "Mr. Barnes of N. Y. and Mr. Burns of S. F.," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Travers, J. Burns, Ruby Grant, Blanche Long, Rose Dovere, Edith Morrison, Helena Richman and Tommy Glenn.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Left for Eastern fields, the following company in support of Katie Putnam: Annie Plunkett, Lizzie Morgan, Ada Freemont, John W. Thompson, J. W. Burton, J. D. Summerfield, John Simpson, Fid M. Page, L. M. Edgar, J. C. Crowell and H. B. Emery. Open in Victoria, 25th, thence the Sound circuit and Manager Maguire's Northern Pacific and Montana circuit, reaching Helena early in January.

John Stetson, the theatrical manager, newspaper owner, printer and banker, will next year also become a turf magnate, having purchased the old Readville, Mass., mile track, which he intends to transform into a fine running course.

James O'Neill has a new play which he will soon produce.

Edwin Booth and Mme. Modjeska played a big week at the Broadway Theatre, N. Y., where "Hamlet" drew some of the largest audiences ever seen in that handsome playhouse last week. The demand for seats for future performances is very active and places are now being secured for two and three weeks in advance. "Macbeth" is this week's bill.

Madeline Lucette has sold her play, "Christopher, Jr.," to Manager Daniel Frohman.

Bobby Gaylor, one of the best of eccentric Irish comedians, will star next season in a new spectacular Irish play, called "An Irish Arab."

Lydia Thompson has abandoned burlesque and will drop into comedy hereafter, having bought the American rights of "A Double Lesson," one of Rosina Vokes plays, written by Burnand, the editor of Punch. We know of no one who is better fitted by long years of experience to give us a double lesson on anything than Lydia Thompson.

Mr. A. M. Palmer has bought a play called "Helen's Inheritance," written by Mr. Richard Davey and Mrs. Hooper, which he will produce at the Union Square Theatre, New York, in December.

Alice Harrison has been added to the cast of "Our Flat," playing at the Lyceum Theatre, New York.

E. H. Sothern will come to San Francisco this Spring, and will also take in Portland, Or., on his return.

Manager Hayman has filled the bookings for the New Marquam Opera House, Portland, for the entire season.

Gilbert & Sullivan's latest opera will be produced at the Shaftesbury Avenue Theatre, London.

Managers Dickson and Talbott, of the Park Theatre, Indianapolis, have been sued for $10,000 by a man who was recently ejected from that theatre. If he should get a verdict for that amount every man in the country will want to be kicked out of a theatre.

The arrival of the Red Dog stage in "From Sire to Son," at the Grand, loaded down with passengers, is an exciting scene with its prancing horses and general excitement accompanying it, and the last scene of the play, the interior of a castle and an exterior view of the Rhine, is one of remarkable beauty. Both scenes show the great resources of the Grand's stage.

Messrs. Jefferson and Taylor have engaged seventeen people for their "Hands Across the Sea" Co., which will open at the Grand Opera House, Philadelphia, Nov. 25th, and at the Grand Opera House, New York, December 2. We have had a splendid production of "Hands across the Sea" at the Grand Opera House, and the city on December 2nd will have a production of the same play with a company of seventeen people. Added to this will be a scenic production that will be a marvel of beauty. Mr. Thomas Jefferson, the son of Joseph Jefferson, the famous American comedian, one of the owners of the American rights of the drama, is on his way here to superintend the details of the San Francisco production of "Hands across the Sea."

The annual benefit of the Society of Old Friends and Old Friends' Guild at the Grand Opera House, Philadelphia, on Thursday evening, Nov. 21st, was a most successful affair. The house was packed to the doors, and the performance was a most enjoyable one. Among those who appeared were Mrs. John Drew, Miss Rose Coghlan, Miss Ada Rehan, Miss Annie Pixley, Miss Fanny Davenport, Miss Minnie Maddern, Miss Effie Ellsler, Miss Agnes Booth, Miss Mary Anderson, Miss Clara Morris, Miss Kate Claxton, Miss Lotta, Miss Maude Granger, Miss Rose Eytinge, Miss Annie Russell, Miss Mary Wells, Miss Ida Vernon, Miss Ida Jeffreys-Goodall, Miss Agnes Huntington, Miss Marie Wainwright, Miss Jennie Kimball, Miss Mary Shaw, Miss Mary Hampton, Miss Mary Gannon, Miss Mary Stuart, Miss Mary Mannering, Miss Mary Gray, Miss Mary Hall, Miss Mary Ryan, Miss Mary Wilson, Miss Mary Brown, Miss Mary Smith, Miss Mary Jones, Miss Mary Williams, Miss Mary Davis, Miss Mary Miller, Miss Mary Moore, Miss Mary Taylor, Miss Mary Anderson, Miss Mary Thompson, Miss Mary Johnson, Miss Mary White, Miss Mary Green, Miss Mary Black, Miss Mary Brown, Miss Mary Smith, Miss Mary Jones, Miss Mary Williams, Miss Mary Davis, Miss Mary Miller, Miss Mary Moore, Miss Mary Taylor, Miss Mary Anderson, Miss Mary Thompson, Miss Mary Johnson, Miss Mary White, Miss Mary Green, Miss Mary Black.

Mlle. Rhea has scored a success throughout the East in her role of Josephine, in "Josephine, Empress of the Tuileries." While playing at the Park Theatre, Philadelphia, recently on a Saturday night, three rows of ladies stood in the orchestra circle. The enthusiasm of the audience was startlingly unusual—a surprise to the management.

Earl Marble, a former San Francisco journalist, is now dramatic editor of the Herald-Democrat, Leadville, Col. His duties can't be very arduous, except keeping him up till 10 o'clock a night or two a week.

A novel feature of "The Exiles," playing at Niblo's Garden, N. Y., is the introduction of a real team of reindeer drawing a Russian sled.

Patti Rosa has engaged Clay Greene to rewrite her play, "Margery Daw," for her. It wants it, darned bad.

The Barnum and Bailey Show opened in London, Nov. 12th, at the Olympic, before sixteen thousand people, twelve thousand of whom were seated. The price of admission ranged from one shilling to five pounds. It is the first show of its kind ever given in the English metropolis.

"Kleptomania," the farce comedy which is to be produced at the Bush Street Theatre on December 2nd, has been running upwards of one thousand nights in London and the English provinces. "Kleptomania" will be presented by Mr. Edward J. Henley and the Keogh Comedy Company.

An exciting encounter occurred in the West End Hotel, Minneapolis, on the 20th inst. between fiery Colonel Foster, of the Boston Ideal Opera Company, and Manager Conklin, of the Grand Opera House. Col. Foster repudiated a contract to refund $1,000 advanced by Conklin for railroad fares, and ended the controversy by assaulting Conklin. The latter wiped the floor with him. Conklin subsequently posted a notice at the theatre that there would be no performance that night, but the trouble was temporarily bridged over and the show given. Foster was in a quandry. His prima donna demanded his portion of the receipts or she would not sing, and Manager Conklin wanted all that came in towards repaying the money advanced to land his company in Minneapolis. No wonder he got mad.

After the present Booth-Modjeska season terminates Booth and Barrett will join forces again. Their business partnership to be continued for a period of two years.

Miss Maddern, accompanied by Geo. Osbourne, in the successful comedy of "Featherbrain," a very lively and entertaining piece, this week at the Bush.

Dates ahead at the Grand after Milton Nobles' engagement: the latest English melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," follows on Dec. 2nd for two weeks, and the spectacular drama of New York life, "The Great Metropolis," with its great wreck and life-saving scene, will be the Grand's holiday attraction.

The Bulletin, after speaking good words in praise of Miss Maddern and "Featherbrain," says: "The next best part to the star's was that of Ferdinand Pettigrew, acted by Charles L. Harris, who to us seemed to be an uncuous comedian full of life and spirit, with a deep sense of humor depicted by facial expression and tone of voice. Mr. Harris is a good comedian, and shared the honors with Miss Maddern. Samuel Edwards played Samuel Coney in an agreeable manner, and is also a good comedian." The Bulletin is right. There is "talent" in the "Featherbrain" Company.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Chiarini's Circus, the entire company, Oakes' Swiss Bell Ringers, the Arab Troupe and the Hungarian Quartette, instrumentalists, will furnish the entertainment at Woodward's Gardens on Sunday.

The Cremorne has Hallinan's Mastodon Minstrels in addition to their usual company this week.

Edwin Orrin, Charles Fish and several circus performers sailed recently for Havana for a Winter season.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walderstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

PURE CALIFORNIA WINES.—Nothing could be better, or more acceptable for your friends for a Thanksgiving present, than some of the choice wines from John Anderson's; he has—dies only pure liquors. So remember, that at either 618 Montgomery street, corner Merchant, or at the wine vaults, 427 California street, you can get everything pure and first-class. In regard to wet goods, for age, purity and bouquet his goods are unexcelled.

DR. HENLEY'S ENGLISH.—"Nothing succeeds like success" is a general truth, but when applied to the phenomenal success of Dr. Henley's remedies, every week his X. Editors and Lawsuit, the saying has been forgotten. The sale of these herbal preparations is enormous throughout the United States and it is gratifying to know that it has become a standard remedy in the principal cities of Europe.

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco and only paper that publishes their daily programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Extra Matinees will be given on Thanksgiving Day at all the Theatres.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

Miss Maddern, the popular comedienne, appears here, accompanied by Mr. George Osbourne and a fine company in support, in the rattling comedy of "Featherbrain." This comedy has recorded runs of two years in Paris, a long run in Berlin, a ten months' run in London, and a sixty-night run at the Madison Square Theatre, New York.

Miss Maddern sustains the part of the capricious light-hearted "Featherbrain." Geo. Osbourne has a strong character part in the gallant and romantic Portugese. The company includes Mr. Charles L. Harris, Mr. Wm. Faversham, Mr. Samuel Edwards, Mr. Frank Clayton, Mr. Harry Rawlins, Miss Emma Maddern, Miss Helen Osbourne, Miss Lulu Kline and Miss Elsie Lombard. A goodly company in one of the most popular of modern-day comedies.

The Chronicle pronounces "Featherbrain" to be "a very amusing farcical comedy, with situations cleverly conceived and numerous complications very cunningly constructed."

The Examiner says: "'Featherbrain' will be a success here. It has touch and go, snap, action. The plot turns a dramatic flip-flap every five minutes. There is a bright line wherever it is possible to work one in amidst the bewildering number of entrances and exits. There are just enough reaches of quiet enjoyment to make the hits loom large and full in the atmosphere of hilarity."

The Call claims that Miss Minnie Maddern "is simply exquisite as Mrs. Coney (Featherbrain) in her crisp speech, neat movement and the incomprehensible blunders she makes," and that George Osbourne "carried the audience with a rush" as the impetuous Portuguese lover.

Mr. Samuel Edwards as the good-natured husband, Mr. Harris, Mr Faversham, Miss Lulu Kline, Miss Helen M. Osbourne, and the company generally, acquitted themselves with honorable records.

The whole company were honored with a call before the curtain at the end of the second act.

Special scenery is brought with the comedy, including the famed spiral staircase scene, as seen at the Madison Square Theatre.

The society of "Independent Order of Old Friends" has its annual benefit at this theatre on Tuesday evening. An overflowing house may be anticipated. Secure your seats at once. "Featherbrain" will constitute the bill.

Alcazar Theatre.

Augustin Daly's amusing comedy of "Nancy & Co." has a careful production by the Alcazar Company this week. This is one of Daly's bright, finished and amusing comedies, and the Alcazar company by their excellent performance give it great zest in action.

E. J. Buckley is the Kiefe O'Kiefe, Esq.; Miss Ethel Brandon is Nancy Brasher with her comedy, and Stockwell plays the part of her jealous husband, "Tippy." Mr. Buckley plays with his usual spirit and with many nice bits of shading. Miss Brandon is perfectly at home as Nancy, having played it for a long time in the Eastern road company, and doubtless it is owing to her instruction that the Alcazar company do so well in the Daly comedy. Stockwell makes the jolliest kind of a well-managed husband. It is unctious with his humor. Nellie Buckley plays Daisy Griffing charmingly, and Fanny Young and Carrie Clarke Ward give good character impersonations.

"Nancy & Co." has this week allotted to it "A Noble Rogue," Steele Mackaye's five-act comedy-drama, will be the Alcazar's attraction next week, with John Jack, John Armstrong, Ned Thayer, Miss Emmie Wilmot and Miss Nellie Young added to the company.

Grand Opera House.

This week Milton Nobles, famed for the effective vigor of his character acting, commenced a two weeks' engagement at the Grand. This week in his play, "From Sire to Son," next week in "Phœnix," supported by his own company.

Mr. Nobles is just the kind of an actor the patrons of the Grand want. His quick acting, sensational plays, his graphic characterizations, and the peculiar elements of his own impersonations will be strong drawing factors at the Grand. The roomy stage will give his life-scenes "in the mines." All the scenes of the drama are most effectively staged, and it is a picturesque and interesting play all through.

Mr. Nobles acts with all his old time vigor and intensity, and sustains his dual role with versatility. Miss Dollie Nobles also plays a dual role and shows how good and how pleasing an actress she is in doing so. The company is really a strong one in character acting, and carry the two interesting supporting roles very ably.

The weather does not seem to have much effect upon the Grand's audiences. There have been good audiences in the rainy nights.

Mr. Nobles presents for his last week at the Grand his original melodrama of "The Phœnix," in which he sustains his famous character of Carroll Graves, a rattlebrained New York story-writing Bohemian, with Dollie Nobles in her charming impersonation of Sadie, the flower girl. The play opens in New York. The first act has a big sensational fire scene. The second act has a startling gambling house conflict in Texas, and the whole play bristles with action and has many amusing incidental scenes in relief.

A grand production of that great melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," a success in three continents, is announced for December 2nd, with Miss Isabel Morris and Mr. William Morris in the principal roles.

New California Theatre.

Bolossy Kiralfy's grand ballet spectacle, "Antiope," rules at the California this week, and it is sufficient to add that it is a Kiralfy production, and a new one, and abounds in tableaux, marches, grand ballets and entertaining specialty features.

In pieces of this kind the play is not the thing, but the features introduced in it. "Antiope" is rich in specialties. The ballet, tableaux, marches and scenery are all diverting to the eye, and the notable specialty features are the solo dance by Helena Konradt; the dancing of the Parisian premier, Mlle. Paris; the illusions shown by Yank Hoe and Omene; the gavotte by Miss Alice Gilbert; the Spanish dance by Carmencita; the athletic exhibition by the Pialras, and the performance of the Tissots. Miss Gilbert introduces the dance in long skirts, made so popular in the East by the Gaiety troupe, of which she was a member, and is very pleasing and graceful. Carmencita's dancing is of the genuine Spanish type, and totally different from the ordinary stage dancing, and Arnold Kiralfy's grotesque dancing is the best on the stage.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Oakes' Swiss Bell Ringers and Specialty Sketch Company, from Chicago, put in their first appearances in San Francisco at the Orpheum this week. This company has a fixed popularity East, as it has been in the amusement field since 1877. The Oakes' Company consist of John and Alice Oakes, Frank Hollister, "Laughable" Eades, William Weston and Frances Oakes.

The Hassan Ali and Hadj Tahar Troupe of Arabs, Mons. Le Compt, and Minnetta and Barretta also put in first appearances.

Everything and everybody new to San Francisco this week at the Orpheum.

Next week there will be an entire change of bill at the Orpheum in the production of the sensational comedy of "Cad, the Tom Boy," Carrie Swain's success, sustained by a well selected company.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Elks' Carnival and Bal Masque.

The Annual Carnival Ball of the Elks in aid of its Charity Fund comes off at the Pavilion on Thanksgiving Eve. This will be the ball of the season. The proprietors and managers, together with the members of the companies of the Alcazar, Baldwin, Bush Street, California, Grand Opera House, Orpheum, Tivoli and other theatres will be present, and become participators in the revels of their representative professional society on this coast.

Everything will be on a grand scale. The opening march will be gorgeous with its multitudinous character impersonations, and allegorical floats representing the seven leading daily newspapers of San Francisco (with FIGARO at their head). Other features will be the "Phorty Phunny Phellows;" the Ballet of Twenty Young Ladies; the Transformation Divertisements; the professional characterizations in competition for the prize awards, and the original and unique designs that will be displayed in the "concerted pieces."

The committee has reserved a section on the left of the main floor for the honored guests to witness their grand pageant, and have already disposed of over 2,000 tickets.

Delegations from the principal interior towns will be present and the Elks' Carnival will be the event of the Winter.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

That strong drama, "Storm-Beaten," with its pictures of life on ship board in the Polar seas surrounded by ice, with tableaux of frost and fire, of wreck, iceberg life, and rescue, will be this week's bill at Morosco's, with Glenney as rattlebrained Pat O'Reilly. This is Mr. Glenney's last week.

Mr. Glenny's piece is stirringly sensational and he plays his part very effectively. He is a competent all-around actor, and has played a good four weeks' season at Morosco's.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

"Richard III" will have an elaborate production at Morosco's next week, with Darrell Vinton as Richard, E. J. Holden as Richmond, and the whole company in the cast. Particular attention will be paid to the mounting and costuming of the tragedy and its careful representation throughout.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The races of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association will come off over the Bay District course, so easily accessible by the Central Railroad. The first day's races will be run on Thursday, the 28th, Thanksgiving Day. Tuesday's races have been postponed until Tuesday, when it is hoped the fast track will be in good condition.

The races set for Tuesday are a three-quarters of a mile dash, for three-year-olds, and upwards, for a $400 purse; second race, three-year-old fillies, one mile and a quarter, $500 purse; third race, the Record Stakes, all ages, five furlongs, and last event a dash of seven furlongs for two-year-olds.

The events set for the third day of the meeting will be run on Thursday the 28th, Thanksgiving Day, and those for the fourth day will be decided on Saturday, Nov. 30th.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe are filling the Union every night.

Montague's contribution to the bill is his comedy of "The Bridal Chamber," with most of the company in the cast.

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's comedy has the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness.

Those popular favorites, Thatcher & Drew, have been re-engaged.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The danseuse, Mlle. La Celle, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week, with J. W. Kelly, the monologue artist and verse improvisatore, and Miss Jennie Heywood, the favorite vocalist, in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nesteell and others in a fine programme.

Another new feature is Hallinan's Mastodon Minstrels with six comedians on the ends.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nesteell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nesteell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Helena Richman and Miss Blanche Long are new this week.

Miss Edith Morrison, the popular balladist; Miss Ruby Grant, premiere danseuse; also Miss Ida Farno, serio-comic; Miss Rose De Vere, vocalist, and Tommy Glenn, vocalist, punster and comedian, are late additions.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the new comedy of "Mr. Barnes of N. Y. and Mr. Burns of S. F.," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Ruby Grant, Blanche Long, Rose Devere, Edith Morrison, Helena Richman and in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

A. J. McNiece, comedian, and Miss Alice Dale, vocalist, are the new faces here.

The Polks, musical artists and Tyrolean warblers, and all the company appear in "A Trip Around the World" this week.

The olio acts are "Fun at Home" and the Polks specialties.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, Marie Mortino, J. D. Fox, Rosa Stange and others.

Bottle Meier's is the popular north-end re-

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The big Grand Opera House overflowed last night. Every seat in its four circles was occupied. All the proscenium and mezzanine boxes were filled, and the late comers formed a fringe of standing-roomers around backs of the circles. It reminded one of a Patti night.

Left for Eastern fields, the following company in support of Katie Putnam: Alice Plunkett, Lizzie Morgan, Ada Lee Clement, John W. Thompson, J. W. Burton, J. D. Summerfield, John Simpson, Ed M. Page, L. M. Edgar, J. C. Crowell and H. B. Emery. Open in Victoria, 25th, thence the Sound circuit and Manager Maguire's Northern Pacific and Montana circuit, reaching Helena early in January.

John Stetson, the theatrical manager, newspaper owner, printer and banker, will next year also become a turf magnate, having purchased the old Readville, Mass., mile track, which he intends to transform into a fine running course.

W. H. Crane's new play, "The Senator," written by Sydney Rosenfeld and D. D. Lloyd, has been pronounced a great success. We shall have it at the Bush by and by.

Edwin Booth and Mme. Modjeska played a big week at the Broadway Theatre, N. Y., where "Hamlet" drew some of the largest audiences ever seen in that handsome playhouse last week. The demand for seats for future performances is very active and places are now being secured for two and three weeks in advance.

Madeline Lucette has sold her play, "Christopher, Jr.," to Manager Daniel Frohman.

Bobby Gaylor, one of the best of eccentric Irish comedians, will star next season in a new spectacular Irish play, called "An Irish Arab."

Lydia Thompson has abandoned burlesque and will drop into comedy hereafter, having bought the American rights of "A Double Lesson," one of Rosina Vokes' plays, written by Burnand, the editor of Punch. We know of no one who is better fitted by long years of experience to give us a double lesson on anything than Lydia Thompson.

Mr. A. M. Palmer has bought a play called "Helen's Inheritance," written by Mr. Richard Davey and Mrs. Hooper, which he will produce at the Union Square Theatre, New York, in December.

Alice Harrison has been added to the cast of "Our Flat," playing at the Lyceum Theatre, New York.

E. H. Sothern will come to San Francisco this Spring, and will also take in Portland, Or., on his return.

Manager Hayman has filled the bookings for the New Marquam Opera House, Portland, for the entire season.

Gilbert & Sullivan's latest opera will be produced at the Shaftesbury Avenue Theatre, London.

Managers Dickson and Talbott, of the Park Theatre, Indianapolis, have been sued for $10,000 by a man who was recently ejected from that theatre. If he should get a verdict for that amount every man in the country will want to be fired out of a theatre.

Messrs. Jefferson and Taylor have engaged seventeen people for their "Hands Across the Sea" Co., which will open at the Grand Opera House, Philadelphia, Nov. 25th, and at the Grand Opera House New York, December 2d. We are to have a splendid production of "Hands Across the Sea" at the Grand Opera House in this city on December 2nd, got up from Eastern models and in a most effective manner. All the stage hands of the Grand with considerable extra force are hard at work on it. This spectacular drama requires big stages to produce its effects advantageously. It will be the attraction of three Grand Opera Houses at the same time. Mr. Charles Jefferson, the son of Joseph Jefferson, the famous American comedian, one of the owners of the American rights of the drama, is on his way here to superintend the details of the San Francisco production of "Hands Across the Sea."

The annual benefit of the Society of Independent Old Friends comes off at the New Bush Street Theatre on Tuesday evening this week at the Bush. For Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday matinees Miss Maddern will produce her New York Lyceum Theatre success, Steele Mackaye's adaptation of Sardou's play of "Agnes," entitled "In Spite of All," which achieved a long run at that theatre.

Mlle. Rhea has scored a success throughout the East in her role of Josephine, in "Josephine, Empress of the French." While playing at the Park Theatre, Philadelphia, recently, on a Saturday night, three rows of ladies stood around the orchestra circle. The enthusiasm of the audience was startlingly unusual—a surprise to the management.

Earl Marble, a former San Francisco journalist, is now dramatic editor of the Herald-Democrat, Leadville, Col. His duties can't be very arduous, except keeping him up till 10 o'clock a night or two a week.

A novel feature of "The Exiles," playing at Niblo's Garden, N. Y., is the introduction of a real team of reindeer drawing a Russian sled.

Patti Rosa has engaged Clay Greene to rewrite her play, "Margery Daw," for her. It wants it, darned bad.

The Barnum and Bailey Show opened in London, Nov. 12th, at the Olympic, before sixteen thousand people, twelve thousand of whom were seated. The price of admission ranged from one shilling to five pounds. It is the first show of its kind ever given in the English metropolis.

"Kleptomania," the farce comedy which is to be produced at the Bush Street Theatre on December 2nd, has been running upwards of one thousand nights in London and the English provinces. "Kleptomania" will be presented by Mr. Edward J. Henley and the Keogh Comedy Company.

After the present Booth-Modjeska season terminates Booth and Barrett will join forces again. Their business partnership to be continued for a period of two years.

Miss Maddern, accompanied by Geo. Osbourne, in the successful comedy of "Featherbrain," a very lively and entertaining piece, this week at the Bush.

Dates ahead at the Grand after Milton Nobles' engagement: the latest English melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," follows on Dec. 2nd for two weeks, and the spectacular drama of New York life, "The Great Metropolis,' with its great wreck and life-saving scene, will be the Grand's holiday attraction.

The Bulletin, after speaking good words in praise of Miss Maddern and "Featherbrain," says: "The next best part to the star's was that of Ferdinand Pettigrew, acted by Charles L. Harris, who to us seemed to be an unctuous comedian, full of life and spirit, with a deep sense of humor depicted by facial expression and tone of voice. Mr. Harris is a good comedian, and shared the honors with Miss Maddern. Samuel Edwards played Samuel Coney in an agreeable manner, and is also a good comedian." The Bulletin is right. There is "talent" in the "Featherbrain" Company.

"Mahomet," a tragedy of five acts, will be produced at the Theatre Francais, Paris, this Winter; while "Jesus Christ," another five-act tragedy, will be produced at the Odeon Theatre at the same time. There is a report that several Eastern ambassadors have raised objections to "Mahomet" being put on the stage. Some other ambassadors may follow suit re "Jesus Christ." But Allah is great, and Mahomet will be none the less his prophet for appearing in the classic get-up of Mounet Sully. The character of Jesus will be ably impersonated by Mons. Silvain Maurel. With "Brahma" at the Eden Theatre, there will be a complete Trinity minus the Amen.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

The Cremorne has Hallinan's Mastodon Minstrels in addition to their usual company this week.

Edwin Orrin, Charles Fish and several circus performers sailed recently for Havana for a Winter season.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

PURE CALIFORNIA WINES.—Nothing could be better, or more acceptable for your friends for a Thanksgiving present, than some of the choice wines from John Andersen's; he handles only pure liquors. So remember, that at either 613 Montgomery street, corner Merchant, or at the wine vaults, 427 California street, you can get everything pure and first-class. In regard to wet goods, for age, purity and bouquet his goods are unexcelled.

DR. HENLEY'S REMEDIES.—"Nothing succeeds like success" is a general truth, but when applied to the phenomenal success of Dr. Henley's remedies, especially his XL Bitters and Tamarack, the saying has peculiar force. The sale of these beneficial preparations is enormous throughout the United States, and it is gratifying to know that it is fast becoming a standard remedy in the principal cities of Europe.

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and only paper that publishes their full programmes

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Extra Matinees will be given on Thanksgiving Day at all the Theatres.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

Miss Maddern will repeat her success, "Featherbrain," every night this week. But for the three matinees—Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday—Miss Maddern will produce for the first time in this city Steele Mackaye's adaptation of Sardou's famed play of "Agnes," entitled "In Spite of All;" in which she played the heroine at the Lyceum Theatre, New York, for 60 nights.

"Featherbrain" has received strong encomiums from the press.

The Chronicle pronounces "Featherbrain" to be "a very amusing farcical comedy, with situations cleverly conceived and numerous complications very cunningly constructed."

The Examiner says: "'Featherbrain' will be a success here. It has touch and go, snap, action. The plot turns a dramatic flip-flap every five minutes. There is a bright line wherever it is possible to work one in amidst the bewildering number of entrances and exits. There are just enough reaches of quiet enjoyment to make the hits loom large and full in the atmosphere of hilarity."

The Call claims that Miss Minnie Maddern "is simply exquisite as Mrs. Coney (Featherbrain) in her crisp speech, neat movement and the incomprehensible blunders she makes," and that George Osbourne "carried the audience with a rush" as the impetuous Portuguese love.

Mr. Samuel Edwards as the good-natured husband, Mr. Barrie, Mr Faversham, Miss Lulu Kline, Miss Helen M. Osbourne, and the company generally, acquitted themselves with honorable records.

Special scenery is brought with the comedy, including the famed spiral staircase scene, as seen at the Madison Square Theatre.

The society of "Independent Order of Old Friends" has its annual benefit at this theatre on Tuesday evening. An overflowing house may be anticipated. Secure your seats at once. "Featherbrain" will constitute the bill.

The Keogh Comedy Company put in next week at the Bush in a new farce comedy by Frank Melford, entitled "Kleptomania." Mr. Melford is the author of the laugh-provoking comedy, "Turned Up," that Nat Goodwin's company made such a success in at this theatre. "Kleptomania" has been running for near 1,000 nights in London and the English provinces. The comedian, Edward J. Henley, and a good company will appear in the play.

Alcazar Theatre.

"A Noble Rogue," Steele Mackaye's five-act comedy-drama, will be the Alcazar's attraction this week, with John Jack, John Armstrong, Ned Thayer, Miss Emmie Wilmot and Miss Nellie Young added to the company.

The scenic effects of the play include a steamship sixty feet in length, the great Chicago drawbridge and other notable effects.

Grand Opera House.

Milton Nobles presents for his last week here his original melodrama of "The Phoenix," in which he sustains his famous character of Carroll Graves, a rattlebrained New York story-writing Bohemian, with Dollie Nobles in her charming impersonation of Sadie, the flower girl. The play opens in New York. The first act has a big sensational fire scene. The second act has a startling gambling house conflict in Texas, and the whole play bristles with action and has many amusing incidental scenes in relief.

Mr. Nobles is just the kind of an actor the patrons of the Grand want. His quick acting, sensational plays, his graphic characterizations, and the peculiar elements of his own impersonations will be strong drawing factors at the Grand. The roomy stage gives his plays splendid scope for their settings.

Mr. Nobles acts with all his old time vigor and intensity, and sustains his dual role with versatility. Miss Dollie Nobles also plays a dual role and shows how good and how pleasing an actress she is in doing so. The company is really a strong one in character acting, and carry the the interesting supporting roles very ably.

A grand production of that great melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," a success in

New California Theatre.

Last week of Bolossy Kiralfy's grand ballet spectacle, "Antiope," at the California Theatre, and it is sufficient to add that it is a Kiralfy production, and a new one, and abounds in tableaux, marches, grand ballets and entertaining specialty features.

In pieces of this kind the play is not the thing, but the features introduced in it. "Antiope" is rich in specialties. The ballet, tableaux, marches and scenery are all diverting to the eye, and the notable specialty features are the solo dance by Helena Konradt; the dancing of the Parisian premier, Mlle. Paris; the illusions shown by Yank Hoe and Omene; the gavotte by Miss Alice Gilbert; the Spanish dance by Carmencita; the athletic exhibition by the Pisiras, and the performance of the Tiscots. Miss Gilbert introduces the dance in long skirts, made so popular in the East by the Gaiety troupe, of which she was a member, and is very pleasing and graceful. Carmencita's dancing is of the genuine Spanish type, and totally different from the ordinary stage dancing, and Arnold Kiralfy's grotesque dancing is the best on the stage.

Milton Nobles puts in a farewell week at the California in his comedy success, "Love and Law," next week, positively his last nights in San Francisco.

Orpheum Theatre.

This week there will be an entire change of bill at the Orpheum in the production of the sensational comedy of "Cad, the Tom Boy," Carrie Swain's success, sustained by a well selected company.

See announcement.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Elks' Carnival and Bal Masque.

The Annual Carnival Ball of the Elks in aid of its Charity Fund comes off at the Pavilion on Thanksgiving Eve. This will be the ball of the season. The proprietors and managers, together with the members of the companies, of the Alcazar, Baldwin, Bush Street, California, Grand Opera House, Orpheum, Tivoli and other theatres will be present, and become participators in the revels of their representative professional society on this coast.

Everything will be on a grand scale. The opening march will be gorgeous with its multitudinous character impersonations, and allegorical floats representing the seven leading daily newspapers of San Francisco (with FIGARO at their head). Other features will be the "Phorty Phunny Phellows;" the Ballet of Twenty Young Ladies; the Transformation Divertisements; the professional characterizations in competition for the prize awards, and the original and unique designs that will be displayed in the "concerted pieces."

The committee has reserved a section on the left of the main floor for the honored guests to witness their grand pageant, and have already disposed of over 2,000 tickets.

Delegations from the principal interior towns will be present and the Elks' Carnival will be the event of the Winter.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

"Richard III" will have an elaborate production at Morosco's this week, with Darrell Vinton as Richard, E. J. Holden as Richmond, and the whole company in the cast. Particular attention will be paid to the mounting and costuming of the tragedy and its careful representation throughout.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The races of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association will come off over the Bay District course, so easily accessible by a half-dozen car lines. The rain-fall has interfered with the regularly appointed days. Tuesday's races have been postponed until Tuesday, when it is hoped the fast track will be in good condition.

The races set for Tuesday are a three-quarters of a mile dash, for three-year-olds, and upwards, for a $400 purse; second race, three-year-old fillies, one mile and a quarter, $500 purse; third race, the Record Stakes, all ages, five furlongs, and last event a dash of seven furlongs for two-year-olds.

The events set for the third day of the meeting will be run on Thursday the 28th, Thanksgiving Day, and those for the fourth day will be decided on Saturday, Nov. 30th.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe are filling the Union every night.

Montague's contribution to the bill is his comedy of "The Outcasts," with most of the company in the cast.

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's comedy has the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness.

Those popular favorites, Thatcher & Drew, have been re-engaged.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The danseuse, Mlle. La Cellie, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week, with J. W. Kelly, the monologue artist and verse improvisatore, and Miss Jennie Heywood, the favorite vocalist, in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Neatell and others in a fine programme.

Another new feature is Hallinan's Mastodon Minstrels with six comedians on the ends.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur tal-

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Neatell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Jennie Fowler and Ed. Soldene are the new faces here.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the new comedy of "Remnants," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Jennie Fowler, Blanche Long, Rose Dovere, Helena Richman, Tommy Glenn, Ed. Soldene and others.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

Prof. Paul, ventriloquist, and the Bailey Sisters, vocalists, are the new faces here.

The Polks, musical artists and Tyrolean warblers, and all the company appear in a minstrel first part this week.

The olio acts are "Under a Cloud," Prof. Paul's and the Polks' specialties.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, Marie Morino, J. D. Fox, Rosa Stange and others.

Bottle Meier's is the popular north-end resort. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horse-shoe gallery of larger houses.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Pete Smith and Lottie Ellis, popular performers, and pretty Pearl Iola, are late comers, and J. M. Bennett, comedian and vocalist, is new.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, Lulu Martell, Addie Bennett, Mamie Woods, Billy Akarman and John Merritt make up the company.

The first-part is a Female Minstrel one with songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

The olio piece is the comedy of "Papa's Baby Boy," with Akarman, Pete Smith and most of the ladies in the cast.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

If you are troubled with bald spots, or falling out of hair, by all means use Diefenbacher's Hair Tonic. It is invaluable. Try it and be convinced. Its merits are well attested. All his testimonials are from well-known people in San Francisco.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Milton Nobles puts in the week of December 2nd at the California Theatre in his comedy, "Love and Law," after closing his season at the Grand. See his special announcement elsewhere in FIGARO.

Commencing with next week the managerial firm of the Grand Opera House will be Maguire, Rial & Osbourne; Manager Jay Rial taking a proprietary interest, and looking after the business appertaining to the front of the Grand. Mr. George Osbourne, who has purchased a firm interest, will cast his fortunes with the house, have charge of all the stage business, and will give the strength of his alliance to the company. Manager Magnire will, besides looking after his Northwestern and Montana theatres, attend to the circuit engagements playing at the Grand and his houses. This will give the Grand administrative strength in its departments and insure success in all.

Take in the Elks' Carnival Ball at the Pavilion after the theatre to-morrow evening if you want to see fun.

There is a Patti-Auditorium furore in Chicago, a craze to be present at the opening performances of the immense new Chicago concert hall and hear the Abbey Opera Company in its initial performances within its walls. The wires tell us that there was a rush for the demand of the first day's sale of season tickets on Monday, and a long line of purchasers formed at daylight. The main balcony seats brought $60, $50 and $40, according to location. The sale aggregated near $35,000, and will be continued to-day.

That ship's skylight that is in the foyer of the Grand Opera House belongs to to the steamer "Australisian" in the play of "Hands Across the Sea," and will have its proper place in the saloon deck of that steamer on the Grand's stage next week. The whole stage will be thrown open for the steamer scene, and we shall see a stage steamer "the like of which we have never looked upon before."

Sweet, womanly and ladylike Isabella Coe, who formerly played the part of Mrs. Brooklyn Bridge in Hoyt's "Tin Soldier," has made a decided hit as Lady Meredith in Nat Goodwin's play, "A Gold Mine."

The big Grand Opera House overflowed Sunday. Every seat in its four circles was occupied. All the proscenium and mezzanine boxes were filled, and the late comers formed a fringe of standing-roomers around backs of the circles. It reminded one of a Patti night.

Bobby Gaylor, one of the best of eccentric Irish comedians, will star next season in a new spectacular Irish play, called "An Irish Arab."

E. H. Sothern will come to San Francisco this Spring, and will also take in Portland, Or., on his return.

Manager Hayman has filled the bookings for the New Marquam Opera House, Portland, for the entire season.

Gilbert & Sullivan's latest opera will be produced at the Shaftesbury Avenue Theatre, London.

Messrs. Jefferson and Taylor have engaged seventeen people for their "Hands Across the Sea" Co., which will open at the Grand Opera House, Philadelphia, this week, and at the Grand Opera House, New York, December 2d. We are to have a splendid production of "Hands Across the Sea" at the Grand Opera House in this city on December 2nd, got up from Eastern models and in an effective manner. All the stage hands of the Grand with considerable assistance are hard at work on it. This spectacular drama requires big stages to produce its effects advantageously. It will be the attraction of three Grand Opera Houses at the same time. Mr. Charles Jefferson, the son of Joseph Jefferson, the famous American comedian, is one of the owners of the American rights of the drama, is on his way here to superintend the details of the San Francisco production of "Hands Across the Sea."

The annual benefit of the Society of Independent Old Friends comes off at the New Bush Street Theatre this Tues-

A NEW COMEDY SUCCESS.

A Boston dispatch tells us that Wm. H. Crane made a most pronounced hit at the Hollis Street Theatre, in that city, on Monday night, in his first production of a new four-act comedy by the late David D. Lloyd and Sydney Rosenfeld, entitled "The Senator." The dispatch says: "'The Senator' proved to be a tremendous success, and is universally pronounced a surprisingly fine comedy, fully equal to anything produced in the last ten years.

"Mr. Crane's Senator Hannibal Rivers was a splendid personation, although it was apparent that he was somewhat nervous. He was called before the curtain several times. Sydney Rosenfeld, one of the authors of the play, was also honored with a call. Mr. Crane's supporting company came in for a liberal share of the almost continuous applause. The play is superbly staged and will easily run the whole of Mr. Crane's engagement in this city." We shall have Mr. Crane and "The Senator" at the Bush in the early Spring.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

The Elks' Ball, the carnival of the season, comes off at the Pavilion on Thanksgiving Eve. All the professional people in town will be there.

Ned Foster is off on a trip to Oregon and Washington.

Chiarini's Circus will make an extended tour in Mexico, going by rail, during this Winter.

The Cremorne has Hallinan's Mastodon Minstrels in addition to their usual company this week.

Edwin Orrin, Charles Fish and several circus performers sailed recently for Havana for a Winter season.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

Barry & Fay close their season at the Park Theatre, N. Y., Nov. a0th.

"It is reported that Clara Louise Kellogg has grown so stout that she will probably have to retire from the stage." What for? Are they afraid she will break it down? The old stages used to bear Parepa Rosa's avoirdupois safely—and people were always ready to hear her sing.

On Thursday, the 13th inst., Treasurer John T. Maguire, of the Fourteenth St. Theatre, New York, and his wife celebrated their wooden wedding. Mr. Maguire says that he wants the fact published so that his 'Frisco friends may see that they were wrong in their prophecies.

H. W. Frillman, formerly of Emerson's Minstrels, is cast as the Rajah in "Said Pasha" at the Harlem Opera House, New York.

Louise Montague, the $10,000 beauty, is at present in Milan studying for the operatic stage. Milan has a prize.

Violet Melnotte has secured the right and will shortly produce "The Burglar" in England.

Robert Mantell in "Monbars" recently inaugurated the opening of the new Burtis Opera House at Auburn, N. Y.

Mme. Albani sailed from Liverpool, Nov. 23d, by the Etruria. She will appear at the Chicago Auditorium under Henry E. Abbey's management as Elsa in "Lohengrin," Valentine in "Huguenots" and Marguerite in "Faust."

"Featherbrain" will be continued every evening this week at the Bush. For Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday matinees Miss Maddern will produce her New York Lyceum Theatre success, Steele Mackaye's adaptation of Sardou's play of "Agnes," entitled "In Spite of All," which achieved a long run at that theatre.

Patti Rosa has engaged Clay Greene to rewrite her play, "Margery Daw," for her. It wants it, darned bad.

"Kleptomania," the farce comedy which is to be produced at the Bus Street Theatre on December 2nd, has been running upwards of one thousand nights in London and the English provinces. "Kleptomania" will be presented by Mr. Edward J. Henley and the Keogh Comedy Company.

After the present Booth-Modjeska season terminates Booth and Barrett will join forces again. Their business partnership to be continued for a perlod of two years.

"Mahomet," a tragedy of five acts, will be produced at the Theatre Francais, Paris, this Winter; while "Jesus Christ," another five-act tragedy, will be produced at the Odeon Theatre at the same time. There is a report that several Eastern ambassadors have raised objections to "Mahomet" being put on the stage. Some other ambassadors may follow suit re "Jesus Christ." But Allah is great, and Mahomet will be none the less his prophet for appearing in the classic get-up of Mounet Sully. The character of Jesus will be ably impersonated by Mons. Silvain Maurel. With "Brahma" at the Eden Theatre, there will be a complete Trinity minus the Amen.

TUESDAY.....NOVEMBER 26, 1889

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and only paper that publishes their full programmes

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Extra Matinees will be given on Thanksgiving Day at all the Theatres.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

The society of "Independent Order of Old Friends" has its annual benefit at this theatre this, Tuesday evening. This is a social society that does not levy taxes, dues or fines on its members, but depends upon social entertainments, benefits, etc., for the production of its expense revenues. They believe in the philosophic creed of "having a good time" all the time. "Featherbrain" will constitute the bill.

Miss Maddern will repeat her success, "Featherbrain," every night this week. But for the three matinees—Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday—Miss Maddern will produce for the first time in this city Steele Mackaye's adaptation of Sardou's famed play of "Agnes" entitled "In Spite of All," in which she played the heroine at the Lyceum Theatre, New York, for 60 nights, displaying, according to the criticism of the time, "an exquisite sensibility and the power of presenting womanly pathos in a way that seizes the universal heart." • • "Winning from her audiences the very highest tribute of bedimmed eyes and throbbing breasts."]

"Featherbrain" has received strong encomiums from the press.

The Chronicle pronounces "Featherbrain" to be "a very amusing farcical comedy, with situations cleverly conceived and numerous complications very cunningly constructed."

The Examiner says: "It has touch and go, snap, action. There is a bright line wherever it is possible to work one in the atmosphere of hilarity."

The Call claims that Miss Minnie Maddern "is simply exquisite as Mrs. Corey (Featherbrain) in her crisp speech, neat movement and the incomprehensible blunders she makes," and that George Osbourne "carried the audience with a rush" as the impetuous Portuguese lover.

Mr. Samuel Edwards as the good-natured husband, Mr. Harris, Mr Faversham, Miss Lulu Eline, Miss Helen M. Osbourne, and the company generally acquitted themselves with honorable records.

Special scenery is brought with the comedy including the grand opera staircase scene, as seen at the Madison Square Theatre.

The Knight Comedy Company put its next week at the Baldwin in a new farce comedy by Frank Mayo entitled "Displomania." Mr. Mayo is the author of the latest success in comedy, "Started Up," that Nat Goodwin's company made such a success of at the theatre. "Displomania" has been running for over 1,000 nights in London and the Provincial provinces. The comedians Edwards & Hervey, and a good company will appear in the play.

Alcazar Theatre.

"A Noble Rogue," Steele Mackaye's five-act comedy-drama, will be the Alcazar's attraction this week, with John Jack, John Armstrong, Ned Thayer, Miss Emmie Wilmot and Miss Nellie Young added to the company.

The scenic effects of the play include a steamship sixty feet in length, the great Chicago drawbridge and other notable stage illustrations, all of which have been remarkably well produced by the Alcazar's mechanical staff. The Clark-street bridge is the scene of an episode of the play, where a gang of scoundrels attempt to do away with a railroad millionaire, and the whole effect is fine.

Mr. E. J. Buckley plays the outlawed hero with force and vim, and Miss Ethel Brandon is, as usual notably good as the heroine. Miss Grace Mortimer, John Jack comes in as the railroad king, and sustains the role very effectively. The various characters have due attention paid to them, and the whole performance is a creditable one for company and stage artistes.

Next week the frontier drama "Hamah!"

Grand Opera House.

Milton Nobles presents for his last week here his favorite melodrama of "The Phœnix," in which he sustains his famous character of Carroll Graves, a rather-mixed New York student, writing Bohemian, with Dollie Nobles in her charming impersonation of Sadie, the flower girl. The play opens in New York. The first act has a love complication, the second a gambling house conflict in Texas, and the whole play bristles with action and has many amusing incidental scenes in relief.

Mr. Nobles acts with all his old time vigor and intensity, and sustains his triple role of Graves, Bludso and the old French tourist with individual flavor and versatility. Miss Dollie Nobles also plays a dual role and shows how good and how pleasing an actress she is in doing so. The company is really a strong one in character acting, and carry the interesting supporting roles very ably.

A grand production of that great melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," a success in three continents with Miss Isabel Morris, Mr. Geo. Osbourne and Mr William Morris in the principal roles will be a big feature at the Grand next week; for it will be a markedly noted production of this spectacular drama. The scene on the deck of the steamer Australian will occupy the full stage, with the steamer head on towards the audience. The deck of the vessel between bulworks will be 34 feet wide. On this the action takes place. The whole structure will be an absolute realism, with a waterscape of sea extending around the steamer like an ocean. The steamer's skylight is to be seen in the foyer of the Grand. It is 5 feet by 10, and is as genuine as they make them.

New California Theatre.

Last week of Bolossy Kiralfy's grand ballet spectacle, "Antiope," at the California Theatre, and it is sufficient to add that it is a Kiralfy production, and a new one, and abounds in tableaux, marches, grand ballets and entertaining specialty features.

In pieces of this kind the play is not the thing, but the features introduced in it. "Antiope" is rich in specialties. The ballet, tableaux, marches and scenery are all diverting to the eye, and the notable specialty features are the solo dance by Helena Konradt; the dancing of the Parisian premier, Mlle. Paris; the illusions shown by Yank Hoe and Omens; the gavotte by Miss Alice Gilbert; the Spanish dance by Carmencita; the athletic exhibition by the Pialras, and the performance of the Tissots. Miss Gilbert introduces the dance in long skirts, made so popular in the East by the Gaiety troupe, of which she was a member, and is very pleasing and graceful. Carmencita's dancing is of the genuine Spanish type, and totally different from the ordinary stage dancing and Arnold Kiralfy's grotesque dancing is the best on the stage.

Milton Nobles puts in a farewell week at the California in his comedy success, "Love and Law," next week, positively his last nights in San Francisco.

Elks' Carnival and Bal Masque.

The Annual Carnival Ball of the Elks in aid of its Charity Fund comes off at the Pavilion on Thanksgiving Eve. This will be the ball of the season. The proprietors and managers, together with the members of the companies of the Alcazar, Baldwin, Bush Street, California, Grand Opera House, Orpheum, Tivoli and other theatres will be present, and become participators in the revels of their representative professional society on this coast.

Everything will be on a grand scale. The opening march will be gorgeous with its multitudinous character impersonations, and allegorical floats representing the seven leading daily newspapers of San Francisco (with FIGARO at their head). Other features will be the "Phorty Phunny Phellows;" the Ballet of Twenty Young Ladies; the Transformation Divertisements; the professional characterizations in competition for the prize awards, and the original and unique designs that will be displayed in the "concerted pieces."

The committee has reserved a section on the left of the main floor for the honored guests to witness their grand pageant, and have already disposed of over 2,000 tickets.

Delegations from the principal interior towns will be present and the Elks' Carnival will be the event of the Winter.

Orpheum Theatre.

This week there will be an entire change of bill at the Orpheum in the production of the sensational comedy of "Cad, the Tom Boy," Carrie Swain's success, sustained by a well selected company, under the management of Horace Levine. Miss Frankie Shortmeyer plays the rollicking Cad, and sustains the various complications of character with spirit. Miss Ewing and the company in support do creditable work. The play is very well mounted.

See advertisement.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

"Richard III" will has a very elaborate production at Morosco's this week, with Darrell Vinton as Richard, R. J. Holden as Richmond, and the whole company in the cast. Particular attention has been paid to the mounting and costuming of the tragedy and its careful representation throughout.

"Richard" is a great go at Morosco's. It is seldom since the days of the elder Keene and Booth that the good old tragedy has been received with such enthusiasm as it is greeted with at this house. Vinton is strong in the part, and Morosco ought to give him a horse for his good work.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conolly, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The races of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood Horse Association will come off over the Bay District track, so easily accessible by a half-dozen car lines. To-day's races drew a large attendance and though the track was heavy about four seconds slow the events were ones of unusual interest and the time good.

The events set for the third day of the meet-

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe are filling the Union every night.

Montague's contribution to the bill is his comedy of "The Outcasts," with most of the company in the cast.

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's comedy has the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness.

Those popular favorites, Thatcher & Drew, have been re-engaged, and add their humorous sketches to the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Big Bertha, the Confidence Queen, is here and appears in Ned Nestell's local comedy-bearing her name, and founded on her adventures every night. Also Miss Jennie Heywood, the favorite vocalist, in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear can do so by applying by letter or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is washing things up. Ed Holman encircles the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Jennie Fowler and Ed. Soldene are the new faces here.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the new comedy of "Remnants," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Travers, J. Burns, Jennie Fowler, Blanche Long, Rose Devere, Helena Richman, Tommy Glenn, Ed. Soldene and others.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

Prof. Paul, ventriloquist and the Bailey Sisters, vocalists, are the new faces here.

The Polks musical artists and Tyrolean warblers, and all the company appear in a ministrel first part this week.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The Keogh Comedy Company open at the Bush Street Theatre next week, for one week only, with the new eccentric comedy in three acts, entitled "Kleptomania," by Mark Melford, the author of the very amusing comedy, "Turned Up," which proved such a success with Nat Goodwin and his company.

The Society of "Independent Order of Old Frinds" had a large attendance at their annual benefit at the Bush Street Theatre on Tuesday evening.

Sophie Eyre begins her season at the Metropolitan Opera House, Sacramento, Thanksgiving evening, in "Lady Clare," supported by Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Edmonds, Ida Aubrey and Clyde Herron. Colonel Joe Mount will be the advance agent.

Frank Mayo and his son, Edwin, will play a two weeks' engagement at the Bush, beginning December 9th.

The scenic artists, stage carpenters and mechanics of the Grand Opera House are all hard at work, and mean to give the patrons of that house a pleasant surprise in the way of realistic and effective scenery in the production of "Hands Across the Sea."

Louis James has added "Ingomar" to his repertory for this season. He has just purchased a new romantic play founded on Spanish history, which he proposes to give an elaborate production next year.

Fanny Davenport played "La Tosca" for the benefit of the local lodge of Elks at Utica, N. Y., recently, before an audience that represented $2,000.

Milton Nobles puts in the week of December 2nd at the California Theatre in his comedy, "Love and Law," after closing his season at the Grand. See his special announcement elsewhere in FIGARO.

Commencing with next week the managerial firm of the Grand Opera House will be Maguire, Rial & Osbourne; Manager Jay Rial taking a proprietary interest, and looking after the business appertaining to the front of the Grand. Mr. George Osbourne, who has purchased a firm interest, will cast his fortunes with the house, have charge of all the stage business and will give the strength of his alliance to the company. Manager Maguire will, besides looking after his Novelty Garden and Metropolitan theatres, attend to the general engagements buying attractions and booking dates. This will give the Grand administrative strength in its departments and insure success in all.

Take in the Elks' Carnival Ball at the Pavilion after the theatre this evening if you want to see fun.

There is a Patti-Auditorium furore in Chicago, a craze to be present at the opening performances of the immense new Chicago concert hall and hear the Abbey Opera Company in its initial performances within its walls. The wires tell us that there was a rush for the demand of the first day's sale of season tickets on Monday, and a long line of purchasers formed at daylight. The main balcony seats brought $60, $50 and $40, according to location. The sale aggregated near $35,000, and will be continued to-day.

That ship's skylight that is in the foyer of the Grand Opera House belongs to to the steamer "Australisian" in the play of "Hands Across the Sea," and will have its proper place in the saloon deck of that steamer on the Grand's stage next week. The whole stage will be thrown open for the steamer scene, and we shall see stage storms the like of which we have never looked upon before."

Lydia Thompson has abandoned burlesque and will drop into comedy hereafter, having bought the American rights of "A Double Lesson," one of Rosina Vokes' plays, written by Burnand, the editor of Punch. We know of no one who is better fitted by long years of experience to give us a double lesson on anything than Lydia Thompson.

The big Grand Opera House overflowed Sunday. Every seat in its four circles was occupied. All the proscenium and Nellie Young, the new debutante of the Alcazar, plays the part of Teddy very cleverly in "A Noble Rogue." Nellie is a daughter of Fanny Young, and though they had the drama, "From Sire to Son," at the Grand last week, they have the real-life personages of from matron to maid at the Alcazar this week.

The members of the Edwin Forrest Lodge, A. O. O. F., of New York, presented Edwin Booth with a handsome jeweled badge of that order at the Broadway Theatre in honor of his fifty-sixth birthday. Louis Aldrich delivered the following address: "Recognizing in Edwin Booth the foremost actor of the English-speaking stage, one who is endeared to us by an exemplary life of generosity, kindness and honest manly sympathy for his fellow dramatic artists, we desire, as a representative body of the actors of America, to wish him many happy returns of this his birthday, and remain his comrades of the Edwin Forrest Lodge, A. O. O. F." Mr. Booth made a modest and suitable reply.

Prof. Herrmann, the magician, has leased Dockstader's Theatre, New York, for five years and will turn it into a combination theatre to be known as Herrmann's Comedy Theatre. It will open in August, 1890, most probably with Herrmann's "Transatlantique Vaudevilles."

Manager D. De Vivo announces the coming appearance in this country of Signor Giovanni Emanuel, supported by Signora Virginia Reiter and a powerful cast. His repertory for this tour comprises "King Lear," "Othello," "Hamlet," "Romeo and Juliet," "Le Demi Monde," "Le Nozze di Figaro" and a new play called "Nerone."

"The Twelve Temptations," with new novelties and specialties added to it, will be produced at the Star Theatre, N. Y., the second week in December.

"The Charity Ball," Belasco and De Mille's new play, was produced at the Lyceum Theatre, N. Y., lately, and Manager Daniel Frohman has added another to the long list of successes.

Barry & Fay close their season at the Park Theatre, N. Y., Nov. 30th.

"It is reported that Clara Louise Kellogg has grown so stout that she will probably have to retire from the stage." What for? Are they afraid she will break it down? The old stages used to bear Parepa Rosa's avoirdupois safely—and people were always ready to hear her sing.

Violet Melnotte has secured the right and will shortly produce "The Burglar" in England.

"Featherbrain" will be continued every evening this week at the Bush. For Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday matinees Miss Maddern will produce her New York Lyceum Theatre success, Steele Mackaye's adaptation of Sardou's play of "Agnes," entitled "In Spite of All," which achieved a long run at that theatre.

Messrs. Jefferson and Taylor have engaged seventeen people for their "Hands Across the Sea" Co., which will open at the Grand Opera House, Philadelphia, this week, and at the Grand Opera House, New York, December 2d. We are to have a splendid production of "Hands Across the Sea" at the Grand Opera House in this city on December 2nd, got up from Eastern models and in a most effective manner. All the stage hands of the Grand with considerable extra force are hard at work on it. This spectacular drama requires big stages to produce its effects advantageously. It will be the attraction of three Grand Opera Houses at the same time. Mr. Charles Jefferson, the son of Joseph Jefferson, the famous American comedian, one of the owners of the American rights of the drama, is on his way here to superintend the details of the San Francisco production of "Hands Across the Sea."

Sweet, womanly and ladylike Isabella Coe, who formerly played the part of Mrs. Brooklyn Bridge in Hoyt's "Tin Soldier," has made a decided hit as Lady Meredith in Nat Goodwin's play, "A Gold Mine."

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

T. S. Baldwin, the æronaut, who originated and made the first parachute descensions from a balloon in this city, writes to E. S. Haswell, of Morosco's business staff, that he is coming to San Francisco early in December to winter here. We will probably have some notable balloon ascensions by and by.

The Elks' Ball, the carnival of the season, comes off at the Pavilion on Thanksgiving Eve. All the professional people in town will be there.

Ned Foster is off on a trip to Oregon and Washington.

Chiarini's Circus will make an extended tour in Mexico, going by rail, during this Winter.

Edwin Orrin, Charles Fish and several circus performers sailed recently for Havana for a Winter season.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

No Paper Issued on Thanksgiving Day.

A double edition of FIGARO is issued to-day to serve as programmes in the theatres Thanksgiving Day.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Extra Matinees will be given on Thanksgiving Day at all the Theatres.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

Miss Maddern will repeat her success, "Featherbrain," every night this week. But for the three matinees—Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday—Miss Maddern will produce for the first time in this city Steele Mackaye's adaptation of Sardou's famed play of "Agnes," entitled "In Spite of All;" in which she played the heroine at the Lyceum Theatre, New York, for 60 nights, displaying, according to the criticism of the time, "an exquisite sensibility and the power of presenting womanly pathos in a way that seizes the universal heart." * * * "Winning from her audiences the very highest tribute of bedimmed eyes and throbbing breasts."

"Featherbrain" has received strong encomiums from the press.

The Chronicle pronounces "Featherbrain" to be "a very amusing farcical comedy, with situations cleverly conceived and numerous complications very cunningly constructed."

The Examiner says: "It has touch and go, snap, action. There is a bright line wherever it is possible to work one in the atmosphere of hilarity."

The Call claims that Miss Minnie Maddern "is simply exquisite as Mrs. Coney (Featherbrain) in her crisp speech, neat movement and the incomprehensible blunders she makes," and that George Osbourne "carried the audience with a rush" as the impetuous Portuguese lover.

Mr. Samuel Edwards as the good-natured husband, Mr. Harris, Mr. Faversham, Miss Lulu Kline, Miss Helen M. Osbourne, and the company generally, acquitted themselves with honorable records.

Special scenery is brought with the comedy, including the famed spiral staircase scene, as seen at the Madison Square Theatre.

The Keogh Comedy Company put in next week at the Bush in a new farce comedy by Frank Melford, entitled "Kleptomania." Mr. Melford is the author of the laugh-provoking comedy, "Turned Up," that Nat Goodwin's company made such a success in at this theatre. "Kleptomania" has been running for near 1,000 nights in London and the English provinces. The comedian, Edward J. Henley, and a good company will appear in the play.

Alcazar Theatre.

"A Noble Rogue," Steele Mackaye's five-act comedy-drama, will be the Alcazar's attraction this week, with John Jack, John Armstrong, Ned Thayer, Miss Emmie Wilmot and Miss Nellie Young added to the company

The scenic effects of the play include a steamship sixty feet in length, the great Chicago drawbridge and other notable stage illusions, all of which have been remarkably well produced by the Alcazar's mechanical staff. The Clark-street bridge is the scene of an episode of the play, where a gang of scoundrels attempt to do away with a railroad millionaire, and the whole effect is fine.

Mr. E. J. Buckley plays the outlawed hero with force and vim, and Miss Ethel Brandon is, as usual, notably good as the heroine, Miss Grace Mortimer. John Jack comes in as the railroad king, and sustains the role very effectively. The various characters have due attention paid to them, and the whole performance is a creditable one for company and stage artisans.

Next week, the frontier drama "Ranch 10."

Grand Opera House.

Milton Nobles presents for his last week here his original melodrama of "The Phoenix," in which he sustains his famous character of Carroll Graves, a rattlebrained New York story-writing Bohemian, with Dollie Nobles in her charming impersonation of Sadie, the flower girl. The play opens in New York. The first act has a big sensational fire scene, admirably put on at the Grand and actually realistic in its effects. The second act has a startling gambling house conflict in Texas, and the whole play bristles with action and has many amusing incidental scenes in relief.

Mr. Nobles acts with all his old time vigor and intensity, and sustains his triple role of Graves, Bludso and the old French tourists with individual flavor and versatility. Miss Dollie Nobles also plays a dual role and shows how good and how pleasing an actress she is in doing so. The company is really a strong one in character acting, and carry the interesting supporting roles very ably.

A grand production of that great melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," a success in three continents, with Miss Isabel Morris, Mr. Geo. Osbourne and Mr. William Morris in the principal roles will be a big feature at the Grand next week; for it will be a markedly noted production of this spectacular drama. The scene on the deck of the steamer Australasian occupies the full stage, with the steamer head on towards the audience. The deck of the vessel between bulworks will be 34 feet wide On this the action takes place. The whole structure will be an absolute realism, with a waterscape of sea extending around the steamer like an ocean. The steamer's skylight is to be seen in the foyer of the Grand. It is 5 feet by 10, and is as genuine as they make them.

New California Theatre.

Last week of Bolossy Kiralfy's grand ballet spectacle, "Antiope," at the California Theatre, and it is sufficient to add that it is a Kiralfy production, and a new one, and abounds in tableaux, marches, grand ballets and entertaining specialty features.

In pieces of this kind the play is not the thing, but the features introduced in it. "Antiope" is rich in specialties. The ballet, tableaux, marches and scenery are all diverting to the eye, and the notable specialty features are the solo dance by Helena Konradt; the dancing of the Parisian premier, Mlle. Paris; the illusions shown by Yank Hoe and Omene; the gavotte by Miss Alice Gilbert; the Spanish dance by Carmencita; the athletic exhibition by the Pialras, and the performance of the Tissots. Miss Gilbert introduces the dance in long skirts, made so popular in the East by the Gaiety troupe, of which she was a member, and is very pleasing and graceful. Carmencita's dancing is of the genuine Spanish type, and totally different from the ordinary stage dancing, and Arnold Kiralfy's grotesque dancing is the best on the stage.

Milton Nobles puts in a farewell week at the California in his comedy success, "Love and Law," next week, positively his last nights in San Francisco.

Elks' Carnival and Bal Masque.

The Annual Carnival Ball of the Elks in aid of its Charity Fund comes off at the Pavilion this, Thanksgiving Eve. This will be the ball of the season. The proprietors and managers, together with the members of the companies, of the Alcazar, Baldwin, Bush Street, California, Grand Opera House, Orpheum, Tivoli and other theatres will be present, and become participators in the revels of their representative professional society on this coast.

Everything will be on a grand scale. The opening march will be gorgeous with its multitudinous character impersonations, and allegorical floats representing the seven leading daily newspapers of San Francisco (with FIGARO at their head). Other features will be the "Phorty Phunny Phellows;" the Ballet of Twenty Young Ladies; the Transformation Divertisements; the professional characterizations in competition for the prize awards, and the original and unique designs that will be displayed in the "concerted pieces."

The committee has reserved a section on the left of the main floor for the honored guests to witness their grand pageant, and have already disposed of over 2,000 tickets.

A prelude from 8 to 9.30 by specialty artists from various theatres. Grand march at 9.30 sharp.

Orpheum Theatre.

This week there will be an entire change of bill at the Orpheum in the production of the sensational comedy of "Cad, the Tom Boy," Carrie Swain's success, sustained by a well selected company, under the management of Horace Ewing. Miss Freddie Stoodmeyer plays the rollicking Cad, and sustains the various assumptions of character with spirit. Miss Ewing and the company in support do creditable work. The play is very well mounted.

See announcement.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

"Richard III" will has a very elaborate production at Morosco's this week, with Darrell Vinton as Richard, E. J. Holden as Richmond, and the whole company in the cast. Particular attention has been paid to the mounting and costuming of the tragedy and its careful representation throughout.

"Richard" is a great go at Morosco's. It is seldom since the days of the elder Keene and Booth that the good old tragedy has been received with such enthusiasm as it is greeted with at this house. Vinton is strong in the part, and Morosco ought to give him a horse for his good work. He calls earnestly for one.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The races of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association will come off over the Bay District course, so easily accessible by a half-dozen car lines. To-day's races drew a large attendance and though the track was heavy, about four seconds slow, the events were ones of unusual interest and the time good.

The events set for the third day of the meeting will be run on Thursday the 28th, Thanksgiving Day, and those for the fourth day will be decided on Saturday, Nov. 30th

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe are filling the Union every night.

Montague's contribution to the bill is his comedy of "The Outcasts," with most of the company in the cast.

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's comedy has the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness.

Those popular favorites, Thatcher & Drew, have been re-engaged, and add their humorous sketches to the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Big Bertha, the Confidence Queen, is here and appears in Ned Nestell's local comedy-bearing her name, and founded on her adventures every night. Also Miss Jennie Heywood, the favorite vocalist, in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Sully & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed. Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Jennie Fowler and Ed. Soldene are the new faces here.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the new comedy of "Remnants," with the company in the cast.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

Miss Maddern will repeat her success, "Featherbrain," every night this week. But for Saturday's matinee, Miss Maddern will appear in Steele Mackaye's adaptation of Sardou's famed play of "Agnes," entitled "In Spite of All;" in which she played the heroine at the Lyceum Theatre, New York, for 60 nights, displaying, according to the criticism of the time, "an exquisite sensibility and the power of presenting womanly pathos in a way that seizes the universal heart." * * "Winning from her audiences the very highest tribute of bedimmed eyes and throbbing breasts."

Miss Maddern's Alice Clandenning is certainly a strong performance, mentally and artistically, as well as being of a high emotional order. We wish the lady had revived her success earlier in the season at the Bush. Mr. Faversham, Mr. Osbourne and company generally rendered good support.

"Featherbrain" has received strong encomiums from the press, and will be the bill for Miss Maddern's last nights, Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. George Osbourne, who has done such good work in both plays, leaves the company this week to take up residence with us permanently.

The Keogh Comedy Company put in next week at the Bush in a new farce comedy by Frank Melford, entitled "Kleptomania." Mr. Melford is the author of the laugh-provoking comedy, "Turned Up," that Nat Goodwin's company made such a success in at this theatre. "Kleptomania" has been running for near 1,000 nights in London and the English provinces. The comedian, Edward J. Henley, and a good company will appear in the play.

Alcazar Theatre.

"A Noble Rogue," Steele Mackaye's five-act comedy-drama, will be the Alcazar's attraction this week, with John Jack, John Armstrong, Ned Thayer, Miss Emmie Wilmot and Miss Nellie Young added to the company

The scenic effects of the play include a steamship sixty feet in length, the great Chicago drawbridge and other notable stage illusions, all of which have been remarkably well produced by the Alcazar's mechanical staff. The Clark-street bridge is the scene of an episode of the play, where a gang of scoundrels attempt to do away with a railroad millionaire, and the whole effect is fine.

Mr. E. J. Buckley plays the outlawed hero with force and vim, and Miss Ethel Brandon is, as usual, notably good as the heroine, Miss Grace Mortimer. John Jack comes in as the railroad king, and sustains the role very effectively. The various characters have due attention paid to them, and the whole performance is a creditable one for company and stage artisans.

Next week, the frontier drama "Ranch 10"

Grand Opera House.

Milton Nobles presents for his last week here his original melodrama of "The Phœnix," in which he sustains his famous character of Carroll Graves, a rattle-brained New York story-writing Bohemian, with Dollie Nobles in her charming impersonation of Sadie, the flower girl. The play opens in New York. The first act has a big sensational fire scene, admirably put on at the Grand and actually realistic in its effects. The second act has a startling gambling house conflict in Texas, and the whole play bristles with action and has many amusing incidental scenes in relief.

Mr. Nobles acts with all his old time vigor and intensity, and sustains his triple role of Graves, Bludso and the old French tourists with individual flavor and versatility. Miss Dollie Nobles also plays a dual role and shows how good and how pleasing an actress she is in doing so. The company is really a strong one in character acting, and carry the interesting s[up]porting roles very ably.

A grand production of that great melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," a success in three continents, with Miss Isabel Morris, Mr. Geo. Osbourne and Mr. William Morris in the pr[in]cipal roles will be a big feature at the Gr[an]d next week; for it will be a markedly noted production of this spectacular drama. T[he] scene on the deck of the steamer Australian occupies the full stage, with the steamer head on towards the audience. The deck of the vessel between bulworks will be 34 feet wide On this the action takes place. The whole structure will be an absolute realism, with a waterscape of sea extending around the steamer like an ocean. The steamer's skylight is to be seen in the foyer of the Grand. It is 5 feet by 10, and is as genuine as they make them.

New California Theatre.

Last week of Bolossy Kiralfy's grand ballet spectacle, "Antiope," at the California Theatre, and it is sufficient to add that it is a Kiralfy production, and a new one, and abounds in tableaux, marches, grand ballets and entertaining specialty features.

In pieces of this kind the play is not the thing, but the features introduced in it. "Antiope" is rich in specialties. The ballet, tableaux, marches and scenery are all diverting to the eye, and the notable specialty features are the solo dance by Helena Konradt; the dancing of the Parisian premier, Mlle. Paris; the illusions shown by Yank Hoe and Omene; the gavotte by Miss Alice Gilbert; the Spanish dance by Carmencita; the athletic exhibition by the Pisiras, and the performance of the Tissots. Miss Gilbert introduces the dance in long skirts, [made so popular in the East by the Gaiety troupe, of which she was a member, and is very pleasing and graceful. Carmencita's dancing is of the genuine Spanish type, and totally different from the ordinary stage dancing, and Arnold Kiralfy's grotesque dancing is the best on the stage.

Milton Nobles puts in a farewell week at the California in his comedy success, "Love and Law," next week, positively his last nights in San Francisco.

Orpheum Theatre.

This week there will be an entire change of bill at the Orpheum in the production of the sensational comedy of "Cad, the Tom Boy," Carrie Swain's success, sustained by a well selected company, under the management of Horace Ewing. Miss Freddie Stoodmeyer plays the rollicking Cad, and sustains the various assumptions of character with spirit. Miss Ewing and the company in support do creditable work. The play is very well mounted.

See announcement.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

"Richard III" will has a very elaborate production at Morosco's this week, with Darrell Vinton as Richard, E. J. Holden as Richmond, and the whole company in the cast. Particular attention has been paid to the mounting and costuming of the tragedy and its careful representation throughout.

"Richard" is a great go at Morosco's. It is seldom since the days of the elder Keene and Booth that the good old tragedy has been received with such enthusiasm as it is greeted with at this house. Vinton is strong in the part, and Morosco ought to give him a horse for his good work. He calls earnestly for one.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast in programme [elsewhere in our columns.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The races of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association will close at the Bay District Course on Saturday.

The races on Thanksgiving Day were largely attended and gave great satisfaction,

The events for the last day are: One and one-sixteenth of a mile for a purse of $400, three-year-olds and upwards; a three-quarter of a mile dash for two-year-olds, non-winners, for a $350 purse; the Holiday Handicap, a big event, $500 purse and entries, one and three-eighths; and a one mile race, Owners' Handicap, for a $350 purse.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe are filling the Union every night.

Montague's contribution to the bill is his comedy of "The Outcasts," with most of the company in the cast.

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's comedy has the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness.

Those popular favorites, Thatcher & Drew, have been re-engaged, and add their humorous sketches to the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Big Bertha, the Confidence Queen, is here and appears in Ned Nestell's local comedy-bearing her name, and founded on her adventures every night. Also Miss Jennie Heywood, the favorite vocalist, in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Sully & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed. Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Jennie Fowler and Ed. Soldene are the new faces here.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new specialties are produced by the musicians engaged at the Comique every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the new comedy of "Remnants," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Jennie Fowler, Blanche Long, Rose Dovere, Helena Richman, Tommy Glenn, Ed. Soldene and others.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

Prof. Paul, ventriloquist, and the Bailey Sisters, vocalists, are the new faces here.

The Polks, musical artists and Tyrolean warblers, and all the company appear in a minstrel first part this week.

The olio acts are "Under a Cloud," Prof. Paul's and the Polks' specialties.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, Marie Morino, J. D. Fox, Rosa Stange and others.

Bottle Meier's is the popular north-end resort. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horse-shoe gallery of larger houses.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Pete Smith and Lottie Ellis, popular performers, and pretty Pearl Iola, are late comers, and J. M. Bennett, comedian and vocalist, is new.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell Lulu Martell, Addie Bennett, Mamie Woods, Billy Akarman and John Merritt make up the company.

The first-part is a Female Minstrel one with songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

The olio piece is the comedy of "Papa's Baby Boy," with Akarman, Pete Smith and most of the ladies in the cast.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

Our imported actors all smoke the Pipe and "Seal of North Carolina Plug Cut." It's English, you know.

If you are troubled with bald spots, or falling out of hair, by all means use Diefenbacher's Hair Tonic. It is invaluable. Try it and be convinced. Its merits are well attested. All his testimonials are from well-known people in San Francisco.

DR. HENLEY'S REMEDIES.—"Nothing succeeds like success" is a general truth, but when applied to the phenomenal success of Dr. Henley's remedies, especially his 1XL Bitters and Tamarack, the saying has peculiar force. The sale of these beneficial preparations is enormous throughout the United States, and it is gratifying to know that it is fast becoming a standard remedy in the principal cities of

A NEW COMEDY SUCCESS.

A Boston dispatch tells us that Wm. H. Crane made a most pronounced hit at the Hollis Street Theatre, in that city, on Monday night, in his first production of a new four-act comedy by the late David D. Lloyd and Sydney Rosenfeld, entitled "The Senator." The dispatch says: "'The Senator' proved to be a tremendous success, and is universally pronounced a surprisingly fine comedy, fully equal to anything produced in the last ten years.

"Mr. Crane's Senator Hannibal Rivers was a splendid personation, although it was apparent that he was somewhat nervous. He was called before the curtain several times. Sydney Rosenfeld, one of the authors of the play, was also honored with a call. Mr. Crane's supporting company came in for a liberal

A NEW OPERA ORGANIZATION.

A dispatch of the 27th inst. stated that Colonel McCaull intended to retire from the opera field on account of ill health next season, and that Mme. Cottrelly would probably bid for the McCaull franchise. But a later dispatch contradicts this. It states that Col. McCaull is improving in health and will continue his operatic seasons next year. An intimate friend of his says: "There seems to be a malevolent effort to push him into retirement, but he has plenty of strong allies. He is powerful financially and his managerial career is far from being ended."

Whether McCaull continues or not, it is certain that De Wolf Hopper, leading comedian of the McCaull Opera Co., and Benjamin D. Stevens, manager of the same, have signed contracts with Messrs. Hooley, Randall & Davis for next season. This trio of theatrical managers is organizing the De Wolf Hopper Comic Opera Company. It will be a large organization. Hopper will be the principal comedian, of course, while Mr. Stevens will look after the business end of the concern. Both will be interested financially in the enterprise, and Mr. Hopper, who has signed a five years' contract, is to receive $500 per week salary and a percentage of the profits.

HOW AN ELEPHANT KEPT THANKSGIVING.

The wires tell us that Sannesheim & Valentine, a West Point, Neb., business firm, imported a real live elephant by rail intending to use him as an advertisement of their business, but when the noble animal found out that he was to be put to such a base purpose in an almost unknown little Nebraska town, all the professional pride o his royal nature was aroused, and he revolted forcibly. He broke loose, and started in to clean out the town. He cavorted up and down its streets knocking things right and left, and then attacked its buildings bodily. He leisurely went to work to clean out its principal saloons; then gutted a livery stable; crossed the street, knocking in the front [illegible] of Brown Bros.' new block; turned his attention to the Drapot drug store, crushing in the side of the building and doing a large amount of damage. After a few hours of such work and creating the liveliest picnic that West Point ever had, he began to think he had pursued the town enough for one visit, and mooned around, so gently that him back to [illegible] the animal was [illegible] by a committee of citizens and induced to take that elephant out of town, immediately.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

The grand march at the ball was under the direction of Herman Dean, Jr.

A San Diego dispatch states that Peter Johnson, proprietor of the Standard Theatre, attempted to leave that town on Thanksgiving Day without paying numerous bills and the salaries he owed to parties connected with the house. He was stopped by a constable and made to disgorge $800. When released he left on the first train for the East, and the San Diegonians went on with their thanksgiving with greater zeal than ever. It has been the fate of variety performers in San Diego to leave town victimized by a series of rascally managers heretofore, and we are glad that this one was made to pay up.

The first lady's prize at the Elks' Carnival was awarded to Nan, the Good-for-Nothing, and the first gentleman's prize to [illegible] carried.

T. S. Baldwin, the æronaut, who originated and made the first parachute descensions from a balloon in this city, writes to E. S. Haswell, of Morosco's business staff, that he is coming to San Francisco early in December to winter here. We will probably have some notable balloon ascensions by and by.

Chiarini's Circus will make an extended tour in Mexico, going by rail, during this Winter.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Wallerstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The Annual Masquerade Ball of the Elks in aid of their Charity Fund was a big success. The floor of the Pavilion was like an immense kaleidoscope, filled with its bright and ever changing figures that seemed never to weary with changing. The great auditorium was thronged with spectators, and everything passed off in harmony, showing good management all through. The Elks' masque balls are fixed as the carnival events of Winter. To Manager Nevin and his associates much credit must be given for bringing the big event to such a successful issue.

The Oakland and Boston baseball teams will attend the performance of "Featherbrain" at the Bush Street Theatre this evening, and will be assigned to private boxes.

An opera season is announced at the Bijou Opera House to commence Dec. 9th. The singers include Annie Gleason, Mme. Billoni, M'lle Atlanta Webster, Ida Valerga, Lena Spengler, M'lle Guerrine and Theresa Harnet; Enrico Campobello, Charles Thrower, Karl Formes, Roberto Stantini, Signor Zapelli, Signor Convelli, Frank Valerga and others. A large repertory is announced

To-day's dispatches tell us that the Globe Theatre, Boston, escaped burning in the Thanksgiving fire only by the most determined efforts of John Stetson and the attaches of the house, the roof brigade, who were driven from that most exposed portion of the theatre to the fire several times by the heat, but returned to the fight again, and not only saved the theatre but prevented the fire from extending across the street. Francis Wilson and his "Oolah" burlesque opera company were playing there at the time, and took all their wardrobe and movable effects out of the theatre. It appears to have been a very narrow escape for the historic Globe Theatre of Boston.

Nellie Young, the new debutante of the Alcazar, plays the part of Teddy very cleverly in "A Noble Rogue." Nellie is a daughter of Fanny Young, and though they had the drama, "From Sire to Son," at the Grand last week, they have the real-life personages of from matron to maid at the Alcazar this week.

Prof. Herrmann, the magician, has leased Dockstader's Theatre, New York, for five years and will turn it into a combination theatre to be known as Herrmann's Comedy Theatre. It will open in August, 1890, most probably with Herrmann's "Transatlantique Vaudevilles."

"The Twelve Temptations," with new novelties and specialties added to it, will be produced at the Star Theatre, N. Y., the second week in December.

"The Charity Ball," Belasco and De Mille's new play, was produced at the Lyceum Theatre, N. Y., lately, and Manager Daniel Frohman has added another to the long list of successes.

Frank Mayo and his son, Edwin, will play a two weeks' engagement at the Bush, beginning December 9th.

"It is reported that Clara Louise Kellogg has grown so stout that she will probably have to retire from the stage." What for? Are they afraid she will break it down? The old stages used to bear Parepa Rosa's avoirdupois safely—and people were always ready to hear her sing.

"Featherbrain" every evening this week at the Bush. For Saturday matinee Miss Maddern will produce her New York Lyceum Theatre success, Steele Mackaye's adaptation of Sardou's play of "Agnes," entitled "In Spite of All," which achieved a long run at that theatre.

Messrs. Jefferson and Taylor have engaged seventeen people for their "Hands Across the Sea" Co., which will open at the Grand Opera House, Philadelphia this week, and at the Grand Opera House, New York, December 2d. We are to have a splendid production of "Hands Across the Sea" at the Grand Opera House in this city on December 2nd, got up from Eastern models and in a most effective manner. All the stage hands of the Grand with considerable extra force are hard at work on it. This spectacular drama requires big stages to produce its effects advantageously. It will be the attraction of three Grand Opera Houses at the same time. Mr. Charles Jefferson, the son of Joseph Jefferson, the famous American comedian, one of the owners of the American rights of the drama, is on his way here to superintend the details of the San Francisco production of "Hands Across the Sea."

The Keogh Comedy Company open at the Bush Street Theatre next week, for one week only, with the new eccentric comedy in three acts, entitled "Kleptomania," by Mark Melford, the author of the very amusing comedy, "Turned Up," which proved such a success with Nat Goodwin and his company.

Sophie Eyre began her season at the Metropolitan Opera House, Sacramento, Thanksgiving evening, in "Lady Claire," supported by Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Edmonds. Ida Aubrey and Clyde Herron. Colonel Joe Mount will be the advance agent.

That ship's skylight that is in the foyer of the Grand Opera House belongs to the steamer "Australasian" in the play of "Hands Across the Sea," and will have its proper place in the saloon deck of that steamer on the Grand's stage next week. The whole stage will be thrown open for the steamer scene, and we shall see a stage steamer "the like of which we have never looked upon before."

Milton Nobles puts in the week of December 2nd at the California Theatre in his comedy, "Love and Law," after closing his season at the Grand. See his special announcement elsewhere in Figaro.

KEOGH - COMEDY - COMPANY

In "KLEPTOMANIA."

Commencing with next week the managerial firm of the Grand Opera House will be Maguire, Rial & Osbourne; Manager Jay Rial taking a proprietary interest, and looking after the business appertaining to the front of the Grand. Mr. George Osbourne, who has purchased a firm interest, will cast his fortunes with the house, have charge of all the stage business, and will give the strength of his alliance to the company. Manager Maguire will, besides looking after his Northwestern and Montana theatres, attend to the circuit engagements playing at the Grand and his houses. This will give the Grand administrative strength in its departments and insure success in all.

Louis James has added "Ingomar" to his repertory for this season. He has just purchased a new romantic play founded on Spanish history, which he proposes to give an elaborate production next year.

Fanny Davenport played "La Tosca" for the benefit of the local lodge of Elks at Utica, N. Y., recently, before an audience that represented $2,000.

Barry & Fay close their season at the Park Theatre, N. Y., Nov. a0th.

The scenic artists, stage carpenters and mechanics of the Grand Opera House are all hard at work, and mean to give the patrons of that house a pleasant surprise in the way of realistic and effective scenery in the production of "Hands Across the Sea."

KILLED ON THE STAGE.

"Aim for my head," said Prof. H. F. Sartelle, an illusionist, in a little street-side dime museum in Lynn, Mass., on Thanksgiving night, as he stood on the stage in front of a rifle he had just loaded that was held in the hands of a stranger in his audience, who after much urging had consented to act the part of shooter on behalf of the auditors. The man fired and the illusionist fell with a groan to the floor. He was instantly killed. The bullet, a 44-calibre slug, entered his neck just at the left of the jugular vein and imbedded itself in his spine. The wound was a ghastly one. The weapon is termed a trick rifle. The bullet, by a combination, should have fallen into a receptacle, and when the rifle was fired remained in the barrel of the rifle, while he appeared to catch it in his mouth and return it to the firer. Many in the audience supposed that the falling was a part of the trick, and left the hall without even a suspicion of the tragedy that had been enacted. Those who had seen the feat performed before became alarmed at Sartelle not finishing the act, and when he was turned over and found to be a dead man the little audience hastened from the house in horror. The was no possible complicity in the shooting.

THE BUSH-LEAVITT DENVER THEATRE.

The last New York Dramatic News contains exterior and interior views of the magnificent new theatre that the Denver capitalist, Mr. Wm. H. Bush, owner of the famed Windsor Hotel and Windsor stock-farm, is to erect for Manager M. B. Leavitt in that city. The building was to have been built this year, but Mr. Bush's extended tour to Europe and the Exposition has delayed its commencement. Manager Leavitt has a money interest in the enterprise and a ten-years lease of the theatre.

The plans submitted by J. M. Wood, the theatrical architect, have been accepted. Work will begin at once and be put through with a rush. It is proposed to open the new house on August 18, 1890. The theatre will be run in connection with the New Bush Street Theatre and the California circuit, presenting the leading attractions of this country and Europe. It will cost about $250,000, and will have a seating capacity of 1800. It will be known as the Broadway Theatre, being located on the corner of Broadway and Eighteenth avenue, in the most growing part of the city.

HOW AN ELEPHANT KEPT THANKSGIVING.

The wires tell us that Sannesheim & Valentine, a West Point, Neb., business firm, imported a real live elephant by rail intending to use him as an advertisement of their business, but when the noble animal found out that he was to be put to such a base purpose in an almost unknown little Nebraska town, all the professional pride o his royal nature was aroused, and he revolted forcibly. He broke loose, and started in to clean out the town. He cavorted up and down its streets knocking things right and l ft, and then att cked its buildings bodily. He leisurely went to work to clean out its principal saloons; then gutted a livery stable; crossed the street, knocking in the entire glass front of Brown Bros.' new block; turned his attention to the Depot; drug store, crushing in the side of the building and doing a lar e amount of damage. After four hours of such work and creating the liveliest picnic that West Point ever had, he began to think he had punished the town enough for the insult offered him, and allowed somebody to gently lead him back to the depot. The railroad company was respectfully requested by a committee of indignant citizens to take that elephant out of town, immediately.

Barry & Fay close their season at the Park Theatre, N. Y., Nov. 30th.

The scenic artists, stage carpenters and mechanics of the Grand Opera House are all hard at work, and mean to give the patrons of that house a pleasant surprise in the way of realistic and effective scenery in the production of

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Ben Stern is a San Francisco raised boy, and like Marcus Mayer and a dozen more of our young men who have embarked in the theatrical managing business and have gone East, he has made his mark successfully in sensational expedients. He is managing the new spectacle of "Kajanka," which opens at Niblo's, New York, December 2nd. The wires tell us that the New Yorkers were startled by cats—hundreds of cats—thronging the streets of that city, yesterday afternoon, bearing conspicuous labels announcing the opening of "Kajanka" tied around their necks. Of course everybody was talking about it, and the desired advertising was effected. It was Stern's racket. He had advertised for 5,000 cats wanted at the stage door in the morning, and took them and had them labeled as fast as they came in. He secured some 2,000 at the cost of a gallery seat for every cat-bearing boy for some night in the week following. "Kajanka" will be with us by and by, and if it comes in the Summer we are authorized to state that the lively agent will repeat the experiment here with San Francisco fleas as advertising distributors.

Joseph Jefferson and W. J. Florence have had so much success as joint stars and are so well satisfied with their new venture that they have arranged to continue together during all of next season, opening in New York at the Star Theatre early next Fall. One or two old comedies will be added to their repertory, including "The Poor Gentleman," and it is likely that a double bill will be arranged in which the distinguished comedians will be seen in at least two of their best parts.

Wilson Barrett has just finished the first act of the new play with which he will open his new theatre in London next September. It is founded on the story of "The Boudman," an English novel.

Miss Marie Wainwright continues to meet with very great success as Viola in her new and handsome production of "Twelfth Night," which she presents in New York for the first time, December 16th, at the Fifth Avenue Theatre.

The Oakland and Boston baseball teams attended the performance of "Featherbrain" at the Bush St. Theatre Friday night and were assigned private boxes.

An opera season is announced at the Bijou Opera House to commence Dec. 9th. The singers include Annie Gleason, Mme. Billoni, M'lle Atlanta Webster, Ida Valerga, Lena Spengler, M'lle Guerrine and Theresa Harnet; Enrico Campobello, Charles Thrower, Karl Formes, Roberto Stantini, Signor Zapelli, Signor Convelli, Frank Valerga and others. A large repertory is announced

Friday's dispatches tell us that the Globe Theatre, Boston, escaped burning in the Thanksgiving fire only by the most determined efforts of John Stetson and the attaches of the house, the roof brigade, who were driven from that most exposed portion of the theatre to the fire several times by the heat, but returned to the fight again, and not only saved the theatre but prevented the fire from extending across the street. Francis Wilson and his "Oolah" burlesque opera company were playing there at the time, and took all their wardrobe and movable effects out of the theatre. It appears to have been a very narrow escape for the historic Globe Theatre of Boston

Prof. Herrmann, the magician, has leased Dockstader's Theatre, New York, for five years and will turn it into a combination theatre to be known as Herrmann's Comedy Theatre. It will open in August, 1890, most probably with Herrmann's "Transatlantique Vaudevilles."

"The Charity Ball," Belasco and De Mille's new play, was produced at the Lyceum Theatre, N. Y., lately, and Manager Daniel Frohman has added another to the long list of successes.

Frank Mayo and his son, Edwin, will play a two weeks' engagement at the Bush, beginning December 9th, opening in "Nordeck."

The Keogh Comedy Company open at the Bush Street Theatre next week, for one week only, with the new eccentric comedy in three acts, entitled "Kleptomania," by Mark Melford, the author of the very amusing comedy, "Turned Up," which proved such a success with Nat Goodwin and his company.

That ship's skylight that is in the foyer of the Grand Opera House belongs to to the steamer "Australasian" in the play of "Hands Across the Sea," and will have its proper place in the saloon deck of that steamer on the Grand's stage next week. The whole stage will be thrown open for the steamer scene, and we shall see a stage steamer "the like of which we have never looked upon before."

Milton Nobles puts in the week of December 2nd at the California Theatre in his comedy, "Love and Law," after closing his season at the Grand. See his special announcement elsewhere in FIGARO.

Commencing with next week the managerial firm of the Grand Opera House will be Maguire, Rial & Osbourne; Manager Jay Rial taking a proprietary interest, and looking after the business appertaining to the front of the Grand. Mr. George Osbourne, who has purchased a firm interest, will cast his fortunes with the house, have charge of all the stage business, and will give the strength of his alliance to the company. Manager Maguire will, besides looking after his Northwestern and Montana theatres, attend to the circuit engagements playing at the Grand and his houses. This will give the Grand administrative strength in its departments and insure success in all.

Fanny Davenport played "La Tosca" for the benefit of the local lodge of Elks at Utica, N. Y., recently, before an

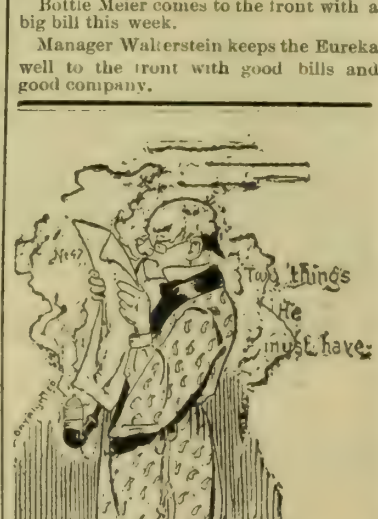
SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

A San Diego dispatch states that Peter Johnson, proprietor of the Standard Theatre, attempted to leave that town on Thanksgiving Day without paying numerous bills and the salaries he owed to parties connected with the house. He was stopped by a constable and made to disgorge $400. When released he left on the first train for the East, and the San Diegonians went on with their thanksgiving with greater zeal than ever. It has been the fate of variety performers in San Diego to have been victimized by a series of rascally managers heretofore, and we are glad that this one was made to pay up.



"The Twelve Temptations," with new novelties and specialties added to it, will be produced at the Star Theatre, N. Y., the second week in December.

T. S. Baldwin, the æronaut, who originated and made the first parachute descensions from a balloon in this city, writes to E. S. Haswell, of Morosco's business staff, that he is coming to San Francisco early in December to winter here. We will probably have some notable balloon ascensions by and by.

Chiarini's Circus will make an extended tour in Mexico, going by rail, during this Winter.

Bottie Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and only paper that publishes their full programmes

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

Miss Maddern closes her engagement in "Featherbrain on Sunday night. But for Saturday's matinee, Miss Maddern will appear in Steele Mackaye's adaptation of Bardou's famed play of "Agnes," entitled "In Spite of All;" in which she played the heroine at the Lyceum Theatre, New York, for 60 nights, displaying, according to the criticism of the time, "an exquisite sensibility and the power of presenting womanly pathos in a way that seizes the universal heart." * * * "Winning from her audiences the very highest tribute of bedimmed eyes and throbbing breasts."

Miss Maddern's Alice Clandenning is certainly a strong performance, mentally and artistically, as well as being of a high emotional order. We wish the lady had revived her success earlier in the season at the Bush. Mr. Faversham, Mr. Osbourne and company generally rendered good support.

"Featherbrain" has received strong encomiums from the press, and will be the bill for Miss Maddern's last nights, Saturday and Sunday.

Mr George Osbourne, who has done such good work in both plays, leaves the company this week to take up residence with us permanently.

The Keogh Comedy Company put in next week at the Bush in a new farce comedy by Frank Melford, entitled "Kleptomania." Mr. Melford is the author of the laugh-provoking comedy, "Turned Up," that Nat Goodwin's company made such a success in at this theatre. "Kleptomania" has been running for near 1,000 nights in London and the English provinces. The comedian, Edward J. Henley, and a good company will appear in the play.

Alcazar Theatre.

"A Noble Rogue," Steele Mackaye's five-act comedy-drama, will be the Alcazar's attraction this week, with John Jack, John Armstrong, Ned Thayer Miss Emmie Wilmot and Miss Nellie Young added to the company

The scenic effects of the play include a steamship sixty feet in length, the great Chicago drawbridge and other notable stage illustions, all of which have been remarkably well produced by the Alcazar's mechanical staff. The Clark-street bridge is the scene of an episode of the play, where a gang of scoundrels attempt to do away with a railroad millionaire, and the whole effect is fine

Mr. E J. Buckley plays the outlawed hero with force and vim, and Miss Ethel Brandon is, as usual, notably good as the heroine, Miss Grace Mortimer. John Jack comes in as the railroad king, and sustains the role very effectively. The various characters have due attention paid to them, and the whole performance is a creditable one for company and stage artisans.

Next week, the frontier drama "Ranch 10."

Grand Opera House.

Milton Nobles presents for his last week here his original melodrama of "The Phoenix," in which he sustains his famous character of Carroll Graves, a rattlebrained New York story-writing Bohemian, with Dollie Nobles in her charming impersonation of Sadie, the flower girl. The play opens in New York. The first act has a big sensational fire scene admirably put on at the Grand and actually realistic in its effects. The second act has a startling gambling house conflict in Texas, and the whole play bristles with action and has many amusing incidental scenes in relief.

Mr. Nobles acts with all his old time vigor and intensity, and sustains his triple role of Graves, Bludso and the old French tourists with individual flavor and versatility. Miss Dollie Nobles also plays a dual role and shows how good and how pleasing an actress she is in doing so. The company is really a strong one in character acting, and carry the interesting supporting roles very ably.

A grand production of that great melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," a success in three continents, with Miss Isabel Morris, Mr. Geo. Osbourne and Mr. William Morris in the principal roles will be a big feature at the Grand next week; for it will be a markedly noted production of this spectacular drama. The scene on the deck of the steamer Australasian occupies the full stage, with the steamer head on towards the audience. The deck of the vessel between bulwarks will be 34 feet wide On this the action takes place. The whole structure will be an absolute realism, with a waterscape of sea extending around the steamer like an ocean. The steamer's skylight is to be seen in the foyer of the Grand. It is 5 feet by 10, and is as genuine as they make them.

New California Theatre

Last week of Bolossy Kiralfy's grand ballet spectacle, "Antiope," at the California Theatre, and it is sufficient to add that it is a Kiralfy production, and a new one, and abounds in tableaux, marches, grand ballets and entertaining specialty features.

In pieces of this kind the play is not the thing, but the features introduced in it. "Antiope" is rich in specialties. The ballet, tableaux, marches and scenery are all diverting to the eye, and the notable specialty features are the solo dance by Helena Konradt; the dancing of the Parisian premier, Mlle. Paris; the illusions shown by Yank Hoe and Omene; the gavotte by Miss Alice Gilbert; the Spanish dance by Carmencita; the athletic exhibition by the Pialras, and the performance of the Tissots. Miss Gilbert introduces the dance in long skirts, made so popular in the East by the Gaiety troupe, of which she was a member, and is very pleasing and graceful. Carmencita's dancing is of the genuine Spanish type, and totally different from the ordinary stage dancing, and Arnold Kiralfy's grotesque dancing is the best on the stage.

Milton Nobles puts in a farewell week at the California in his comedy success, "Love and Law," next week, positively his last nights in San Francisco.

Orpheum Theatre.

This week there will be an entire change of bill at the Orpheum in the production of the sensational comedy of "Cad, the Tom Boy," Carrie Swain's success, sustained by a well selected company, under the management of Horace Ewing. Miss Freddie Stocdmeyer plays the rollicking Cad, and sustains the various assumptions of character with spirit. Miss Ewing and the company in support do creditable work. The play is very well mounted.

See announcement.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

"Richard III" will has a very elaborate production at Morosco's this week, with Darrell Vinton as Richard, E. J. Holden as Richmond, and the whole company in the cast. Particular attention has been paid to the mounting and costuming of the tragedy and its careful representation throughout.

"Richard" is a great go at Morosco's. It is seldom since the days of the elder Keene and Booth that the good old tragedy has been received with such enthusiasm as it is greeted with at this house. Vinton is strong in the part, and Morosco ought to give him a horse for his good work. He calls earnestly for one.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast in programme [elsewhere in our columns.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The races of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association will close at the Bay District Course on some day next week, of which due notice will be given—probably Tuesday.

The races on Thanksgiving Day were largely attended and gave great satisfaction,

The events for the last day are: One and one-sixteenth of a mile for a purse of $400, three-year-olds and upwards; a three-quarter of a mile dash for two-year-olds, non-winners, for a $350 purse; the Holiday Handicap, a big event, $500 purse and entries, one and three-eighths; and a one mile race, Owners' Handicap, for a $350 purse.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe are filling the Union every night.

Montague's contribution to the bill is his comedy of "The Outcasts," with most of the company in the cast.

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's comedy has the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness.

Those popular favorites, Thatcher & Drew, have been re-engaged, and add their humorous sketches to the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Big Bertha, the Confidence Queen, is here and appears in Ned Nestell's local comedy-bearing her name, and founded on her adventures every night. Also Miss Jennie Heywood, the favorite vocalist, in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Sully & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed. Holman engineers the business department with energy and success and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Jennie Fowler and Ed. Soldene are the new faces here.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the new comedy of "Remnants," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Jennie Fowler, Blanche Long, Rose Devere, Helena Richman, Tommy Glenn, Ed. Soldene and others.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

Prof. Paul, ventriloquist, and the Bailey Sisters, vocalists, are the new faces here.

The Polks, musical artists and Tyrolean warblers, and all the company appear in a minstrel first part this week.

The olio acts are "Under a Cloud," Prof Paul's and the Polks' specialties.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, Marie Mortmo, J. D. Fox, Rosa Stange and others.

Bottle Meier's is the popular north-end resort. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horse-shoe gallery of larger houses.

Eureka Music Hall

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Pete Smith and Lottie Ellis, popular performers, and pretty Pearl Iola, are late comers, and J. M. Bennett, comedian and vocalist, is new.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell Lulu Martell, Addie Bennett, Mamie Woods, Billy Akarman and John Merritt make up the company.

The first part is a Female Minstrel one with songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

The olio piece is the comedy of "Papa's Baby Boy," with Akarman, Pete Smith and most of the ladies in the cast.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

Our imported actors all smoke the Pipe and "Seal of North Carolina Plug Cut." It's English, you know.

If you are troubled with bald spots, or falling out of hair, by all means use Diefenbacher's Hair Tonic. It is invaluable. Try it and be convinced. Its merits are well attested. All his testimonials are from well-known people in San Francisco.

DR. HENLEY'S REMEDIES.—"Nothing succeeds like success" is a general truth, but when applied to the phenomenal success of Dr. Henley's remedies, especially his IXL Bitters and Tamarack, the saying has peculiar force. The sale of these beneficial preparations is enormous throughout the United States, and it is gratifying to know that it is fast becoming a standard remedy in the principal cities of Europe.

A NEW COMEDY SUCCESS.

A Boston dispatch tells us that Wm. H. Crane made a most pronounced hit at the Hollis Street Theatre, in that city, on Monday night, in his first production of a new four-act comedy by the late David D. Lloyd and Sydney Rosenfeld, entitled "The Senator." The dispatch says: "'The Senator' proved to be a tremendous success, and is universally pronounced a surprisingly fine comedy, fully equal to anything produced in the last ten years.

"Mr. Crane's Senator Hannibal Rivers was a splendid personation, although it was apparent that he was somewhat nervous. He was called before the curtain several times. Sydney Rosenfeld, one of the authors of the play, was also honored with a call. Mr. Crane's supporting-company came in for a liberal share of the almost continuous applause.

The play is superbly st

KILLED ON THE STAGE.

"Aim for my head," said Prof. H. F. Sartelle, an illusionist, in a little street-side dime museum in Lynn, Mass., on Thanksgiving night, as he stood on the stage in front of a rifle he had just loaded that was held in the hands of a stranger in his audience, who after much urging had consented to act the part of shooter on behalf of the auditors. The man fired and the illusionist fell with a groan to the floor. He was instantly killed. The bullet, a 44-calibre slug, entered his neck just at the left of the jugular vein and imbedded itself in his spine. The wound was a ghastly one. The weapon is termed a trick rifle. The bullet, by a combination, should have fallen into a receptacle, and when the rifle was fired remained in the barrel of the rifle, while he appeared to catch it in his mouth and return it to the firer. Many in the audience supposed that the falling was a part of the trick, and left the hall without even a suspicion of the tragedy that had been enacted. Those who had seen the feat performed before became alarmed at Sartelle not finishing the act, and when he was turned over and found to be a dead man the little audience hastened from the house in horror. The was no possible complicity in the shooting.

THE BUSH-LEAVITT DENVER THEATRE.

The last New York Dramatic News contains exterior and interior views of the magnificent new theatre that the Denver capitalist, Mr. Wm. H. Bush, owner of the famed Windsor Hotel and Windsor stock-farm, is to erect for Manager M. B. Leavitt in that city. The building was to have been built this year, but Mr. Bush's extended tour to Europe and the Exposition has delayed its commencement. Manager Leavitt has a money interest in the enterprise and a ten-years lease of the theatre.

The plans submitted by J. M. Wood, the theatrical architect, have been accepted. Work will begin at once and be put through with a rush. It is proposed to open the new house on August 18, 1890. The theatre will be run in connection with the New Bush Street Theatre and the California circuit, presenting the leading attractions of this country and Europe. It will cost about $250,000, and will have a seating capacity of 1800. It will be known as the Broadway Theatre, being located on the corner of Broadway and Eighteenth avenue, in the most growing part of the city.

HOW AN ELEPHANT KEPT THANKSGIVING.

The wires tell us that Sannesheim & Valentine, a West Point, Neb., business firm, imported a real live elephant by rail intending to use him as an advertisement of their business, but when the noble animal found out that he was to be put to such a base purpose in an almost unknown little Nebraska town, all the professional pride of his royal nature was aroused, and he revolted forcibly. He broke loose, and started in to clean out the town. He cavorted up and down its streets knocking things right and left, and then attacked its buildings bodily. He leisurely went to work to clean out its principal saloons; then gutted a livery stable; crossed the street, knocking in the entire glass front of Brown Bros.' new block; turned his attention to the Depot drug store, crushing in the side of the building and doing a large amount of damage. After four hours of such work and creating the liveliest picnic that West Point ever had, he began to think he had punished the town enough for the insult offered him, and allowed someone to gently lead him back to the depot. The railroad company was respectfully requested by a committee of indignant citizens to take that elephant out of town, immediately.

Milton Nobles puts in this—his last—week at the California Theatre in his comedy, "Love and Law."

The scenic artists, stage carpenters and mechanics of the Grand Opera House have been hard at work, and give the patrons of that house a pleasant surprise in the way of realistic and

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Ben Stern is a San Francisco raised boy, and like Marcus Mayer and a dozen more of our young men who have embarked in the theatrical managing business and have gone East, he has made his mark successfully in sensational expedients. He is managing the new spectacle of "Kajanka," which opens at Niblo's, New York, December 2nd. The wires tell us that the New Yorkers were startled by cats—hundreds of cats—thronging the streets of that city, Thursday afternoon, bearing conspicuous labels announcing the opening of "Kajanka" tied around their necks. Of course everybody was talking about it, and the desired advertising was effected. It was Stern's racket. He had advertised for 5,000 cats wanted at the stage door in the morning, and took them and had them labeled as fast as they came in. He secured some 2,000 at the cost of a gallery seat for every cat-bearing boy for some night in the week following. "Kajanka" will be with us by and by, and if it comes in the Summer we are authorized to state that the lively agent will repeat the experiment here with San Francisco fleas as advertising distributors.

Miss Marie Wainwright continues to meet with very great success as Viola in her new and handsome production of "Twelfth Night," which she presents in New York for the first time, December 16th, at the Fifth Avenue Theatre.

Joseph Jefferson and W. J. Florence have had so much success as joint stars and are so well satisfied with their new venture that they have arranged to continue together during all of next season, opening in New York at the Star Theatre early next Fall. One or two old comedies will be added to their repertory, including "The Poor Gentleman," and it is likely that a double bill will be arranged in which the distinguished comedians will be seen in at least two of their best parts.

Wilson Barrett has just finished the first act of the new play with which he will open his new theatre in London next September. It is founded on the story of "The Boudman," an English novel.

An opera season is announced at the Bijou Opera House to commence Dec. 9th. The singers include Annie Gleason, Mme. Billoni, M'lle Atlanta Webster, Ida Valerga, Lena Spengler, M'lle Guerrine and Theresa Harnet; Enrico Campobello, Charles Thrower, Karl Formes, Roberto Stantini, Signor Zapelli, Signor Convelli, Frank Valerga and others. A large repertory is announced.

Friday's dispatches tell us that the Globe Theatre, Boston, escaped burning in the Thanksgiving fire only by the most determined efforts of John Stetson and the attaches of the house, the roof brigade, who were driven from that most exposed portion of the theatre to the fire several times by the heat, but returned to the fight again, and not only saved the theatre but prevented the fire from extending across the street. Francis Wilson and his "Oolah" burlesque opera company were playing there at the time, and took all their wardrobe and movable effects out of the theatre. It appears to have been a very narrow escape for the historic Globe Theatre of Boston.

Prof. Herrmann, the magician, has leased Dockstader's Theatre, New York, for five years and will turn it into a combination theatre to be known as Herrmann's Comedy Theatre. It will open in August, 1890, most probably with Herrmann's "Transatlantique Vaudevilles."

"It is reported that Clara Louise Kellogg has grown so stout that she will probably have to retire from the stage." What for? Are they afraid she will break it down? The old stages used to bear Parepa Rosa's avoirdupois safely—and people were always ready to hear her sing.

"The Charity Ball," Belasco and De Mille's new play, was produced at the Lyceum Theatre, N. Y., lately, and Manager Daniel Frohman has added another to the long list of successes.

Frank Mayo and his son, Edwin, will play a two weeks' engagement at the Bush, beginning December 9th, opening in "Nordeck."

The Keogh Comedy Company open at the Bush Street Theatre this week, for one week only, with the new eccentric comedy in three acts, entitled "Kleptomania," by Mark Melford, the author of the very amusing comedy, "Turned Up," which proved such a success with Nat Goodwin and his company.

The steamer "Australasian" in the play of "Hands Across the Sea" at the Grand is a great set. The whole stage has been thrown open for the steamer scene, and we see a stage steamer "the like of which we have never looked upon before."

Commencing with this week the managerial firm of the Grand Opera House will be Maguire, Rial & Osbourne; Manager Jay Rial taking a proprietary interest, and looking after the business appertaining to the front of the Grand. Mr. George Osbourne, who has purchased a firm interest, will cast his fortunes with the house, have charge of all the stage business, and will give the strength of his alliance to the company. Manager Maguire will, besides looking after his Northwestern and Montana theatres, attend to the circuit engagements playing at the Grand and his houses. This will give the Grand administrative strength in its departments and insure success in all.

Fanny Davenport played "La Tosca" for the benefit of the local lodge of Elks at Utica, N. Y., recently, before an audience that represented $2,000.

Louis James has added "Ingomar" to his repertory for this season. He has just purchased a new romantic play founded on Spanish history, which he

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

A San Diego dispatch states that Peter Johnson, proprietor of the Standard Theatre, attempted to leave that town on Thanksgiving Day without paying numerous bills and the salaries he owed to parties connected with the house. He was stopped by a constable and made to disgorge $400. When released he left on the first train for the East, and the San Diegonians went on with their thanksgiving with greater zeal than ever. It has been the fate of variety performers in San Diego to have been victimized by a series of rascally managers heretofore, and we are glad that this one was made to pay up.

"The Twelve Temptations," with new novelties and specialties added to it, will be produced at the Star Theatre, N. Y., the second week in December.

T. S. Baldwin, the æronaut, who originated and made the first parachute descensions from a balloon in this city, writes to E. S. Haswell, of Morosco's business staff, that he is coming to San Francisco early in December to winter here. We will probably have some notable balloon ascensions by and by.

Chiarini's Circus will make an extended tour in Mexico, going by rail, during this Winter.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Lenvitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

The Keogh Comedy Company put in this week at the Bush in a new farce comedy by Frank Melford entitled "Kleptomania." Mr. Melford is the author of the laugh-provoking comedy, "Turned Up," that Nat Goodwin's company made such a success in at this theatre. "Kleptomania" has been running for near 1,000 nights in London and the English provinces. The comedian, Edward J. Henley, and a good company will appear in the play.

The adventures of a lady who is a kleptomaniac, the complications her eccentricities involve the dramatic personages of the play in, and the plots and counterplots originated to avoid them and cure the kleptomaniac of her propensities, will be found to form the subject of the very amusing comedy.

Alcazar Theatre.

This week, the frontier drama, "Ranch 10"—the tenth ranch on the road from Cheyenne to Laramie—a play stirring with good characters and dramatic life, is revived at the Alcazar. Its great popularity insures good business.

The piece is well known, and turns on the misfortunes in love of the McClelland twin brothers, involving false accusations, narrow escapes, murder, the burning of the ranch house, a great explosion scene, etc.

The cast includes E. J Buckley, who plays the dual role of Al and Tom McClelland, Leo Cooper in his old part of Jo Kebook, John Jack, Scott Cooper, Louis Belmour, Harry A. Clark and Stockwell, who is inimitable as the old Judge. The female parts will be tak n by Ethel Brandon, Fanny Young, Nellie Buckley and Freddie Stockmeyer, a new addition to the Alcazar company.

Grand Opera House.

A grand production of that great melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," a success in three continents, with Miss Isabel Morris, Mr. Geo. Osbourne and Mr. William Morris in the principal roles will be a big feature at the Grand this week; for it will be a markedly noted production of this spectacular drama.

The scenic effects are notably elaborate. The opening act represents an English harvest scene festival, with farm house and waving fields of grain, a wagon loaded with realistic hay, real horses and everything to make a picture of a quiet English country home.

In the 2nd and 3rd acts are some fine scenes in Paris; hotel, prison and street scenes. In the following act we have the great sea scene. The scene on the deck of the steamer Australasian occupies the full stage, with the steamer head on towards the audience. The deck of the vessel between bulworks will be 34 feet wide On this the action takes place. The whole structure will be an absolute realism, with a waterscape of sea extending around the steamer like an ocean. In this act there is a realistic rescue of two wrecked men from an open boat at sea.

The last act gives a grand panoramic view of Sydney harbor, painted from photographs, and a view of the penal settlement in New Caledonia. Every scene is new from the brush of Wilkins and assistants.

New California Theatre

Milton Nobles puts in a farewell week at the California in his comedy success, "Love and Law," this week, positively his last nights in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Nobles are popular favorites and careful and able artists, their plays have merit to back them and their company is a well selected and capable one. Result, effective performances.

"Love and Law" is a wholesome comedy of New York life with fine dramatic climaxes and a goodly line of character, of the modern school of to-day, well pitted against each other in the play.

Orpheum Theatre.

The management of the Orpheum prove their resources in producing talent by presenting "The Metropoliton Specialty Co.," all new to San Francisco, this week.

General seats, 25 cents: reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The comedian and character actor from the fornia here in the sensational border drama of "The Boy Scout of the Sierras." The play is Californian.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast in programme [elsewhere in our columns.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The postponed race of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association at the Bay District Course will come off on Tuesday or Wednesday. Two extra days' racing will be given on the following days if the weather remains settled.

All bets and pools sold for last Saturday's race have been declared off.

The events for the last day are: One and one-sixteenth of a mile for a purse of $400, three-year-olds and upwards; a three-quarter of a mile dash for two-year-olds, non-winners, for a $350 purse; the Holiday Handicap, a big event, $500 purse and entries, one and three-eighths; and a one mile race, Owners' Handicap, for a $350 purse.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe are filling the Union every night.

Montague contributes three pieces, "The Sculptor's Dilemma," "The Prima Donna" and "Four Married Men," this week.

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's comedy has the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness.

Those popular favorites, Thatcher & Drew, have been re-engaged, and add their humorous sketches to the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Big Bertha, the Confidence Queen, is here and appears in Ned Nestell's local comedy-bearing her name, and founded on her adventures every night. Also Miss Jennie Heywood, the favorite vocalist, in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Sully & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed. Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Jennie Fowler and Ed. Soldene are the new faces here.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the new comedy of "Remnants," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Jennie Fowler, Blanche Long, Rose Devere, Helena Richman, Tommy Glenn, Ed. Soldene and others.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

Prof. Paul, ventriloquist, and the Bailey Sisters, vocalists, are the new faces here.

The Polke, musical artists and Tyrolean warblers, and all the company appear in a minstrel first part this week.

The olio acts are "Under a Cloud." Prof. Paul's and the Polke' specialties.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, Marie Mortno, J. D. Fox, Rosa Stange and others.

Bottle Meier's is the popular north-end resort. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horse-shoe gallery of larger houses.

Eureka Music Hall

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Pete Smith and Lottie Ellis, popular performers, and pretty Pearl Iola, are late comers, and J. M. Bennett, comedian and vocalist, is new.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell Lulu Martell, Addie Bennett, Mamie Woods, Billy Akarman and John Merritt make up the company.

The first-part is a Female Minstrel one with songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

The olio piece is the comedy of "Papa's Baby Boy," with Akarman, Pete Smith and most of the ladies in the cast.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

If you are troubled with bald spots, or falling out of hair, by all means use Diefenbacher's Hair Tonic. It is invaluable. Try it and be convinced. Its merits are well attested. All

DR. HENLEY'S REMEDIES.—"Nothing succeeds like success" is a general truth, but when applied to the phenomenal success of Dr. Henley's remedies, especially his XL Bitters and Tamarack, the saying has peculiar force. The sale of these beneficial preparations is enormous throughout the United States, and it is gratifying to know that it is fast becoming a standard remedy in the principal cities of Europe.

THE BALLET DANCER.

BY A SOUBRETTE.

With complexion like the rose.
'Mid the snows,
Due to powder on her nose,
I suppose;
She twirls upon her toes
In abbreviated clothes,
And exhibits spangled hose
To the beaux.

When cruel time bestows
Adipose,
Fairy parts and all those
She outgrows,
Then murmuringly she goes
To the very hindmost rows,
To pirouette and pose
With the crows.

When life frayed and faded grows,
Like her bows,
She in garret sits and sews
Furbelows
Till her weary eyeHds close
In the peace of Death's repose.
Is she reaping what she sows?
Heaven knows!

NOT A TALE OF WOE.

On Farmer Jones' farm there stands
An old persimmon tree,
The fruit a wishful gaze commands,
'Tis handsome as can be.

But Willie Jones and Sister Jane
Walk calmly by the bough.
Two relatives they lost in pain,
And they are cautious now.

Messrs. Jefferson and Taylor have engaged seventeen people for their "Hands Across the Sea" Co., which will open at the Grand Opera House, Philadelphia, this week, and at the Grand Opera House, New York, December 2d. We are to have a splendid production of "Hands Across the Sea" at the Grand Opera House in this city on December 2nd, got up from Eastern models and in a most effective manner. All the stage hands of the Grand with considerable extra force are hard at work on it. This spectacular drama requires big stages to produce its effects advantageously. It will be the attraction of three Grand Opera Houses at the same time. Mr. Charles Jefferson, the son of Joseph Jefferson, the famous American comedian, one of the owners of the American rights of the drama, is on his way here to superintend the details of the

A NEW COMEDY SUCCESS.

A Boston dispatch tells us that Wm. H. Crane made a most pronounced hit at the Hollis Street Theatre, in that city, on Monday night, in his first production of a new four-act comedy by the late David D. Lloyd and Sydney Rosenfeld, entitled "The Senator." The dispatch says: "'The Senator' proved to be a tremendous success, and is universally pronounced a surprisingly fine comedy, fully equal to anything produced in the last ten years.

"Mr. Crane's Senator Hannibal Rivers was a splendid personation, although it was apparent that he was somewhat nervous. He was called before the curtain several times. Sydney Rosenfeld, one of the authors of the play, was also honored with a call. Mr. Crane's support

EXPLANATORY.

Some malicious person has started the report that the following little poem, which we published yesterday, and republish to-day to set a false report at rest, was written by Bolossy Kiralfy in a spirit of revengeful satire after the strike his ballet girls made at the hotel on Sunday night. We wish to disavow this rumor at once. Mr. Kiralfy had no hand in i s composition or diction; and we doubt very much if he has enough of the poetic element in his nature to write anything of the kind. The poem in question was written by a chorus girl, who has no pretentions for the ballet, but hopes to be a singing soubrette by and by.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

An infant hippopotamus was born in the New York Central Park menagerie on the morning of Dec. 1st, a bouncing baby weighing 40 pounds. The mother, who weighs 4,000 pounds, and is known by the name of Fatima Murphy, takes the liveliest interest in the new-comer, and seems the happiest mother alive. She quickly responds to the baby's cry of "Maa," in accents much like those of a calf, and answers in the bulbul notes of her basso-profundo grunt and acts as if she was tickled half to death. She follows it around wherever it goes and promises to take the best care of it. FIGARO suggests that the interesting infant be christened Graceful Murphy.

We have received an eight-page souvenir programme from Manager John Cort, issued for the opening of his New Standard Theatre, Seattle, which must give a condensed directory of the leading firms in Seattle, judging from the number of business cards in it. It is printed in bronze, with an engraving of the New Standard for a heading with Manager Cort's handsome features modestly gracing one corner of the title page.

"The Twelve Temptations," with new novelties and specialties added to it, will be produced at the Star Theatre, N. Y., the second week in December.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

Milton Nobles puts in this—his last—week at the California Theatre in his comedy, "Love and Law."

The steamer "Australasian" in the play of "Hands Across the Sea" at the Grand is a great set. The whole stage has been [illegible] for the steamer scene, and

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Mrs. Bettie Padelford, who Manager Conried had the honor to introduce to us at the Grand Opera House last Winter as one of his company, created a sensation in Los Angeles and another in Portland before leaving this coast, and was the subject of a funny adventure in New York. A dispatch states that Marie Williams resigned from Dixey's "Seven Ages" lightly clad company and Mrs. Padelford was given her place. One of the girls asserted that the new-comer was Mrs. Leslie Carter of Chicago, and insisted that Padelford was "that horrid woman," upon which there was a strike orginated by the girls of the company, who declared their reputations would be [illegible] with that woman. Upon being assured of their mistake they withdrew their objection and became pacified with Padelford.

The recent exposure of the financially distressed condition of the Kiralfy ballet girls has awakened generous impulses in the hearts of some of our oldest citizens ever alive to the appeals of the orphans, and a "Ballet Relief Fund Company" has been organized as the result to relieve their pressing wants. All benevolently inclined persons with shining crowns of wisdom on their heads are invited to become members, or send in contributions to the cause. The office is—well, now we have forgotten whether it is in the Pioneers' Building or in the Academy of Sciences' Building. It is in one of the two.

Milton and Dollie Nobles are booked to open in Chicago New Years week.

The excellent actress, Jean Clara Walters, plays an important part in "Kleptomania" at the Bush this week.

Bob Slavin, of the Primrose & West Minstrels, is reported to be very ill at Fitchburg, Mass.

Marguerite Fish replaces May Yohe in the "City Directory." Charley Reed has not left the company.

Mrs. Brown Potter will begin a three months' engagement in Australia next April, supported by Mr. Bellew, having signed a contract to that effect with Garner, Williamson & Musgrove.

"Hands Across the Sea" had its 100th consecutive performance at the Boston Museum on Thanksgiving Eve.

"The Spider and the Fly" opened in Ming's Opera House, in Helena, last night, to the best house ever recorded. This is Manager Leavitt's spectacular piece that will regale us at the Bush in holiday times.

Manager M. B. Leavitt is en route this way to pass the Winter in San Francisco.

Miss Marie Wainwright continues to meet with very great success as Viola in her new and handsome production of "Twelfth Night," which she presents in New York for the first time, December 16th, at the Fifth Avenue Theatre.

Joseph Jefferson and W. J. Florence have had so much success as joint stars and are so well satisfied with their new venture that they have arranged to continue together during all of next season, opening in New York at the Star Theatre early next Fall. One or two old comedies will be added to their repertory, including "The Poor Gentleman," and it is likely that a double bill will be arranged in which the distinguished comedians will be seen in at least two of their best parts.

An opera season is announced at the Bijou Opera House to commence Dec. 9th. The singers include Annie Gleason, Mme. Billoni, M'lle Atlanta Webster, Ida Valerga, Lena Spengler, M'lle Guerrine and Theresa Harnet; Enrico Campobello, Charles Thrower, Karl Formes, Roberto Stantini, Signor Zapelli, Signor Convelli, Frank Valerga and others. A large repertory is announced

"It is reported that Clara Louise Kellogg has grown so stout that she will probably have to retire from the stage." What for? Are they afraid she will break it down? The old stages used to bear Parepa Rosa's avoirdupois safely—and people were always ready to hear her sing.

Frank Mayo and his son, Edwin, will play a two weeks' engagement at the Bush, beginning December 9th, opening in "Nordeck."

The Keogh Comedy Company open at the Bush Street Theatre this week, for one week only, with the new eccentric comedy in three acts, entitled "Kleptomania," by Mark Melford, the author of the very amusing comedy, "Turned Up," which proved such a success with Nat Goodwin and his company.

Commencing with this week the managerial firm of the Grand Opera House will be Maguire, Rial & Osbourne; Manager Jay Rial taking a proprietary interest and looking [illegible] the business and entertaining to the front of the Grand. Mr. George Osbourne also has purchased a firm interest, will cast his fortunes with the house, have charge of all the stage [illegible] and devote his time to his alliance to the company. Manager Maguire will, besides looking after his Northwestern and Montana theatres, attend to the [illegible] at the Grand administrative strength in its departments and insure success in all.

Fanny Davenport played "La Tosca" for the benefit of the local lodge of Elks at Utica, N. Y., recently, before an audience that represented $2,000.

Louis James has added "Ingomar" to his repertory for this season. He has just purchased a new romantic play founded on Spanish history, which he proposes to give an elaborate production next year.

THE BUSH-LEAVITT DENVER THEATRE.

The last New York Dramatic News contains exterior and interior views of the magnificent new theatre that the Denver capitalist, Mr. Wm. H. Bush, owner of the famed Windsor Hotel and Windsor stock-farm, is to erect for Manager M. B. Leavitt in that city. The building was to have been built this year, but Mr. Bush's extended tour to Europe and the Exposition has delayed its commencement. Manager Leavitt has a money interest in the enterprise and a ten-years lease of the theatre.

The plans submitted by J. M. Wood, the theatrical architect, have been accepted. Work will begin at once and be put through with a rush. It is proposed to open the new house on August 18, 1890. The theatre will be run in connection with the New Bush Street Theatre and the California circuit, presenting the leading attractions of this country and Europe. It will cost about $250,000, and will have a seating capacity of 1800. It will be known as the Broadway Theatre, being located on the corner of Broadway and Eighteenth avenue, in the most growing part of the city.

The scenic artists, stage carpenters and mechanics of the Grand Opera House have been hard at work, and give the patrons of that house a pleasant surprise in the way of realistic and effective scenery in the production of "Hands Across the Sea."

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

The Keogh Comedy Company put in this week at the Bush in a new farce comedy by Frank Melford entitled "Kleptomania." Mr. Melford is the author of the laugh-provoking comedy, "Turned Up," that Nat Goodwin's company made such a success in at this theatre. "Kleptomania" has been running for near 200 nights in London and the English provinces. The comedian, Edward J. Henley, and a good company appear in the play.

The adventures of a lady who is a kleptomaniac, the complications her eccentricities involve the dramatic personages of the play in, and the plots and counterplots originated to avoid them and cure the kleptomaniac of her propensities, form the subject of the very amusing comedy.

The Call gives Mr Henley credit for his clever character acting as Prof. Andrew Smalley, L. L. D., and says he "makes neat play with the eccentric comedy of the part, and there are many quaint and dainty little turns of speech, or witticisms, somwhat in the burlesquer Byron's way, but more delicate, the full purpose of which he makes apparent with much astuteness." The same journal also commends Miss Jean Clara Walters for her impersonation of the Kleptomanical Lady Josephine, and Miss Mary Hampton, Miss Kathlynne Heron and Mr. David Elmer for their successful renditions.

The whole action of the play takes place in Major-General Blair's drawing-room at Cambridge, an elegant and very handsome stage setting. This comedy has only this week's allotment at the Bush. The attendance was good.

Frank Mayo and his Eastern company are dated for next week. Mr. Mayo opens in his picturesque and romantic play of "Nordeck," bringing his own scenery, appointments, company and costumes.

Seats on sale on Thursday.

Alcazar Theatre.

This week, the frontier drama, "Ranch 10"—the tenth ranch on the road from Cheyenne to Laramie—a play stirring with good characters and dramatic life, is revived at the Alcazar. Its great popularity insures good business.

The piece is well known, and turns on the misfortunes in love of the McClelland twin brothers, involving false accusations, narrow escapes, murder, the burning of the ranch house, a great explosion scene, etc.

The cast includes E. J. Buckley, who plays the dual role of Al and Tom McClelland, Leo Cooper in his old part of Jo Kebook, John Jack, Scott Cooper, Louis Belmour, Harry A. Clark and Stockwell, who is inimitable as the old Judge. The female parts are taken by Ethel Brandon, Fanny Young, Nellie Buckley and Freddie Stockmeyer, a new addition to the Alcazar company.

The whole cast is strong. John Jack and Miss Stockmeyer, the new-comers, play their parts very cleverly. The piece is played as well as it ever was at this house, and that is saying much for the performance.

Grand Opera House.

A grand production of that great melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," a success in three continents, with Miss Isabel Morris, Mr. Geo. Osbourne and Mr. William Morris in the principal roles, is a big feature at the Grand this week; for it is a markedly noted production of this spectacular drama.

"Hands Across the Sea" is not a lurid melodrama with red hands but on the contrary a very interesting drama of cultured life and its vicissitudes, with startling and effective situations. It is prolific of stage effects, and, as the Call says, "The management of the Grand has covered the production with a perfect wealth of scenery."

The scenic effects are notably elaborate. The opening act represents an English harvest scene festival, with farm house and waving fields of grain, a wagon loaded with realistic hay, real horses and everything to make a picture of a quiet English country home.

In the 2nd and 3rd acts are some fine scenes in Paris; hotel, prison and street scenes. In the following act we have the great sea scene. The scene on the deck of the steamer Australasian occupies the full stage, with the steamer head on towards the audience. The deck of the vessel between bulworks is just 34 feet wide On this the action takes place. The whole structure seems an absolute realism, with an extended sky all around the steamer like on the ocean.

The last act gives a fine view of Sydney harbor, painted from photographs. Every scene is new from the brush of Wilkins and assistants.

The three principal roles are in capable hands. Miss Isabel Morris gives a lady-like and forcible characterization of the heroine. Mr. Morris makes a manly and vigorous hero, and Mr. Osbourne gives us one of his artistic clear-cut pieces of character acting as the French society scamp, Jean De Lussac, in which he has but few rivals on the stage. Lorimer Johnston plays the part of Tom Bassett with easy manners and good methods, and the many male characters are well sustained; and the female roles have adequate justice done to them by Miss Kate Chester, Miss Rose Easton and Miss De Mar.

The first production at the Grand under the new management of Maguire, Rial & Osbourne was successfully launched before a house crowded in all its tiers, and bids fair to have a goodly voyage with the steady wind of popular favor swelling its sails and sales.

New California Theatre.

Milton Nobles puts in a farewell week at the California in his comedy success, "Love and Law," this week—positively his last nights in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Nobles are popular favorites and careful and able artists, their plays have merit to back them and their company is a well selected and capable one. Result, effective performances.

"Love and Law" is a wholesome comedy of New York life with fine dramatic climaxes and a goodly line of characters, of the modern school of to-day, well pitted against each other in the play. Mr. Nobles appears in a favorite character, Felix O'Paff from Dublin, an Irish lawyer who is filled with American ideas and desires to become a leading citizen of the United States, and plays it in his usual earnest and magnetic way. Dollie Nobles is charming as Rita, an Italian street-singer. The company do their usual good and careful work under the training of their efficient head, who is an excellent stage manager.

Next week we are to have "Hans the Boatman" at the California.

Orpheum Theatre.

The management of the Orpheum prove their resources in producing talent by presenting "The Metropoliton Specialty Co.," all new to San Francisco, this week.

Besides the full Vaudeville Company, the novelty of the Sleeping Beauty Ballet and a Chinese Comic Ballet Pantomime, are features on the bill.

A special performance will be given on Friday night for the benefit of J. W. (Slide) Kelly, the monologist, under the auspices of the ballplayers of the California League.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The comedian and character actor from the Halsted Street Comedy Theatre, Chicago, Mr. F. K. Wallace, puts in his first week in California here in the sensational border drama of "The Boy Scout of the Sierras." The play is Californian. The first act takes place at the ranch of Colonel Vallijo, in Napa Valley. The other acts are in the Sierras and Lava Beds.

Mr. Wallace does some very commendable work as Dan O'Reilly, and proves himself a good singer as well as good actor.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The postponed race of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association at the Bay District Course will come off on Thursday. Two extra days' racing will be given on the following days. The last meeting of the season.

The events for Thursday are: One and one-sixteenth of a mile for a purse of $400, three-year-olds and upwards; a three-quarter of a mile dash for two-year-olds, non-winners, for a $350 purse; the Holiday Handicap, a big event, $500 purse and entries, one and three-eighths; and a one mile race, Owners' Handicap, for a $350 purse.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe are filling the Union every night.

Montague contributes three pieces, "The Sculptor's Dilemma," "The Prima Donna" and "Four Married Men," this week.

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's plays have the element of hilarity very prominent in them, the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness.

Those popular favorites, Thatcher & Drew, have been re-engaged, and add their humorous sketches to the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ned Nestell produces his pictures of Army life this week, with zouave and other drills, camp songs and camp life, etc. Ned Nestell served in the war and is posted by experience.

Big Bertha, the Confidence Queen, is here, with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Sully & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed. Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

Gilmore & West's Male and Female Minstrels are new this week.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "A Live Subject," with the company the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Jennie Fowler, Blanche Long, Alice Dale, Helena Richman, John Gilmore, George West and Minstrels.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

Prof. Paul, ventriloquist, and the Bailey Sisters, vocalists, are the new faces here.

The Polks, musical artists and Tyrolean warblers, and all the company appear in a minstrel first part this week.

The olio acts are Fox's "Hospital," "Mesmerism," Professor Paul's and the Polks' specialties.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, Marie Mortno, J. D. Fox, Rosa Stange and others.

Bottle Meier's is the popular north-end resort. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horse-shoe gallery of larger houses.

Eureka Music Hall

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Pete Smith and Lottie Ellis, popular performers, and pretty Pearl Iola, are late comers, and J. M. Bennett, comedian and vocalist, is new.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell Lulu Martell, Addie Bennett, Mamie Woods, Billy Akarman and John Merritt make up the company.

The first part is a Female Minstrel one with songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

The olio piece is the comedy of "Papa's Baby Boy," with Akarman, Pete Smith and most of the ladies in the cast.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

DR. HENLEY'S REMEDIES.—"Nothing succeeds like success" is a general truth, but when applied to the phenomenal success of Dr. Henley's remedies, especially his IXL Bitters and Tamarack, the saying has peculiar force. The sale of these beneficial preparations is enormous throughout the United States, and it is gratifying to know that it is fast becoming a standard remedy in the principal cities of Europe.

A NEW COMEDY SUCCESS.

A Boston dispatch tells us that Wm. H. Crane made a most pronounced hit at the Hollis Street Theatre, in that city, on Monday night, in his first production of a new four-act comedy by the late David D. Lloyd and Sydney Rosenfeld, entitled "The Senator." The dispatch says: "'The Senator' proved to be a tremendous success, and is universally pronounced a surprisingly fine comedy, fully equal to anything produced in the last ten years.

"Mr. Crane's Senator Hannibal Rivers was a splendid personation, although it was apparent that he was somewhat nervous. He was called before the curtain several times. Sydney Rosenfeld, one of the authors of the play, was also honored with a call. Mr. Crane's supporting company came in for a liberal share of the almost continuous applause.

EXPLANATORY.

Some malicious person has started the report that the following little poem, which we published yesterday, and republish to-day to set a false report at rest, was written by Bolossy Kiralfy in a spirit of revengeful satire after the strike his ballet girls made at the hotel on Sunday night. We wish to disavow this rumor at once. Mr. Kiralfy had no hand in its composition or diction; and we doubt very much if he has enough of the poetic element in his nature to write anything of the kind, and it will be seen by this morning's papers that the little difficulty between him and his ballet girls has been amicably settled. The poem in question was written by a chorus girl, who has no pretentions for the ballet, but hopes to be a singing soubrette by and by.

THE BALLET DANCER.

BY A SOUBRETTE.

With complexion like the rose.
'Mid the snows,
Due to powder on her nose,
I suppose;
She twirls upon her toes
In abbreviated clothes,
And exhibits spangled hose
To the beaux.

When cruel time bestows
Adipose,
Fairy parts and all those
She outgrows,
Then murmuringly she goes
To the very uttermost rows,
To pirouette and pose
With the crows.

When life frayed and faded grows,
Like her bows,
She in garret sits and sews
Furbelows
Till her weary eyelids close
In the peace of Death's repose.
Is she reaping what she sows?
Heaven knows!

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

An infant hippopotamus was born in the New York Central Park menagerie on the morning of Dec. 1st, a bouncing baby weighing 40 pounds. The mother, who weighs 4,000 pounds, and is known by the name of Fatima Murphy, takes the liveliest interest in the new-comer, and seems the happiest mother alive. She quickly responds to the baby's cry of "Maa," in accents much like those of a calf, and answers in the bullbul notes of her basso-profundo grunt and acts as if she was tickled halt to death. She follows it around wherever it goes and promises to take the best care of it. FIGARO suggests that the interesting infant be christened Grace.ul Murphy.

We have received an eight-page souvenir programme from Manager John Cort, issued for the opening of his New Standard Theatre, Seattle, which must give a condensed directory of the leading firms in Seattle, judging from the number of business cards in it. It is printed in bronze, with an engraving of the New Standard for a heading with Manager Cort's handsome features modestly gracing one corner of the title page.

T. S. Baldwin, the æronaut, who originated and made the first parachute descensions from a balloon in this city, writes to E. S. Haswell, of Morosco's business staff, that he is coming to San Francisco early in December to winter here. We will probably have some notable balloon ascensions by and by.

Chiarini's Circus will make an extended tour in Mex co, going by rail, during this Winter.

Bertie Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Wolfertstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

Milton Nobles puts in this—his last week at the California Theatre in his comedy, "Love and Law."

The steamer "Australasian" in the play of "Hands Across the Sea" at the Grand is a great set. The whole stage has been

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Mr. Al Hayman, manager of the Baldwin and California Theatres, returned Tuesday, and will pass the Winter in San Francisco.

Charley Cook, of the Baldwin's staff, returned in company with Manager Hayman from Denver, where he had been piloting one of the Baldwin's attractions thus far Eastward. It is the farthest venture from home the youngling has yet made—though he hopes to smoke his cigarette on Brooklyn Bridge some day.

The recent exposure of the financially distressed condition of the Kiralfy ballet girls has awakened generous impulses in the hearts of some of our oldest citizens ever alive to the appeals of the orphans, and a "Bald-Headed Ballet Trust Company" has been organized as the result to relieve their pressing wants. All benevolently inclined persons with shining crowns of wisdom on their heads are invited to become members, or send in contributions to the cause. The office is—well, now we have forgotten whether it is in the Pioneers' Building or in the Academy of Sciences' Building. It is in one of the two. The fact that Kiralfy has since settled up with his ballet will have no bearing upon the formaton of the society or the benevolence of its object. Other emergencies may arise in the future. Other ballets may be stranded on our shores, and the B. H. B. T. Co. will ever be ready to offer the services in such cases of the Good Samaritan. The society has come to stay. Come up, ye Bald-Heads, and fall into the ranks.

Mrs. Bettie Padelford, who Manager Conried had the honor to introduce to us at the Grand Opera House last Winter as one of his company, created a sensation in Los Angeles and another in Portland before leaving this coast, and was the subject of a funny adventure in New York. A dispatch states that Marie Williams resigned from Dixey's "Seven Ages" lightly clad company and Mrs. Padelford was given her place. One of the girls asserted that the new-comer was Mrs. Leslie Carter of Chicago, and insisted that Padelford was "that horrid woman," upon which there was a strike orginated by the girls of the company, who declared their reputations would be ruined if they acted with that woman. Upon being assured of their mistake they withdrew their objection and became pacified with Padelford.

Milton and Dollie Nobles are booked to open in Chicago New Years week.

"Hands Across the Sea" had its 100th consecutive performance at the Boston Museum on Thanksgiving Eve.

"The Spider and the Fly" opened in Ming's Opera House, in Helena, Monday night, to the best house ever recorded. This is Manager Leavitt's spectacular piece that will regale us at the Bush in holiday times.

Manager M. B. Leavitt is en route this way to pass the Winter in San Francisco.

Miss Marie Wainwright continues to meet with very great success as Viola in her new and handsome production of "Twelfth Night," which she presents in New York for the first time, December 16th, at the Fifth Avenue Theatre.

Joseph Jefferson and W. J. Florence have had so much success as joint stars and are so well satisfied with their new venture that they have arranged to continue together during all of next season, opening in New York at the Star Theatre early next Fall. One or two old comedies will be added to their repertory, including "The Poor Gentleman," and it is likely that a double bill will be arranged in which the distinguished comedians will be seen in at least two of their best parts.

An opera season is announced at the Bijou Opera House to commence Dec. 9th. The singers include Annie Gleason, Mme. Billom, M'lle Atlanta Webster, Ida Valerga, Lena Spengler, M'lle Guerrine and Theresa Harnet; Enrico Campobello, Charles Thrower, Karl Formes, Roberto Stantini, Signor Zapelli, Signor Convelli, Frank Valerga and others. A large repertory is announced

"It is reported that Clara Louise Kellogg has grown so stout that she will probably have to retire from the stage." What for? Are they afraid she will break it down? The old stages used to bear Parepa Rosa's avoirdupois safely—and people were always ready to hear her sing.

Frank Mayo and his son, Edwin, will play a two weeks' engagement at the Bush, beginning December 9th, opening in "Nordeck."

The Keogh Comedy Company open at the Bush Street Theatre this week, for one week only, with the new eccentric comedy in three acts, entitled "Kleptomania," by Mark Melford, the author of the very amusing comedy, "Turned Up," which proved such a success with Nat Goodwin and his company.

Commencing with this week the managerial firm of the Grand Opera House will be Maguire, Rial & Osbourne; Manager Jay Rial taking a proprietary interest, and looking after the business appertaining to the front of the Grand. Mr. George Osbourne, who has purchased a firm interest, will cast his fortunes with the house, have charge of all the stage business, and will give the strength of his alliance to the company. Manager Maguire will, besides looking after his Northwestern and Montana theatres, attend to the circuit engagements playing at the Grand and his houses. This will give the Grand administrative strength in its departments and insure success in all.

THE BUSH-LEAVITT DENVER THEATRE.

The last New York Dramatic News contains exterior and interior views of the magnificent new theatre that the Denver capitalist, Mr. Wm. H. Bush, owner of the famed Windsor Hotel and Windsor stock-farm, is to erect for Manager M. B. Leavitt in that city. The building was to have been built this year, but Mr. Bush's extended tour to Europe and the Exposition has delayed its commencement. Manager Leavitt has a money interest in the enterprise and a ten-years lease of the theatre.

The plans submitted by J. M. Wood, the theatrical architect, have been accepted. Work will begin at once and be put through with a rush. It is proposed to open the new house on August 18, 1890. The theatre will be run in connection with the New Bush Street Theatre and the California circuit, presenting the leading attractions of this country and Europe. It will cost about $250,000, and will have a seating capacity of 1800. It will be known as the Broadway Theatre, being located on the corner of Broadway and Eighteenth avenue, in the most growing part of the city.

The scenic artists, stage carpenters and mechanics of the Grand Opera House have been hard at work, and give the patrons of that house a pleasant surprise in the way of realistic and effective scenery in the production of "Hands Across the Sea."

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Lovitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

The Keogh Comedy Company put in this week at the Bush in a new farce comedy by Frank Melford, entitled "Kleptomania." Mr. Melford is the author of the laugh-provoking comedy, "Turned Up," that Nat Goodwin's company made such a success in at this theatre. "Kleptomania" has been running for near 1,000 nights in London and the English provinces. The comedian, Edward J. Henley, and a good company appear in the play.

The adventures of a lady who is a kleptomaniac, the complications her eccentricities involve the dramatic personages of the play in, and the plots and counterplots originated to avoid them and cure the kleptomaniac of her propensities, form the subject of the very amusing comedy.

The Call gives Mr Henley credit for his clever character acting as Prof. Andrew Smalley, L. L. D., and says he "makes neat play with the eccentric comedy of the part, and there are many quaint and dainty little turns of speech, or witticisms, somwhat in the burlesquer Byron's way, but more delicate, the full purpose of which he makes apparent with much adroitness." The same journal also commends Miss Jean Clara Walters for her impersonation of the Kleptomanical Lady Josephine, and Miss Mary Hampton, Miss Kathlynne Heron and Mr. David Elmer for their successful renditions.

The whole action of the play takes place in Major-General Blair's drawing-room at Cambridge, an elegant and very handsome stage setting. This comedy has only this week's allotment at the Bush. The attendance was good.

Frank Mayo and his Eastern company are dated for next week. Mr. Mayo opens in his picturesque and romantic play of "Nordeck," bringing his own scenery, appointments, company and costumes.

Seats on sale on Thursday.

Alcazar Theatre.

This week the frontier drama, "Ranch 10"—the tenth ranch on the road from Cheyenne to Laramie—a play stirring with good characters and dramatic life, is revived at the Alcazar. Its great popularity insures good business.

The piece is well known, and turns on the misfortunes in love of the McClelland twin brothers, involving false accusations, narrow escapes, murder, the burning of the ranch house a great explosion scene, etc.

The cast includes E. J. Buckley who plays the dual role of Al and Tom McClelland; Leo Cooper in his old part of Jo Rebook, John Jack and Cooper, Louis Belmour, Harr, A. Clark and Stockwell, who is inimitable as the old Judge. The female parts are taken by Ethel Brandon, Fanny Young, Nellie Buckley and Freddie Stockmeyer, a new addition to the Alcazar company.

The whole cast is strong. John Jack and Miss Stockmeyer, the new-comers, play their parts very cleverly. The piece is played as well as it ever was at this house, and that is saying much for the performance.

Grand Opera House.

A grand production of that great melo-drama, "Hands Across the Sea," a success in three continents, with Miss Isabel Morris, Mr. Geo. Osbourne and Mr. William Morris in the principal roles, is a big feature at the Grand this week, for it is a markedly noted production of this spectacular drama.

"Hands Across the Sea" is not a lurid melo-drama with red hands, but on the contrary a very interesting drama of cultured life and its vicissitudes, with startling and effective situations. It is prolific of stage effects, and, as the Call says, "The management of the Grand has covered the production with a perfect wealth of scenery."

The scenic effects are notably elaborate. The opening act represents an English harvest home festival, with farm house and wagon loads of grain, a wagon loaded with real sheaves and real horses and everything to make a picture of a quiet English country home.

In the 2nd and 3rd acts are some fine scenes in Paris; hotel, prison and street scenes. In the closing act we have the great sea scene. The scene on the deck of the steamer Australasian occupies the full stage, with the steamer vessel between bulwarks is just 34 feet wide. On this the action takes place. The whole structure seems an absolute realism, with an extended sky all around the steamer like on the ocean.

The last act gives a fine view of Sydney harbor, painted from photographs. Every scene is new from the brush of Wilkins and assistants.

The three principal roles are in capable hands. Miss Isabel Morris gives a lady-like and forcible characterization of the heroine. Mr. Morris makes a manly and vigorous hero, and Mr. Osbourne gives us one of his artistic clear-cut pieces of character acting as the French society scamp, Jean De Lussac, in which he has but few rivals on the stage. Lorimer Johnston plays the part of Tom Bassett with easy manners and good methods, and the many male characters are well sustained; and the female roles have adequate justice done to them by Miss Kate Chester, Miss Rose Easton and Miss De Mar.

The first production at the Grand under the new management of Maguire, Rial & Osbourne was successfully launched before a house crowded in all its tiers, and bids fair to have a goodly voyage with the steady wind of popular favor swelling its sails and sales.

New California Theatre.

Milton Nobles puts in a farewell week at the California in his comedy success, "Love and Law," this week—positively his last nights in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Nobles are popular favorites and careful and able artists, their plays have merit to back them and their company is a well selected and capable one. Result, effective performances.

"Love and Law" is a wholesome comedy of New York life with fine dramatic climaxes and a goodly line of characters, of the modern school of to-day, well pitted against each other in the play. Mr. Nobles appears in a favorite character, Felix O'Paff from Dublin, an Irish lawyer who is filled with American ideas and desires to become a leading citizen of the United States, and plays it in his usual earnest and magnetic way. Dollie Nobles is charming as Rita, an Italian street-singer. The company do their usual good and careful work under the training of their efficient head, who is an excellent stage manager.

Next week we are to have "Hans the Boatman" at the California.

Orpheum Theatre.

The management of the Orpheum prove their resources in producing talent by presenting "The Metropolitan Specialty Co.," all new to San Francisco, this week.

Besides the full Vaudeville Company, the novelty of the Sleeping Beauty Ballet and a Chinese Comic Ballet Pantomime, are features on the bill.

A special performance will be given on Friday night for the benefit of J. W. (Slide) Kelly, the monologist, under the auspices of the ball-players of the California League.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The comedian and character actor from the Halsted Street Comedy Theatre, Chicago, Mr. F. K. Wallace, puts in his first week in California here in the sensational border drama of "The Boy Scout of the Sierras." The play is Californian. The first act takes place at the ranch of Colonel Vallejo, in Napa Valley. The other acts are in the Sierras and Lava Beds.

Mr. Wallace does some very commendable work as Dan O'Reilly, and proves himself a good singer as well as good actor.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The postponed race of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association at the Bay District Course will come off on Thursday. Two extra days' racing will be given on the following days. The last meeting of the season.

The events for Thursday are: One and one-sixteenth of a mile for a purse of $400, three-year-olds and upwards; a three-quarter of a mile dash for two-year-olds, non-winners, for a $350 purse; the Holiday Handicap, a big event, $500 purse and entries, one and three-eighths; and a one mile race, Owners' Handicap, for a $350 purse.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe are filling the Union every night.

Montague contributes three pieces, "The Sculptor's Dilemma," "The Prima Donna" and "Four Married Men," this week.

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's plays have the element of hilarity very prominent in them, the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness.

Those popular favorites, Thatcher & Drew, have been re-engaged, and add their humorous sketches to the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ned Nestell produces his pictures of Army life this week with reveille and other drills, camp scenes and camp fires. Ned Nestell served in the war and is posted by experience.

Big Bertha, the Confidence Queen, is here, with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Sully & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateurs to

Original Theatre Comique.

Gilmore & West's Male and Female Minstrels are new this week.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "A Live Subject," with the company the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Jennie Fowler, Blanche Long, Alice Dale, Helena Richman, John Gilmore, George West and Minstrels.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

Prof. Paul, ventriloquist, and the Bailey Sisters, vocalists, are the new faces here.

The Polks, musical artists and Tyrolean warblers, and all the company appear in a minstrel first part this week.

The olio acts are Fox's 'Hospital," and "Mesmerism." Prof. Paul's and the Polks' specialties. All good.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, J. D. Fox, Rosa Stange and others.

Bottle Meier's is the popular north-end resort. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horse-shoe gallery of larger houses.

Eureka Music Hall

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Pete Smith and Lottie Ellis, popular performers, and pretty Pearl Iola, are late comers, and Charles Morrell, comedian, vocalist and banjoist, returns to the fold this week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell Lulu Martell, Addie Bennett, Mamie Woods, Billy Akarman and John Merritt make up the company.

The first-part is a Female Minstrel one with songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

The olio piece is the comedy of "Papa's Baby Boy," with Akarman, Pete Smith and most of the ladies in the cast.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

DR. HENLEY'S REMEDIES.—"Nothing succeeds like success" is a general truth, but when applied to the phenomenal success of Dr. Henley's remedies, especially his IXL Bitters and Tamarack, the saying has peculiar force. The sale of these beneficial preparations is enormous throughout the United States, and it is gratifying to know that it is fast becoming a

A NEW COMEDY SUCCESS.

A Boston dispatch tells us that Wm. H. Crane made a most pronounced hit at the Hollis Street Theatre, in that city, on Monday night, in his first production of a new four-act comedy by the late David D. Lloyd and Sydney Rosenfeld, entitled "The Senator." The dispatch says: "'The Senator' proved to be a tremendous success, and is universally pronounced a surprisingly fine comedy, fully equal to anything produced in the last ten years.

"Mr. Crane's Senator Hannibal Rivers was a splendid personation, although it was apparent that he was somewhat nervous. He was called before the curtain several times. Sydney Rosenfeld, one of the authors of the play, was also honored with a call. Mr. Crane's sup-

EXPLANATORY.

Some malicious person has started the report that the following little poem, which we published yesterday, and republish to-day to set a false report at rest, was written by Bolossy Kiralfy in a spirit of revengeful satire after the strike his ballet girls made at the hotel on Sunday night. We wish to disavow this rumor at once. Mr. Kiralfy had no hand in its composition or diction; and we doubt very much if he has enough of the poetic element in his nature to write anything of the kind, and it can be seen by yesterday's papers that the little difficulty between him and his ballet girls has been amicably settled. The poem in question was written by a chorus girl, who has no pretentions for the ballet, but hopes to be a singing soubrette by and by.

THE BALLET DANCER.

BY A SOUBRETTE.

With complexion like the rose,
'Mid the snows,
Due to powder on her nose,
I suppose;
She twirls upon her toes
In abbreviated clothes,
And exhibits spangled hose
To the beaux.

When cruel time bestows
Adipose,
Fairy parts and all these
She outgrows,
Then in numerary ply the goes
To the very bin most rows,
In procession and pose
With the crows.

When life frayed and faded grows,
Like her bows,
She in garlands and rews
Furbelows
Th' hr weary eyelids close
In the peace of Death's repose.
Is she regretful who left she rows?
Heaven knows!

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

"The Great Metropolis," the holiday piece to be produced at the Grand Opera House, has made a tremendous success in every city where it has been seen. Messrs. Sweatnam & Hoyt have been unable to fill engagements, the cities there they were already booked the play for nearly the entire season of 1890-91 at the largest terms ever given to any combination. Since the play left New York it has been drawing overflowing audiences, and the marvelous stage effect, a shipwreck scene, has created a positive furore in every city where it has been presented.

Miss M. E. Seawell, with the assistance of Frederic Robinson of the Madison Square Theatre, New York, has dramatized her story, "Maud Marian," published some years ago in Lippincott's Magazine. It will be produced January 9th at the National Theatre, Washington. Lititia Aldrich, who is a niece of William Stewart, will star in it, supported by the following company: Mrs. Sol Smith, Alice Brown, Marie Le Gro, Ed Clifford, Daniel Jarrett, J. A. Holland, Marie Madison, Sedley Brown and Charles Jehlinger. The entire house for the special performance has already been bespoken by friends of the star.

The 100th representation of Bronson Howard's "Shenandoah" was celebrated simultaneously at Proctor's Theatre, New York, and McVicker's Theatre, Chicago, on the 3d inst., by the distribution of handsome souvenirs in book-form containing silhouettes of scenes from the play, as well as the New York and Chicago casts.

John D. Townsend has brought suit against the widow of Lester Wallack for legal services. H. C. Miner is getting up a benefit at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, the proceeds of which are to go to liquidate any judgment that the court may allow the plaintiff.

Kate Castleton of the "Paper Doll" company was taken suddenly ill at Indianapolis recently. Her sister, Ida Freeman, played her part, at only ten minutes' notice.

Kittie Mayhew is to have a new play, which she will shortly produce in New York.

The managers of the "Great Metropolis" have a great head for enterprise, as shown by a recent dispatch from Philadelphia, which reads as follows: Capt. Clark, of the Life Saving Crew, drove tandem through the streets of the city to-day throwing $50, all in pennies, to the newsboys and bootblacks who scampered after him.

An infant hippopotamus was born in the New York Central Park menagerie on the morning of Dec. 1st, a bouncing baby weighing 40 pounds. The mother, who weighs 4,000 pounds, and is known by the name of Fatima Murphy, takes the liveliest interest in the new-comer, and seems the happiest mother alive. She quickly responds to the baby's cry of "Maa," in accents much like those of a calf, and answers in the bulbul notes of her basso-profundo grunt and acts as if she was tickled half to death. She follows it around wherever it goes and promises to take the best care of it. FIGARO suggests that the interesting infant be christened Graceful Murphy.

One London dispatch, of the 3d inst. says that one of Barnum's elephants had killed his keeper by goring him with his tusks, and another of the same date states: Nick and Mandarin, two of Barnum's elephants, were playing with each other that afternoon while their keeper, George Stephens, was cleaning Nick's stall. The ground was slippery from frost. Nick slipped in trying to avoid one of Mandarin's playful blows. In slipping he fell against Stephens, who was crushed to death. Between the two dispatches it is evident that a keeper was killed.

Chiarini's Circus will make an extended tour in Mexico, going by rail, during this Winter.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Sophie Eyre and company left to-day for Denver to open at Tabor's Opera House on Monday night in "Claire, or the Forgemaster." After playing a round of characters for two weeks in Denver Miss Eyre will play over Maguire's Montana circuits. The whole season will be played under Mr. Maguire's management.

There has been a big sale for the Italian opera season at the Auditorium, Chicago. The wires report the amount realized exceed $150,000; and figures can't lie, you know.

Mr. Al Hayman, manager of the Baldwin and California Theatres, returned Tuesday, and will pass the Winter in San Francisco.

Charley Cook, of the Baldwin's staff, returned in company with Manager Hayman from Denver, where he had been piloting one of the Baldwin's attractions thus far Eastward. It is the farthest venture from home the youngling has yet made—though he hopes to smoke his cigarette on Brooklyn Bridge some day.

The recent exposure of the financially distressed condition of the Kiralfy ballet girls has awakened generous impulses in the hearts of some of our oldest citizens, ever alive to the appeals of the orphans, and a "Bald-Headed Ballet Trust Company" has been organized as the result to relieve their pressing wants. All benevolently inclined persons with shining crowns of wisdom on their heads are invited to become members, or send in contributions to the cause. The office is—well, now we have forgotten whether it is in the Pioneers' Building or in the Academy of Sciences Building. It is in one of the two. The fact that Kiralfy has since settled up with his ballet will have no bearing upon the formaton of the society or the benevolence of its object. Other emergencies may arise in the future. Other ballets may be stranded on our shores, and the B. H. B. T. Co. will ever be ready to offer the services in such cases of the Good Samaritan. The society has come to stay. Come one, ye Bald Heads, and fall into the ranks.

Milton and Dolbie Nobles are booked to open in Chicago New Years week.

"Hands Across the Sea" had its 100th consecutive performance at the Boston Museum on Thanksgiving Eve.

"The Spider and the Fly" opened in Ming's Opera House, in Helena, Monday night, to the best house ever recorded. This is Manager Leavitt's spectacular piece that will regale us at the Bush in holiday times.

Manager M. B. Leavitt is en route this way to pass the Winter in San Francisco.

An opera season is announced at the Bijou Opera House to commence Dec. 9th. The singers include Annie Gleason, Mme. Billoni, M'lle Atlanta Webster, Ida Valerga, Lena Spengler, M'lle Guerrine and Theresa Harnet; Enrico Campobello, Charles Thrower, Karl Formes, Roberto Stantini, Signor Zapelli, Signor Convelli, Frank Valerga and others. A large repertory is announced

Frank Mayo and his son, Edwin, will play a two weeks' engagement at the Bush, beginning December 9th, opening in "Nordeck."

The Keogh Comedy Company open at the Bush Street Theatre this week, for one week only, with the new eccentric comedy in three acts, entitled "Kleptomania," by Mark Melford, the author of the very amusing comedy, "Turned Up," which proved such a success with Nat Goodwin and his company.

The steamer "Australasian" in the play of "Hands Across the Sea" at the Grand is a great set. The whole stage has been thrown open for the steamer scene, and we see a stage steamer "the like of which we have never looked upon before."

THE BUSH-LEAVITT DENVER THEATRE.

The last New York Dramatic News contains exterior and interior views of the magnificent new theatre that the Denver capitalist, Mr. Wm. H. Bush, owner of the famed Windsor Hotel and Windsor stock-farm, is to erect for Manager M. B. Leavitt in that city. The building was to have been built this year, but Mr. Bush's extended tour to Europe and the Exposition has delayed its commencement. Manager Leavitt has a money interest in the enterprise and a ten-years lease of the theatre.

The plans submitted by J. M. Wood, the theatrical architect, have been accepted. Work will begin at once and be put through with a rush. It is proposed to open the new house on August 18, 1890. The theatre will be run in connection with the New Bush Street Theatre and the California circuit, presenting the leading attractions of this country and Europe. It will cost about $250,000, and will have a seating capacity of 1800. It will be known as the Broadway Theatre, being located on the corner of Broadway and Eighteenth avenue, in the most growing part of the city.

The scenic artists, stage carpenters and mechanics of the Grand Opera House have been hard at work, and give the patrons of that house a pleasant surprise in the way of realistic and effective scenery in the production of "Hands Across the Sea."

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

The Keogh Comedy Company put in this week at the Bush in a new farce comedy by Frank Melford, entitled "Kleptomania." Mr. Melford is the author of the laugh-provoking comedy, "Turned Up," that Nat Goodwin's company made such a success in at this theatre. "Kleptomania" has been running for near [illegible] nights in London and the English provinces. The comedian Edward J. Henley, and a good company appear in the play.

The adventures of a lady who is a kleptomaniac, the complications her eccentricities involve the dramatic personages of the play in, and the plots and counterplots originated to avoid them and cure the kleptomaniac of her propensities, form the subject of the very amusing comedy.

The Call gives Mr. Henley credit for his clever character acting as Prof. Andrew Smalley, L. L. D., and says he "makes neat play with the eccentric comedy of the part, and there are many quaint and dainty little turns of speech, or witticisms, somewhat in the burlesquer Byron's way, but more delicate, the full purpose of which he makes apparent with much adroitness." The same journal also commends Miss Jean Clara Walters for her impersonation of the Kleptomanical Lady Josephine, and Miss Mary Hampton, Miss Kathlynne Heron and Mr. David Elmer for their successful renditions.

The whole action of the play takes place in Major-General Blair's drawing-room at Cambridge, an elegant and very handsome stage setting. This comedy has only this week's allotment at the Bush. The attendance was good.

Frank Mayo and his Eastern company are dated for next week. Mr. Mayo opens in his picturesque and romantic play of "Nordeck," bringing his own scenery, appointments, company and costumes.

Seats now on sale.

Alcazar Theatre.

This week, the frontier drama, "Ranch 10"—the tenth ranch on the road from Cheyenne to Laramie—a play stirring with good characters and dramatic life, is revived at the Alcazar. Its great popularity insures good business.

The piece is well known, and turns on the misfortunes in love of the McClelland twin brothers, involving false accusations, narrow escapes, murder, the burning of the ranch house, a great explosion scene, etc.

The cast includes E. J. Buckley, who plays the dual role of Al and Tom McClelland, Leo Cooper in his old part of Jo Kebook, John Jack, Scott Cooper, Louis Belmour, Harry A. Clark and Stockwell, who is inimitable as the old Judge. The female parts are taken by Ethel Brandon, Fanny Young, Nellie Buckley and Freddie Stockmeyer, a new addition to the Alcazar company.

The whole cast is strong. John Jack and Miss Stockmeyer, the new-comers, play their parts very cleverly. The piece is played as well as it ever was at this house, and that is saying much for the performance.

Leonard Grover's bright comedy of "Our Boarding House," sapient and amusing satire on the eccentricities of Chicago's business men and Chicago's boarding house society, will be next week's card at the Alcazar.

Grand Opera House.

A grand production of that great melo-drama, "Hands Across the Sea," a success in [illegible] with Miss Isabel Morris, Mr. Geo. Osbourne and Mr. William Morris in the principal roles, is the bill at the Grand this week; for it is a markedly noted production of this spectacular drama.

"Hands Across the Sea" is not a blood-and-thunder melo-drama with red fire to burn the scenery, a very little help in the line of sulphur, blue lights and pistol shots, but a drama of ordinary life and its vicissitudes, with startling and effective situations. It is prolific of stage effects, and, as the Call says, "The management of the Grand has covered the production with a perfect wealth of scenery."

The scenic effects are notably elaborate. The opening act represents an English harvest [illegible] festival, with farm house and waving fields of grain, a wagon loaded with realistic hay, real horses and everything to make a picture of a quiet English country home.

In the 2nd and 3rd acts are some fine scenes in Paris; hotel, prison and street scenes. In the following act we have the great sea scene. The scene on the deck of the steamer Australasian occupies the full stage, with the steamer head on towards the audience. The deck of the vessel between bulwarks is just 34 feet wide. On this the action takes place. The whole structure seems an absolute realism, with an extended sky and sea all around the steamer, like on the ocean.

The [illegible] gives a fine view of Sydney harbor, painted from photographs. Every scene is new from the brush of Wilkins and assistants.

The three principal roles are in capable hands. Miss Isabel Morris gives a lady-like and forcible characterization of the heroine Mr. Morris makes a manly and vigorous hero, and Mr. Osbourne gives us one of his artistic clear-cut pieces of character acting as the French society scamp, Jean De Lussac, in which he has but few rivals on the stage. Lorimer Johnston plays the part of Tom Bassett with easy manners and good methods, and the many male characters are well sustained; and the female roles have adequate justice done to them by Miss Kate Chester, Miss Rose Easton and Miss De Mar.

The first production at the Grand under the new management of Maguire, Rial & Osbourne was successfully launched before a house crowded in all its tiers, and bids fair to have a goodly voyage with the steady wind of popular favor swelling its sails and sales.

Business has been good through a succession of rainy nights.

Baldwin Theatre.

That brightest of comedies, "Henrietta," with Stuart Robson and its Eastern company, are in their last nights at the Baldwin, with a record of three weeks big business. We congratulate manager Wm. R. Hayden upon having one of the best attractions in the Union on his hands.

Next week comes the Duff Opera Company.

New California Theatre.

Milton Nobles puts in a farewell week at the California in his comedy success, "Love and Law," this week—positively his last nights in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Nobles are popular favorites and careful and able artists, their plays have merit to back them and their company is a well selected and capable one. Result, effective performances.

"Love and Law" is a wholesome comedy of New York life with fine dramatic climaxes and a goodly line of characters, of the modern school of to-day, well pitted against each other in the play. Mr. Nobles appears in a favorite character, Felix O'Faff from Dublin, an Irish lawyer who is filled with American ideas and desires to become a leading citizen of the United States, and plays it in his usual earnest and magnetic way. Dollie Nobles is charming as Rita, an Italian street-singer. The company do their usual good and careful work under the training of their efficient head, who is an excellent stage manager.

Next week we are to have "Hans the Boatman" at the California, with Charles Arnold in the title role. Mr. Arnold is a sympathetic actor of the Joseph Emmet style, who has more high praise both in England and Australia. The play was written by Clay M. Greene in both countries.

Seats now on sale.

Orpheum Theatre.

The management of the Orpheum prove their resources in producing talent by presenting "The Metropolitan Specialty Co.," all new to San Francisco, this week.

Besides the full Vaudeville Company, the novelty of the Sleeping Beauty Ballet and a Chinese Comic Ballet Pantomime, are features on the bill.

A special performance will be given on Friday night for the benefit of J. W. (Slide) Kelly, the monologist, under the auspices of the ball-players of the California League.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The comedian and character actor from the Halsted Street Comedy Theatre, Chicago, Mr. F. K. Wallace, puts in his first week in California here in the sensational border drama of "The Boy Scout of the Sierras." The play is Californian. The first act takes place at the ranch of Colonel Vallejo, in Napa Valley. The other acts are in the Sierras and Lava Beds.

Mr. Wallace does some very commendable work as Dan O'Reilly, and proves himself a good singer as well as good actor.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The postponed race of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association at the Bay District Course is still held to await good weather and track. Due notice will be given of the day and meeting. Two extra days' racing will be given on the following days. The last meetings of the season.

The events for the last day are: One and one-sixteenth of a mile for a purse of $400, three-year-olds and upwards; a three-quarter of a mile dash for two-year-olds, non-winners, for a $[illegible] purse; the Holiday Handicap, a big event, $500 purse and entries, one and three-[illegible] miles; and a one mile race, Owners' Handicap, [illegible] purse.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, manager and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe are filling the Union every night.

Montague contributes three pieces. "The Sculptor's Dilemma," "The Prima Donna" and [illegible]

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

An infant hippopotamus was born in the New York Central Park menagerie on the morning of Dec. 1st, a bouncing baby weighing 40 pounds. The mother, who weighs 4,000 pounds, and is known by the name of Fatima Murphy, takes the liveliest interest in the new-comer, and seems the happiest mother alive. She quickly responds to the baby's cry of "Maa," in accents much like those of a calf, and answers in the bulbul notes of her basso-profundo grunt and acts as if she was tickled half to death. She follows it around wherever it goes and promises to take the best care of it. FIGARO suggests that the interesting infant be christened Graceful Murphy.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The great concert given in aid of the charitable fund of the San Francisco Polyclinic, which comes off at the Grand Opera House on Monday evening, the 16th, will call forth all the available musical talent, vocal and instrumental, professional and amateur of celerity, that there is in the city, besides all the full force of the Handel and Haydn Society's 600 voices, and the Oakland Harmonic Society's 80 voices. It will be a grand concert in reality.

Mme. Patti and Nicolini arrived in New York on the 5th. A notable change has occurred in Patti since her last visit to America. Her black luxuriant tresses are now the color of tow—in fact Patt has become a pronounced blonde. It makes such a change in her appearance that people not looking for it would not recognize her. After the Chicago Auditorium season Patti goes to Mexico for three weeks, coming from there for her two-weeks' season at the Grand Opera House, in this city.

The wires tell us that Dockstadter's Minstrel season at Dockstadter's Theatre, New York, closed on the 5th inst. A notice was placed on the door that Lew Dockstadter was sick. It was learned, however, that he and his wife left for Canada that afternoon. Before going, Mrs. Dockstadter told a friend that they were in terrible financial straits, and she had to pawn her jewelry for them to get out of the city.

Mme. Patti is going to build a small theatre at Craig-y-Nos, her home in Wales. It is to be one of the most beautiful little theatres in the world, and although it will seat only about 150 people, it will be as complete in all its details as the largest opera-house. It will be finished next Spring and Henry Irving will dedicate it.

Dispatches from Salt Lake chronicles the success of Chas. Arnold in "Hans the Boatman" at the Salt Lake Theatre last night, and claim for him great merit as actor, comedian and singer. We shall have him at the California Theatre next week.

"The Great Metropolis," the holiday piece to be produced at the Grand Opera House, has made a tremendous success in every city where it has been seen. Messrs. Klew & Erlanger have been unable to fill one-half of the dates offered. They have already booked the play for nearly the entire season of 1890-91 at the largest terms ever given to any combination. Since this play left New York it has been drawing overflowing audiences, and the marvellously effective shipwreck scene has created a positive furore in every city where it has been presented.

Miss M. E. Seawell, with the assistance of Frederic Robinson of the Madison Square Theatre, New York, has dramatized her story, "Maud Marian," published some years ago in Lippincott's Magazine. It will be produced January 9th at the National Theatre, Washington. Lillie Aldrich, who is a niece of William Stewart, will star in it, supported by the following company: Mrs. Sol Smith, Alice Brown, Marie Le Gro, Ed Clifford, Daniel Jarrett, J. A. Holland, Jarie Madison, Sedley Brown and Charles Jehlinger. The entire house for the special performance has already been bespoken by friends of the star.

Managers Maguire, Rial and Osbourne will produce their great holiday attraction, "The Great Metropolis," at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday evening, Dec. 17th, the night after the monster concert given at the Grand under the auspices of the San Francisco Polyclinics.

Manager H. C. Miner has arranged for two great benefit performances at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, on Dec. 17th and 19th for the purpose of establishing a room in first-class hospitals for the reception of firemen who may be injured while doing their duty.

George Jessop and William Gill have written a new comedy, entitled "American Assurance," which Roland Reed will produce next week.

At the Avenue Theatre, London, on Guy Fawke's day, the curtain, due at 8:15, did not pull up on "La Prima Donna" until 9:20. Why? Miss Sara Palma, the leading lady of the company, was a prisoner in the elevator of her hotel, where she was forced to remain one hour and twelve minutes, between the second and third floors, the "lift," through a break in the machinery, refusing to move up or down. The stage manager came before the curtain and explained.

William Gilbert, the popular comedian, is no longer connected with Daly's Theatre Company, owing to a misunderstanding between actor and manager.

Mrs. Annie Yeamans has sued Frank G. Tannehill to recover the sum of $100, which she claims he borrowed from her. Mr. Tannehill states that the lady employed him to write a play for which she was to pay him $5,000, and gave him $100 to bind the bargain. The play is ready and he asks judgment for $5,000.

Gilbert and Sullivan's forthcoming Venetian opera is called "The Dogged Doge," and treats of two gondoliers in love with two flower girls, and the plot is further complicated by the daughter of a nobleman, who is aware that one of the gondoliers is a Prince and is endeavoring to discover his identity, with a view to capturing him. Her father is one of the leading characters, and the fun is derived from the ludicrous situations in which love, vanity, pride, simplicity and ignorance involve the players.

The managers of the "Great Metropolis" have a great head for enterprise, as shown by a recent dispatch from Philadelphia, which reads as follows: Capt. Clark, of the Life Saving Crew, drove tandem through the streets of the city to-day throwing $50, all in pennies, to the newsboys and bootblacks who scampered after him.

Sophie Eyre and company left Thursday for Denver to open at Tabor's Opera House on Monday night in "Claire, or the Forgemaster." After playing a round of characters for two weeks in Denver Miss Eyre will play over Maguire's Montana circuits. The whole season will be played under Mr. Maguire's management.

There has been a big sale for the Italian opera season at the Auditorium, Chicago. The wires report the amount realized exceed $150,000; and figures can't lie, you know.

Milton and Dollie Nobles are booked to open in Chicago New Years week.

"Hands Across the Sea" had its 100th consecutive performance at the Boston Museum on Thanksgiving Eve.

"The Spider and the Fly" opened in Ming's Opera House, in Helena, Monday night, to the best house ever recorded. This is Manager Leavitt's spectacular piece that will regale us at the Bush in holiday times.

Manager M. B. Leavitt is en route this way to pass the Winter in San Francisco.

An opera season is announced at the Bijou Opera House to commence Dec. 9th. The singers include Annie Gleason, Mme. Billoni, M'lle Atlanta Webster, Ida Valerga, Lena Spengler, M'lle Guerrine and Theresa Harnet; Enrico Campobello, Charles Thrower, Karl Formes, Roberto Stantini, Signor Zapelli, Signor Convelli, Frank Valerga and others. A large repertory is announced

Frank Mayo and his son, Edwin, will play a two weeks' engagement at the Bush, beginning December 9th, opening in "Nordeck."

The Keogh Comedy Company put in their last nights at the Bush Street Theatre in the new eccentric comedy in three acts, entitled "Kleptomania," by Mark Melford, the author of the very amusing comedy, "Turned Up," which proved such a success with Nat Goodwin and his company on Saturday and Sunday.

The 100th representation of Bronson Howard's "Shenandoah" was celebrated simultaneously at Proctor's Theatre, New York, and McVicker's Theatre, Chicago, on the 3d inst., by the distribution of handsome souvenirs in book-form containing silhouettes of scenes from the play, as well as the New York and Chicago casts.

John D. Townsend has brought suit against the widow of Lester Wallack for legal services. H. C. Miner is getting up a benefit at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, the proceeds of which are to go to liquidate any judgment that the court may allow the plaintiff.

Kate Castleton of the "Paper Doll" company was taken suddenly ill at Indianapolis recently. Her sister, Ida Freeman, played her part, at only ten minutes' notice.

Kittie Mayhew is to have a new play, which she will shortly produce in New York.

Miss Marie Wainwright continues to meet with very great success as Viola in her new and handsome production of "Twelfth Night," which she presents in New York for the first time, December 16th, at the Fifth Avenue Theatre.

"LOST IN AFRICA" WRECKED.

Bad luck still follows Fred. Bert, the man to whose individual energy we owe our splendid theatrical structure, the Grand Opera House. His "Lost in Africa" company went to pieces at St. Louis, Nov. 26th, under the weight of two Sheriff's attachments for a total of $488.50. Salaries had not been visible for five weeks previous. "Lost in Africa" was a resurrection of Joe Ford and John Sears' "Red Pocket Book," that was originally produced here, at the Metropolitan Theatre, on Montgomery street, above Washington, some twenty years ago, and achieved a great success. In the shipwreck scene George Hinckley, then stage mechanist of the theatre put on the stage a sideview "moving ship," one that worked from a center balance, and rose and fell forward and aft in a sea of stage cloth, with her passengers on board, with a regularity and close resemblance to nature. Hinckley had his invention patented, but dying shortly afterwards the effect, as far as we know, has never been reproduced.

The scenic artists, stage carpenters and mechanics of the Grand Opera House have been hard at work, and give the patrons of that house a pleasant surprise in the way of realistic and effective scenery in the production of "Hands Across the Sea."

EVENING - EDITION

FRIDAY.....DECEMBER 6, 1889

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and only paper that publishes their full programmes

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

The Keogh Comedy Company put in this week at the Bush in a new farce comedy by Frank Melford, entitled "Kleptomania." Mr. Melford is the author of the laugh-provoking comedy, "Turned Up," that Nat Goodwin's company made such a success in at this theatre. "Kleptomania" has been running for near 1,000 nights in London and the English provinces. The comedian, Edward J. Henley, and a good company appear in the play.

The adventures of a lady who is a kleptomaniac, the complications her eccentricities involve the dramatic personages of the play in, and the plots and counterplots originated to avoid them and cure the kleptomaniac of her propensities, form the subject of the very amusing comedy.

The Call gives Mr. Henley credit for his clever character acting as Prof. Andrew Smalley, L. L. D., and says he "makes neat play with the eccentric comedy of the part, and there are many quaint and dainty little turns of speech, or witticisms, somwhat in the burlesquer Byron's way, but more delicate, the full purpose of which he makes apparent with much adroitness." The same journal also commends Miss Jean Clara Walters for her impersonation of the Kleptomanical Lady Josephine, and Miss Mary Hampton, Miss Kathlynne Heron and Mr. David Elmer for their successful renditions.

The whole action of the play takes place in Major-General Blair's drawing-room at Cambridge, an elegant and very handsome stage setting. This comedy has only this week's allotment at the Bush. The attendance was good.

Frank Mayo and his Eastern company are dated for next week. Mr. Mayo opens in his picturesque and romantic play of "Nordeck," bringing his own scenery, appointments, company and costumes.

Seats now on sale.

Alcazar Theatre.

This week, the frontier drama, "Ranch 10"—the tenth ranch on the road from Cheyenne to Laramie—a play stirring with good characters and dramatic life, is revived at the Alcazar. Its great popularity insures good business.

The piece is well known, and turns on the misfortunes in love of the McClelland twin brothers, involving false accusations, narrow escapes, murder, the burning of the ranch house, a great explosion scene, etc.

The cast includes E. J. Buckley, who plays the dual role of Al and Tom McClelland, Leo Cooper in his old part of Jo Kebock, John Jack, Scott Cooper, Louis Belmour, Harry A. Clark and Stockwell, who is inimitable as the old Judge. The female parts are taken by Ethel Brandon, Fanny Young, Nellie Buckley and Freddie Stockmeyer, a new addition to the Alcazar company.

The whole cast is strong. John Jack and Miss Stockmeyer, the new-comers, play their parts very cleverly. The piece is played as well as it ever was at this house, and that is saying much for the performance.

Leonard Grover's bright comedy of "Our Boarding House," sapient and amusing satire on the eccentricities of Chicago's business men and Chicago's boarding house society, will be next week's card at the Alcazar.

Grand Opera House.

A grand production of that great melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," a success in three continents, with Miss Isabel Morris, Mr. Geo. Osbourne and Mr. William Morris in the principal roles, is a big feature at the Grand this week; for it is a markedly noted production of this spectacular drama.

"Hands Across the Sea" is not a lurid melodrama with red hands, but on the contrary a very interesting drama of cultured life and its vicissitudes, with startling and effective situations. It is prolific of stage effects, and, as the Call says, "The management of the Grand has covered the production with a perfect wealth of scenery."

The scenic effects are notably elaborate. The opening act represents an English harvest scene festival, with farm house and waving fields of grain, a wagon loaded with realistic hay, real horses and everything to make a picture of a quiet English country home.

In the 2nd and 3rd acts are some fine scenes in Paris; hotel, prison and street scenes. In the following act we have the great sea scene. The scene on the deck of the steamer Australasian occupies the full stage, with the steamer head on towards the audience. The deck of the vessel between bulwarks is just 34 feet wide On this the action takes place. The whole structure seems an absolute realism, with an extended sky and sea all around the steamer, like on the ocean.

The last act gives a fine view of Sydney harbor, painted from photographs. Every scene is new from the brush of Wilkins and assistants.

The three principal roles are in capable hands. Miss Isabel Morris gives a lady-like and forcible characterization of the heroine Mr. Morris makes a manly and vigorous hero, and Mr. Osbourne gives us one of his artistic clear-cut pieces of character acting as the French society scamp, Jean De Lussac, in which he has but few rivals on the stage. Lorimer Johnston plays the part of Tom Bassett with easy manners and good methods, and the many male characters are well sustained; and the female roles have adequate justice done to them by Miss Kate Chester, Miss Rose Easton and Miss De Mar.

The first production at the Grand under the new management of Maguire, Rial & Osbourne was successfully launched before a house crowded in all its tiers, and bids fair to have a goodly voyage with the steady wind of popular favor swelling its sails and sales.

Business has been good through a succession of rainy nights.

Baldwin Theatre.

That brightest of comedies, "Henrietta," with Stuart Robson and its Eastern company, are in their last nights at the Baldwin, with a record of three weeks big business. We congratulate manager Wm. R. Hayden upon having one of the best attractions in the Union on his hands.

Next week comes the Duff Opera Company.

New California Theatre.

Milton Nobles puts in a farewell week at the California in his comedy success, "Love and Law," this week—positively his last nights in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Nobles are popular favorites and careful and able artists, their plays have merit to back them and their company is a well selected and capable one. Result, effective performances.

"Love and Law" is a wholesome comedy of New York life with fine dramatic climaxes and a goodly line of characters, of the modern school of to-day, well pitted against each other in the play. Mr. Nobles appears in a favorite character, Felix O'Faff from Dublin, an Irish lawyer who is filled with American ideas and desires to become a leading citizen of the United States, and plays it in his usual earnest and magnetic way. Dollie Nobles is charming as Rita, an Italian street-singer. The company do their usual good and careful work under the training of their efficient head, who is an excellent stage manager.

Next week we are to have "Hans the Boatman" at the California, with Charles Arnold in the title role. Mr. Arnold is a sympathetic actor of the Joseph Emmet style, who has more high prase both in England and Australia. The play was written by Clay M. Greene in both countries.

Seats now on sale.

Orpheum Theatre.

The management of the Orpheum prove their resources in producing talent by presenting "The Metropoliton Specialty Co.," all new to San Francisco, this week.

Besides the full Vaudeville Company, the novelty of the Sleeping Beauty Ballet and a Chinese Comic Ballet Pantomime, are features on the bill.

A special performance will be given on Friday night for the benefit of J. W. (Slide) Kelly, the monologist, under the auspices of the ballplayers of the California League.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The comedian and character actor from the Halsted Street Comedy Theatre, Chicago, Mr. F. K. Wallace, puts in his first week in California here in the sensational border drama of "The Boy Scout of the Sierras." The play is Californian. The first act takes place at the ranch of Colonel Vallijo, in Napa Valley. The other acts are in the Sierras and Lava Beds.

Mr. Wallace does some very commendable work as Dan O'Reilly, and proves himself a good singer as well as good actor.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The postponed race of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association at the Bay District Course is still held to await good weather and track. Due notice will be given of the day and meeting. Two extra days' racing will be given on the following days. The last meetings of the season.

The events for the last day are: One and one-sixteenth of a mile for a purse of $400, three-year-olds and upwards; a three-quarter of a mile dash for two-year-olds, non-winners, for a $350 purse; the Holiday Handicap, a big event, $500 purse and entries, one and three-eighths; and a one mile race, Owners' Handicap, for a $350 purse.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe are filling the Union every night.

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's plays have the element of hillarity very prominent in them, the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

DR. HENLEY'S REMEDIES.—"Nothing succeeds like success" is a general truth, but when applied to the phenomenal success of Dr. Henley's remedies, especially his 1XL Bitters and Tamarack, the saying has peculiar force. The sale of these beneficial preparations is enormous throughout the United States, and it is gratifying to know that it is fast becoming a standard remedy in the principal cities of Europe.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

A Santa Claus Festival for the children of the stage will take place in New York, on Sunday night, Dec. 29th, in both Tammany Hall and Tony Paster's Theatre, which are in the same building. Dolls, toys, candy and a host of good things will be distributed, and the little ones made happy. Among the ladies interested in this worthy undertaking are Mrs. Louisa Eldridge, Mrs. Tony Pastor Miss Kate Forsythe, Mrs. General Ferraro, Mrs. E. L. Fernandez, Mrs. Neil Burgess, Miss Nettie Guion, Miss Lila Vane, Miss Geraldine McCann and many others.

The wires tell us that Dockstadter's Minstrel season at Dockstadter's Theatre, New York, closed on the 5th inst. A notice was placed on the door that Lew Dockstadter was sick. It was learned, however, that he and his wife left for Canada that afternoon. Before going, Mrs. Dockstadter told a friend that they were in terrible financial straits, and she had to pawn her jewelry for them to get out of the city.

It is reported that Cal Wagner has had a disagreement with his manager and has left the minstrel show bearing his name.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Manager Al Hayman reports a fine list of bookings for his coming seasons at the Baldwin and California. They consist of the following attractions: Wilson Barrett and his London company, the London Gaiety Company, Sara Bernhardt, the Bostonians, little Otto Hegner, the boy pianist; A. M. Palmer's company, the spectacular productions "The Crystal Slipper" and Bluebeard Jr."; "Shenandoah," the Kendals; 'The Pearl of Pekin," the Emma Juch Grand English Opera Company, the Howard Specialty Company, E. H. Sothern, in a new play; "The Old Homestead," the Hanlon-Volta Spectacular Pantomime, "The Still Alarm," Willard in "The Middleman," and the "City Directory" is also booked for three weeks at the California Theatre.

Milwaukee is considered the worst show town of its size in America, as will be seen by the receipts of the following attractions, recently played there: "Nat Goodwin played in a whole week to less than $800; popular Denman Thompson could not reach $1,000 in seven performances, and then take 'The Pearl of Pekin,' which has been doing big business everywhere this season. They opened on a Sunday night to a $500 house; Monday $224; Tuesday $161, and Wednesday $94. Then they went to Dubuque and played to $850; Marshalltown $685, and Des Moines $965. In other words, in one of these one night stands the company played to as much as in five performances in Milwaukee, including Sunday. Moral: avoid Milwaukee if you can."

Gilbert and Sullivan's local agent has been negotiating with several Eastern managers for the sale of their new opera, but after "Yeomen of the Guard" and "Ruddygore" they prefer hearing the score and reading the book before making offers.

The New York Dispatch says that, "theatrical managers of London who are mounting pantomimes for Christmas are not looking too happy. The advent and success of "The Greatest Show on Earth" will materially interfere with the swelling of their treasuries. Barnum is avenging America. Enough said."

William Paul's "French Spy" company has had a tough time in Newburgh N. Y., where food and lodgings cannot be had on credit. The members of the troupe, however, managed to get back to New York city, which is only sixty miles by the pike road from Newburgh.

One of the New York papers publishes pictures of Herbert Kelcey as a appeared with his mustache and as he appeared without it. They are labelled like patent medicine advertisements, "Before" and "After."

The Alcazar will undergo a thorough renovation after the holidays.

"The Great Metropolis," the holiday piece to be produced at the Grand Opera House, has made a tremendous success in every city where it has been seen. Messrs. Klew & Erlanger have been unable to fill one-half of the dates offered. They have already booked the play for nearly the entire season of 1890-91 at the largest terms ever given to any combination. Since this play left New York it has been drawing overflowing audiences, and the marvelously effective shipwreck scene has created a positive furore in every city where it has been presented.

Mme. Patti and Nicolini arrived in New York on the 5th. A notable change has occurred in Patti since her last visit to America. Her black luxuriant tresses are now the color of tow—in fact Patt has become a pronounced blonde. It makes such a change in her appearance that people not looking for it would not recognize her. After the Chicago Auditorium season Patti goes to Mexico for three weeks, coming from there for her two-weeks' season at the Grand Opera House, in this city.

The great concert given in aid of the charitable fund of the San Francisco Polychnic, which comes off at the Grand Opera House on Monday evening, the 16th, will call forth all the available musical talent, vocal and instrumental, professional and amateur of celerity, that there is in the city, besides all the full force of the Handel and Haydn Society's 600 voices, and the Oakland Harmonic Society's 80 voices. It will be a grand concert in reality.

Gilbert and Sullivan's forthcoming Venetian opera is called "The Dogged Doge," and treats of two gondoliers in love with two flower girls, and the plot is further complicated by the daughter of a nobleman, who is aware that one of the gondoliers is a Prince and is endeavoring to discover his identity, with a view to capturing him. Her father is one of the leading characters, and the fun is derived from the ludicrous situations in which love, vanity, pride, simplicity and ignorance involve the players.

The Keogh Comedy Company put in their last nights at the Bush Street Theatre in the new eccentric comedy in three acts, entitled "Kleptomania," by Mark Melford, the author of the very amusing comedy, "Turned Up," which proved such a success with Nat Goodwin and his company on Saturday and Sunday.

Managers Maguire, Rial and Osbourne will produce their great holiday attraction, "The Great Metropolis," at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday evening, Dec. 17th, the night after the monster concert given at the Grand under the auspices of the San Francisco Polyclinics.

Manager H. C. Miner has arranged for two great benefit performances at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, on Dec. 17th and 19th for the purpose of establishing a room in first-class hospitals for the reception of firemen who may be injured while doing their duty.

Dispatches from Salt Lake chronicles the success of Chas. Arnold in "Hans the Boatman" at the Salt Lake Theatre Thursday, and claim for him great merit as actor, comedian and singer. We shall have him at the California Theatre next week.

"The Spider and the Fly" opened in Ming's Opera House, in Helena, Monday night, to the best house ever recorded. This is Manager Leavitt's spectacular piece that will regale us at the Bush in holiday times.

Getting stage boxes at the Grand is the thing. Al Hayman and wife occupied one last evening, and May Yohe, late of the "City Directory" company, and some lady friends, graced one at to-day's matinee.

Lewis Morrison's "Faust" receipts at Pope's, St. Louis, were attached by the Sheriff on Monday night, Nov. 25th, for $300 for unpaid printing. Mr. Morrison gave bonds for that sum.

Little Olive Berkeley, a very child actress, has scored a triumph as Little Lord Fauntleroy in Australia. The critics of the Antipode regard her as a wonder, and never tire of singing her praises.

Manager Fred G. Berger, of Sol Smith Russel's company, has formed a stock company to build a new opera house at Grand Rapids, Mich.

George Jessop and William Gill have written a new comedy, entitled "American Assurance," which Roland Reed will produce next week.

William Gilbert, the popular comedian, is no longer connected with Daly's Theatre Company, owing to a misunderstanding between actor and manager.

Frank Hoogs occupies his old position of business manager at the Bijou for the Campobello opera season, and R McBurnie is the treasurer.

Maurice Grau arrived in New York from Europe Nov. 25th. He brought over sixty people for the Patti Italian opera season.

Miss Loie Fuller is as yet too ill to appear in London, although she will soon be seen in a new play.

"Hands Across the Sea" had its 100th consecutive performance at the Boston Museum on Thanksgiving Eve.

Frank Mayo and his son, Edwin, will play a two weeks' engagement at the Bush, beginning December 9th, opening in "Nordeck."

Colonel W. E. Sinn has secured a new drama for Cora Tanner entitled "One Error."

McKee Rankin proposes to tour England next Summer with the "Runaway Wife."

A company playing "An Irish Stew," recently fell into the soup at Carbondale, Pa.

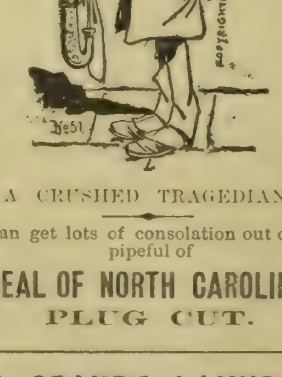
"LOST IN AFRICA" WRECKED.



Bad luck still follows Fred. Bert, the man to whose individual energy we owe our splendid theatrical structure, the Grand Opera House. His "Lost in Africa" company went to pieces at St. Louis, Nov. 26th, under the weight of two Sheriff's attachments for a total of $488.50. Salaries had not been visible for five weeks previous. "Lost in Africa" was a resurrection of Joe Ford and John Sears' "Red Pocket Book," that was originally produced here, at the Metropolitan Theatre, on Montgomery street, above Washington, some twenty years ago, and achieved a great success. In the shipwreck scene George Hinckley, then stage manchinist of the theatre put on the stage a sideview "moving ship," one that worked from a center balance, and rose and fell forward and aft in a sea of stage cloth, with her passengers on board, with a regularity and close resemblance to nature. Hiuckley had his invention patented, but dying shortly afterwards the effect, as far as we know, has never been reproduced.

Mme. Patti is going to build a smal theatre at Craig-y-Nos, her home in Wales. It is to be one of the most beautiful little theatres in the world, and although it will seat only about 150 people, it will be as complete in all its details as the largest opera-house. It will be finished next Spring and Henry Irving will dedicate it.

"Said Pasha" is doing a very large business at the Philadelphia Park Theatre.

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and only paper that publishes their full programmes

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

The Keogh Comedy Company closes Sunday night at the Bush in a new farce comedy by Frank Melford, entitled "Kleptomania." The comedian, Edward J. Henley, and a good company appeared in the play, and give a finished and satisfactory performance.

The adventures of a lady who is a kleptomaniac, the complications her eccentricities involve the dramatic personages of the play in, and the plots and counterplots originated to avoid them and cure the kleptomaniac of her propensities, form the subject of the very amusing comedy.

The Call gives Mr. Henley credit for his clever character acting as Prof. Andrew Smalley, L. L. D., and says he "makes neat play with the eccentric comedy of the part, and there are many quaint and dainty little turns of speech, or witticisms, somwhat in the burlesquer Byron's way, but more delicate, the full purpose of which he makes apparent with much adroitness." The same journal also commends Miss Jean Clara Walters for her impersonation of the Kleptomaniacal Lady Josephine, and Miss Mary Hampton, Miss Kathlynne Heron and Mr. David Elmer for their successful renditions.

The whole action of the play takes place in Major-General Blair's drawing-room at Cambridge, an elegant and very handsome stage setting. This comedy has only this week's allotment at the Bush. The attendance was good.

Frank Mayo and his Eastern company are dated for next week. Mr. Mayo opens in his picturesque and romantic play of "Nordeck," bringing his own scenery, appointments, company and costumes.

Seats now on sale.

Alcazar Theatre.

This week, the frontier drama, "Ranch 10"—the tenth ranch on the road from Cheyenne to Laramie—a play stirring with good characters and dramatic life, was revived at the Alcazar.

The piece is well known, and turns on the misfortunes in love of the McClelland twin brothers, involving false accusations, narrow escapes, murder, the burning of the ranch house, a great explosion scene, etc.

The cast includes E. J Buckley, who plays the dual role of Al and Tom McClelland, Leo Cooper in his old part of Jo Kebook, John Jack, Scott Cooper, Louis Belmour, Harry A. Clark and Stockwell, who is inimitable as the old Judge. The female parts are taken by Ethel Brandon, Fanny Young, Nellie Buckley and Freddie Stockmeyer, a new addition to the Alcazar company.

The whole cast is strong. John Jack and Miss Stockmeyer, the new-comers, play their parts very cleverly. The piece is played as well as it ever was at this house, and that is saying much for the performance.

Leonard Grover's bright comedy of "Our Boarding House," sapient and amusing satire on the eccentricities of Chicago's business men and Chicago's boarding house society, will be next week's card at the Alcazar.

Grand Opera House.

A grand production of that great melo-drama, "Hands Across the Sea," a success in three continents, with Miss Isabel Morris, Mr. Geo. Osbourne and Mr. William Morris in the principal roles is a big feature at the Grand this week; for it is a markedly noted production of this spectacular drama.

"Hands Across the Sea" is not a lurid melo-drama with red hands, but on the contrary a very interesting drama of cultured life and its vicissitudes, with startling and effective situations. It is prolific of stage effects, and, as the Call says, "The management of the Grand has covered the production with a perfect wealth of scenery."

The scenic effects are notably elaborate. The opening act represents an English harvest scene festival, with farm house and waving fields of grain, a wagon loaded with realistic hay, real horses and everything to make a picture of a quiet English country home.

In the 2nd and 3rd acts are some fine scenes in Paris; hotel, prison and street scenes. In the following act we have the great sea scene. The scene on the deck of the steamer Australasian occupies the full stage, with the steamer head on towards the audience. The deck of the vessel between bulworks is just 34 feet wide On this the action takes place. The whole structure seems an absolute realism, with an extended sky and sea all around the steamer, like on the ocean.

The last act gives a fine view of Sydney harbor, painted from photographs. Every scene is new from the brush of Wilkins and assistants.

The three principal roles are in capable hands. Miss Isabel Morris gives a lady-like and forcible characterization of the heroine Mr. Morris makes a manly and vigorous hero, and Mr. Osbourne gives us one of his artistic clear-cut pieces of character acting as the French society scamp, Jean De Lussac, in which he has but few rivals on the stage. Lorimer Johnston plays the part of Tom Bassett with easy manners and good methods, and the many male characters are well sustained; and the female roles have adequate justice done to them by Miss Kate Chester, Miss Rose Easton and Miss De Mar.

The first production at the Grand under the new management of Maguire, Rial & Osbourne was successfully launched before a house crowded in all its tiers, and bids fair to have a goodly voyage with the steady wind of popular favor swelling its sails and sales.

Business has been good through a succession of rainy nights.

New California Theatre.

Milton Nobles put in a farewell week at the California in his comedy success, "Love and Law," this week.

"Love and Law" is a wholesome comedy of New York life with fine dramatic climaxes and a goodly line of characters, of the modern school of to-day, well pitted against each other in the play. Mr. Nobles appears in a favorite character, Felix O'Paff from Dublin, an Irish lawyer who is filled with American ideas and desires to become a leading citizen of the United States, and plays it in his usual earnest and magnetic way. Dollie Nobles is charming as Rita, an Italian street-singer. The company do their usual good and careful work under the training of their efficient head, who is an excellent stage manager.

Next week we are to have "Hans the Boatman" at the California, with Charles Arnold in the title role. Mr. Arnold is a sympathetic actor of the Joseph Emmet style, who has more high prase both in England and Australia. The play was written by Clay M. Greene in both countries.

Seats now on sale.

Orpheum Theatre.

The management of the Orpheum prove their resources in producing talent by presenting "The Metropoliton Specialty Co.," all new to San Francisco, this week.

Besides the full Vaudeville Company, the novelty of the Sleeping Beauty Ballet and a Chinese Comic Ballet Pantomime, are features on the bill.

The amusing comedy of "The Widow Bedot" will form next week's bill at the Orpheum.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The comedian and character actor from the Halsted Street Comedy Theatre, Chicago, Mr. F. K. Wallace, puts in his first week in California here in the sensational border drama of "The Boy Scout of the Sierras." The play is Californian. The first act takes place at the ranch of Colonel Vallejo, in Napa Valley. The other acts are in the Sierras and Lava Beds.

Mr. Wallace does some very commendable work as Dan O'Reilly, and proves himself a good singer as well as good actor.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast in programme elsewhere in our columns.

The four-act sensational drama of "The Boy Detective" will be next week's bill.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The postponed race of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association at the Bay District Course is still held to await good weather and track. Due notice will be given of the day and meeting. Two extra days' racing will be given on the following days. The last meetings of the season.

The events for the last day are: One and one-sixteenth of a mile for a purse of $400, three-year-olds and upwards; a three-quarter of a mile dash for two-year-olds, non-winners, for a $350 purse; the Holiday Handicap, a big event, $500 purse and entries, one and three-eighths; and a one mile race, Owners' Handicap, for a $350 purse.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis, who have the trade-mark of being "the greatest female impersonators in the world," and other new people in conjunction with the Gardner-Arnold-Santly troupe are filling the Union every night.

Montague contributes three pieces, "The Sculptor's Dilemma," "The Prima Donna" and "Four Married Men," this week.

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's plays have the element of hilarity very prominent in them, the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness.

Those popular favorites, Thatcher & Drew, have been re-engaged, and add their humorous sketches to the bill.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ned Nestell produces his pictures of Army life this week, with zouave and other drills, camp songs and camp life, etc. Ned Nestell served in the war and is posted by experience.

Big Bertha, the Confidence Queen, is here, with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Sully & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed. Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

Gilmore & West's Male and Female Minstrels are new this week.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "A Live Subject," with the company the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Jennie Fowler, Blanche Long, Alice Dale, Helena Richman, John Gilmore, George West and Minstrels.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

Prof. Paul, ventriloquist, and the Bailey Sisters, vocalists, are the new faces here.

The Polks, musical artists and Tyrolean warblers, and all the company appear in a minstrel first part this week.

The olio acts are Fox's "Hospital," and "Mesmerism," Prof. Paul's and the Polks' specialties. All good.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, J. D. Fox, Rosa Stange and others.

Bottle Meier's is the popular north-end resort. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horse-shoe gallery of larger houses.

Eureka Music Hall

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Pete Smith and Lottie Ellis, popular performers, and pretty Pearl Iola, are late comers, and Charles Morrell, comedian, vocalist and banjoist, returns to the fold this week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell Lulu Martell, Addie Bennett, Mamie Woods, Billy Akarman and John Merritt make up the company.

The first-part is a Female Minstrel one with songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

The olio piece is the comedy of "Papa's Baby Boy," with Akarman, Pete Smith and most of the ladies in the cast.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

DR. HENLEY'S REMEDIES.—"Nothing succeeds like success" is a general truth, but when applied to the phenomenal success of Dr. Henley's remedies, especially his IXL Bitters and Tamarack, the saying has peculiar force. The sale of these beneficial preparations is enormous throughout the United States, and it is gratifying to know that it is fast becoming a standard remedy in the principal cities of Europe.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

A Santa Claus Festival for the children of the stage will take place in New York on Sunday night, Dec. 29th, in both Tammany Hall and Tony Paster's Theatre, which are in the same building. Dolls, toys, candy and a host of good things will be distributed, and the little ones made happy. Among the ladies interested in this worthy undertaking are Mrs. Louisa Eldridge, Mrs. Tony Pastor Miss Kate Forsythe, Mrs. General Ferraro, Mrs. E. L. Fernandez, Mrs. Neil Burgess, Miss Nettie Guion, Miss Lila Vane, Miss Geraldine McCann and many others.

The wires tell us that Dockstadter's Minstrel season at Dockstadter's Theatre, New York, closed on the 5th inst. A notice was placed on the door that Lew Dockstadter was sick. It was learned, however, that he and his wife left for Canada that afternoon. Before going, Mrs. Dockstadter told a friend that they were in terrible financial straits, and she had to pawn her jewelry for them to get out of the city.

It is reported that Cal Wagner has had a disagreement with his manager and has left the minstrel show bearing his name.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walderstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Manager Al Hayman reports a fine list of bookings for his coming seasons at the Baldwin and California. They consist of the following attractions: Wilson Barrett and his London company, the London Gaiety Company, Sara Bernhardt, the Bostonians, little Otto Hegner, the boy pianist; A. M. Palmer's company, the spectacular productions "The Crystal Slipper" and Bluebeard Jr."; "Shenandoah," the Kendals; 'The Pearl of Pekin," the Emma Juch Grand English Opera Company, the Howard Specialty Company, E. H. Sothern, in a new play; "The Old Homestead," the Hanlon-Volta Spectacular Pantomime, "The Still Alarm," Willard in "The Middleman," and the "City Directory" is also booked for three weeks at the California Theatre.

Milwaukee is considered the worst show town of its size in America, as will be seen by the receipts of the following attractions, recently played there: "Nat Goodwin played in a whole week to less than $800; popular Denman Thompson could not reach $1,000 in seven performances, and then take 'The Pearl of Pekin,' which has been doing big business everywhere this season. They opened on a Sunday night to a $500 house; Monday $224; Tuesday $161, and Wednesday $94. Then they went to Dubuque and played to $880; Marshalltown $685, and Des Moines $865. In other words, in one of these one night stands the company played to as much as in five performances in Milwaukee, including Sunday. Moral: avoid Milwaukee if you can."

Gilbert and Sullivan's local agent has been negotiating with several Eastern managers for the sale of their new opera, but after "Yeomen of the Guard" and "Ruddygore" they prefer hearing the score and reading the book before making offers.

The New York Dispatch says that, "theatrical managers of London who are mounting pantomimes for Christmas are not looking too happy. The advent and success of "The Greatest Snow on Earth" will materially interfere with the swelling of their treasuries. Barnum is avenging America. Enough said."

William Paul's "French Spy" company has had a tough time in Newburgh N. Y., where food and lodgings cannot be had on credit. The members of the troupe, however, managed to get back to New York city, which is only sixty miles by the pike road from Newburgh.

One of the New York papers publishes pictures of Herbert Kelcey as a appeared with his mustache and as he appeared without it. They are labelled like patent medicine advertisements, "Before" and "After."

Gilbert & Sullivan's new opera is born and christened. It was most successfully produced, according to telegraphic reports, at their Savoy theatre, London, on Saturday evening last. It is called "The Gondoliers; or the King of Barataria." It abounds in the characteristic whimsicality of Gilbert's humor and wit, and in the harmonious, flowing music of Sullivan. The plot is founded on the accidental mixing up of two babies; one an heir to the Kingdom of Barataria, and the other a gondolier's son, and the confusion it creates afterwards. It is simple enough, but the opera is richly embroidered with the morceaus of Gilbert, and the music Sullivan is said to have returned somewhat to his earlier manner. It is simple and less complicated than his later work.

"The Great Metropolis," the holiday piece to be produced at the Grand Opera House, has made a tremendous success in every city where it has been seen. Messrs. Klaw & Erlanger have been unable to fill one-half of the dates offered. They have already booked the play for nearly the entire season of 1890-91 at the largest terms ever given to any combination. Since this play left New York it has been drawing overflowing audiences, and the marvelously effective shipwreck scene has created a positive furore in every city where it has been presented.

Mme. Patti and Nicolini arrived in New York on the 5th. A notable change has occurred in Patti since her last visit to America. Her black luxuriant tresses are now the color of tow—in fact Patti has become a pronounced blonde. It makes such a change in her appearance that people not looking for it would not recognize her. After the Chicago Auditorium season Patti goes to Mexico for three weeks, coming from there for her two-weeks' season at the Grand Opera House, in this city.

The great concert given in aid of the charitable fund of the San Francisco Polyclinic, which comes off at the Grand Opera House on Monday evening, the 16th, will call forth all the available musical talent, vocal and instrumental, professional and amateur of celerity, that there is in the city, besides all the full force of the Handel and Haydn Society's 600 voices, and the Oakland Harmonic Society's 80 voices. It will be a grand concert in reality.

Gilbert and Sullivan's forthcoming Venetian opera is called "The Gondoliers," and treats of two gondoliers in love with two flower girls, and the plot is further complicated by the daughter of a nobleman, who is aware that one of the gondoliers is a Prince and is endeavoring to discover his identity, with a view to capturing him. Her father is one of the leading characters, and the fun is derived from the ludicrous situations in which love, vanity, pride, simplicity and ignorance involve the players.

Managers Maguire, Rial and Osbourne will produce their great holiday attraction, "The Great Metropolis," at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday evening, Dec. 17th, the night after the monster concert given at the Grand under the auspices of the San Francisco Polyclinics.

Manager H. C. Miner has arranged for two great benefit performances at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, on Dec. 17th and 19th for the purpose of establishing a room in first-class hospitals for the reception of firemen who may be injured while doing their duty.

Dispatches from Salt Lake chronicles the success of Chas. Arnold in "Hans the Boatman" at the Salt Lake Theatre Thursday, and claim for him great merit as actor, comedian and singer. We shall have him at the California Theatre next week.

"The Spider and the Fly" opened in Ming's Opera House, in Helena, Monday night, to the best house ever recorded. This is Manager Leavitt's spectacular piece that will regale us at the Bush in holiday times.

Getting stage boxes at the Grand is the thing. Al Hayman and wife occupied one last Friday night, and May Yohe, late of the "City Directory" company, and some lady friends, graced one at Saturday's matinee.

Lewis Morrison's "Faust" receipts at Pope's, St. Louis, were attached by the Sheriff on Monday night, Nov. 25th, for $300 for unpaid printing. Mr. Morrison gave bonds for that sum.

Little Olive Berkeley, a very child actress, has scored a triumph as Little Lord Fauntleroy in Australia. The critics of the Antipode regard her as a wonder, and never tire of singing her praises.

Manager Fred G. Berger, of Sol Smith Russel's company, has formed a stock company to build a new opera house at Grand Rapids, Mich.

George Jessop and William Gill have written a new comedy, entitled "American Assurance," which Roland Reed will produce next week.

William Gilbert, the popular comedian, is no longer connected with Daly's Theatre Company, owing to a misunderstanding between actor and manager.

Frank Hoogs occupies his old position of business manager at the Bijou for the Campobello opera season, and R. McBurnie is the treasurer.

Miss Loie Fuller is as yet too ill to appear in London, although she will soon be seen in a new play.

Frank Mayo and his son, Edwin, will play a two weeks' engagement at the Bush, beginning this week, opening in "Nordeck."

Colonel W. E. Sinn has secured a new drama for Cora Tanner entitled "One Error."

McKee Rankin proposes to tour England next Summer with the "Runaway Wife."

"LOST IN AFRICA" WRECKED.

Bad luck still follows Fred. Bert, the man to whose individual energy we owe our splendid theatrical structure, the Grand Opera House. His "Lost in Africa" company went to pieces at St. Louis, Nov. 26th, under the weight of two Sheriff's attachments for a total of $488.50. Salaries had not been visible for five weeks previous. "Lost in Africa" was a resurrection of Joe Ford and John Sears' "Red Pocket Book," that was originally produced here, at the Metropolitan Theatre, on Montgomery street, above Washington, some twenty years ago, and achieved a great success. In the shipwreck scene George Hinckley, then stage mechanist of the theatre put on the stage a sideview "moving ship," one that worked from a center balance, and rose and fell forward and aft in a sea of stage cloth, with her passengers on board, with a regularity and close resemblance to nature. Hinckley had his invention patented, but dying shortly afterwards the effect, as far as we know, has never been reproduced.

Mme. Patti is going to build a smal theatre at Craig-y-Nos, her home in Wales. It is to be one of the most beautiful little theatres in the world, and although it will seat only about 150 people, it will be as complete in all its details as the largest opera-house. It will be finished next Spring and Henry Irving will dedicate it.

"Said Pasha" is doing a very large business at the Philadelphia Park Theatre.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

A Santa Claus Festival for the children of the stage will take place in New York on Sunday night, Dec. 29th, in both Tammany Hall and Tony Paster's Theatre, which are in the same building. Dolls, toys, candy and a host of good things will be distributed, and the little ones made happy. Among the ladies interested in this worthy undertaking are Mrs. Louisa Eldridge, Mrs. Tony Pastor Miss Kate Forsythe, Mrs. General Ferraro, Mrs. E. L. Fernandez, Mrs. Neil Burgess, Miss Nettie Guion, Miss Lila Vane, Miss Geraldine McCann and many others.

The wires tell us that Dockstadter's Minstrel season at Dockstadter's Theatre, New York, closed on the 5th inst. A notice was placed on the door that Lew Dockstadter was sick. It was learned, however, that he and his wife left for Canada that afternoon. Before going, Mrs. Dockstadter told a friend that they were in terrible financial straits, and she had to pawn her jewelry for them to get out of the city.

It is reported that Cal Wagner has had a disagreement with his manager and has left the minstrel show bearing his name.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walkerstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Manager Al Hayman reports a fine list of bookings for his coming seasons at the Baldwin and California. They consist of the following attractions: Wilson Barrett and his London company, the London Gaiety Company, Sara Bernhardt, the Bostonians, little Otto Hegner, the boy pianist; A. M. Palmer's company, the spectacular productions "The Crystal Slipper" and Bluebeard Jr."; "Shenandoah," the Kendals; 'The Pearl of Pekin," the Emma Juch Grand English Opera Company, the Howard Specialty Company, E. H. Sothern, in a new play; "The Old Homestead," the Hanlon-Volta Spectacular Pantomime, "The Still Alarm," Willard in "The Middleman," and the "City Directory" is also booked for three weeks at the California Theatre.

Milwaukee is considered the worst show town of its size in America, as will be seen by the receipts of the following attractions, recently played there: "Nat Goodwin played in a whole week to less than $800; popular Denman Thompson could not reach $1,000 in seven performances, and then take 'The Pearl of Pekin,' which has been doing big business everywhere this season. They opened on a Sunday night to a $500 house; Monday $224; Tuesday $161, and Wednesday $91. Then they went to Dubuque and played to $850; Marshalltown $685, and Des Moines $965. In other words, in one of these one night stands the company played to as much as in five performances in Milwaukee, including Sunday. Moral: avoid Milwaukee if you can."

Gilbert and Sullivan's local agent has been negotiating with several Eastern managers for the sale of their new opera, but after "Yeomen of the Guard" and "Ruddygore" they prefer hearing the score and reading the book before making offers.

The New York Dispatch says that, "theatrical managers of London who are mounting pantomimes for Christmas are not looking too happy. The advent and success of "The Greatest Show on Earth" will materially interfere with the swelling of their treasuries. Barnum is avenging America. Enough said."

William Paul's "French Spy" company has had a tough time in Newburgh N. Y., where food and lodgings cannot be had on credit. The members of the troupe, however, managed to get back to New York city, which is only sixty miles by the pike road from Newburgh.

One of the New York papers publishes pictures of Herbert Kelcey as a appeared with his mustache and as he appeared without it. They are labelled like patent medicine advertisements, "Before" and "After."

The Alcazar will undergo a thorough

Gilbert & Sullivan's new opera is born and christened. It was most successfully produced, according to telegraphic reports, at their Savoy theatre, London, on Saturday evening last. It is called "The Gondoliers; or the King of Barataria." It abounds in the characteristic whimsicality of Gilbert's humor and wit, and in the harmonious, flowing music of Sullivan. The plot is founded on the accidental mixing up of two babies; one an heir to the Kingdom of Barataria, and the other a gondolier's son, and the confusion it creates afterwards. It is simple enough, but the opera is richly embroidered with the morceaus of Gilbert, and the music Sullivan is said to have returned somewhat to his earlier manner. It is simple and less complicated than his later work.

"The Great Metropolis," the holiday piece to be produced at the Grand Opera House, has made a tremendous success in every city where it has been seen. Messrs. Klaw & Erlanger have been unable to fill one-half of the dates offered. They have already booked the play for nearly the entire season of 1890-91 at the largest terms ever given to any combination. Since this play left New York it has been drawing overflowing audiences, and the marvelously effective shipwreck scene has created a positive furore in every city where it has been presented.

Mme. Patti and Nicolini arrived in New York on the 5th. A notable change has occurred in Patti since her last visit to America. Her black luxuriant tresses are now the color of tow—in fact Patti has become a pronounced blonde. It makes such a change in her appearance that people not looking for it would not recognize her. After the Chicago Auditorium season Patti goes to Mexico for three weeks, coming from there for her two-weeks' season at the Grand Opera House, in this city.

The great concert given in aid of the charitable fund of the San Francisco Polychnic, which comes off at the Grand Opera House on Monday evening, the 16th, will call forth all the available musical talent, vocal and instrumental, professional and amateur of celerity, that there is in the city, besides all the full force of the Handel and Haydn Society's 600 voices, and the Oakland Harmonic Society's 80 voices. It will be a grand concert in reality.

Gilbert and Sullivan's forthcoming Venetian opera is called "The Gondoliers," and treats of two gondoliers in love with two flower girls, and the plot is further complicated by the daughter of a nobleman, who is aware that one of the gondoliers is a Prince and is endeavoring to discover his identity, with a view to capturing him. Her father is one of the leading characters, and the fun is derived from the ludicrous situations in which love, vanity, pride, simplicity and ignorance involve the players.

Managers Maguire, Rial and Osbourne will produce their great holiday attraction, "The Great Metropolis," at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday evening, Dec. 17th, the night after the monster concert given at the Grand under the auspices of the San Francisco Polyclinics.

Manager H. C. Miner has arranged for two great benefit performances at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, on Dec. 17th and 19th for the purpose of establishing a room in first-class hospitals for the reception of firemen who may be injured while doing their duty.

Dispatches from Salt Lake chronicles the success of Chas. Arnold in "Hans the Boatman" at the Salt Lake Theatre Thursday, and claim for him great merit as actor, comedian and singer. We shall have him at the California Theatre next week.

"The Spider and the Fly" opened in Ming's Opera House, in Helena, Monday night, to the best house ever recorded. This is Manager Leavitt's spectacular piece that will regale us at the Bush in holiday times.

Getting stage boxes at the Grand is the thing. Al Hayman and wife occupied one last Friday night, and May Yohe, late of the "City Directory" company, and some lady friends, graced one at Saturday's matinee.

Lewis Morrison's "Faust" receipts at Pope's, St. Louis, were attached by the Sheriff on Monday night, Nov. 25th, for $300 for unpaid printing. Mr. Morrison gave bonds for that sum.

Little Olive Berkeley, a very child actress, has scored a triumph as Little Lord Fauntleroy in Australia. The critics of the Antipode regard her as a wonder, and never tire of singing her praises.

Manager Fred G. Berger, of Sol Smith Russel's company, has formed a stock company to build a new opera house at Grand Rapids, Mich.

George Jessop and William Gill have written a new comedy, entitled "American Assurance," which Roland Reed will produce next week.

William Gilbert, the popular comedian, is no longer connected with Daly's Theatre Company, owing to a misunderstanding between actor and manager.

Frank Hoogs occupies his old position of business manager at the Bijou for the Campobello opera season, and R McBurnie is the treasurer.

Miss Loie Fuller is as yet too ill to appear in London, although she will soon be seen in a new play.

Frank Mayo and his son, Edwin, will play a two weeks' engagement at the Bush, beginning this week, opening in "Nordeck."

Colonel W. E. Sinn has secured a new drama for Cora Tanner entitled "One Error."

McKee Rankin proposes to tour England next Summer with the "Runaway Wife."

A company playing "An Irish Stew," recently fell into the soup at Carbon-

"LOST IN AFRICA" WRECKED.

Bad luck still follows Fred. Bert, the man to whose individual energy we owe our splendid theatrical structure, the Grand Opera House. His "Lost in Africa" company went to pieces at St. Louis, Nov. 26th, under the weight of two Sheriff's attachments for a total of $488.50. Salaries had not been visible for five weeks previous. "Lost in Africa" was a resurrection of Joe Ford and John Sears' "Red Pocket Book," that was originally produced here, at the Metropolitan Theatre, on Montgomery street, above Washington, some twenty years ago, and achieved a great success. In the shipwreck scene George Hinckley, then stage mechanist of the theatre put on the stage a sideview "moving ship," one that worked from a center balance, and rose and fell forward and aft in a sea of stage cloth, with her passengers on board, with a regularity and close resemblance to nature. Hinckley had his invention patented, but dying shortly afterwards the effect, as far as we know, has never been reproduced.

Mme. Patti is going to build a smal theatre at Craig-y-Nos, her home in Wales. It is to be one of the most beautiful little theatres in the world, and although it will seat only about 150 people, it will be as complete in all its details as the largest opera-house. It will be finished next Spring and Henry Irving will dedicate it.

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and only paper that publishes their full programmes

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

Frank Mayo and his Eastern company are dated for two weeks. Mr. Mayo opens in his picturesque and romantic play of "Nordeck," bringing his own scenery, appointments, company and costumes.

The play is very interesting in plot. Its story treats of a family feud in the Baltic provinces of Prussian Poland, in which love and hate are commingled, the opposing parties being Waldemar, the elder son, who leans to the German side, and the mother and younger son, who are essentially Polish. The love interest is centered in Wanda Morynski, a member of the family, to the hand of whom both brothers aspire. The mother favors the younger son, Prince Leo, who is half-brother to Waldemar, and calls to her aid the Polish insurgents. Waldemar in turn enlists the aid of his Prussian followers. Love, passion, and political antagonisms furnish material for plot and counterplot. The drama is romantic, picturesque, and full of strong situations. Mr. Mayo has a good company, including his son, who has done a starring tour since we saw him last, and Harry Courtaine, specially engaged for a prominent role.

Alcazar Theatre.

Leonard Grover's bright comedy of "Our Boarding House," a sapient and amusing satire on the eccentricities of Chicago's business men and Chicago's boarding house society, will be this week's card at the Alcazar. This comedy made fame and money for Crane and Robson. It is strong in characterizations, bright and witty in diction, and very amusing in its situations. See cast on first page of FIGARO.

Kate Claxton's melodrama, "The World Against Her," will follow "Our Boarding House."

The scenic artists are hard at work on the scenery for the Holiday piece, "Mankind." Its scenic effects will excel anything ever seen at the Alcazar.

Grand Opera House.

A grand production of that great melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," a success in three continents, with Miss Isabel Morris, Mr. Geo. Osbourne and Mr. William Morris in the principal roles is in its last week at the Grand.

"Hands Across the Sea" is not a lurid melodrama with red hands but on the contrary a very interesting drama of cultured life and its vicissitudes, with startling and effective situations. It is prolific of stage effects, and, as the Call says, "The management of the Grand has covered the production with a perfect wealth of scenery."

The scenic effects are notably elaborate. The opening act represents an English harvest scene festival, with farm house and waving fields of grain, a wagon loaded with realistic hay, real horses and everything to make a picture of a quiet English country home.

In the 2nd and 3rd acts are some fine scenes in Paris; hotel, prison and street scenes. In the following act we have the great sea scene. The scene on the deck of the steamer Australasian occupies the full stage, with the steamer head on, toward the audience. The deck of the vessel between bulworks is just 34 feet wide. On this the action takes place. The whole structure seems an absolute realism, with an extended sky and sea all around the steamer, like on the ocean.

The last act gives a fine view of Sydney harbor, painted from photographs. Every scene is new from the brush of Wilkins and assistants.

The three principal roles are in capable hands. Miss Isabel Morris gives a lady-like and forcible characterization of the heroine. Mr. Morris makes a manly and vigorous hero, and Mr. Osbourne gives us one of his artistic clear-cut pieces of character acting, as the French society scamp, Jean De Lussac, in which he has but few rivals on the stage. Lorimer Johnston plays the part of Tom Bassett with easy manners and good methods, and the male characters are well sustained, and the female roles have adequate justice done to them by Miss Kate Chester, Miss Rose Easton and Miss De Mar.

The first production at the Grand under the new management of Maguire, Rial & Osbourne was successfully launched before a house crowded in all its tiers, and, notwithstanding the bad weather encountered in its first week has had a good y voyage with the steady wind of popular favor swelling its sails and sales.

Business has been good through a succession of rainy nights.

The Grand's Holiday piece, "The Great Metropolis," a spectacular melodrama of New York life and characters, will be produced Tuesday evening, Dec. 17th.

New California Theatre

This week we are to have "Hans the Boatman" at the California, with Charles Arnold in the title role. Mr. Arnold is a sympathetic actor of the Joseph Emmet style, who has won high praise both in England and Australia. The play was written by Clay M. Greene, and abounds in touches of human nature and in sweet songs that appeal to the heart sympathies.

Orpheum Theatre.

The amusing comedy of "The Widow Bedott" will form this week's bill at the Orpheum, with Horace Ewing in the title role. Mr. Ewing gives a very amusing impersonation of the Widow, quite as acceptable as Nell Burgess, and his company render good support.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The comedian and character actor from the Halsted Street Comedy Theatre, Chicago, Mr F. K. Wallace, puts in his second week in California here in the sensational drama of "The Boy Detective."

Mr. Wallace does some very commendable work as Dick Spifkins, and proves himself a good singer as well as good actor.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The postponed race of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association at the Bay District Course is still held to await good weather and track. Due notice will be given of the day and meeting. Two extra days' racing will be given on the following days. The last meetings of the season.

The events for the last day are: One and one-sixteenth of a mile for a purse of $400, three-year-olds and upwards; a three-quarter of a mile dash for two-year-olds, non-winners, for a $350 purse; the Holiday Handicap, a big event, $500 purse and entries, one and three-eighths; and a one mile race, Owners' Handicap, for a $350 purse.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis; Jas. Goodwin, the funniest Dutchman; Minnetta & Barretta, aerial experts; and Thatcher & Drew are in this week's bill.

Montegue produces this week his local adaptation a la "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," entitled, "Dr. Jackall and Mr. Snide," in which he gives a remarkable dual impersonation.

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's plays have the element of hilarity very prominent in them, the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

"Muldoon's Picnic," that funniest of Irish comedies, is given here this week, with the trained donkey Jerry, the three-handed reel, and all the funny things in it,

Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Sully & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others appear in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed. Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "A New Arrival," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Jennie Fowler, Blanche Long, Alice Dale, Helena Richman, John Gilmore, George West and Minstrels.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

Pete Smith and Lottie Ellis, two popular and clever all around performers, return here this week; also Birth Weston, a fine balladist.

The Polks, musical artists and Tyrolean warblers, and all the company appear in Fox's opening act of "High Life."

The olio acts are Smith "Bold Robbers" and "The Sausage Machine," and Smith and Ellis' and the Polks' specialties. All good.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, J. D. Fox, Rosa Stange and others.

Bottle Meier's is the popular north-end resort. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horse-shoe gallery of larger houses.

Family Matinee every Sunday.

Eureka Music Hall

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein rustles a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Pete Smith and Lottie Ellis, popular performers, and pretty Pearl Iola, are late comers, and Charles Morrell, comedian, vocalist and banjoist, returns to the fold this week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell Lulu Martell, Addie Bennett, Mamie Woods, Billy Akarman and John Merritt make up the company.

The first-part is a Female Minstrel one with songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

The olio piece is the comedy of "Papa's Baby Boy," with Akarman, Pete Smith and most of the ladies in the cast.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

DR. HENLEY'S REMEDIES.—"Nothing succeeds like success" is a general truth, but when applied to the phenomenal success of Dr Henley's remedies, especially his .XL Bitters and Tamarack, the saying has peculiar force. The sale of these beneficial preparations is enormous throughout the United States, and it is gratifying to know that it is fast becoming a standard remedy in the principal cities of Europe.

An infant hippopotamus was born in the New York Central Park menagerie on the morning of Dec. 1st, a bouncing baby weighing 40 pounds. The mother, who weighs 4,000 pounds, and is known by the name of Fatima Murphy, takes the liveliest interest in the new-comer, and seems the happiest mother alive. She quickly responds to the baby's cry of "Maa," in accents much like those of a calf, and answers in the bulbul notes of her basso-profundo grunt and acts as if she was tickled half to death. She follows it around wherever it goes and promises to take the best care of it. FIGARO suggests that the interesting infant be christened Graceful Murphy.

At the Avenue Theatre, London, on Guy Fawke's day, the curtain rose at 8:15, did not pull up on "La Prima Donna" until 9:20. Why? Miss Sara Palma, the leading lady of the company, was a prisoner in the elevator of her hotel, where she was forced to remain one hour and twelve minutes, between the second and third floors, the "lift," through a break in the machinery, refusing to move up or down. The stage manager came before the curtain and explained.

The 100th representation of Bronson Howard's "Shenandoah" was celebrated simultaneously at Proctor's Theatre, New York, and McVicker's Theatre, Chicago on the 3d inst., by the distribution of handsome souvenirs in book-form containing silhouettes of scenes from the play, as well as the New York and Chicago casts.

John D. Townsend has brought suit against the widow of Lester Wallack for legal services. H. C. Miner is getting up a benefit at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, the proceeds of which are to go to liquidate any judgment that the court may allow the plaintiff.

Mr. Topheavy—"Will you share my lot, Penelope?" Penelope—"Yes, if there is a brown-stone front on it."

It is now the season to put up or shut up—Umbrellas.

Miss M. E. Seawell, with the assistance of Frederic Robinson of the Madison Square Theatre, New York, has dramatized her story, "Maud Marian," published some years ago in Lippincott's Magazine. It will be produced January 9th at the National Theatre, Washington. Lititia Aldrich, who is a niece of William Stewart, will star in it, supported by the following company: Mrs. Sol Smith, Alice Brown, Marie Le Gro, Ed Clifford, Daniel Jarrett, J. A. Holland, Marie Madison, Sedley Brown and Charles Jehlinger. The entire house for the special performance has already been bespoken by friends of the star.

The steamer "Australasian" in the play of "Hands Across the Sea" at the Grand is a great set. The whole stage has been thrown open for the steamer scene, and we see a stage steamer "the like of which we have never looked upon before."

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

THE AUDITORIUM.

The Chicago Auditorium, the largest opera house in the world, was opened on Monday night. President Harrison was present and made one of the opening speeches, and Patti inaugurated, musically, by singing "Home, Sweet Home." The block is ten stories high, and cost $3,000,000.

The Auditorium has a seating capacity for 5,000 persons. It is four-tiered, with a false, moving ceiling. Turn a little crank in one of the upper lobbies and the ceiling drops down, shuts in the two lower galleries, and there is a snug opera house seating only a few hundred more than several other theatres in that city.

The stage is 98 feet wide, 70 feet deep, and has a clean height of 89 feet to the rigging loft above. All the scenes and drops are raised or lowered by means of hydraulic engines. The stage opening can also be narrowed by letting down ornamental side sections of the iron curtain, so it can be adjusted for any sort of entertainment.

The Auditorium building is unique in that it is the first theatre ever built with its interior shape like a cone or speaking trumpet. The stage being taken as the apex, the arched roof and diverging walls retreat in a series of constantly increasing circles, being the acme of accoustic achievement.

The tone of the decorations in the Auditorium is pitched upon the key-note of gold and ivory, a soft, pleasing and non-aggressive combination that glows with beauty under the inspiration of upwards of five thousand electric lights. The telegraph pronounces the Auditorium an immense success in every respect.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

A dispatch says that Barnum is giving two performances a day in London to the capacity of his auditorium, about 12,000 per ons, and that the entire royal family, with the exception of the Queen, attended the afternoon's performance of the show on the 6th inst. It was the first time the whole family visited a public entertainment.

A Santa Claus Festival for the children of the stage will take place in New York, on Sunday night, Dec. 29th, in both Tammany Hall and Tony Paster's Theatre, which are in the same building. Dolls, toys, candy and a host of good things will be distributed, and the little ones made happy. Among the ladies interested in this worthy undertaking are Mrs. Louisa Eldridge, Mrs. Tony Pastor Miss Kate Forsythe, Mrs. General Ferraro, Mrs. E. L. Fernandez, Mrs. Neil Burgess, Miss Nettie Guion, Miss Lila Vane, Miss Geraldine McCann and many others.

The wires tell us that Dockstadter's Minstrel season at Dockstadter's Theatre, New York, closed on the 5th inst. A notice was placed on the door that Lew Dockstadter was sick. It was learned, however, that he and his wife left for Canada that afternoon. Before going, Mrs. Dockstadter told a friend that they were in terrible financial straits, and she had to pawn her jewelry for them to get out of the city.

It is reported that Cal Wagner has had a disagreement with his manager and has left the minstrel show bearing his name.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

Milwaukee is considered the worst show town of its size in America, as will be seen by the receipts of the following attractions, recently played there: "Nat Goodwin played in a whole week to less than $800; popular Denman Thompson could not reach $1,000 in seven performances, and then take 'The Pearl of Pekin,' which has been doing big business everywhere this season. They opened on a Sunday night to a $500 house; Monday $224; Tuesday $161, and Wednesday $94. Then they went to Dubuque and played to $850; Marshalltown $685, and Des Moines $965. In other words, in one of these one night stands the company played to as much as in five performances in Milwaukee, including Sunday. Morals—avoid Milwaukee if you can."

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Jessie West, a clever soubrette, was bitten by Jerry, the dog in "A Brass Monkey," while playing in Chicago recently. She was playing the part of Flora Walsh, who was ill, and finished the week with her arm in a sling. Miss Walsh has recovered and resumed her character, and Miss West and Jerry don't speak as they pass by. Jerry is a bad dog, and is loosing caste as a Mascott.

David Belasco, Leonard Grover, William Gill, Henry E. Dixey, Mrs. Kendal, Maurice Barrymore, Bronson Howard, and many more well-known professionals will contribute to the Christmas number of the New York Dramatic News. There will be issued, as a supplement, a beautiful portrait of Ada Rehan, done in water colors.

Kate Castleton opened the 1st inst. at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, to $1,912.75,

"Prince and Pauper" will be produced at the Broadway Theatre, New York, February 17th, with Elsie Leslie as the star.

Madame Januschek announces that she will retire from the stage on which she has been a shining light for the last twenty years. She will play her farewell performance at the Grand Opera House, New York, Dec. 14th.

Miss Edith Stanmore is about to embark in a starring tour in Belasco's society play, "La Belle Russe."

Fanny Davenport, in "La Tosca," has duplicated at the Columbia Theatre the big business done by her last season in Chicago She will be seen Christmas and New Year's weeks in New York.

Charles Overton and Margaret Cone (Kate Claxton's sister) were recently wedded in London.

The London Gaiety company opened their season on Dec. 9th at the Broadway Theatre, New York.

Walter Gale, the Happy Jack of Denman Thompson's "Old Homestead," at the Academy of Music, New York, is no longer a member of that company.

Hotel Clerk— 'Shall I put your diamonds in the safe, Mrs. Footlight?" Distigduished Actress—"No, thanks; I have already contracted for the season's advertising."

Lillian Russell proposes to have her own comic opera company next season.

Sunday night's house at the Grand filled all the circles, mezzanine and stage boxes, and as a last resort, the musicians were turned out and ladies were seated in the orchestra enclosure.

Gilbert & Sullivan's new opera is born and christened. It was most successfully produced, according to telegraphic reports, at their Savoy theatre, London, on Saturday evening last. It is called "The Gondoliers; or the King of Barataria." It abounds in the characteristic whimsicality of Gilbert's humor and wit, and in the harmonious, flowing music of Sullivan. The plot is founded on the accidental mixing up of two babies; one an heir to the Kingdom of Barataria, and the other a gondolier's son, and the confusion it creates afterwards. It is simple enough, but the opera is richly embroidered with the morceaus of Gilbert, and the music Sullivan is said to have returned somewhat to his earlier manner. It is simple and less complicated than his later work.

"The Great Metropolis," the holiday piece to be produced at the Grand Opera House, has made a tremendous success in every city where it has been seen. Messrs. Klew & Erlanger have been unable to fill one-half of the dates offered. They have already booked the play for nearly the entire season of 1890-91 at the largest terms ever given to any combination. Since this play left New York it has been drawing overflowing audiences, and the marvelously effective shipwreck scene has created a positive furore in every city where it has been presented.

The great concert given in aid of the charitable fund of the San Francisco Polychnic, which comes off at the Grand Opera House on Monday evening, the 16th, will call forth all the available musical talent, vocal and instrumental, professional and amateur of celerity, that there is in the city, besides all the full force of the Handel and Haydn Society's 600 voices, and the Oakland Harmonic Society's 80 voices. It will be a grand concert in reality.

Gilbert and Sullivan's successful Venetian opera is called "The Gondoliers," and treats of two gondoliers in love with two flower girls, and the plot is further complicated by the daughter of a nobleman, who is aware that one of the gondoliers is a Prince and is endeavoring to discover his identity, with a view to capturing him. Her father is one of the leading characters, and the fun is derived from the ludicrous situations in which love, vanity, pride, simplicity and ignorance involve the players.

Managers Maguire, Rial and Osbourne will produce their great holiday attraction, "The Great Metropolis," at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday evening, Dec. 17th, the night after the monster concert given at the Grand under the auspices of the San Francisco Polyclinics.

Manager H. C. Miner has arranged for two great benefit performances at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, on Dec. 17th and 19th for the purpose of establishing a room in first-class hospitals for the reception of firemen who may be injured while doing their duty.

William Paul's "French Spy" company has had a tough time in Newburgh N. Y., where food and lodgings cannot be had on credit. The members of the troupe, however, managed to get back to New York city, which is only sixty miles by the pike road from Newburgh.

The New York Dispatch says that "theatrical managers of London who are mounting pantomimes for Christmas are not looking too happy. The advent and success of "The Greatest Show on Earth" will materially interfere with the swelling of their treasuries. Barnum is avenging America. Enough said."

Getting stage boxes at the Grand is the thing. Al Hayman and wife occupied one last Friday night, and May Yohe, late of the "City Directory" company, and some lady friends, graced one at Saturday's matinee.

Lewis Morrison's "Faust" receipts at Pope's, St. Louis, were attached by the Sheriff on Monday night, Nov. 25th, for $300 for unpaid printing. Mr. Morrison gave bonds for that sum.

George Jessop and William Gill have written a new comedy, entitled "American Assurance," which Roland Reed will produce next week.

Frank Mayo and his son, Edwin, will play a two weeks' engagement at the Bush, beginning this week, opening in "Nordeck."

Colonel W. E. Sinn has secured a new drama for Cora Tanner entitled "One Error."

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

Frank Mayo and his Eastern company are dated for two weeks. Mr. Mayo opens in his picturesque and romantic play of "Nordeck," bringing his own scenery, appointments, company and costumes

The play is very interesting in plot. Its story treats of a family feud in the Baltic provinces of Prussian Poland, in which love and hate are commingled, the opposing parties being Waldemar, the elder son, who leans to the German side, and the mother and younger son, who are essentially Polish. The love interest is centered in Wanda Morynski, a member of the family, to the hand of whom both brothers aspire. The mother favors the younger son, Prince Leo who is half-brother to Waldemar, and calls to her aid the Polish insurgents. Waldemar in turn enlists the aid of his Prussian followers. Love, passion, and political antagonisms furnish material for plot and counterplot. The drama is romantic, picturesque, and full of strong situations. Mr. Mayo has a good company, including his son, who has done a starring tour since we saw him last and Harry Courtaine, specially engaged for a prominent role.

There is a dash and manliness in Frank Mayo that shows in all his characters, no less than in "Waldemar Nordeck." His son, Edwin F. Mayo, adds strength to the cast as Waldemar's half-brotner, Prince Leo, and gives a naturalness to the part by the family resemblance. T. H. Taylor and E. Frank have strong parts and sustain them admirably, and Courtaine, as the tutor Fabian, presents a finished character impersonation. Miss Marie Burress as Countess Wanda Miss M. Levere as Princess Zuliski, and Marible Seymour, who played the ingenue role of Margaret, daughter of old Witold, Waldemar's uncle, give great effect to their respective assignments. The two first named ladies have very fine stage presences as well as rare dramatic merits.

"Davy Crockett," next to "Uncle Tom's Cabin", the most successful play on the American stage, having been before the public for 17 years, will be the attraction next week, with Frank Mayo in his incomparable character of the backwoods' hero.

Alcazar Theatre.

Leonard Grover's bright comedy of "Our Boarding House," a sapient and amusing satire on the eccentricities of Chicago's business men and Chicago's boarding house society, will be this week's card at the Alcazar. This comedy made fame and money for Crane and Robson. It is strong in characterizations, bright and witty in diction, and very amusing in its situations. See cast on first page of FIGARO.

E. J. Buckley does very well as Fioretti, though not at his best in an Italian dialect part. John Jack falls in happier lines as Dr Shouter, and Stockwell as Professor Gillipod, Scott Cooper as Col. Elevator, and Leo Cooper as Dalyrymple are at home in their old parts and made the most of them. Miss Ethel Brandon is a charming Beatrice Manheim, just emotional and just mysterious enough. Fanny Young is the boarding-house keeper, and seems born for it—we think she has mistook her profession in life. The lady boarders, personated by Miss Nellie Buckley, Miss Emmie Wilmott and others, are presented in a captivating manner. The performance is an all around good one.

Kate Claxton's melodrama, "The World Against Her," will follow "Our Boarding House."

The scenic artists are hard at work on the scenery for the Holiday piece, "Mankind." Its scenic effects will excell anything ever seen at the Alcazar.

Grand Opera House.

The grand production of that great melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," a success in three continents, with Miss Isabel Morris, Mr. Geo. Osbourne and Mr. William Morris in the principal roles, is in its last week at the Grand.

"Hands Across the Sea" is not a lurid melodrama with red hands, but on the contrary a very interesting drama of cultured life and its vicissitudes, with startling and effective situations. It is prolific of stage effects, and, as the Call says, "The management of the Grand has covered the production with a perfect wealth of scenery."

The scenic effects are notably elaborate. The opening act represents an English harvest scene festival, with farm house and waving fields of grain, a wagon loaded with realistic hay, real horses and everything to make a picture of a quiet English country home.

In the 2nd and 3rd acts are some fine scenes in Paris; hotel, prison and street scenes. In the following act we have the great sea scene. The scene on the deck of the steamer Australasian occupies the full stage, with the steamer head on towards the audience. The deck of the vessel between bulworks is just 34 feet wide On this the action takes place. The whole structure seems an absolute realism, with an extended sky and sea all around the steamer, like on the ocean.

The last act gives a fine view of Sydney harbor, painted from photographs. Every scene is new from the brush of Wilkins and assistants.

The three principal roles are in capable hands. Miss Isabel Morris gives a lady-like and forcible characterization of the heroine Mr. Morris makes a manly and vigorous hero, and Mr. Osbourne gives us one of his artistic clear-cut pieces of character acting, as the French society scamp, Jean De Lussac, in which he has but few rivals on the stage. Lorimer Johnston plays the part of Tom Bassett with easy manners and good methods, and the many male characters are well sustained; and the female roles have adequate justice done to them by Miss Kate Chester, Miss Rose Easton and Miss De Mar.

The first production at the Grand under the new management of Maguire, Rial & Osbourne was successfully launched before a house crowded in all its tiers, and, notwithstanding the bad weather encountered in its first week has had a good voyage with the steady wind of popular favor swelling its sails and sales.

Business has been good through a succession of rainy nights.

The Grand's Holiday piece, "The Great Metropolis," a spectacular melodrama of New York life and characters, will be produced Tuesday evening, Dec. 17th.

Grand Opera House.

The great Monster Concert by some seven hundred volunteers, for the benefit of the San Francisco Polyclinic, comes off at the Grand on Monday night. The event and the cause is a markedly noted one.

See programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

New California Theatre.

This week we are to have "Hans the Boatman" at the California, with Charles Arnold in the title role. Mr. Arnold is a sympathetic actor of the Joseph Emmet style, who has won high praise both in England and Australia. The play was written by Clay M. Greene, and abounds in touches of human nature and in sweet songs that appeal to the heart sympathies, and is American in theme and characters.

One of the strong features of "Hans the Boatman" is little May Hannan, a very bright child actress, who plays three juvenile characters with rare cleverness. Julius Kahn and Myron Calice do meritorious work, and Miss May Gordon acts the ill-mated wife with good methods. Miss Dot Fredericks is a pronounced soubrette of unmistakable ability. The dog Nord, a fine St. Bernard, shows remarkable dog intelligence in his alloted part.

The play is interesting and very handsomely staged. It will win its share of public patronage.

Orpheum Theatre.

The amusing comedy of "The Widow Bedott" will form this week's bill at the Orpheum, with Horace Ewing in the title role. Mr. Ewing gives a very amusing impersonation of the Widow, quite as acceptable as Neil Burgess, and his company render good support.

The farce-comedy affords a deal of amusement, as it is well acted.

Herr John Plagemann, an eminent basso cantanti, will make his debut Wednesday night, assisted by the Harmonic Singing Society.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The comedian and character actor from the Halsted Street Comedy Theatre, Chicago, Mr. F. K. Wallace, puts in his second week in California here in the sensational drama of "The Boy Detective,"

Mr. Wallace does some very commendable work as Dick Spifkins, and proves himself a good singer as well as good actor.

The drama is eventful in incident and action, and is well staged with good scenic effects. It has proved a great go at this popular east-side house.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The postponed race of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association at the Bay District Course is still held to await good weather and track. Due notice will be given of the day and meeting. Two extra days' racing will be given on the following days. The last meetings of the season.

The events for the last day are: One and one-sixteenth of a mile for a purse of $400, three-year-olds and upwards; a three-quarter of a mile dash for two-year-olds, non-winners, for a $350 purse; the Holiday Handicap, a big event, $500 purse and entries, one and three-eighths; and a one mile race, Owners' Handicap, for a $350 purse.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis; Jas. Goodwin, the funniest Dutchman; Minnetta & Barretta, aerial experts; and Thatcher & Drew are in this week's bill.

Montague produces this week his local adaptation a la "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," entitled, "Dr. Jackall and Mr. Snide," in which he gives a remarkable dual impersonation.

DR. HENLEY'S REMEDIES.—"Nothing succeeds like success" is a general truth, but when applied to the phenomenal success of Dr. Henley's remedies, especially his 1XL Bitters and Tamarack, the saying has peculiar force. The sale of these beneficial preparations is enormous throughout the United States, and it is gratifying to know that it is fast becoming a standard remedy in the principal cities of Europe.

JOSEPH JEFFERSON.

Actors have rarely won such unanimous approbation from their contemporaries as that which has for many years attended Joseph Jefferson. It is not only evoked by admiration for the wonderful talents by which he ranks as the very foremost of American comedians; it is a tribute to the man himself, his blameless career and his high-minded, gentle and refined personality. The simple humor, the pathos, the lovableness that mark his famous impersonation of Rip Van Winkle are but the natural expression of his own mind, which a famous preacher once termed "the genius that God has given us to show in the drama the power of love over the sins of the race."

The germs of Mr. Jefferson's talents were inherited from his ancestors. His great grandfather played in the same company with David Garrick in London, and was an intimate friend of that illustrious actor. Next in line comes the first Joseph Jefferson, founder of the American branch of the family. His son and namesake was the father of the great comedian, who in his recently published autobiography gives a touching picture of the elder Jefferson—the versatile player and scene painter, ambitious, improvident, struggling, but ever cheerful and hopeful, until he was suddenly stricken down with yellow fever in a Southern city.

Joseph Jefferson the third was then thirteen years old, and already an experienced actor. As he says himself, he was, figuratively speaking, born in the theatre. He first appeared on the boards as a baby in long clothes. At four he danced and sang at a benefit performance, and established his reputation as a juvenile prodigy. At eight he acted in a New York theatre, and the following year he started with his parents for a long series of journeys in the West.

He was only twenty-five when as Dr. Pangloss, in "The Heir-at-Law," he scored his first noteworthy success. This was at the New York theatre of Laura Keene, a famous actress of her day. The metropolis was delighted by the young actor's exquisite humor, combined with a perfect refinement of feeling.

The following season his reputation was confirmed and extended by his success as Asa Trenchard in "Our American Cousin." Here he was able to intermingle pathos with comedy, and to show his wonderful hold upon the emotions of his audience by touching alternately, as with a magician's wand, the fountains of tears and of laughter.

In 1861 Mr. Jefferson visited London, and it was there that his greatest triumphs began. He had previously played the character of Rip Van Winkle, and though it proved only moderately successful he had seen its great possibilities. He had the part rewritten, and studied it long and thoroughly. The result was the gem of dramatic art which was at once very warmly received, and whose merits have been proved by the severe test of many years of popularity. —[Eddy's N. Y. Squib.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

A dispatch says that Barnum is giving two performances a day in London to the capacity of his auditorium, about 12,000 persons, and that the entire royal family, with the exception of the Queen, attended the afternoon's performance of the show on the 6th inst. It was the first time the whole family visited a public entertainment.

A Santa Claus Festival for the children of the stage will take place in New York, on Sunday night, Dec. 29th, in both Tammany Hall and Tony Paster's Theatre, which are in the same building. Dolls, toys, candy and a host of good things will be distributed, and the little ones made happy. Among the ladies interested in this worthy undertaking are Mrs. Louisa Eldridge, Mrs. Tony Pastor Miss Kate Forsythe, Mrs. General Ferraro, Mrs. E. L. Fernandez, Mrs. Neil Burgess, Miss Nettie Guion, Miss Lila Vane, Miss Geraldine McCann and many others.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Geo. H. Wood, "the somewhat different comedian," will make his appearance in the domestic drama of "Married Life" in conjunction with Miss Frederica Stockmeyer. The engagement is a long one. They were married last evening.

Johnstown seems ill-fated. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was being played there at Parke's Opera House on the 10th inst., when the audience became panic-stricken by an alarm of fire sounded from a corner near the opera house, and rushed like crazy people for the street. There were only about 600 present, mostly women and children, and in the rush down the stairway many fell and were trodden under foot. The building was an illy constructed one for the purpose. The crowd rushed in from the street and a jam ensued, in which several lives were lost. When the panic was over it was discovered that the fire was not even in Johnstown, but in the adjacent village of Kernville. In nine cases out of ten when a fire panic breaks out in a public building it is the crazy ones who first rush out and create it that are the only sufferers by it.

The Chicago Auditorium received its opera baptism on the 10th with "Romeo and Juliet," Mme. Patti appearing as Juliet. The fine acoustic properties of the immense building were fully proven. All the shades and tints of the music were brought out in their due proportions, and even the softest tones had that peculiar carrying quality that penetrated to the remotest corners of the great hall. The effect of years on Patti's wonderful voice shows chiefly in the loss of some of its brilliance and in a less prodigal use than formerly of its marvelous opulence of resource. Dramatically she was a too mature Juliet, of course, not only in appearance, but in manner, and this overmaturity in the early scenes took away from the tragedy the effect developed in the later ones.

Leader Jacobson has some good soloists in his orchestra at the Grand. Roncavieri gives a trombone solo, "The Last Rose of Summer," this week, that is notably artistic in merit and style.

The three American opera primas are on the top wave in Europe. Miss Eames, after a long illness, is now at the Grand Opera House, Paris. Emma Nevada is singing in Madrid and Marie Van Zandt in Lisbon.

Jessie West, a clever soubrette, was bitten by Jerry, the dog in "A Brass Monkey," while playing in Chicago recently. She was playing the part of Flora Walsh, who was ill, and finished the week with her arm in a sling. Miss Walsh has recovered and resumed her character, and Miss West and Jerry don't speak as they pass by. Jerry is a bad dog, and is loosing caste as a Mascott.

David Belasco, Leonard Grover, William Gill, Henry E. Dixey, Mrs. Kendal, Maurice Barrymore, Bronson Howard, and many more well-known professionals will contribute to the Christmas number of the New York Dramatic News. There will be issued, as a supplement, a beautiful portrait of Ada Rehan, done in water colors.

Kate Castleton opened the 1st inst. at the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, to $1,912.75.

"Prince and Pauper" will be produced at the Broadway Theatre, New York, February 17th, with Elsie Leslie as the star.

Madame Januschek announces that she will retire from the stage, on which she has been a shining light for the last twenty years. She will play her farewell performance at the Grand Opera House, New York, Dec. 14th.

Managers Maguire, Rial and Osbourne will produce their great holiday attraction, "The Great Metropolis," at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday evening, Dec. 17th, the night after the monster concert given at the Grand under the auspices of the San Francisco Polyclinics.

Gilbert & Sullivan's new opera is born and christened. It was most successfully produced, according to telegraphic reports, at their Savoy theatre, London, on Saturday evening last. It is called "The Gondoliers; or the King of Barataria." It abounds in the characteristic whimsicality of Gilbert's humor and wit, and in the harmonious, flowing music of Sullivan. The plot is founded on the accidental mixing up of two babies; one an heir to the Kingdom of Barataria, and the other a gondolier's son, and the confusion it creates afterwards. It is simple enough, but the opera is richly embroidered with the morceaus of Gilbert, and the music Sullivan is said to have returned somewhat to his earlier manner. It is simple and less complicated than his later work.

"The Great Metropolis," the holiday piece to be produced at the Grand Opera House, has made a tremendous success in every city where it has been seen. Messrs. Klew & Erlanger have been unable to fill one-half of the dates offered. They have already booked the play for nearly the entire season of 1890-91 at the largest terms ever given to any combination. Since this play left New York it has been drawing overflowing audiences, and the marvelously effective shipwreck scene has created a positive furore in every city where it has been presented.

The great concert given in aid of the charitable fund of the San Francisco Polyclinic, which comes off at the Grand Opera House on Monday evening, the 16th, will call forth all the available musical talent, vocal and instrumental, professional and amateur of celerity, that there is in the city, besides all the full force of the Handel and Haydn Society's 600 voices, and the Oakland Harmonic Society's 80 voices. It will be a grand concert in reality.

Charles Overton and Margaret Cone (Kate Claxton's sister) were recently wedded in London.

THE AUDITORIUM.

The Chicago Auditorium, the largest opera house in the world, was opened on Monday night. President Harrison was present and made one of the opening speeches, and Patti inaugurated, musically, by singing "Home, Sweet Home." The block is ten stories high, and cost $3,000,000.

The Auditorium has a seating capacity for 5,000 persons. It is four-tiered, with a false, moving ceiling. Turn a little crank in one of the upper lobbies and the ceiling drops down, shuts in the two lower galleries, and there is a snug opera house seating only a few hundred more than several other theatres in that city.

The stage is 98 feet wide, 70 feet deep, and has a clean height of 89 feet to the rigging loft above. All the scenes and drops are raised or lowered by means of hydraulic engines. The stage opening can also be narrowed by letting down ornamental side sections of the iron curtain, so it can be adjusted for any sort of entertainment.

The Auditorium building is unique in that it is the first theatre ever built with its interior shape like a cone or speaking trumpet. The stage being taken as the apex, the arched roof and diverging walls retreat in a series of constantly increasing circles, being the acme of a coustic achievement.

The tone of the decorations in the Auditorium is pitched upon the key-note of gold and ivory, a soft, pleasing and non-aggressive combination that glows with beauty under the inspiration of upwards of five thousand electric lights. The telegraph pronounces the Auditorium an immense success in every respect.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

Frank Mayo and his Eastern company are dated for two weeks. Mr. Mayo opens in his picturesque and romantic play of "Nordeck," bringing his own scenery, appointments, company and costumes.

The play is very interesting in plot. Its story treats of a family feud in the Baltic provinces of Prussian Poland, in which love and hate are commingled, the opposing parties being Waldemar, the elder son, who leans to the German side, and the mother and younger son, who are essentially Polish. The love interest is centered in Wanda Morynski, a member of the family, to the hand of whom both brothers aspire. The mother favors the younger son, Prince Leo, who is half-brother to Waldemar, and calls to her aid the Polish insurgents. Waldemar in turn enlists the aid of his Prussian followers. Love, passion, and political antagonisms furnish material for plot and counterplot. The drama is romantic, picturesque, and full of strong situations. Mr. Mayo has a good company, including his son, who has done a starring tour since we saw him last and Harry Courtaine, specially engaged for a prominent role.

There is a dash and manliness in Frank Mayo that shows in all his characters, no less than in "Waldemar Nordeck." His son, Edwin F. Mayo, adds strength to the cast as Waldemar's half-brother, Prince Leo, and gives a naturalness to the part by the family resemblance. T. H. Taylor and E. Frank have strong parts and sustain them admirably, and Courtaine, as the tutor Fabian, presents a finished character impersonation. Miss Marie Burress as Countess Wanda Miss M. Levere as Princess Zulieki, and Marible Seymour, who played the ingenue role of Margaret, daughter of old Witold, Waldemar's uncle, give great effect to their respective assignments. The two first named ladies have very fine stage presences as well as rare dramatic merits.

"Davy Crockett," next to "Uncle Tom's Cabin" the most successful play on the American stage, having been before the public for 17 years, will be the attraction next week, with Frank Mayo in his incomparable character of the backwoods' hero.

Alcazar Theatre.

Leonard Grover's bright comedy of "Our Boarding House," a sapient and amusing satire on the eccentricities of Chicago's business men and Chicago's boarding house society, will be this week's card at the Alcazar. This comedy made fame and money for Crane and Robson. It is strong in characterizations, bright and witty in diction, and very amusing in its situations. See cast on first page of FIGARO.

E. J. Buckley does very well as Fioretti, though not at his best in an Italian dialect part. John Jack falls in happier lines as Dr Shouter, and Stockwell as Professor Gillipod, Scott Cooper as Col. Elevator, and Leo Cooper as Dalyrymple are at home in their old parts and made the most of them. Miss Ethel Brandon is a charming Beatrice Manheim, just emotional and just mysterious enough. Fanny Young is the boarding-house keeper, and seems born for it—we think she has mistook her profession in life. The lady boarders, personated by Miss Nellie Buckley, Miss Emmie Wilmott and others, are presented in a captivating manner. The performance is an all around good one.

Kate Claxton's melodrama, "The World Against Her," will follow "Our Boarding House."

The scenic artists are hard at work on the scenery for the Holiday piece, "Mankind." Its scenic effects will excell anything ever seen at the Alcazar.

Grand Opera House.

The grand production of that great melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," a success in three continents, with Miss Isabel Morris, Mr. Geo Osbourne and Mr. William Morris in the principal roles, is in its last week at the Grand.

"Hands Across the Sea" is not a lurid melodrama with red hands, but on the contrary a very interesting drama of cultured life and its vicissitudes, with startling and effective situations. It is prolific of stage effects, and, as the Call says, "The management of the Grand has covered the production with a perfect wealth of scenery."

The scenic effects are notably elaborate. The opening act represents an English harvest scene festival, with farm house and waving fields of grain, a wagon loaded with realistic hay, real horses and everything to make a picture of a quiet English country home.

In the 2nd and 3rd acts are some fine scenes in Paris; hotel, prison and street scenes. In the following act we have the great sea scene. The scene on the deck of the steamer Australasian occupies the full stage, with the steamer head on towards the audience. The deck of the vessel between bulworks is just 34 feet wide On this the action takes place. The whole structure seems an absolute realism, with an extended sky and sea all around the steamer, like on the ocean.

The last act gives a fine view of Sydney harbor, painted from photographs. Every scene is new from the brush of Wilkins and assistants.

The three principal roles are in capable hands. Miss Isabel Morris gives a lady-like and forcible characterization of the heroine Mr. Morris makes a manly and vigorous hero, and Mr. Osbourne gives us one of his artistic clear-cut pieces of character acting, as the French society scamp, Jean De Lussac, in which he has but few rivals on the stage. Lorimer Johnston plays the part of Tom Bassett with easy manners and good methods, and the many male characters are well sustained; and the female roles have adequate justice done to them by Miss Kate Chester, Miss Rose Easton and Miss De Mar.

The first production at the Grand under the new management of Maguire, Rial & Osbourne was successfully launched before a house crowded in all its tiers, and, notwithstanding the bad weather encountered in its first week has had a goodly voyage with the steady wind of popular favor swelling its sails and sales.

Business has been good through a succession of rainy nights.

The Grand's Holiday piece, "The Great Metropolis," a spectacular melodrama of New York life and characters, will be produced Tuesday evening, Dec. 17th.

Grand Opera House.

The great Monster Concert by some seven hundred volunteers, for the benefit of the San Francisco Polyclinic, comes off at the Grand on Monday night. The event and the cause is a markedly noted one.

See programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

New California Theatre.

This week we are to have "Hans the Boatman" at the California, with Charles Arnold in the title role. Mr. Arnold is a sympathetic actor of the Joseph Emmet style, who has won high praise both in England and Australia. The play was written by Clay M. Greene, and abounds in touches of human nature and in sweet songs that appeal to the heart sympathies, and is American in theme and characters.

One of the strong features of "Hans the Boatman" is little May Hannan, a very bright child actress, who plays three juvenile characters with rare cleverness. Julius Kahn and Myron Calice do meritorious work, and Miss May Gordon acts the ill-mated wife with good methods. Miss Dot Fredericks is a pronounced soubrette of unmistakable ability. The dog Nord, a fine St. Bernard, shows remarkable dog intelligence in his alloted part.

The play is interesting and very handsomely staged. It will win its share of public patronage.

Orpheum Theatre.

The amusing comedy of "The Widow Bedotti" will form this week's bill at the Orpheum, with Horace Ewing in the title role. Mr. Ewing gives a very amusing impersonation of the Widow, quite as acceptable as Neil Burgess, and his company render good support.

The farce-comedy affords a deal of amusement, as it is well acted.

Herr John Plagemann, an eminent basso cantanti, will make his debut Wednesday night, assisted by the Harmonic Singing Society.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The comedian and character actor from the Halsted Street Comedy Theatre, Chicago, Mr. F. K. Wallace, puts in his second week in California here in the sensational drama of "The Boy Detective,"

Mr. Wallace does some very commendable work as Dick Spifkins, and proves himself a good singer as well as good actor.

The drama is eventful in incident and action, and is well staged with good scenic effects. It has proved a great go at this popular east-side house.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The postponed race of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association at the Bay District Course is still held to await good weather and track. Due notice will be given of the day and meeting. Two extra days' racing will be given on the following days. The last meetings of the season.

The events for the last day are: One and one-sixteenth of a mile for a purse of $400, three-year-olds and upwards; a three-quarter of a mile dash for two-year-olds, non-winners, for a $350 purse; the Holiday Handicap, a big event, $500 purse and entries, one and three-eighths; and a one mile race, Owners' Handicap, for a $350 purse.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis; Jas. Goodwin, the funniest Dutchman; Minnetta & Barretta, aerial experts; and Thatcher & Drew are in this week's bill.

Montegue produces this week his local adaptation a la "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," entitled, "Dr. Jackall and Mr. Snide," in which he gives a remarkable dual impersonation.

DR. HENLEY'S REMEDIES.—"Nothing succeeds like success" is a general truth, but when applied to the phenomenal success of Dr. Henley's remedies, especially his IXL Bitters and Tamarack, the saying has peculiar force. The sale of these beneficial preparations is enormous throughout the United States, and it is gratifying to know that it is fast becoming a standard remedy in the principal cities of Europe.

JOSEPH JEFFERSON.

Actors have rarely won such unanimous approbation from their contemporaries as that which has for many years attended Joseph Jefferson. It is not only evoked by admiration for the wonderful talents by which he ranks as the very foremost of American comedians; it is a tribute to the man himself, his blameless career and his high-minded, gentle and refined personality. The simple humor, the pathos, the lovable-ness that mark his famous impersonation of Rip Van Winkle are but the natural expression of his own mind, which a famous preacher once termed "the genius that God has given us to show in the drama the power of love over the sins of the race."

The germs of Mr. Jefferson's talents were inherited from his ancestors. His great grandfather played in the same company with David Garrick in London, and was an intimate friend of that illustrious actor. Next in line comes the first Joseph Jefferson, founder of the American branch of the family. His son and namesake was the father of the great comedian, who in his recently published autobiography gives a touching picture of the older Jefferson, the versatile player and scene painter, ambitious, improvident, struggling, but ever cheerful and hopeful, until he was suddenly stricken down with yellow fever in a Southern city.

Joseph Jefferson the third was then [illegible] years old, and already an experienced actor. As he says himself, he was figuratively speaking born in the theatre. He first stepped on the boards as a baby in long clothes. At four he danced and sang at a benefit performance, and established his reputation as a juvenile prodigy. At eight he acted in a New York theatre, and the following year he started with his parents for a long series of journeys in the West.

He was only twenty-five when as Dr. Pangloss, in "The Heir-at-Law," he scored his first noteworthy success. This was at the New York theatre of Lotta Keene, a famous actress of her day. The [illegible] was delighted by the young actor's exquisite humor, combined with a perfect refinement of feeling.

The following season his reputation was confirmed and extended by his success as Asa Trenchard in "Our American Cousin." Here he was able to intermingle pathos with comedy, and to show his wonderful hold upon the emotions of his audience by touching alternately, as with a magician's wand, the fountains of tears and of laughter.

In 1861 Mr. Jefferson visited London, and it was there that his greatest triumphs began. He had previously played the character of Rip Van Winkle, and though it proved only moderately successful, he saw its great possibilities. He had the part rewritten, and studied it long and thoroughly. The result was the play of the same name which was at once very warmly received, and whose merits have been proved by the severe test of many years of popularity.

Eddy's N. Y. Spirit.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Henry Wambold, circus gymnast, died recently at Pougheepsie, N. Y., of paralysis. His widow is Lottie Aymar, an equestrienne now with Orrin's Circus in Mexico.

Adele Nelson, the Australian equestrienne and the New York Police Relief Committee, of Chicago, for $20,000 damages for an injury received in a wreck near Gold Creek, Mont. The [illegible] but Mme. Nelson's attorney sent out to [illegible] was willing to compromise, [illegible] was finally agreed that Mme. Nelson should receive $11,000, after [illegible] had compromised the claim by paying Mme. Nelson $11,000.

Geo. H. Wood, "the somewhat different [illegible]," will make his appearance in burlesque-drama of "Married [illegible]" in conjunction with Miss Frederica Stockwell. The engagement is a long one. They were married Wednesday evening.

Billie Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

George Atkins, the original Grosjo in the "Black Crook" when first produced at Niblo's, New York, and about the last Grosjo who accompanied the character to the front, died on the 3d inst. at Mount St. Vincent Hospital of consumption and was buried by the Actors' Fund in Evergreen Cemetery. Mr. Atkins was of English extraction, and we think came to this country with the "Black Crook." He was a very good comedian, of thoroughly English training and well versed in the eccentric and farcical schools. He occupied the position of stage manager of the Varieties for some years in this city, and played a wide range of characters. His Wormwood was the best we have had here in modern days. Before going East with the Kiralfy Company last year, engaged to play his original creation of Greppo, the seeds of his fatal disease had fastened on him. Mr. Atkins was a quiet, kindly gentleman, and had but few if any enemies.

The Boston Baseball Club, with Manager Hart and $10,000 Kelly, will be at the Bush Street Theatre this evening to see "Nordeck." Boxes have been allotted to them. Frank Mayo is a favorite, off and on the stage, everywhere.

The Call says: 'This is the last week of Henry Pettitt's 'Hands Across the Sea' at the Grand Opera House. It is a fine production, and the public rewarded the managerial effort to please them by most ample recognition. The company go to Oakland on Monday evening next and play 'Hands' across the bay, the Mission street theatre on that evening being occupied by the Polyclinic Committee for the purpose of a benefit concert. The managers of the Grand ask the Call to say to the public that the production of 'The Great Metropolis' at their theatre on Tuesday of next week will be one of the best specimens of skill in stage-setting ever seen in San Francisco. The life-saving scene, for example, will be so realistic that every one in the audience will feel an impulse to 'lend a hand' to the gallant crew who man the life-boat. They will not fail to do so heartily with both hands when the applause falls due. By the way the entr'acte music preceding the life-saving scene might, with propriety, be that old-fashioned but good duet, 'The Minute Gun at Sea,'' or the solo, 'Man the Life-Boat.' Properly arranged for the orchestra and neatly played this music would make one of the features of the performance.'' Will Leader Jacobson take note of Mr. Barnes' suggestion?

Manager Wallenrod wishes the public to know that there is not a word of truth in the report published in an evening paper to the effect that L. R. Stockwell intends to sever his connection with the Alcazar Theatre in February next.

Church and stage will be brought into a sort of affinity at the Bijou on the coming Saturday evening, when Lewis Browne, organist of the Church of the Advent, will lead the orchestra of the theatre. The opera is "La Traviata," with the sweet-voiced Ida Valerga as Violetta.

Mr. Henley and wife, lately playing "Kleptomania" in this city, will join forces with the Grand Opera House people next Tuesday night, when "The Great Metropolis" will be produced.

The J. C. Duff Comic Opera Company are rendering "A Trip to Africa" in a very satisfactory manner at the Baldwin. The principal singers are of good vocal calibre and clever actors, the chorus, costumes and scenery are good, and the whole performance an effective one.

The Chicago Auditorium received its opera baptism on the 10th with "Romeo and Juliet," Mme. Patti appearing as Juliet. The fine acoustic properties of the immense building were fully proven. All the shades and tints of the music were brought out in their due proportions, and even the softest tones had that peculiar carrying quality that penetrated to the remotest corners of the great hall. The effect of years on Patti's wonderful voice shows chiefly in the loss of some of its brilliance and in a less prodigal use than formerly of its marvelous opulence of resource. Dramatically she was a too mature Juliet, of course, not only in appearance, but in manner, and this overmaturity in the early scenes took away from the tragedy the effect developed in the later ones.

Leader Jacobson has some good soloists in his orchestra at the Grand. Roncavieri gives a trombone solo, "The Last Rose of Summer," this week, that is notably artistic in merit and style.

Jessie West, a clever soubrette, was bitten by Jerry, the dog in "A Brass Monkey," while playing in Chicago recently. She was playing the part of Flora Walsh, who was ill, and finished the week with her arm in a sling. Miss Walsh has recovered and resumed her character, and Miss West and Jerry don't speak as they pass by. Jerry is a bad dog, and is loosing caste as a Mascott.

David Belasco, Leonard Grover, William Gill, Henry E. Dixey, Mrs. Kendal, Maurice Barrymore, Bronson Howard, and many more well-known professionals will contribute to the Christmas number of the New York Dramatic News. There will be issued, as a supplement, a beautiful portrait of Ada Rehan, done in water colors.

The great concert given in aid of the charitable fund of the San Francisco Polyclinic, which comes off at the Grand Opera House on Monday evening, the 16th, will call forth all the available musical talent, vocal and instrumental, professional and amateur of celerity, that there is in the city, besides all the full force of the Handel and Haydn Society's 600 voices, and the Oakland Harmonic Society's 80 voices. It will be a grand concert in reality.

The costumes and scenery of "Lost in Africa" were sold by the constable in St. Louis last week for $3.

Johnstown seems ill-fated. "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was being played there at Parke's Opera House on the 10th inst., when the audience became panic-stricken by an alarm of fire sounded from a corner near the opera house, and rushed like crazy people for the street. There were only about 600 present, mostly women and children, and in the rush down the stairway many fell and were trodden under foot. The building was an illy constructed one for the purpose. The crowd rushed in from the street and a jam ensued, in which several lives were lost. When the panic was over it was discovered that there was not even the excuse of a fire for the alarm. The alarm was false. In nine cases out of ten when a fire panic breaks out in a public building it is the crazy ones who first rush out and create it that are the only sufferers by it.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Lenvitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

Frank Mayo and his Eastern company are dated for two weeks. Mr. Mayo opens in his picturesque and romantic play of "Nordeck," bringing his own scenery, appointments, company and costumes.

The play is very interesting in plot. Its story treats of a family feud in the Baltic provinces of Prussian Poland, in which love and hate are commingled, the opposing parties being Waldemar, the elder son, who leans to the German side, and the mother and younger son, who are essentially Polish. The love interest is centered in Wanda Moryneki, a member of the family, to the hand of whom both brothers aspire. The mother favors the younger son, Prince Leo, who is half-brother to Waldemar, and calls to her aid the Polish insurgents. Waldemar in turn enlists the aid of his Prussian followers. Love, passion, and political antagonisms furnish material for plot and counterplot. The drama is romantic, picturesque, and full of strong situations. Mr. Mayo has a good company, including his son, who has done a starring tour since we saw him last and Harry Courtaine, specially engaged for a prominent role.

There is a dash and manliness in Frank Mayo that shows in all his characters, no less than in "Waldemar Nordeck." His son, Edwin F. Mayo, adds strength to the cast as Waldemar's half-brother, Prince Leo, and gives a naturalness to the part by the family resemblance. T. H. Taylor and E. Frank have strong parts and sustain them admirably, and Courtaine, as the inter Esbian, presents a finished character impersonation. Miss Marie Burress as Countess Wanda, Miss M. Levere as Princess Zuskin, and Marible Seymour, who played the ingenue role of Margaret, daughter of old Witold, Waldemar's uncle, give great effect to their respective assignments. The two first named ladies have very fine stage presences as well as rare dramatic merits.

"Davy Crockett," next to "Uncle Tom's Cabin" the most successful play on the American stage, having been before the public for 17 years, will be the attraction next week, with Frank Mayo in his incomparable character of the backwoods' hero.

Alcazar Theatre.

Leonard Grover's bright comedy of "Our Boarding House" a sapient and amusing satire on the eccentricities of Chicago's business men and Chicago's boarding house society, will be this week's card at the Alcazar. This comedy made fame and money for Crane and Robson. It is strong in characterizations, bright and witty in diction, and very amusing in its situations. See cast on first page of FIGARO.

E. J. Buckley does very well as Fioretti though not at his best in an Italian dialect part. John Jack talls in happier lines as Dr Shouter, and Stockwell as Professor Gillipod, Scott Cooper as Col. Elevator, and Leo Cooper as Dalyrymple are at home in their old parts and made the most of them. Miss Ethel Brandon is a charming Beatrice Manheim, just emotional and just mysterious enough. Fanny Young is the boarding-house keeper, and seems born for it—we think she has mistook her profession in life. The lady boarders, personated by Miss Nellie Buckley, Miss Emmie Wilmott and others, are presented in a captivating manner. The performance is an all around good one.

Kate Claxton's melodrama, "The World Against Her," will follow "Our Boarding House."

The scenic artists are hard at work on the scenery for the Holiday piece, "Mankind." Its scenic effects will excel anything ever seen at the Alcazar.

Grand Opera House.

The great production of that great melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," a success in three continents, with Miss Isabel Morris, Mr. Geo. Osbourne and Mr. William Morris in the principal roles, is in its last week at the Grand.

"Hands Across the Sea" is not a lurid melodrama with red hands but on the contrary a very interesting drama of cultured life and its vicissitudes, with startling and effective situations. It is prolific of stage effects, and, as the Call says, "The management of the Grand has covered the production with a perfect wealth of scenery."

The scenic effects are notably elaborate. The opening act represents an English harvest scene festival, with farm house and waving fields of grain, a wagon loaded with realistic hay, real horses and everything to make a picture of a quiet English country home.

In the 2nd and 3rd acts are some fine scenes in Paris; hotel, prison and street scenes. In the following act we have the great sea scene. The scene on the deck of the steamer Australasian occupies the full stage, with the steamer head on towards the audience. The deck of the vessel between bulworks is just 34 feet wide On this the action takes place. The whole structure seems an absolute realism, with an extended sky and sea all around the steamer, like on the ocean.

The last act gives a fine view of Sydney harbor, painted from photographs. Every scene is new from the brush of Wilkins and assistants.

The three principal roles are in capable hands. Miss Isabel Morris gives a lady-like and forcible characterization of the heroine Mr. Morris makes a manly and vigorous hero, and Mr. Osbourne gives us one of his artistic clear-cut pieces of character acting, as the French society scamp, Jean De Lussac, in which he has but few rivals on the stage. Lorimer Johnston plays the part of Tom Bassett with easy manners and good methods, and the many male characters are well sustained; and the female roles have adequate justice done to them by Miss Kate Chester, Miss Rose Easton and Miss De Mar.

The first production at the Grand under the new management of Maguire, Rial & Osbourne was successfully launched before a house crowded in all its tiers, and, notwithstanding the bad weather encountered in its first week has had a good voyage with the steady wind of popular favor swelling its sails and sales.

Business has been good through a succession of rainy nights.

The Grand's Holiday piece, "The Great Metropolis," a spectacular melodrama of New York life and characters, will be produced Tuesday evening, Dec. 17th.

Grand Opera House.

The great Monster Concert by some seven hundred volunteers, for the benefit of the San Francisco Polyclinic, comes off at the Grand on Monday night. The event and the cause is a markedly noted one.

See programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

New California Theatre

This week we are to have "Hans the Boatman" at the California, with Charles Arnold in the title role. Mr. Arnold is a sympathetic actor of the Joseph Emmet style, who has won high praise both in England and Australia. The play was written by Clay M. Greene, and abounds in touches of human nature and in sweet songs that appeal to the heart sympathies, and is American in theme and characters.

One of the strong features of "Hans the Boatman" is little May Hannan, a very bright child actress, who plays three juvenile characters with rare cleverness. Julius Kahn and Myron Calice do meritorious work, and Miss May Gordon acts the ill-mated wife with good methods. Miss Dot Fredericks is a pronounced soubrette of unmistakable ability. The dog Nord, a fine St. Bernard, shows remarkable dog intelligence in his allotted part.

The play is interesting and very handsomely staged. It will win its share of public patronage.

Orpheum Theatre.

The amusing comedy of "The Widow Bedott" will form this week's bill at the Orpheum, with Horace Ewing in the title role. Mr. Ewing gives a very amusing impersonation of the Widow, quite as acceptable as Nell Burgess, and his company render good support.

The farce-comedy affords a deal of amusement, as it is well acted.

Herr John Plagemann, an eminent basso cantanti, will make his debut Wednesday night, assisted by the Harmonic Singing Society.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The comedian and character actor from the Halsted Street Comedy Theatre, Chicago, Mr F. K. Wallace, puts in his second week in California here in the sensational drama of "The Boy Detective.'

Mr. Wallace does some very commendable work as Dick Spiffkins, and proves himself a good singer as well as good actor.

The drama is eventful in incident and action, and is well staged with good scenic effects. It has proved a great go at this popular east-side house.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Concha, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The postponed race of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association at the Bay District Course is still held to await good weather and track. Due notice will be given of the day and meeting. Two extra days' racing will be given on the following days. The last meetings of the season.

The events for the last day are: One and one-sixteenth of a mile for a purse of $400, three-year-olds and upwards; a three-quarter of a mile dash for two-year-olds, non-winners, for a $350 purse; the Holiday Handicap, a big event, $500 purse and entries, one and three-eighths; and a one mile race, Owners' Handicap, for a $350 purse.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis; Jas. Goodwin, the funniest Dutchman; Minnetta & Barretta, aerial experts; and Thatcher & Drew are in this week's bill.

Montegue produces this week his local adaptation a la "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," entitled, "Dr. Jackall and Mr. Snide," in which he gives a remarkable dual impersonation.

DR. HENLEY'S REMEDIES.—"Nothing succeeds like success" is a general truth, but when applied to the phenomenal success of Dr. Henley's remedies, especially his XC Bitters and Tamarack, the saying has peculiar force. The sale of these beneficial preparations is enormous throughout the United States, and it is gratifying to know that it is fast becoming a standard remedy in the principal cities of Europe.

LAWRENCE BARRETT'S ILLNESS.

Lawrence Barrett brought his company to New York and closed his season on the 7th inst., owing to the continued swelling in his neck from the glandular troubles he has been afflicted with for some time. He has canceled his engagement at Boston and his six-weeks New York engagement at the Broadway Theatre, which was to follow on Jan. 20th, and gone to Boston for medical treatment. This means, in every probability, his permanent retirement from the stage.

At the close of the Booth Barrett season in this city last Spring Barrett canceled his dates in Oregon and Montana, and hastened to the German bathes for treatment. When he returned he appeared to have been benefited, and went on with his new play, but during the present season his throat trouble has returned with increased violence.

"It is well known," says a Chronicle dispatch, "that Barrett had all his costumes for his new play, 'Ganelon,' made so as to hide the swelling in his neck. The glandular swelling from which Barrett is suffering is by no means a common complaint in this country. It is essentia ly an epidemic disease in cold and damp climates, and is common in the deep valleys of the Alps and Pyrenees and in similarly situated localities."

This paragraph about the glandular swelling may be very well from a theoretical point, but the writer was told when Barrett was last in this city by one who knew his family history that his disease was an hereditary one, and one which cost his grandmother her life, and would in all probability cost him his own. While his treatment in Germany relieved in a manner the exterior swelling, it had but little effect on the interior growth of the disease, and there is where all the danger lies.

Barrett's seeming fate is a hard one. All the pride and energies of his active nature was centered in his success on the stage. No other American actor on its boards possessed a tithe of the ambition to become great that inspired him. He paid most liberally for new plays to pave the way to continued successes, and paid fabulous sums for the the costumes, scenery and appointments to present them in. He even succeeded in harnessing America's greatest tragedian to his car of progress to aid him in his continued march. Barrett was the Cardinal Woolsey of the stage, without his greatness, and doubtless he feels his fall from power as bitterly as did the great Cardinal of history.

Adele Nelson, the Australian equestrienne, sued the Northern Pacific Railway Company, in Chicago, for $20,000 damages for an injury received in a wreck near Gold Creek, Mont. The company had decided to fight the claim, but Mme. Nelson's attorney sent out to the scene of the wreck and procured the tie which had allowed the rails to spread. This was so rotten that it would not hold a spike, and the railroad attorneys, after looking at it, compromised the claim by paying Miss Nelson $1100.

David Belasco, Leonard Grover, William Gill, Henry E. Dixey, Mrs. Kendal, Maurice Barrymore, Bronson Howard, and many more well-known professionals will contribute to the Christmas number of the New York Dramatic News. There will be issued, as a supplement, a beautiful portrait of Ada Rehan, done in water colors.

The great concert given in aid of the charitable fund of the San Francisco Polychnic, which comes off at the Grand Opera House on Monday evening, the 16th, will call forth all the available musical talent, vocal and instrumental, professional and amateur of celerity, that there is in the city, besides all the full force of the Handel and Haydn Society's 600 voices, and the Oakland Harmonic Society's 80 voices. It will be a grand concert in reality.

The J. C. Duff Comic Opera Company are rendering "A Trip to Africa" in a very satisfactory manner at the Baldwin. The principal singers are of good vocal calibre and clever actors, the chorus, costumes and scenery are good, and the whole performance an effective one.

Jessie West, a clever soubrette, was bit[illegible] by Jerry, the dog in "A Brass Monkey," while playing in Chicago recently. She was playing the part of Flora Walsh, who was ill, and finished the week with her arm in a sling. Miss Walsh has recovered and resumed her character, and Miss West and Jerry don't speak as they pass by. Jerry is a bad dog, and is loosing caste as a Mas-

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The auction sale of Grand Opera House boxes for the monster concert of the San Francisco Polyclinic at the Opera House yesterday yielded $660, prices and premiums. Manager Al Hayman purchased the first box at $100 premium, and M. H. De Young paid $75 for the second choice. The reserved seat sale at the various music stores aggregated over $2400.

Mr. Franclyn Reglid, who played the Dude in the "Stowaway" Co., recently in this city, is said to have fallen heir to $80,000 by the death of his grandmother. Mr. Reglid's family name is Delgere, and if this be a fact it will go far towards relieving the poignancy of the grief he must feel at losing so dear a relative.

The Italian newspapers are filled with flattering accounts of Signora Sofia Scalchi's performance in Gluck's "Orfeo," an opera practically unknown to Italian audiences of the period.

Augustin Daly has added a St. Louis professional beauty to his stock company this season in the person of Miss Dorr Dana Dann. The lady in question is a natural blonde, rather tall in stature, with an exquisite figure and a very graceful carriage. She will probably make her first appearance about the middle of January. She is known in society as the D—— beautiful D. D.

Wilson Barrett, the London actor and manager who was charged duties on his English scenery, costumes and properties, has won his suit against the Collector of New York, and the Assistant Secretary of Treasury has directed the collector to cancel his bonds and strike the entry off his books. Mr. Barrett claimed that the effects he imported were "professional implements, instruments and tools of his trade," under the provisions of T. I., 815, and depended on for a precedent the case of Mapleson vs. Robertson, and won his plea.

Samuel Bradshaw, the oldest American actor, died recently at St. Johnland, L. I., aged 96.

Adelina Patti, Mme. Albani, Signors Tamagno, Castelmary, Perugini, Ravelli, Vicini, Zardo, Carbone, Migliari and Mlles. Pettigiano and Synnerberg constitute the Abbey-Patti Italian Opera Co. at the new Auditorium in Chicago.

E. D. Ward, formerly of Wallack's Theatre, died recently at Edinburgh, Scotland.

W. A. Brady's "After Dark" Co. has been very successful throughout the East.

Henry T. Chanfrau opens his New England season at the new Opera House in Birmingham, Conn., to-night, under the management of Bertram & Willard, who have engaged principally the same people that have played in "Kit" for the past two seasons.

The Espanol Theatre, Barcelona, Spain, was lately destroyed by fire through escaping gas in a large chandelier.

George Atkins, the original Greppo in the "Black Crook" when first produced at Niblo's, New York, and about the best Greppo who ever essayed the character, died on the 3rd inst. at Mount St. Vincent Hospital of consumption and was interred by the Actors' Fund in Evergreen Cemetery. Mr. Atkins was of English extraction, and we think came to this country with the "Black Crook." He was a very good comedian, of thorough English training, and well versed in the eccentric and farcical schools. He occupied the position of stage manager of the Vienna Gardens for some years in this city, and played a wide range of characters. His Wormwood was the best we have had here in modern days. Before going East with the Kiralfy Company last year, engaged to play his original creation of Greppo, the seeds of his fatal disease had fastened on him. Mr. Atkins was a quiet, kindly gentleman, and had but few if any enemies.

The Call says: 'This is the last week of Henry Pettitt's 'Hands Across the Sea' at the Grand Opera House. It is a fine production, and the public rewarded the managerial effort to please them by most ample recognition. The company go to Oakland on Monday evening next and play 'Hands' across the bay, the Mission street theatre on that evening being occupied by the Polyclinic Committee for the purpose of a benefit concert. The managers of the Grand ask the Call to say to the public that the production of 'The Great Metropolis' at their theatre on Tuesday of next week will be one of the best specimens of skill in stage-setting ever seen in San Francisco. The life-saving scene, for example, will be so realistic that every one in the audience will feel an impulse to 'lend a hand' to the gallant crew who man the life-boat. They will not fail to do so heartily with both hands when the applause falls due. By the way the entr' acte music preceding the life-saving scene might, with propriety, be that old-fashioned but good duet, 'The Minute Gun at Sea,'' or the solo, 'Man the Life-Boat.' Properly arranged for the orchestra and neatly played this music would make one of the features of the performance." Will Leader Jacobson take note of Mr. Barnes' suggestion?

Manager Wallenrod wishes the public to know that there is not a word of truth in the report published in an evening paper to the effect that L. R. Stockwell intends to sever his connection with the Alcazar Theatre in February next.

Church and stage will be brought into a sort of affinity at the Bijou on the coming Saturday evening, when Lewis Browne, organist of the Church of the Advent, will lead the orchestra of the theatre. The opera is "La Traviata," with the sweet-voiced Ida Valerga as Violetta.

Mr. Henley and wife, lately playing "Kleptomania" in this city, will join forces with the Grand Opera House people next Tuesday night, when "The

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

Frank Mayo and his Eastern company are dated for two weeks. Mr. Mayo opens in his picturesque and romantic play of "Nordeck," bringing his own scenery, appointments, company and costumes.

The play is very interesting in plot. Its story treats of a family feud in the Baltic provinces of Prussian Poland, in which love and hate are commingled, the opposing parties being Waldemar, the elder son, who leans to the German side, and the mother and younger son, who are essentially Polish. The love interest is centered in Wanda Morynski, a member of the family, to the hand of whom both brothers aspire. The mother favors the younger son, Prince Leo, who is half-brother to Waldemar, and calls to her aid the Polish insurgents. Waldemar in turn enlists the aid of his Prussian followers. Love, passion, and political antagonisms furnish material for plot and counterplot. The drama is romantic, picturesque, and full of strong situations. Mr. Mayo has a good company, including his son, who has done a starring tour since we saw him last and Harry Courtaine, specially engaged for a prominent role.

There is a dash and manliness in Frank Mayo that shows in all his characters, no less than in "Waldemar Nordeck." His son, Edwin F. Mayo, adds strength to the cast as Waldemar's half-brotner, Prince Leo, and gives a naturalness to the part by the family resemblance. T. H. Taylor and E. Frank have strong parts and sustain them admirably, and Courtaine, as the tutor Fabian, presents a finished character impersonation. Miss Marie Burress as Countess Wanda Miss M. Levere as Princess Zulieki, and Maribie Seymour, who played the ingenue role of Margaret, daughter of old Witold, Waldemar's uncle, give great effect to their respective assignments. The two first named ladies have very fine stage presences as well as rare dramatic merits.

"Davy Crockett," next to "Uncle Tom's Cabin" the most successful play on the American stage, having been before the public for 17 years, will be the attraction next week, with Frank Mayo in his incomparable character of the backwoods' hero.

Alcazar Theatre.

Leonard Grover's bright comedy of "Our Boarding House," a sapient and amusing satire on the eccentricities of Chicago's business men and Chicago's boarding house society, will be this week's card at the Alcazar. This comedy made fame and money for Crane and Robson. It is strong in characterizations, bright and witty in diction, and very amusing in its situations. See cast on first page of FIGARO.

E. J. Buckley does very well as Fioretti, though not at his best in an Italian dialect part. John Jack falls in happier lines as Dr Shouter, and Stockwell as Professor Gillipod, Scott Cooper as Col. Elevator, and Leo Cooper as Dalyrymple are at home in their old parts and made the most of them. Miss Ethel Brandon is a charming Beatrice Manheim, just emotional and just mysterious enough. Fanny Young is the boarding-house keeper, and seems born for it—we think she has mistook her profession in life. The lady boarders, personated by Miss Nellie Buckley, Miss Emmie Wilmott and others, are presented in a captivating manner. The performance is an all around good one.

Kate Claxton's melodrama, "The World Against Her," will follow "Our Boarding House."

The scenic artists are hard at work on the scenery for the Holiday piece, "Mankind." Its scenic effects will excell anything ever seen at the Alcazar.

Grand Opera House.

The grand production of that great melodrama, "Hands Across the Sea," a success in three continents, with Miss Isabel Morris, Mr. Geo. Osbourne and Mr. William Morris in the principal roles, is in its last week at the Grand.

"Hands Across the Sea" is not a lurid melodrama with red hands, but on the contrary a very interesting drama of cultured life and its vicissitudes, with startling and effective situations. It is prolific of stage effects, and, as the Call says, "The management of the Grand has covered the production with a perfect wealth of scenery."

The opening act represents an English harvest scene festival, with farm house and waving fields of grain, a wagon loaded with realistic hay, real horses and everything to make a picture of a quiet English country home.

In the 2nd and 3rd acts are some fine scenes in Paris; hotel, prison and street scenes. In the following act we have the great sea scene. The scene on the deck of the steamer Australasian occupies the full stage, with the steamer head on towards the audience. The deck of the vessel between bulworks is just 34 feet wide On this the action takes place. The whole structure seems an absolute realism, with an extended sky and sea all around the steamer, like on the ocean.

The last act gives a fine view of Sydney harbor, painted from photographs. Every scene is new from the brush of Wilkins and assistants.

The three principal roles are in capable hands. Miss Isabel Morris gives a lady-like and forcible characterization of the heroine. Mr. Morris makes a manly and vigorous hero, and Mr. Osbourne gives us one of his artistic clear-cut pieces of character acting, as the French society scamp, Jean De Lussac, in which he has but few rivals on the stage. Lorimer Johnston plays the part of Tom Bassett with easy manners and good methods, and the many male characters are well sustained; and the female roles have adequate justice done to them by Miss Kate Chester, Miss Rose Easton and Miss De Mar.

The first production at the Grand under the new management of Maguire, Rial & Osbourne was successfully launched before a house crowded in all its tiers, and, notwithstanding the bad weather encountered in its first week has had a goodly voyage with the steady wind of popular favor swelling its sails and sales.

Business has been good through a succession of rainy nights.

The Grand's Holiday piece, "The Great Metropolis," a spectacular melodrama of New York life and characters, will be produced Tuesday evening, Dec. 17th.

Grand Opera House.

The great Monster Concert by some seven hundred volunteers, for the benefit of the San Francisco Polyclinic, comes off at the Grand on Monday night. The event and the cause is a markedly noted one.

See programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

New California Theatre.

This week we are to have "Hans the Boatman" at the California, with Charles Arnold in the title role. Mr. Arnold is a sympathetic actor of the Joseph Emmet style, who has won high praise both in England and Australia. The play was written by Clay M. Greene, and abounds in touches of human nature and in sweet songs that appeal to the heart sympathies, and is American in theme and characters.

One of the strong features of "Hans the Boatman" is little May Hannan, a very bright child actress, who plays three juvenile characters with rare cleverness. Julius Kahn and Myron Calice do meritorious work, and Miss May Gordon acts the ill-mated wife with good methods. Miss Dot Fredericks is a pronounced soubrette of unmistakable ability. The dog Nord, a fine St. Bernard, shows remarkable dog intelligence in his alloted part.

The play is interesting and very handsomely staged. It will win its share of public patronage.

Orpheum Theatre.

The amusing comedy of "The Widow Bedott" will form this week's bill at the Orpheum, with Horace Ewing in the title role. Mr. Ewing gives a very amusing impersonation of the Widow, quite as acceptable as Neil Burgess, and his company render good support.

The farce-comedy affords a deal of amusement, as it is well acted.

Herr John Plagemann, an eminent basso cantanti, will make his debut Wednesday night, assisted by the Harmonic Singing Society.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The comedian and character actor from the Halsted Street Comedy Theatre, Chicago, Mr. F. K. Wallace, puts in his second week in California here in the sensational drama of "The Boy Detective."

Mr. Wallace does some very commendable work as Dick Spifkins, and proves himself a good singer as well as good actor.

The drama is eventful in incident and action, and is well staged with good scenic effects. It has proved a great go at this popular east-side house.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The postponed race of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association at the Bay District Course is still held to await good weather and track. Due notice will be given of the day and meeting. Two extra days' racing will be given on the following days. The last meetings of the season.

The events for the last day are: One and one-sixteenth of a mile for a purse of $400, three-year-olds and upwards; a three-quarter of a mile dash for two-year-olds, non-winners, for a $350 purse; the Holiday Handicap, a big event, $500 purse and entries, one and three-eighths; and a one mile race, Owners' Handicap, for a $350 purse.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis; Jas. Goodwin, the funniest Dutchman; Minnetta & Barretta, aerial experts; and Thatcher & Drew are in this week's bill.

Montague produces this week his local adaptation a la "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," entitled, "Dr. Jackall and Mr. Snide," in which he gives a remarkable dual impersonation.

LAWRENCE BARRETT'S ILLNESS.

Lawrence Barrett brought his company to New York and closed his season on the 7th inst., owing to the continued swelling in his neck from the glandular troubles he has been afflicted with for some time. He has canceled his engagement at Boston and his six-weeks New York engagement at the Broadway Theatre, which was to follow on Jan. 20th, and gone to Boston for medical treatment. This means, in every probability, his permanent retirement from the stage.

At the close of the Booth Barrett season in this city last Spring Barrett canceled his dates in Oregon and Montana, and hastened to the German bathes for treatment. When he returned he appeared to have been benefited, and went on with his new play, but during the present season his throat trouble has returned with increased violence.

"It is well known," says a Chronicle dispatch, "that Barrett had all his costumes for his new play, 'Ganelon,' made so as to hide the swelling in his neck. The glandular swelling from which Barrett is suffering is by no means a common complaint in this country. It is essentia ly an epidemic disease in cold and damp climates, and is common in the deep valleys of the Alps and Pyrenees and in simi arly situated localities."

This paragraph about the glandular swelling may be very well from a theoretical point, but the writer was told when Barrett was last in this city by one who knew his family history that his disease was an hereditary one, and one which cost his grandmother her life, and would in all probability cost him his own. While his treatment in Germany relieved in a manner the exterior swelling, it had but little effect on the interior growth of the disease, and there is where all the danger lies.

Barrett's seeming fate is a hard one. All the pride and energies of his active nature was centered in his success on the stage. No other American actor on its boards possessed a tithe of the ambition to become great that inspired him. He paid most liberally for new plays to pave the way to continued successes, and paid fabulous sums for the the costumes, scenery and appointments to present them in. He even succeeded in harnessing America's greatest tragedian to his car of progress to aid him in his continued march. Barrett was the Cardinal Woolsey of the stage, without his greatness, and doubtless he feels his fall from power as bitterly as did the great Cardinal of history.

Managers Maguire, Rial and Osbourne will produce their great holiday attraction, "The Great Metropolis," at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday evening, Dec. 17th, the night after the monster concert given at the Grand under the auspices of the San Francisco Polyclinics.

Adele Nelson, the Australian equestrienne, sued the Northern Pacific Railway Company, in Chicago, for $20,000 damages for an injury received in a wreck near Gold Creek, Mont. The company had decided to fight the claim, but Mme. Nelson's attorney sent out to the scene of the wreck and procured the tie which had allowed the rails to spread. This was so rotten that it would not hold a spike, and the railroad attorneys, after looking at it, compromised the claim by paying Miss Nelson $1100.

The great concert given in aid of the charitable fund of the San Francisco Polyclinic, which comes off at the Grand Opera House on Monday evening, the 16th, will call forth all the available musical talent, vocal and instrumental, professional and amateur of celerity, that there is in the city, besides all the full force of the Handel and Haydn Society's 600 voices, and the Oakland Harmonic Society's 80 voices. It will be a grand concert in reality.

Geo. H. Wood, "the somewhat different comedian," will make his appearance in the domestic drama of "Married Life" in conjunction with Miss Frederica Stockmeyer. The engagement is a long one. They were married Wednesday evening.

W. A. Brady's "After Dark" Co. has been very successful throughout the East.

Adelina Patti, Mme. Albani, Signors Tamagno, Castelmary, Perugini, Ravelli, Vicini, Zardo, Carbone, Migliari and Miles. Pettigiano and Synnerberg constitute the Abbey-Patti Italian Opera Co. at the new Auditorium in Chicago.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Manager M. B. Leavitt arrived to-day, looking hale and hearty. He will, as usual, tarry with us during the Eastern cold months and make this city his business headquarters for the Winter.

Miss Sibyl Sanderson, the California girl who leaped into fame at once as a prima donna soprano in Paris, has been granted a ten-days leave of absence by the Opera Comique. She is suffring from influenza and is unable to sing. She needs rest to take care of her voice.

Wm. L. Lykens, business manager for Maggie Mitchell, had a hot dispute with Charles Abbott, her husband, in the lobby of the Park Theatre, Philadelphia, on Friday afternoon, and called him a "lyre." Abbott struck Lykens with his cane and at it they went, Lykens getting the best of the scrap. "It wasn't at all lykens that I was to get hit without striking back," said the irate agent after the fight was over

Robert Barton has given orders to a San Francisco architect for plans for a $30.000 opera house.

Miss Agnes Thomas has left Rose Coghlan's company, and is about to create the part of "A Fair Rebel," in the new play of that name.

The auction sale of Grand Opera House boxes for the monster concert of the San Francisco Polyclinic at the Opera House Thursday yielded $660, prices and premiums. Manager Al Hayman purchased the first box at $100 premium, and M. H. De Young paid $75 for the second choice. The reserved seat sale at the various music stores aggregated over $2400.

Mr. Franclyn Reglid, who played the Dude in the "Stowaway" Co., recently in this city, is said to have fallen heir to $80,000 by the death of his grandmother. Mr. Reglid's family name is Delgere, and if this be a fact it will go far towards relieving the poignancy of the grief he must feel at losing so dear a relative.

The Italian newspapers are filled with flattering accounts of Signora Sofia Scalchi's performance in Gluck's "Orfeo," an opera practically unknown to Italian audiences of the period.

Augustin Daly has added a St. Louis professional beauty to his stock company this season in the person of Miss Dorr Dana Dann. The lady in question is a natural blonde, rather tall in stature, with an exquisite figure and a very graceful carriage. She will probably make her first appearance about the middle of January. She is known in society as the D—— beautiful D. D.

Wilson Barrett, the London actor and manager who was charged duties on his English scenery, costumes and properties, has won his suit against the Collector of New York, and the Assistant Secretary of Treasury has directed the collector to cancel his bonds and strike the entry off his books. Mr. Barrett claimed that the effects he imported were "professional implements, instruments and tools of his trade," under the provisions of T. I., 815, and depended on for a precedent the case of Mapleson vs. Robertson, and won his plea.

Samuel Bradshaw, the oldest American actor, died recently at St. Johnland, L. I., aged 96.

George Atkins, the original Greppo in the "Black Crook" when first produced at Niblo's, New York, and about the best Greppo who ever essayed the character, died on the 3rd inst. at Mount St. Vincent Hospital of consumption and was interred by the Actors' Fund in Evergreen Cemetery. Mr. Atkins was of English extraction, and we think came to this country with the "Black Crook." He was a very good comedian, of thorough English training, and well versed in the eccentric and farcical school. He occupied the position of stage manager of the Vienna Gardens for some years in this city, and played a wide range of characters. His Wormwood was the best we have had here in modern days. Before going East with the Kiralfy Company last year, engaged to play his original creation of Greppo, the seeds of his fatal disease had fastened on him. Mr. Atkins was a quiet, kindly gentleman, and had but few if any enemies.

The Call says: 'This is the last week of Henry Pettitt's 'Hands Across the Sea' at the Grand Opera House. It is a fine production, and the public rewarded the managerial effort to please them by most ample recognition. The company go to Oakland on Monday evening next and play 'Hands' across the bay, the Mission street theatre on that evening being occupied by the Polyclinic Committee for the purpose of a benefit concert. The managers of the Grand ask the Call to say to the public that the production of 'The Great Metropolis' at their theatre on Tuesday of next week will be one of the best specimens of skill in stage-setting ever seen in San Francisco. The life-saving scene, for example, will be so realistic that every one in the audience will feel an impulse to 'lend a hand' to the gallant crew who man the life-boat. They will not fail to do so heartily with both hands when the applause falls due. By the way the entr' acte music preceding the life-saving scene might, with propriety, be that old-fashioned but good duet, 'The Minute Gun at Sea,' or the solo, 'Man the Life-Boat.' Properly arranged for the orchestra and neatly played this music would make one of the features of the performance." Will Leader Jacobson take note of Mr. Barnes' suggestion?

Manager Wallenrod wishes the public to know that there is not a word of truth in the report published in an evening paper to the effect that L. R. Stockwell intends to sever his connection with the Alcazar Theatre in February next.

Mr. Henley and wife, lately playing "Kleptomania" in this city, will join forces with the Grand Opera House people next Tuesday night, when "The Great Metropolis" will be produced.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

Frank Mayo and his Eastern company are dated for two weeks. Mr. Mayo appears in his picturesque and romantic play of "Nordeck," bringing his own scenery, appointments, company and costumes, for the last time on Sunday night.

There is a dash and manliness in Frank Mayo that shows in all his characters, no less than in "Waldemar Nordeck." His son, Edwin F. Mayo, adds strength to the cast as Waldemar's half-brotner, Prince Leo, and gives a naturalness to the part by the family resemblance. T. H. Taylor and E. Frank have strong parts and sustain them admirably, and Courtaine, as the tutor Fabian, presents a finished character impersonation. Miss Marie Burress as Countess Wanda, Miss M. Levere as Princess Zuliski, and Maribie Seymour, who played the ingenue role of Margaret, daughter of old Witold, Waldemar's uncle, give great effect to their respective assignments. The two first named ladies have very fine stage presences as well as rare dramatic merits.

"Davy Crockett," next to "Uncle Tom's Cabin" the most successful play on the American stage, having been before the public for 17 years, will be the attraction next week, with Frank Mayo in his incomparable character of the backwoods' hero. For many years the public has recognized that Davy Crockett with his nobleness of character, with his touching love that reaches every heart, and his manly bearing and bravery is the very personification of romance, if Mr. Mayo has not realized it.

There is a good demand for seats.

The Bush's holiday attraction will be Gill & Frazer's diverting pantomime burlesque, so successful in the East, "The Spider and the Fly." It opens on the 23d

Alcazar Theatre.

Leonard Grover's bright comedy of "Our Boarding House," a sapient and amusing satire on the eccentricities of Chicago's business men and Chicago's boarding house society, will be given here for the last time on Sunday night.

E. J. Buckley does very well as Fioretti, though not at his best in an Italian dialect part. John Jack falls in happier lines as Dr Shouter, and Stockwell as Professor Gillipod, Scott Cooper as Col. Elevator, and Leo Cooper as Dalrymple are at home in their old parts and make the most of them. Miss Ethel Brandon is a charming Beatrice Manheim, just emotional and just myetorious enough. Fanny Young is the boarding-house keeper, and seems born for it—we think she has mistook her profession in life. The lady boarders, personated by Miss Nellie Buckley, Miss Emmie Wilmott and others, are presented in a captivating manner. The performance is an all around good one.

Kate Claxton's melodramatic success, "The World Against Her," with Buckley, Stockwell and Miss Ethel Brandon in the leading roles, will be the bill at the Alcazar next week. It is a strong play and will have an effective production in cast and appointments.

The scenic artists are hard at work on the scenery for the Holiday piece, "Mankind." Its scenic effects will excell anything ever seen at the Alcazar.

Grand Opera House.

"Hands Across the Sea" has sustained its reputation as a drawing play, having drawn two weeks' good houses at the Grand through all the rain we have had. It will be performed for the last time on Sunday night.

The first production at the Grand under the new management of Maguire, Rial & Osbourne was successfully launched before a house crowded in all its tiers, and, notwithstanding the bad weather encountered it has had a goodly voyage with the steady wind of popular favor swelling its sails and sales.

The Grand's Holiday piece, "The Great Metropolis," a spectacular melodrama of New York life and characters, will be produced Tuesday evening, Dec. 17th. The company go to Oakland on Monday evening and play "Hands" across the bay; the Grand on that evening being occupied by the Polyclinic Committee with their mammoth benefit concert.

The sensational scenes of "The Great Metropolis" are the great light-house scene, the realistic life-saving station, the thrilling ship-wreck and rescue of passengers by the mortar projected life-lines, the last being a great scene and is promised to be one of the best specimens of real in stage-setting ever seen in San Francisco.

Grand Opera House.

The great Monster Concert by some seven hundred volunteers, for the benefit of the San Francisco Polyclinic, comes off at the Grand on Monday night. The event and the cause is a markedly noted one.

See programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

New California Theatre.

This week we are to have "Hans the Boatman" at the California, with Charles Arnold in the title role. Mr. Arnold is a sympathetic actor of the Joseph Emmet style, who has won high praise from the press everywhere. The play was written by Olay M. Greene, and abounds in touches of human nature and in sweet songs that appeal to the heart sympathies, and is American in theme and characters.

One of the strong features of "Hans the Boatman" is little May Hannan, a very bright child actress, who plays three juvenile characters with rare cleverness. Julius Kahn and Myron Calice do meritorious work, and Miss May Gordon acts the ill-mated wife with good methods. Miss Dot Fredericks is a pronounced soubrette of unmistakable ability. The dog Nord, a fine St. Bernard, shows remarkable dog intelligence in his alloted part.

The play is interesting and very handsomely staged. It will win its share of public patronage and will retain the boards next week.

Orpheum Theatre.

The amusing comedy of "The Widow Bedott" will form this week's bill at the Orpheum, with Horace Ewing in the title role. Mr. Ewing gives a very amusing impersonation of the Widow, quite as acceptable as Neil Burgess, and his company render good support.

The farce-comedy affords a deal of amusement, as it is well acted.

The Orpheum presents a star collection of Eastern specialty talent next week.

Herr John Plagemann, an eminent basso cantanti, will make his debut Wednesday night, assisted by the Harmonic Singing Society.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The comedian and character actor from the Halsted Street Comedy Theatre, Chicago, Mr. F. K. Wallace, puts in his second week in California here in the sensational drama of "The Boy Detective,"

Mr. Wallace does some very commendable work as Dick Spifkins, and proves himself a good singer as well as good actor.

The drama is eventful in incident and action, and is well staged with good scenic effects. It has proved a great go at this popular east-side house.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

Mr. Wallace appears next week in the character of Lobster McMullen in the sensational drama of New York life, entitled "Nan, the News-Boy."

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Montegue produces this week his local adaptation a la "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," entitled, "Dr. Jackall and Mr. Snide," in which he gives a remarkable dual impersonation.

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's plays have the element of hilarity very prominent in them, the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

"Muldoon's Picnic," that funniest of Irish comedies, is given here this week, with the trained donkey Jerry, the three-handed reel and all the funny things in it,

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

DR. HENLEY'S REMEDIES.—"Nothing succeeds like success" is a general truth, but when applied to the phenomenal success of Dr. Henley's remedies, especially his IXL Bitters and Tamarack, the saying has peculiar force. The sale of these beneficial preparations is enormous throughout the United States, and it is gratifying to know that it is fast becoming a standard remedy in the principal cities of Europe.

All pipe smokers agree there is nothing like "Best of North Carolina Ping Cut."

If you are troubled with bald spots, or falling out of hair, by all means use Diefenbacher's Hair Tonic. It is invaluable. Try it and be convinced. Its merits are well attested. All his testimonials are from well-known people in San Francisco.

Fanny Davenport, in "La Tosca," has duplicated at the Columbia Theatre the big business done by her last season in Chicago. She will be seen Christmas and New Year's weeks in New York.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Manager M. B. Leavitt arrived Saturday, looking hale and hearty. He will, as usual, tarry with us during the Eastern cold months and make this city his business headquarters for the Winter, though he left on Sunday night on important business to visit Portland and the Northern cities temporarily.

Pretty Idalene Cotton, who has been engaged by Messrs. Maguire, Rial & Osbourne for their Grand Opera House stock company, will play the part of "The Dook," the ship's boy, in "The Great Metropolis;" and the clever and sprightly Allen Sisters, Louise and Ray, will appear in important parts in "The Spider and the Fly," which opens at the Bush Street Theatre on the 23d.

C. A. Byrne and Arthur Wallack's "Coward Conscience" is soon to be produced in Australia.

"Mankind," the holiday piece for the Alcazar, a melodrama by Geo. Conquest and Paul Merritt, has made a hit at Chicago.

Laura Burt is engaged for one of the leading parts in Sedley Brown's new comedy-drama, "Pine Meadow," which Joseph Arthur and Frank W. Sanger are to produce in New York at the Fourteenth Street Theatre March 31st.

W. J. Scanlan's new "Swiss Song" gets a dozen encores every night at the Star Theatre, New York.

Frederick Warde promises to surprise the public next season with a magnificent Shakespearean revival.

Miss Fanny Davenport is preparing for an unusually elaborate spectacular production of "Theodora" next season.

Miss Sibyl Sanderson, the California girl who leaped into fame at once as a prima donna soprano in Paris, has been granted a ten-days leave of absence by the Opera Comique. She is suffring from influenza and is unable to sing. She needs rest to take care of her voice.

Wm. L. Lykens, business manager for Maggie Mitchell, had a hot dispute with Charles Abbott, her husband, in the lobby of the Park Theatre, Philadelphia, on Friday afternoon, and called him a "lyre." Abbott struck Lykens with his cane and at it they went, Lykens getting the best of the scrap. "It wasn't at all lykens that I was to get hit without striking back," said the irate agent after the fight was over

Robert Barton has given orders to a San Francisco architect for plans for a $30.000 opera house.

Miss Agnes Thomas has left Rose Coghlan's company, and is about to create the part of "A Fair Rebel," in the new play of that name.

The Call says: 'This is the last week of Henry Pettitt's 'Hands Across the Sea' at the Grand Opera House. It is a fine production, and the public rewarded the managerial effort to please them by most ample recognition. The company go to Oakland on Monday evening next and play 'Hands' across the bay, the Mission street theatre on that evening being occupied by the Polyclinic Committee for the purpose of a benefit concert. The managers of the Grand ask the Call to say to the public that the production of 'The Great Metropolis' at their theatre on Tuesday of next week will be one of the best specimens of skill in stage-setting ever seen in San Francisco. The life-saving scene, for example, will be so realistic that every one in the audience will feel an impulse to 'lend a hand' to the gallant crew who man the life-boat. They will not fail to do so heartily with both hands when the applause falls due. By the way the entr' acte music preceding the life-saving scene might, with propriety, be that old-fashioned but good duet, 'The Minute Gun at Sea,' or the solo, 'Man the Life-Boat.' Properly arranged for the orchestra and neatly played this music would make one of the features of the performance." Will Leader Jacobson take note of Mr. Barnes' suggestion?

Manager Wallenrod wishes the public to know that there is not a word of truth in the report published in an evening paper to the effect that L. R. Stockwell intends to sever his connection with the Alcazar Theatre in February next.

W. A. Brady's "After Dark" Co. has been very successful throughout the East.

DEATH OF KARL FORMES.

The sudden death of the world-famed basso, Karl Formes, in this city on Sunday morning, created a shock in professional circles and among the thousands who knew and revered him here. He died like many other bright lights of the stage, in harness, having sung Don Bartolo in "The Barber of Saville" at the Bijou on Thursday night in his 73d year of life. Sunday's Call, in speaking of his rendering of the character, says: "The veteran basso, Herr Karl Formes. What a marvelous old man is this basso, to be sure! He is now 73 years of age, and his voice—ah! that glorious voice is somewhat impaired by the flight of years, but his figure is not bowed by the weight of Time's hand, his hair is yet black as a raven's wing and Absalom-like in abundance."

He was in full health and vigor until Friday morning, when he complained of feeling unwell. A physician was sent for, who pronounced his case pneumonia, and although he had every care from his faithful wife he quietly passed into the other life at 10:45 o'clock Sunday morning. The funeral services will take place at St. Boniface Church Tuesday morning.

For over a half century the name of Karl Formes has been a familiar one to the musical world. He appeared in concerts in Cologne in 1838. In 1842 he made his debut as Sarastro in "The Magic Flute," a role in which he had few equals and no superiors. Two years later he was called to sing at the Imperial Opera in Vienna. After devoting three years to musical studies he re-appeared in opera. In 1850 he appeared at the Royal Italian Opera House, Covent Garden, London, singing with great success and roused his listeners to a pitch of enthusiasm not known since Lablache sang. With him were such famous singers as Grisi, Paulina Garcia, the tenor Mario and the baritone Ronconi. His presence for years afterwards was the musical sensations of the capitals of Europe.

Karl Formes first visited America in 1857, and took up residence, after a dangerous sickness East, in this city in 1874. In 1883 he returned East on a professional visit, singing in twenty-five cities and renewing his former successes.

LAWRENCE BARRETT'S ILLNESS.

Lawrence Barrett brought his company to New York and closed his season on the 7th inst., owing to the continued swelling in his neck from the glandular troubles he has been afflicted with for some time. He has canceled his engagement at Boston and his six-weeks New York engagement at the Broadway Theatre, which was to follow on Jan. 20th, and gone to Boston for medical treatment. This means, in every probability, his permanent retirement from the stage.

At the close of the Booth Barrett season in this city last Spring Barrett canceled his dates in Oregon and Montana, and hastened to the German bathes for treatment. When he returned he appeared to have been benefited, and went on with his new play, but during the present season his throat trouble has returned with increased violence.

"It is well known," says a Chronicle dispatch, "that Barrett had all his costumes for his new play, 'Ganelon,' made so as to hide the swelling in his neck. The glandular swelling from which Barrett is suffering is by no means a common complaint in this country. It is essentially an epidemic disease in cold and damp climates, and is common in the deep valleys of the Alps and Pyrenees and in similarly situated localities."

This paragraph about the glandular swelling may be very well from a theoretical point, but the writer was told when Barrett was last in this city by one who knew his family history that his disease was an hereditary one, and one which cost his grandmother her life, and would in all probability cost him his own. While his treatment in Germany relieved in a manner the exterior swelling, it had but little effect on the interior growth of the disease, and there is where all the danger lies.

Barrett's seeming fate is a hard one. All the pride and energies of his active nature was centered in his success on the stage. No other American actor on its boards possessed a tithe of the ambition to become great that inspired him. He paid most liberally for new plays to pave the way to continued successes, and paid fabulous sums for the the costumes, scenery and appointments to present them in. He even succeeded in harnessing America's greatest tragedian to his car of progress to aid him in his continued march. Barrett was the Cardinal Woolsey of the stage, without his greatness, and doubtless he feels his fall from power as bitterly as did the great Cardinal of history.

Mr. Franclyn Reglid, who played the Dude in the "Stowaway" Co., recently in this city, is said to have fallen heir to $80,000 by the death of his grandmother. Mr. Reglid's family name is Delgere, and if this be a fact it will go far towards relieving the poignancy of the grief he must feel at losing so dear a relative.

The Italian newspapers are filled with flattering accounts of Signora Sofia Scalchi's performance in Gluck's "Orfeo," an opera practically unknown to Italian audiences of the period.

Augustin Daly has added a St. Louis professional beauty to his stock company this season in the person of Miss Dorr Dana Dann. The lady in question is a natural blonde, rather tall in stature, with an exquisite figure and a very graceful carriage. She will probably make her first appearance about the middle of January. She is known in society as the D—— beautiful D. D.

Managers Maguire, Rial and Osbourne will produce their great holiday attraction, "The Great Metropolis," at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday evening, Dec. 17th, the night after the monster concert given at the Grand under the auspices of the San Francisco Polyclinics.

MONDAY.....DECEMBER 16, 1889

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and only paper that publishes their full programmes

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

"Davy Crockett," next to "Uncle Tom's Cabin" the most successful play on the American stage, having been before the public for 17 years, will be the attraction this week, with Frank Mayo in his incomparable character of the backwoods' hero. For many years the public has recognized that Davy Crockett with his nobleness of character, with his touching love that reaches every heart, and his manly bearing and bravery is the very personification of romance, if Mr. Mayo has not realized it.

There is a good demand for seats.

The Bush's holiday attraction will be Gill & Frazer's diverting pantomime burlesque, so successful in the East, "The Spider and the Fly." It opens next week.

Alcazar Theatre.

Kate Claxton's melodramatic success, "The World Against Her," with Buckley, Stockwell and Miss Ethel Brandon in the leading roles, will be the bill at the Alcazar this week. It is a strong play and will have an effective production in cast and appointments.

The scenic artists are hard at work on the scenery for the Holiday piece, "Mankind." Its scenic effects will excell anything ever seen at the Alcazar.

Grand Opera House.

The Grand's Holiday piece, "The Great Metropolis," a spectacular melodrama of New York life and characters, will be produced to-morrow, Tuesday evening. The company go to Oakland this, Monday evening and play "Hands" across the bay; the Grand on this evening being occupied by the Polyclinic Committee with their mammoth benefit concert.

The sensational scenes of "The Great Metropolis" are the great light-house scene, the realistic life-saving station, the thrilling shipwreck and rescue of passengers by the mortar projected life-line, the last being a great scene and is promised to be one of the best specimens of skill in stage-setting ever seen in San Francisco.

Grand Opera House.

The great Monster Concert by some seven hundred volunteers, for the benefit of the San Francisco Polyclinic, comes off at the Grand this evening. The event and the cause is a markedly noted one.

See programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

New California Theatre.

This week is the last of "Hans the Boatman" at the California, with Charles Arnold in the title role. Mr. Arnold is a sympathetic actor of the Joseph Emmet style, who has won high praise from the press everywhere. The play was written by Clay M. Greene, and abounds in touches of human nature and in sweet songs that appeal to the heart sympathies, and is American in theme and character.

One of the strong features of "Hans the Boatman" is little May Hannan, a very bright child actress, who plays three juvenile characters with rare cleverness. Julius Kahn and Myron Calice do meritorious work, and Miss May Gordon acts the ill-mated wife with good methods. Miss Dot Fredericks is a pronounced soubrette of unmistakable ability. The dog Nord, a fine St. Bernard, shows remarkable dog intelligence in his alloted part.

The play is interesting and very handsomely staged. It has won its share of public patronage.

The Boston Howard Athenæum Star Specialty Company commence their holiday season here on Monday night.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Orpheum presents a star collection of Eastern specialty talent this week, fifteen first-class performers in a varied and entertaining programme.

Herr John Flegemann, an eminent basso cantanti, will make his debut Wednesday night, assisted by the Harmonic Singing Society.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Horseco's Amphitheatre.

The comedian and character actor from the Halsted Street Comedy Theatre, Chicago, Mr. [illegible] formia here in the sensational drama of "The Boy Detective."

Mr. Wallace appears this week in the character of Lobster McMullen in the sensational drama of New York life, entitled "Nan, the News-Boy."

The drama is eventful in incident and action, and is well staged with good scenic effects.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The postponed race of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association at the Bay District Course is still held to await good weather and track. Due notice will be given of the day and meeting. Two extra days' racing will be given on the following days. The last meetings of the season.

The events for the last day are: One and one-sixteenth of a mile for a purse of $400, three-year-olds and upwards; a three-quarter of a mile dash for two-year-olds, non-winners, for a $350 purse; the Holiday Handicap, a big event, $500 purse and entries, one and three-eighths; and a one mile race, Owners' Handicap, for a $350 purse.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis; Jessie Herworth and Jennie Ripley, vocalists, and Thatcher & Drew are in this week's bill.

Montague appears this week as the Original Dude in the seashore comedy of "The Dear Boy," and in his screaming farce of "The Elopement," supported by the entire company.

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's plays have the element of hilliarity very prominent in them, the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness.

Friday night, benefit of Harry Ellwood. Big bill. Plenty of volunteers.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialities and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

They have a laugh-provoking comedy on this week at the Cremorne, with Ned Nestell and all the company in the cast,

Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Scully & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudia West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others appear in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Edna Earle, the popular lady vocalist, and Billy Do Ome and his clever trained dog, Josh, are new this week.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "A Rural Bamble," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Jennie Fowler, Blanche Long, Alice Dale, Helena Richman, John Gilmore and Billy De Ome.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with neat and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

Four new stars at Meier's this week! Tom Carroll, the Delaport Sisters and Ada Brandon.

Pete Smith and Lottie Ellis, two popular and clever all around performers, have lately returned to Meier's.

The olio acts are Gottlob's "Euchre" and "Actor in Luck," and Smith and Ellis' and Carroll's specialties.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, J. D. Fox, Rosa Stange and others.

Bottle Meier's is the popular north-end resort. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horse-shoe gallery of larger houses.

Family Matinee every Sunday.

Eureka Music Hall

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Prof. Paul, the ventriloquean comedian, and Soldene, burlesque artiste, are new here.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell Netta Latelle, Addie Bennett, Mamie Woods, Billy Akarman, Pearl Iola and Charley Morrell make up the company.

The opening is H. M. S. Pinafore first-part of choice music, and the bill is full of acts and specialties, including the can-can.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

DR. HENLEY'S REMEDIES.—"Nothing succeeds like success" is a general truth, but when applied to the phenomenal success of Dr. Henley's remedies, especially his IXL Bitters and Tamarack, the saying has peculiar force. The sale of these beneficial preparations is enormous throughout the United States, and it is gratifying to know that it is fast becoming a standard remedy in the principal cities of Europe.

If you are troubled with bald spots, or falling out of hair, by all means use Diefenbacher's Hair Tonic. It is invaluable. Try it and be convinced. Its merits are well attested. All his testimonials are from well-known people

The great concert given in aid of the charitable fund of the San Francisco Polyclinic, which comes off at the Grand Opera House on this Monday evening, will call forth all the available musical talent, vocal and instrumental, professional and amateur of celerity, that there is in the city, besides all the full force of the Handel and Haydn Society's 600 voices, and the Oakland Harmonic Society's 80 voices. It will be a grand concert in reality.

Adelina Pattl, Mme. Albani, Signors Tamagno, Castelmary, Perugini, Ravelli, Vicini, Zardo, Carbone, Migliari and Mlles. Pettigiano and Synnerberg constitute the Abbey-Patti Italian Opera Co. at the new Auditorium in Chicago.

Adele Nelson, the Australian equestrienne, sued the Northern Pacific Railway Company, in Chicago, for $20,000 damages for an injury received in a wreck near Gold Creek, Mont. The company had decided to fight the claim, but Mme. Nelson's attorney sent out to the scene of the wreck and procured the tie which had allowed the rails to spread. This was so rotten that it would not hold a spike, and the railroad attorneys, after looking at it, compromised the claim by paying Miss Nelson $1100.

Samuel Bradshaw, the oldest American actor, died recently at St. Johnland, L. I., aged 96.

Mr. Henley and wife, lately playing "Kleptomania" in this city, will join forces with the Grand Opera House people on Tuesday night, when "The Great Metropolis" will be produced.

George Atkins, the original Greppo in the "Black Crook" when first produced at Niblo's, New York, and about the best Greppo who ever essayed the character, died on the 3rd inst. at Mount St. Vincent Hospital of consumption and was interred by the Actors' Fund in Evergreen Cemetery. Mr. Atkins was of English extraction, and we think came to this country with the "Black Crook." He was a very good comedian, of thorough English training, and well versed in the eccentric and farcical school. He occupied the position of stage manager of the Vienna Gardens for some years in this city, and played a wide range of characters. His Wormwood was the best we have had here in modern days. Before going East with the Kiralfy Company last year, engaged to play his original creation of Greppo, the seeds of his fatal disease had fastened on him. Mr. Atkins was a quiet, kindly gentleman, and had but few if any enemies.

Wilson Barrett, the London actor and manager who was charged duties on his English scenery, costumes and properties, has won his suit against the Collector of New York, and the Assistant Secretary of Treasury has directed the collector to cancel his bonds and strike the entry off his books. Mr. Barrett claimed that the effects he imported were "professional implements, instruments and tools of his trade," under the provisions of T. I., 815, and depended on for a precedent the case of Mapleson vs. Robertson, and won his plea.

Fanny Davenport, in "La Tosca," has duplicated at the Columbia Theatre the big business done by her last season in Chicago. She will be seen Christmas and New Year's weeks in New York.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The great concert given in aid of the charitable fund of the San Francisco Polychasic, which came off at the Grand Opera House on Monday evening, called forth all the available musical [illegible] professional and amateur of celerity, that there is in the city, besides all the full [illegible] and Haverly's Orchestra, and the Occidental Harmonic Society's [illegible]. It was a grand concert in every way. The house was beautifully decorated. The musical numbers were effectively given and the great theatre was filled in every circle.

The wires tell us that a successful surgical operation was performed upon Lawrence Barrett at Boston, on the 16th inst inst., consisting of the removal of some of the lymphatic glands of the throat. As soon as the patient is convalescent he will betake himself to Germany or some other European watering place for health treatment.

Mr. William Foote, a popular manager, who was here with the Haverly Minstrels some years ago, is letting the public know that "The Spider and Fly" Company opens at the Bush Street Theatre next week.

Who a theatre Johnnie is. The term "Johnnie," which was originally coined in London, is now very generally used in New York to describe the peculiar class of pallid youngsters who hang around stage-doors and frequent burlesque theatres. The distinction between a Johnnie and a dude seems to be that the former has money, while nothing is needed to equip the latter but a silver-headed stick, a cigarette, considerable ill-health and a vapid smile. The Johnnie is also an improvement on the dude to the extent that he has an object in life beyond cigarette smoking, even if that object is only the worship of a stage divinity.

Manager M. B. Leavitt arrived Saturday, looking hale and hearty. He will, as usual, tarry with us during the Eastern cold months and make this city his business headquarters for the Winter, though he left on Sunday night on important business to visit Portland and the Northern cities temporarily.

Pretty Idalene Cotton, who has been engaged by Messrs. Maguire, Rial & Osbourne for their Grand Opera House stock company, will play the part of "The Dook," the ship's boy, in "The Great Metropolis;" and the clever and sprightly Allen Sisters, Louise and Ray, will [illegible] parts in "The Spider and the Fly," which opens at the Bush Street Theatre on the 23d.

C. A. Byrne and Arthur Wallack's "Coward Conscience" is soon to be produced in Australia.

"Mankind," the holiday piece for the Alcazar, a melodrama by Geo. Conquest and Paul Merritt, has made a hit at Chicago.

Laura Burt is engaged for one of the leading parts in Sedley Brown's new comedy-drama, "Pine Meadow," which Joseph Arthur and Frank W. Sanger are to produce in New York at the Fourteenth Street Theatre March 31st.

W. J. Scanlan's new "Swiss Song" gets a dozen encores every night at the Star Theatre, New York.

Frederick Warde promises to surprise the public next season with a magnificent Shakespearean revival.

Miss Fanny Davenport is preparing for an unusually elaborate spectacular production of "Theodora" next season.

Miss Sibyl Sanderson, the California girl who leaped into fame at once as a [illegible] in Paris has been granted a ten-days leave of absence by the [illegible]. She [illegible] to visit her parents in this city.

Wm. L. Lykens, business manager for Maggie Mitchell, had a hot dispute with [illegible], her husband, in the [illegible] Theatre, Philadelphia, on Saturday night, and [illegible] "Lyte" Abbott struck Lykens with his [illegible] the best of the scrap. "It wasn't at all lykens that I was to get hit without striking back," said the irate agent after the [illegible] over.

Robert Barton has given orders to a San Francisco architect for plans for a 30,000 opera house.

BRUTALITIES.

A fight with skin-tight gloves came off under most brutal conditions at Crystal Springs, six miles from Butte City, on Sunday, in which one of the contestants named Gallagher was beaten to death. In the sixtieth round his arm was broken, but he continued fighting with one arm. He was knocked down each round until the ninety-sixth, when a swinginging blow by Ward caught him under the chin and knocked him senseless.

When he recovered Gallagher was placed in front of his antagonist after that until the 105th round, when he was again knocked out, and it took thirty-five minutes to bring him to.

Gallagher was so badly hurt that the doctors declared he could not recover. He lay in an insensensible condition until Monday evening, when he died. What can be thought of the condition of the brutes looking on that permitted this murder to go on unto its fatal end?

W. H. Stewart is a showman living at Fort Wayne, Ind., who owns a large gorilla that has won the admiration of a pack of human sympathizers by his strength and savage ferocity. A match was made for $500 between the gorilla and a fighting English bulldog. The fight came off at 3 o'clock A. M. The dog was a fine thoroughbred weighing forty pounds, while the gorilla pulled down nearly eighty pounds. They were put into an inclosure twelve feet square and eight feet high, built of three-inch oak strips. A large crowd was present and the betting was spirited, with odds greatly in favor of the brute from Africa. The battle was to be continued until one or the animals was killed.

It was seen from the beginning of the fight that the dog was no match for the gorilla, as his teeth seemed to be of little use on the tough hide of the wild beast. The battle lasted just two minutes. The bulldog sprang at his antagonist, but the gorilla, quick as lightning, caught him in his muscular arms and holding him in such a position that the dog could do no injury to him, he literally broke him in two. He sank his sharp tusks into the dog's back until the blood flowed in streams, bespattering the horrified spectators.

The owner of the dog threw up the sponge, but it was too late to save his animal, for the dog was dead. The pen resembled a slaughter house. The gorilla was not hurt and the owner had great trouble in getting him into his cage. What kind of a cage should the participators of these exhibitions be put into?

DEATH OF KARL FORMES.

The sudden death of the world-famed basso, Karl Formes, in this city on Sunday morning, created a shock in professional circles and among the thousands who knew and revered him here. He died like many other bright lights of the stage, in harness, having sung Don Bartolo in "The Barber of Saville" at the Bijou on Thursday night in his 73d year of life. Sunday's Call, in speaking of his rendering of the character, says: "The veteran basso, Herr Karl Formes. What a marvelous old man is this basso, to be sure! He is now 73 years of age, and his voice—ah! that glorious voice is somewhat impaired by the flight of years, but his figure is not bowed by the weight of Time's hand, his hair is yet black as a raven's wing and Absalom-like in abundance."

He was in full health and vigor until Friday morning, when he complained of feeling unwell. A physician was sent for, who pronounced his case pneumonia, and although he had every care from his faithful wife he quietly passed into the other life at 10:45 o'clock Sunday morning.

The funeral services took place at St. Boniface Church, Golden Gate avenue, this morning.

For over a half century the name of Karl Formes has been a familiar one to the musical world. He appeared in concerts in Cologne in 1838. In 1842 he made his debut as Sarastro in "The Magic Flute," a role in which he had few equals and no superiors. Two years later he was called to sing at the Imperial Opera in Vienna. After devoting three years to musical studies he re-appeared in opera. In 1850 he appeared at the Royal Italian Opera House, Covent Garden, London, singing with great success and roused his listeners to a pitch of enthusiasm not known since Lablache sang. With him were such famous singers as Grisi, Paulina Garcia, the tenor Mario and the baritone Ronconi. His presence for years afterwards was the musical sensations of the capitals of Europe.

Karl Formes first visited America in 1857, and took up residence, after a dangerous sickness East, in this city in 1874. In 1883 he returned East on a professional visit, singing in twenty-five cities and renewing his former successes.

Miss Agnes Thomas has left Rose Coghlan's company, and is about to create the part of "A Fair Rebel," in the new play of that name.

Augustin Daly has added a St. Louis professional beauty to his stock company this season in the person of Miss Dorr Dana Dann. The lady in question is a natural blonde, rather tall in stature, with an exquisite figure and a very graceful carriage. She will probably make her [illegible] about the middle of January. She is known in society as the [illegible].

Managers Maguire, Rial and Osbourne will produce their great holiday attraction, "The Great Metropolis," at the Grand Opera House this evening.

Manager Wallenrod wishes the public to know that there is not a word of truth in the report published in an evening paper to the effect that L. R. Stockwell intends to sever his connection with the Alcazar Theatre in February next.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

"Davy Crockett," next to "Uncle Tom's Cabin," the most successful play on the American stage, having been before the public for years will be the attraction this week, with Frank Mayo in his incomparable character of the backwoods hero. For many years the public has recognized that Davy Crockett with his rich oddness of character, with his touching love that reaches every heart, and his manly bearing and bravery is the very personification of romance, if Mr. Mayo has not realized it. The play is a poem of the heart, and will never grow old while Mayo remains to give it life

Marie Burries plays Eleanor Vaughn charmingly and with a decidedly strong mental impress. Dame Crockett, Little Bob, and particularly the Oscar Crampton of Edwin F. Mayo are effectively rendered.

—o—

The Bush's holiday attraction will be Gill & Frazer's diverting pantomime burlesque, so successful in the East, "The Spider and the Fly." It opens next week. See cast in full elsewhere in FIGARO. It is pronounced a great novelty.

Alcazar Theatre.

Kate Claxton's melodramatic success, "The World Against Her," with Buckley, Stockwell and Miss Ethel Brandon in the leading roles, the bill at the Alcazar this week. It is a strong play and has an effective production in cast and appointments.

Ethel Brandon is notably strong in Madge Carlton, the woman who had "the world against her." Buckley gives his usual incisiveness to James Carlton, and Stockwell has the audience at his beck as the proprietor of a Punch and Judy show. He is great in it. The play is finely mounted, and the support is, as usual, competent and carefully rendered.

The scenic artists are hard at work on the scenery for the Holiday piece, "Mankind." Its scenic effects will excell anything ever seen at the Alcazar, of which more anon.

Grand Opera House.

The Grand's Holiday piece, "The Great Metropolis," a spectacular melodrama of New York life and characters, will be produced to-night

The sensational scenes of "The Great Metropolis" are the great light-house scene, the realistic life-saving station, the thrilling ship-wreck and rescue of passengers by the mortar projected life-line, the last being a great scene and is promised to be one of the best specimens of skill in stage-setting ever seen in San Francisco.

The public will see them all to night.

New California Theatre.

This week is the last of "Hans the Boatman" at the California, with Charles Arnold in the title role. Mr. Arnold is a sympathetic actor of the Joseph Emmet style, who has won high praise from the press everywhere. The play was written by Clay M. Greene, and abounds in touches of human nature and in sweet songs that appeal to the heart sympathies, and is American in theme and characters.

One of the strong features of "Hans the Boatman," is little May Hannan, a very bright child actress, who plays three juvenile characters with rare cleverness. Julius Kahn and Myron C lice do meritorious work, and Miss May Gordon acts the ill-mated wife with good methods. Miss Dot Fredericks is a pronounced soubrette of unmistakable ability. The dog Bruno, a fine St. Bernard, shows remarkable dog intelligence in his alloted part.

The play is interesting and very handsomely staged. It has won its share of public patronage.

The Boston Howard Athenæum Star Specialty Company commence their holiday season here on Monday night.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Orpheum presents a star collection of Eastern specialty talent this week, fifteen first-class performers in a varied and entertaining

The entertainment is an unusually strong and pleasing one, even for the Orpheum.

Herr John Plagemann, an eminent basso cantanti, will make his debut Wednesday night, assisted by the Harmonic Singing Society.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The eccentric and character actor from the Halsted Street Comedy Theatre, Chicago, Mr F. K. Wallace, is in his last week in California here in the sensational drama of "The Boy Detective."

Mr. Wallace appears this week in the character of Lobster McMullen in the sensational drama of New York life, entitled "Nan, the News-Boy."

The drama is eventful in incident and action, and is well staged with good scenic effects.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conclitt, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The postponed race of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association at the Bay District Course is still held to await good weather and track. Due notice will be given of the day and meeting. Two extra days' racing will be given on the following days. The last meetings of the season.

The events for the last day are: One and one-sixteenth of a mile for a purse of $400, three-year-olds and upwards; a three-quarter of a mile dash for two-year-olds, non-winners, for a $350 purse; the Holiday Handicap, a big event, $500 purse and entries, one and three-eighths; and a one mile race, Owners' Handicap, for a $350 purse.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis; Jessie Herworth and Jennie Ripley, vocalists, and Thatcher & Drew are in this week's bill.

Montague appears this week as the Original Dude in the seashore comedy of "The Dear Boy," and in his screaming farce of "The Elopement," supported by the entire company.

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's plays have the element of hillarity very prominent in them, the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness.

Friday night, benefit of Harry Ellwood. Big bill. Plenty of volunteers.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

They have a laugh-provoking comedy on this week at the Cremorne, "The Four Shamrocks," all the company in the cast,

Gilbert & Goldie, Franke & Marion, Sully & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudia West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others appear in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

The Cremorne's Christmas piece will be a very fine production of the burlesque, "Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden."

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Edna Earle, the popular lady vocalist, and Billy De Ome and his clever trained dog, Josh, are new this week.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "A Rural Ramble," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J Burns, Jennie Fowler, Blanche Long, Alice Dale, Helena Richman, John Gilmore and Billy De Ome.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

Four new stars at Meier's this week: Tom Carroll, the Delaport Sisters and Ada Brandon.

Pete Smith and Lottie Ellis, two popular and clever all around performers, have lately returned to Meier's.

The olio acts are Gottlob's "Euchre" and "Actor in Luck," and Smith and Ellis' and Carroll's specialties.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, J D. Fox, Rosa Stange and others.

Bottle Meier's is the popular north-end resort. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horse-shoe gallery of larger houses.

Family Matinee every Sunday.

Eureka Music Hall

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Wolterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Prof. Paul, the ventriloquean comedian, and Soldene, burlesque artiste, are new here.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell Netta Latelle, Addie Bennett, Mamie Woods, Billy Akarman, Pearl Iola and Charley Morrell make up the company.

The opening is H. M. S. Pinafore first-part of choice music, and the bill is full of acts and specialties, including the can-can.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

Manager Al Hayman reports a fine list of bookings for his coming seasons at the Baldwin and California. They consist of the following attractions: Wilson Barrett and his London company, the London Gaiety Company, Sara Bernhardt, the Bostonians, little Otto Hegner, the boy pianist; A. M. Palmer's company, the spectacular productions "The Crystal Slipper" and Bluebeard Jr."; "Shenandoah," the Kendals; "The Pearl of Pekin," the Emma Juch Grand English Opera company, the Howard Specialty company, E. H. Sothern, in a new play; "The Old Homestead," the Hanlon-Voltaire Spectacular Pantomime, "The Still Alarm," Willard in "The Middleman," and the "City Directory" is also booked for three weeks at the California Theatre.

Madame Januschek announces that she will retire from the stage, on which she has been a shining light for the last twenty years. She will play her farewell performance at the Grand Opera House, New York, Dec. 14th.

Fanny Davenport, in "La Tosca," has duplicated at the Columbia Theatre the big business done by her last season in Chicago. She will be seen Christmas and New Year's weeks in New York.

Wilson Barrett, the London actor and manager who was charged duties on his English scenery, costumes and properties, has won his suit against the Collector of New York, and the Assistant Secretary of Treasury has directed the collector to cancel his bonds and strike the entry off his books. Mr. Barrett claimed that the effects he imported were "professional implements, instruments and tools of his trade," under the provisions of T. I., 815, and depended on for a precedent the case of Mapleson vs. Robertson, and won his plea.

Adelina Patti, Mme. Albani, Signors Tamagno, Castelmary, Perugini, Ravelli, Vicini, Zardo, Carbone, Migliari and Mlles. Pettigiano and Synnerberg constitute the Abbey-Patti Italian Opera Co. at the new Auditorium in Chicago.

Adele Nelson, the Australian equestrienne, sued the Northern Pacific Railway Company, in Chicago, for $20,000 damages for an injury received in a wreck near Gold Creek, Mont. The company had decided to fight the claim, but Mme. Nelson's attorney sent out to the scene of the wreck and procured the tie which had al owed the rails to spread. This was so rotten that it would not hold a spike, and the railroad attorneys, after looking at it, compromised the claim by

E. D. Ward, formerly of Wallack's Theatre, died recently at Edinburgh, Scotland.

"The Great Metropolis," the holiday piece to be produced at the Grand Opera House, has made a tremendous success in every city where it has been seen. Messrs. Klew & Erlanger have been unable to fill one-half of the dates offered. They have already booked the play for nearly the entire season of 1890-91 at the largest terms ever given to any combination. Since this play left New York it has been drawing overflowing audiences, and the marvelously effective shipwreck scene has created a positive furore in every city where it has been presented.

Charles Overton and Margaret Cone (Kate Claxton's sister) were recently wedded in London.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The New York Daily News says that the recent entertainment given by W. S. Cleveland's Minstrels excelled anything of its kind ever seen in that city. That the fun made by Billy Emerson, Willis P. Sweatnam, Billy Rice and Hughey Dougherty was the brightest, cleverest and most apt which they have indulged in. It looks as if they were upon their mettle, and each is up to the mark of his best. There was a dearth of chestnuts, the jokes, witticisms and gags being new and telling. The work of the end men was greatly aided by the cleverness of Ed Marble and Burt Shepard. After the first part—the scene being the gorgeous "Venetian Nights"—a most brilliant scene, the specialties took place. The "Egyptian Phalanx," a competitive drill, awakened intense enthusiasm. The performance of three distinct troupes of Japanese acrobates, equilibrists, jugglers, etc., which concluded the entertainment—there being some 35 men, women and children performers—was astonishing by reason of the skill displayed and the ease, freedom and grace of their actions. There were combats illustrative of war in the East, which were instructive as well as interesting. This feature of the show is one of great beauty. The Clevelands take premier rank in the world of minstrelsy.

The latest fad for actresses is the La Tosca cane, a long slender reed made of ivory wood trimmed with carved gold gold or silver. They are used in stepping into the carriage on wet and slippery pavements, or on dark nights. Ada Rehan, Margaret Mather, Mrs. Langtry and Estelle Clayton use them.

Mr. Edwin Booth has undertaken the task of restoring the monument of Geo. Frederick Cook, the great English actor, in St. Paul's Churchyard, New York City.

Kathryn Kidder is to star next year in a play by Nelson Wheatcroft.

Gossip has it that Mrs. Langtry and her husband have "made up" and are now living happily together (?).

Mary Anderson is wintering at Nice. There is no present talk of her returning to the stage.

The great concert given in aid of the charitable fund of the San Francisco Polychinic, which came off at the Grand Opera House on Monday evening, called forth all the available musical talent, vocal and instrumental, professional and amateur of celerity, that there is in the city, besides all the full force of the Handel and Haydn Society's 400 voices, and the Oakland Harmonic Society's 80 voices. It was a grand concert in reality. The stage was beautifully decorated. The musical numbers were effectively given and the great theatre was filled in every circle.

The wires tell us that a successful surgical operation was performed upon Lawrence Barrett at Boston, on the 16th inst inst., consisting of the removal of some of the lymphatic glands of the throat. As soon as the patient is convalescent he will betake himself to Germany or some other European watering place for health treatment.

Mr. William Foote, a popular manager, who was here with the Haverly Minstrels some years ago, is letting the public know that "The Spider and Fly" [illegible] at the Bush Street Theatre next week.

Who a theatre Johnnie is. The term "Johnnie," which was originally coined in London, is now very generally used in New York to describe the peculiar class of [illegible] has money, while nothing is needed to [illegible] a vapid smile. The Johnnie is also an im[illegible] the theatre is only a stage of vanity.

Manager M. B. Leavitt arrived Saturday, looking hale and hearty. He will, as usual, tarry with us during the Eastern cold months and make this city his business headquarters for the Winter, though he left on Sunday night on important business to visit Portland and the Northern cities temporarily.

As is true in the Gilbert & Sullivan operas, his latest opera, "The Gondoliers," is presented in two acts, with one set scene for each act. The first of these is located in the Square of St. Mark, Venice, and the second in the interior of a Barataria palace of Moorish design and brilliantly furnished with light and color.

In the third act of "Hands Across the Sea," now playing at the Grand Opera House, New York, Miss Edna Carey, as the heroine, Lillian Melford dashes onto the scene on her horse, Don, with a reprieve for the condemned man. Miss Carey is a daring horse-woman, and the scene creates intense excitement.

"Aunt Louisa" Eldridge's loyal efforts to erect a monument over the remains of Mrs. Mary H. Fiske, the dead journalist and playwright, have been at last successful. The monument is to be of granite and has been ordered at Hartford, Conn., the birth-place, as well as the burial place, of Mrs. Fiske. The contributors to this monument belong almost exclusively to the theatrical and journalistic professions.

Russell's comedians, in "The City Directory," did immense business in Chicago, and will open their New York season at the Bijou Theatre on March 17th.

Wilton Lackaye will support Mr. J. M. Hill's new star, Miss Cora Edsall, in Henry Guy Carleton's new play, called "The Australian."

Nat Goodwin is rehearsing Leander Richardson's and William Yardley's new comedy, "The Nominee," which will soon be produced.

Miss Agnes Thomas has left Rose Coghlan's company, and is about to create the part of "A Fair Rebel," in the new play of that name.

Augustin Daly has added a St. Louis professional beauty to his stock company this season in the person of Miss Dorr Dana Dann. The lady in question is a natural blonde, rather tall in stature, with an exquisite figure and a very graceful carriage. She will probably make her first appearance about the middle of January. She is known in society as the D—— beautiful D. D.

Manager Wallenrod wishes the public to know that there is not a word of truth in the report published in an evening paper to the effect that L. R. Stockwell intends to sever his connection with the Alcazar Theatre in February next.

Pretty Idalene Cotton, who has been engaged by Messrs. Maguire, Rial & Osbourne for their Grand Opera House stock company, will play the part of "The Dook," the ship's boy, in "The Great Metropolis;" and the clever and sprightly Allen Sisters, Louise and Ray, will appear in important parts in "The Spider and the Fly," which opens at the Bush Street Theatre on the 23d.

C. A. Byrne and Arthur Wallack's "Coward Conscience" is soon to be produced in Australia.

"Mankind," the holiday piece for the Alcazar, a melodrama by Geo. Conquest and Paul Merritt, has made a hit at Chicago.

Laura Burt is engaged for one of the leading parts in Sedley Brown's new comedy-drama, "Pine Meadow," which Joseph Arthur and Frank W. Sanger are to produce in New York at the Fourteenth Street Theatre March 31st.

"The Great Metropolis," the holiday piece produced at the Grand Opera House, has made a tremendous success in every city where it has been seen. Messrs. Klew & Erlanger have been unable to fill one-half of the dates offered. They have already booked the play for nearly the entire season of 1890-91 at the largest terms ever given to any combination. Since this play left New York it has been drawing overflowing audiences, and the marvelously effective shipwreck scene has created a positive furore in every city where it has been presented.

Charles Overton and Margaret Cone (Kate Claxton's sister) were recently wedded in London.

W. J. Scanlan's new "Swiss Song" gets a dozen encores every night at the Star Theatre, New York.

Frederick Warde promises to surprise the public next season with a magnificent Shakespearean revival.

Miss Fanny Davenport is preparing for an unusually elaborate spectacular production of "Theodora" next season.

Miss Sibyl Sanderson, the California girl who leaped into fame at once as a prima donna soprano in Paris, has been granted a ten-days leave of absence by the Opera Comique. She is suffring from influenza and is unable to sing. She needs rest to take care of her voice.

Wm. L. Lykens, business manager for Maggie Mitchell, had a hot dispute with Charles Abbott, her husband, in the lobby of the Park Theatre, Philadelphia, on Friday afternoon, and called him a "liar." Abbott struck Lykens with his cane and at it they went, Lykens getting the best of the scrap. "It wasn't at all Lykens that I was to get hit without striking back," said the irate agent after the fight was over.

Robert Barton has given orders to a San Francisco architect for plans for a $[illegible] house.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Mr. R. Pitrot, the facial artist, sends us a copy of the London Pavilion programme, bearing his name as one of the artists on the bill. The programme is rather a neat affair and has this notice printed on its title page in prominent type "The charge for this programme is twopence."

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walderstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and only paper that publishes their full programmes

Notice to Stage Managers.

We cannot make changes in Programmes after two (2) P. M. All changes handed in after that hour will have to lay over until next day.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

"Davy Crockett," next to "Uncle Tom's Cabin" the most successful play on the American stage, having been before the public for 17 years, will be the attraction this week, with Frank Mayo in his incomparable character of the backwoods' hero. For many years the public has recognized that Davy Crockett with his nobleness of character, with his touching love that reaches every heart, and his manly bearing and bravery is the very personification of romance, if Mr. Mayo has not realized it. The play is a poem of the heart, and will never grow old while Mayo remains to give it life.

Marie Burriss plays Eleanor Vaughn charmingly, and with a decidedly strong mental impress. Dame Crockett, Little Bob, and particularly the Oscar Crampton of Edwin F. Mayo are effectively rendered.

—o—

The Bush's holiday attraction will be Gill & Frazer's diverting pantomime burlesque, so successful in the East. "The Spider and the Fly." It opens next week. See cast in full elsewhere in FIGARO. It is pronounced a great novelty.

Alcazar Theatre.

Kate Claxton's melodramatic success, "The World Against Her" with Buckley, Stockwell and Miss Ethel Brandon in the leading roles, the bill at the Alcazar this week. It is a strong play and has an effective production in cast and appointments.

Ethel Brandon is notably strong in Meage Carlton, the woman who had "the world against her." Buckley gives his usual impersonations to James Carlton, and Stockwell has the part of Lucien Lebrun as the proprietor of a Parisian restaurant. [illegible] The [illegible] are [illegible], as usual, [illegible] rendered.

[illegible] will [illegible] week on the [illegible] "Wallack's." Its [illegible] effects [illegible] anything ever seen at the Alcazar, of which more anon.

Grand Opera House.

The Grand's holiday piece, "The Great Metropolis," a spectacular melodrama of New York life and characters, is a strong play by George Jessop and Bob Teal, two former residents of San Francisco, that has merit and money in it, both for managers and authors.

The sensational scenes of "The Great Metropolis" are the great light-house scene, the realistic life-saving station, the thrilling shipwreck and rescue of passengers by the mortar projected life-line, the last being a grand scene, one of the best specimens of skill in stage-setting ever seen in San Francisco.

The whole stage of the Grand is utilized for the wreck scene. In the rear the stranded ship by the lightning's vivid flashes appears at intervals out of the surrounding darkness and storm with startling reality. All is excitement in front of the stage occupied by the life savers. The mortar line is fired, and the survivors are brought from the wreck by aid of the life-line in regular life-saving station manner. The scene is one of the most exciting ones ever on our local boards.

New California Theatre

This week is the last of "Hans the Boatman" at the California, with Charles Arnold in the title role. Mr. Arnold is a sympathetic actor of the Joseph Emmet style, who has won high praise from the press everywhere. The play was written by Clay M. Greene, and abounds in touches of human nature and in sweet songs that appeal to the heart sympathies and is American in theme and character.

One of the strong features of "Hans the Boatman" is little May Hannan, a very bright [illegible]

tors with rare cleverness. Julius Kahn and Myron C[illegible] do meritorious work, and Miss May Gordon acts the ill-mated wife with [illegible] methods. Miss Dot Fredericks is a pronounced soubrette of unmistakable ability. The dog Nord, a fine St. Bernard, shows remarkable dog intelligence in his allotted part.

The play is interesting and very handsomely staged. It has won its share of public patronage.

The Boston Howard Atheræum Star Specialty Company commence their holiday season here on Monday night.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Orpheum presents a star collection of Eastern specialty talent this week, fifteen first-class performers in a varied and entertaining programme.

The entertainment is an unusually strong and pleasing one, even for the Orpheum.

Herr John Plagemann, an eminent basso cantanti, will make his debut Wednesday night, assisted by the Harmonic Singing Society.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The comedian and character actor from the Halsted Street Comedy Theatre, Chicago, Mr. F. K. Wallace, is in his last week in California here in the sensational drama of "The Boy Detective."

Mr. Wallace appears this week in the character of Lobster McMullen in the sensational drama of New York life, entitled "Nan, the News-Boy."

The drama is eventful in incident and action, and is well staged with good scenic effects.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The postponed last day of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association at the Bay District Course will come off on Saturday, if weather and track will permit. If conditions prevent the races will be declared off for good. There will not be any extra days racing, as at one time contemplated.

The events for the last day are: One and one-sixteenth of a mile for a purse of $400, three-year-olds and upwards; a three-quarter of a mile dash for two-year-olds, non-winners, for a $350 purse; the Holiday Handicap, a big event, $500 purse and entries, one and three-eighths; and a one mile race, Owners' Handicap, for a $350 purse.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis; Jessie Herworth and Jennie Ripley, vocalists, and Thatcher & Drew are in this week's bill.

Montague appears this week as the Original Dude in the seashore comedy of "The Dear Boy," and in his screaming farce of "The Elopement," supported by the entire company.

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's plays have the element of hilarity very prominent in them, the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness.

Friday night, benefit of Harry Ellwood. Big bill. Plenty of volunteers.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

They have a laugh-provoking comedy on this week at the Cremorne, "The Four Shamrocks," all the company in the cast.

Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Sully & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clear and the versatile Nesteell and others appear in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nesteell.

The Cremorne's Christmas piece will be a very fine production of the burlesque, "Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden."

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Hanlon assumes the business department with éclat and success, and Neil Moore goes out ahead of the attractions. The Cremorne is on the theatre circuit.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Edna Earle, the popular lady vocalist, and Billy Do Ome and his clever trained dog, Josh, are new this week.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "A Rural Ramble," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Travers, J Burns, Jennie Fowler, Blanche Long, Alice Dale, Helena Richman, John Gilmore and Billy De Ome.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

Four new stars at Meier's this week: Tom Carroll, the Delsport Sisters and Ada Brandon.

Pete Smith and Lottie Ellis, two popular and clever all around performers, have lately returned to Meier's.

The olio acts are Gottlob's "Euchre" and "Actor in Luck," and Smith and Ellis' and Carroll's specialties.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Miss Dolly

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

A dispatch from New Orleans announces the death in that city of David Bidwell, on the 18th, the most prominent theatrical manager in the South, and one of the oldest and best known managers in the Union.

The parties who play the wolves in the "wolves at the door" act of "Davy Crockett," though not accredited with a place in the programme, are acknowledged as the howling success of the play.

William Lester, of Lester & Allen, was shot in Washington recently and seriously injured.

Frank Evans is going to try it once more with "The Galley Slave." He has engaged in suppport Jeffreys-Lewis, Eva Clayton, Gussie De Forrest, Ruth Hamilton, Theodore Hamilton, Hudson Liston, Frank Roberts, James Bevins, John Walsh and Fred Lawrence. Andy McKay is manager and E. M. Kayne treasurer.

It is reported that Louise Dillon, who is now Mrs. Chapman, has retired permanently from the stage.

"The Corsair" re-opens in New Haven on Christmas Day.

Pauline Hall has taken such good care of her salary and perquisites during the past few years that she is reputed to be the wealthiest comic-opera prima donna in this country.

Denman Thompson has restored Walter Gale to his place in the cast of "The Old Homestead." Mr. Gale says he will never do so any more.

Charles H. Hoyt intends to produce his latest play, "A Texas Steer," for a single week before the close of the present season. This will be done merely with the idea of giving the "Steer" a send-off, and testing its worth. After it has been played seven times it will be laid to one side and largely re-written for next Autumn.

"A Castle in the Air" is the name of a new comic opera for De Wolf Hopper's Company.

Barton Hill and Fred Ross are members of the Marie Wainwright Co. at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, N. Y.

Rufus Thompson, the venerable father of Denman Thompson (Uncle Josh Whitcomb), was lately married to Mrs. Sarah A. Walker, of Westminster, Vt. The bride is only 75 and the groom 83

Booth and Modjeska rest Christmas and New Year's weeks, resuming their tour Jan. 6th in Providence, R. I.

George W. Wadleigh has resigned his position as business manager of the Myra Goodwin company.

Helen Bancroft, one of the most attractive women on the stage, has become a member of the company supporting Miss Rose Coghlan.

"The Great Metropolis" drew nearly $7,000 in one week at the National Theatre, Philadelphia, where it was so successful that a return engagement has been booked for next season.

Orchestra Leader William Dietrich has obtained judgment against Clara Louise Kellogg for $708 50, which he claimed for unpaid salary.

The latest fad for actresses is the La Tosca cane, a long slender rod made of ivery wood trimmed with carved gold gold or silver. They are used in stepping from the carriage on wet and slippery pavements, or on dark nights. Ada Rehan, Margaret Mather, Mrs. Langtry and Estelle Clayton use them.

Mr. Edwin Booth has undertaken the task of restoring the monument of Geo. Frederick Cook, the great English actor, in St. Paul's Churchyard, New York City.

Kathryn Kidder is to star next year in a play by Nelson Wheatcroft.

Gossip has it that Mrs. Langtry and her husband have "made up" and are now living happily together (?).

Mary Anderson is wintering at Nice. There is no present talk of her returning to the stage.

Mr. William Foote, a popular manager, who was here with the Haverly Minstrels some years ago, is letting the public know that "The Spider and Fly" Company opens at the Bush Street Theatre on the 23d.

Co'. T. Allston Brown, the veteran editor of the New York Clipper, now tarrying in this city with his successful dramatic venture, "Hans the Boatman," is in receipt of a New York letter stating that Lawrence Barrett's retirement from the stage is permanent, as far as this season goes; and that it was in compliance with the absolute command of his medical advisor that he cancelled all his dates, and would subject himself to the surgical operation—since undergone. Mr. Brown states the persons who have not seen Barrett since last year can have no idea of how greatly the disfigurement of his neck has become since then. His correspondent also writes that T. H. French has effected a combination for next season's campaign of Margaret Mather, Louis James and Wm. Terris, to be supported by a strong company.

"An actor should always keep the upper hand of his audiences by preserving his self-confidence," says W. J. Scanlan. "If he loses that confidence and shows that he is fearful of their criticism, he is gone. I always look my audiences square in the eye and study them. I enjoy it. I have watched Jay Gould as he sat in his private box at the Star Theatre, and have noticed the impressions that the various scenes made upon him. I have seen the hard lines of his face soften at the pathetic portions of the play. When I sing 'Peek-a-Boo' it never fails to arouse his enthusiasm, which he vents by vigorously clapping his hands. It is a sight for a philosopher to watch that man of millions, the greatest financier of the age, who makes and mars men, touched to the heart by a little home song. The manager of the theatre can always tell whether or not Mr. Gould likes a play. If he does not, the next morning there will be all around his chair little paper balls, portions of the programme torn off and rolled up between his fingers in unconscious nervousness. If he becomes interested in a play those little paper balls are never found."

As usual in the Gilbert & Sullivan operas, his latest opera, "The Gondoliers," is presented in two acts, with one set scene for each act. The first of these is located in the Square of St. Mark, Venice, and the second in the interior of a Baratarian palace of Moorish design and brilliantly furnished with light and color.

Russell's comedians, in "The City Directory," did immense business in Chicago, and will open their New York season at the Bijou Theatre on March 17th.

Wilton Lackaye will support Mr. J. M. Hill's new star, Miss Cora Edsall, in Henry Guy Carleton's new play, called "The Australian."

Nat Goodwin is rehearsing Leander Richardson's and William Yardley's new comedy, "The Nominee," which will soon be produced.

Miss Agnes Thomas has left Rose Coghlan's company, and is about to create the part of "A Fair Rebel," in the new play of that name.

Pretty Idalene Cotton, who has been engaged by Messrs. Maguire, Rial & Osbourne for their Grand Opera House stock company, will play the part of "The Dook," the ship's boy, in "The Great Metropolis;" and the clever and sprightly Allen Sisters, Louise and Ray, will appear in important parts in "The Spider and the Fly," which opens at the Bush Street Theatre on the 23d.

"Mankind," the holiday piece for the Alcazar, a melodrama by Geo. Conquest and Paul Merritt, has made a hit at Chicago.

"The Great Metropolis," the holiday piece produced at the Grand Opera House, has made a tremendous success in every city where it has been seen. Messrs. Klew & Erlanger have been unable to fill one-half of the dates offered. They have already booked the play for nearly the entire season of 1890-91 at the largest terms ever given to any combination. Since this play left New York it has been drawing overflowing audiences, and the marvelously effective shipwreck scene has created a positive furore in every city where it has been presented.

Frederick Warde promises to surprise the public next season with a magnificent Shakespearean revival.

Robert Barton has given orders to a San Francisco architect for plans for a $30.000 opera house.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

Who a theatre Johnnie is. The term "Johnnie," which was originally coined in London, is now very generally used in New York to describe the peculiar class of pallid youngsters who hang around stage-doors and frequent burlesque theatres. The distinction between a Johnnie and a dude seems to be that the former has money, while nothing is needed to equip the latter but a silver-headed stick, a cigarette, considerable ill-health and a vapid smile. The Johnnie is also an improvement on the dude to the extent that he has an object in life beyond cigarette smoking, even if that object is only the worship of a stage divinity.

Eureka Music Hall

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Prof. Paul, the ventriloquean comedian, and Soldene, burlesque artiste, are new here.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell Netta Latelle, Addie Bennett, Mamie Woods, Billy Akarman, Pearl Iola and Charley Morrell make up the company.

The opening is H. M. S. Pinafore first-part of choice music, and the bill is full of acts and specialties, including the can-can.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

"Davy Crockett," next to "Uncle Tom's Cabin" the most successful play on the American stage, having been before the public for 17 years, will be the attraction this week, with Frank Mayo in his incomparable character of the backwoods' hero. For many years the public has recognized that Davy Crockett with his nobleness of character, with his touching love that reaches every heart, and his manly bearing and bravery is the very personification of romance, if Mr. Mayo has not realized it. The play is a poem of the heart, and will never grow old while Mayo remains to give it life.

Marie Burriss plays Eleanor Vaughn charmingly, and with a decidedly strong mental impress. Dame Crockett, Little Bob, and particularly the Oscar Crampton of Edwin F. Mayo are effectively rendered.

—o—

The Bush's holiday attraction will be Gill & Fraser's diverting pantomimic burlesque, so successful in the East, "Spider and Fly." It is pronounced a great novelty in itself, and is full of novelties in the way of introduced amusing, interesting and first-class specialties.

Besides the burlesque and comedy company, the performance is illustrated by the following vaudeville and specialty artists: The operatic star, Bessie Cleveland; the charming vocalist, Hilda Thomas; the great Parisian dancing grotesques, Dorst & Oreste; the marvelous European gymnasts, the Dare Brothers; the popular dancers, Allen Sisters (Louise and Ray); the greatest of all funny clowns, Tommy Dare, and the famous pantomimists, Jas. R. Adams and August Siegrist.

The comedy-burlesque, "Spider and Fly," calls for twenty-six characters in its distribution besides the above-mentioned specialists. It is actually a double bill, and comes here with all its Eastern stage garniture and appointments.

Seats now on sale.

Alcazar Theatre.

Kate Claxton's melodramatic success, "The World Against Her," with Buckley, Stockwell and Miss Ethel Brunton in the leading roles, the bill at the Alcazar this week. It is a strong play and has an effective production in cast and appointments.

Ethel Brunton is notably strong in Madge Carlton, the woman who had "the world against her." Buckley gives his usual impressiveness to James Carlton, and Stockwell has the audience at his back as the proprietor of a Punch and Judy show. He is great in it. The play is finely mounted, and the support is, as usual, competent and carefully rendered.

"Mankind" a very strong melodrama, written by Paul Merritt and George Conquest, authors of "Youth." and "The World," two of the cleverest melodramatic writers in London, will be the Alcazar's holiday attraction. The central figure of the play is Daniel Groodge of the firm of Groodge & Sharpley—a centenarian—a picture of meanness and selfish wickedness worthy of the pen of a Dickens or the brush of a Hogarth. L. R. Stockwell, who has proved himself a comedian of wide range of ability, will be seen for the first time since his connection with the Alcazar in a part that, although exactly in his way, is entirely opposed to the sympathies of his audiences.

The scenic effects of "Mankind" are notable. There is one scene in it that is promised to excel anything ever attempted on the local stage. The curtain rises and a vessel is seen in motion upon the waters, with the characters on board. During the action of the scene a fog rises and completely envelopes the stage for a moment and then slowly disappears. When the atmosphere is clear again the vessel is gone; nothing but a wide expanse is seen of sea and sky. It will be a wonderful bit of stage realism, and with the efficient treatment it will receive at the Alcazar is sure to prove a success. The mounting of plays at the Alcazar has always been characterized by liberality and judgment. The managers are determined that "Mankind" shall be no exception to the rule.

The scenic artists have been hard at work on the scenery, and it is certain that its scenic effects will excel anything ever seen at the Alcazar.

Seats on sale for Monday night and the week.

Grand Opera House.

The Grand's Holiday piece, "The Great Metropolis," a spectacular melodrama of New York life and characters, is a strong play by George Jessop and Ben Teal, two former residents of San Francisco, that has merit and money in it, both for managers and authors.

The sensational scenes of "The Great Metropolis" are the great light-house scene, the realistic life-saving station, the thrilling shipwreck and rescue of passengers by the mortar projected life-line, the last being a grand scene, one of the best specimens of skill in stage-setting ever seen in San Francisco.

The whole stage of the Grand is utilized for the wreck scene. In the rear the stranded ship by the lightning's vivid flashes appears at intervals out of the surrounding darkness and storm with startling reality. All is excitement in front of the stage occupied by the life-savers. The mortar line is fired, and the survivors are brought from the wreck by aid of the life-line in regular life-saving station manner. The scene is one of the most exciting ones ever on our local boards. The whole production is a study in stage work, for which stage director George Osbourne, scenic artist John R. Wilkins, master mechanic Thomas Andrews and assistants deserve high praise.

The cast is not only very full, but very strong as well. It would take more space in our columns than we can grant to individualize the merits of the performances. Those who did so well in "Hands Across the Sea;" Wm Morris, James J. Lent, E. N. Thayer, Lorimer Johnstone, Miss Isabel Morris and Miss Kate Chester strengthened their popularity by the good work they do in this play; and the new comers, Edwin J. Henley, a strong melodramatic actor; Harry Bell, a capital light comedian; Miss Mary Hampton, a pleasing ingenue; Miss Joan Sep, a character actress, and Miss Indalene Cotton as a waif of a boy, are already in the Grand's swim of popular favor.

"The Great Metropolis" is up for holiday run of crowded houses.

New California Theatre

This week is the last of "Hans the Boatman" at the California, with Charles Arnold in the title role. Mr. Arnold is a sympathetic actor of the Joseph Emmet style, who has won high praise from the press everywhere. The play was written by Olay M. Greene, and abounds in touches of human nature and in sweet songs that appeal to the heart sympathies, and is American in theme and characters.

One of the strong features of "Hans the Boatman" is little May Hannan, a very bright child actress, who plays three juvenile characters with rare cleverness. Julius Kahn and Myron Calice do meritorious work, and Miss May Gordon acts the ill-mated wife with good methods. Miss Dot Fredericks is a pronounced soubrette of unmistakable ability. The dog Nord, a fine St. Bernard, shows remarkable dog intelligence in his alloted part.

The play is interesting and very handsomely staged. It has won its share of public patronage.

The Boston Howard Athenæum Star Specialty Company commence their holiday season here on Monday night.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Orpheum presents a star collection of Eastern specialty talent this week, fifteen first-class performers in a varied and entertaining programme.

The entertainment is an unusually strong and pleasing one, even for the Orpheum.

Herr John Plagemann, an eminent basso cantanti, will make his debut Wednesday night, assisted by the Harmonic Singing Society.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The comedian and character actor from the Halsted Street Comedy Theatre, Chicago, Mr. F. K. Wallace, is in his last week in California here in the sensational drama of "The Boy Detective,"

Mr. Wallace appears this week in the character of Lobster McMullen in the sensational drama of New York life, entitled "Nan, the News-Boy."

The drama is eventful in incident and action, and is well staged with good scenic effects.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Newbary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

The Races.

The postponed last day of the Fall meeting of the Pacific Coast Blood-Horse Association at the Bay District Course will come off on Saturday, if weather and track will permit. If conditions prevent the race will be declared off for good. There will not be any extra days racing, as at one time contemplated.

The events for the last day are: One and one-sixteenth of a mile for a purse of $400, three-year-olds and upwards; a three-quarter of a mile dash for two-year-olds, non-winners, for a $350 purse; the Holiday Handicap, a big event, $500 purse and entries, one and three-eighths; and a one mile race, Owners' Handicap, for a $350 purse.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis; Jessie Hei-worth and Jennie Ripley, vocalists, and Thatcher & Drew are in this week's bill.

Montague appears this week as the Original Dude in the seashore comedy of "The Dear Boy," and in his screaming farce of "The Elopement," supported by the entire company.

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's plays have the element of hilarity very prominent in them, the zing of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness.

Friday night, benefit of Harry Ellwood. Big bill. Plenty of volunteers.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

They have a laugh-provoking comedy on this week at the Cremorne, "The Four Shamrocks," all the company in the cast.

Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Sully & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others appear in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

The Cremorne's Christmas piece will be a very fine production of the burlesque, "Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden."

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Edna Earle, the popular lady vocalist, and Billy Do Ome and his clever trained dog, Josh, are new this week.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "A Rural Ramble," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burne, Jennie Fowler, Blanche Long, Alice Dale, Helena Richman, John Gilmore and Billy De Ome.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

Four new stars at Meier's this week: Tom Carroll, the Delaney Sisters and Ada Brandon.

Pete Smith and Lottie Ellis, two pop clever all around performers, have l turned to Meier's.

The olio acts are Gottlob's "Ench "Actor in Luck," and Smith and El Carroll's specialties.

The olio also brings to the front ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Mis Paxton, J. D. Fox, Rosa Stange and ot

THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

The Evening Post of Dec. 18th has these good words to say of the Grand:

While the new houses in this city were being built there were but few who ever thought of the Grand Opera House as a possible competitor. The unexpected, however always happens, and the Grand Opera House has just taken unto itself a new lease of life, which promises to be permanent. The size of the house is enormous, and it is drawing patronage from all sides. Since George Osbourne went there it is almost a foregone conclusion that the Grand will take the lead in melodramatic entertainments.

Last night was the first of "The Great Metropolis." The house was simply packed from floor to roof, and the play was received throughout with enthusiasm. Usually this big over-grown looking house strikes a chill into the casual spectator. Last night, however, it was full of warmth and had a bright appearance. There were signs of live men being engaged in every department. What is more, they all pull together, and that is everything in an institution of this kind.

"The Great Metropolis" is a great play, and at the Grand it is played by the greatest stock company that has been seen in this city for years. Some may regret that George Osbourne did not assign himself a more prominent part, but on contemplating the amount of work he has to do as stage manager one is not surprised. The excellence of all the scenes is a tribute to his great skill in this department.

The individual members of the company were all excellent. Some, indeed, were a genuine surprise. Harry Bell, for instance, as the real estate broker, received rounds of applause and won himself favor from the first. E. J. Henley acted as only a long experienced, genuine actor can act, and came near getting the call of the evening. Will Morris is the very quintessence of a hero, while all the rest were well up in their parts.

Without any exaggeration we can predict that more people will be anxious to see "The Great Metropolis" than any melodrama that has been produced in San Francisco during the year. The bedrock prices of admission put this really great entertainment within the means of all.

AN OPERA BOUFFE HIT.

Dispatches from Paris of December 18th recount the great success at the Bouffes Parisiennes of Messager's three-act opera, "Le Mari de la Reine," produced for the first time that evening. The plot is wild and extravagant. The scene is laid in Central Asia, in the land of the Khokistamians, but the motive of the operetta is evidently very catching and effective. The authors of the libretto, Grenet Jancourt and Octave Fradelli, appear to have made it merry with many effervescent little bits of purely Paris an wit, repartee and double entente, and Messager's music was very enthusiastically applauded. It is tuneful and charming. The Parisians seem to have been delightfully enthused over the birth of an opera bouffe at the Parisiennes of the Offenbach kind, bright, witty and vivacious. Who will get it for the American market?

A dispatch from New Orleans announces the death in that city of David Bidwell, on the 18th, the most prominent theatrical manager in the South, and one of the oldest and best known managers in the Union.

The parties who play the wolves in the "wolves at the door" act of "Davy Crockett," though not accredited with a place in the programme, are acknowledged as the howling success of the play.

Charles H. Hoyt intends to produce his latest play, "A Texas Steer," for a single week before the close of the present season. This will be done merely with the idea of giving the "Steer" a send-off, and testing its worth. After it has been played seven times it will be laid to one side and largely re-written for next Autumn.

"A Castle in the Air" is the name of a new comic opera for De Wolf Hopper's Company.

Dorman Thompson has restored Walter Gale to his place in the cast of "The Old Homestead." Mr. Gale says he will never do so any more.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Robert Buchanan's new drama, "Man and Wife," had its first production at the Criterion Theatre, London, on the 19th inst. Dispatches indicate that it is a literary play, but not a dramatic one; strong in diction and dialogue, but weak in plot, with scarcely enough incidents in it to hold it together unto the end. Miss Myra Kemble, an Australian actress, made her first appearance in London as the heroine of the play, and proved herself a most valuable addition to the list of London actresses. She has a fine stage presence, a musical and expressive voice, and great powers of sustained passion. She is favorably known in Australia, where she has achieved particular distinction in some of Buchanan's pieces, notably in "Joseph's Sweetheart."

A New York dispatch says that A. M. Palmer has completed arrangements with D'Oyley Carte by which he acquires control of Gilbert & Sullivan's new opera, "The Gondoliers." Palmer will probably produce the opera at either the Madison Square or Palmer's Theatre, though Carte's original intention may be carried out and the opera be given at the Park Theatre. The exact time of the production is not settled, but will not be far off. It is understood that Henderson, the Chicago manager, will have the rights of "The Gondoliers" for his section of the "West," and that Al Hayman will hold the Pacific Coast rights.

Alonzo E. Stoddard, the well known baritone, died on the 19th inst., at the Homeopathic Hospital, Boston. Heart failure, resulting in part from a severe attack of typhoid fever, was the cause of his death. He began his opera ic career with the Emma Abbott Company, and in recent years gained high honors with the American and National opera organizations, as well as the Emma Juch Co., of which he was a member when taken ill.

In steps Mr. Octavus Cohen, of Charleston, S. C., already, and puts in a claim to being the "originator" of Gilbert & Sullivan's new opera. Mr. Octavus Cohen, of Charleston, S. C., claims that some months ago he wrote the libretta of a comic opera called "Niatrici," in which the two leading ideas were original. This, Mr. Cohen says, he sent to Sir Arthur Sullivan early last Summer, who courteously replied and declined to enter into any arrangement with him. Mr. Cohen now asserts that Gilbert & Sullivan's new comic opera, "The Gondoliers," embodies his original ideas and is a deliberate piracy. Mr. Octavus Cohen, of Charleston, S. C., is not taking an original method of seeking notoriety. It is an old dodge.

Col. T. Allston Brown, the veteran editor of the New York Clipper, now tarrying in this city with his successful dramatic venture, "Hans the Boatman," is in receipt of a New York letter stating that Lawrence Barrett's retirement from the stage is permanent, as far as this season goes; and that it was in compliance with the absolute command of his medical advisor that he cancelled all his dates, and would subject himself to the surgical operation—since undergone. Mr. Brown states the persons who have not seen Barrett since last year can have no idea of how greatly the disfigurement of his neck has become since then. His correspondent also writes that T. H. French has effected a combination for next season's campaign of Margaret Mather, Louis James and Wm. Terris, to be supported by a strong company.

Pretty Idalene Cotton, who has been engaged by Messrs. Maguire, Rial & Osbourne for their Grand Opera House stock company, will play the part of "The Dook," the ship's boy, in "The Great Metropolis;" and the clever and sprightly Allen Sisters, Louise and Ray, will appear in important parts in "The Spider and the Fly," which opens at the Bush Street Theatre on the 23d.

Barton Hill and Fred Ross are members of the Marie Wainwright Co. at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, N. Y.

"Mankind," the holiday piece for the Alcazar, a melodrama by Geo. Conquest and Paul Merritt, has made a hit at Chicago.

Rufus Thompson, the venerable father of Denman Thompson (Uncle Josh Whitcomb), was lately married to Mrs. Sarah A. Walker, of Westminster, Vt. The bride is only 75 and the groom 83

Booth and Modjeska rest Christmas and New Year's weeks, resuming their tour Jan. 6th in Providence, R. I.

Helen Bancroft, one of the most attractive women on the stage, has become a member of the company supporting Miss Rose Coghlan.

"The Great Metropolis" drew nearly $7,000 in one week at the National Theatre, Philadelphia, where it was so successful that a return engagement has been booked for next season.

Orchestra Leader William Dietrich has obtained judgment against Clara Louise Kellogg for $768 50, which he claimed for unpaid salary.

Mr. Edwin Booth has undertaken the task of restoring the monument of Geo. Frederick Cook, the great English actor, in St. Paul's Churchyard, New York City.

Kathryn Kidder is to star next year in a play by Nelson Wheatcroft.

Gossip has it that Mrs. Langtry and her husband have "made up" and are now living happily together (?).

Mary Anderson is wintering at Nice. There is no present talk of her returning to the stage.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

William Lester, of Lester & Allen, was shot in Washington recently and seriously injured.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

"Davy Crockett," next to "Uncle Tom's Cabin" the most successful play on the American stage, having been before the public for 17 years, will be the attraction this week, with Frank Mayo in his incomparable character of the backwoods' hero. For many years the public has recognized that Davy Crockett with his nobleness of character, with his touching love that reaches every heart, and his manly bearing and bravery is the very personification of romance, if Mr. Mayo has not realized it, The play is a poem of the heart, and will never grow old while Mayo remains to give it life.

Marie Burriss plays Eleanor Vaughn charmingly, and with a decidedly strong mental impress. Dame Crockett, Little Bob, and particularly the Oscar Crampton of Edwin F. Mayo are effectively rendered.

—o—

The Bush's holiday attraction will be Gill & Fraser's diverting pantomimic burlesque, so successful in the East, "Spider and Fly." It is pronounced a great novelty in itself, and is full of novelties in the way of introduced amusing, interesting and first-class specialties.

Besides the burlesque and comedy company, the performance is illustrated by the following vaudeville and specialty artists: The operatic star, Bessie Cleveland; the charming vocalist, Hilda Thomas; the great Parisian dancing grotesques, Dorst & Oreste; the marvelous European gymnasts, the Dare Brothers; the popular dancers, Allen Sisters (Louise and Ray); the greatest of all funny clowns, Tommy Dare, and the famous pantomimists, Jas. R. Adams and August Siegrist.

The comedy-burlesque, "Spider and Fly," carries twenty-six characters in its distribution besides the above-mentioned specialists. It is actually a double bill, and comes here with all its Eastern stage garniture and appointments.

Seats now on sale.

Alcazar Theatre.

Rice Clinton's melodramatic success, "The World Against Her," with Buckley, Stockwell and Miss Ethel Brandon in the leading roles, is the bill at the Alcazar this week. It is a strong play and has an effective production in cast and appointments.

Joel Bierbower is locally strong in Morgan Carter, the woman who had "the world against her." Buckley gives his usual intense performance as Colonel Stockwell has the part of Sir Robert, the proprietor of a London Jury Crew. He presents it. The [illegible] and [illegible] support is satisfactory, competent and creditably rendered.

"Ruddigore" is very clever in characters, written by Messrs. Merritt and Grossmith, composers, and "Venus" and "The Witch," two of the most successful comic operas in London, will be the Alcazar's bill of fare next week. The central figure of the play is Richard Grosvenor, the hero of Grossmith & Stanley's new farce—a picture of [illegible] selfish weakness worthy of the pen of a Dickens or the brush of a Hogarth. J. R. Stockwell who has proved himself a comedian of wide range of ability, will be seen for the first time since his connection with the Alcazar in a part that, although exactly in his way, is entirely opposed to the sympathies of his audiences.

The scenic effects of "Mankind" are notable. There is one scene in it that is promised to excel anything ever attempted on the local stage. The curtain rises and a vessel is seen in motion upon the waters, with the characters on board. During the action of the scene a fog arises and completely envelopes the stage for a moment and then slowly disappears. When the atmosphere is clear again the vessel is gone; nothing but a wide expanse of sea and sky. It will be a wonderful bit of stage realism, and with the efficient treatment it will receive at the Alcazar is sure to prove a success. The mounting of plays at the Alcazar has always been characterized by liberality and judgment. The managers are determined that "Mankind" shall be no exception to the rule.

The scenic artists have been hard at work on the scenery, and it is certain that its scenic effects will excel anything ever seen at the Alcazar.

Seats on sale for Monday night and the week.

Grand Opera House.

The Grand's Holiday piece, "The Great Metropolis," a spectacular melodrama of New York life and characters, is a strong play by George Jessop and Ben Teal, two former residents of San Francisco, that has merit and money in it, both for managers and authors.

The sensational scenes of "The Great Metropolis" are the great light-house scene, the realistic life-saving station, the thrilling shipwreck and rescue of passengers by the mortar projected life-line, the last being a grand scene, one of the best specimens of skill in stage-setting ever seen in San Francisco.

The whole stage of the Grand is utilized for the wreck scene. In the rear the stranded ship by the lightning's vivid flashes appears at intervals out of the surrounding darkness and storm with startling reality. All is excitement in front of the stage occupied by the life-savers. The mortar line is fired, and the survivors are brought from the wreck by aid of the life-line in regular life-saving station manner. The scene is one of the most exciting ones ever on our local boards. The whole production is a study in stage work, for which stage director George Osbourne, scenic artist John R. Wilkins, master mechanic Thomas Andrews and assistants deserve high praise.

The cast is not only very full, but very strong as well. It would take more space in our columns than we can grant to individualize the merits of the performances. Those who did so well in "Hands Across the Sea;" Wm Morris, James J. Lent, E. N. Thayer, Lorimer Johnstone, Miss Isabel Morris and Miss Kate Chester strengthened their popularity by the good work they do in this play; and the new comers, Edwin J. Henley, a strong melodramatic actor; Harry Bell, a capital light comedian; Miss Mary Hampton, a pleasing ingenue; Miss Joan Sep, a character actress, and Miss Indalene Cotton as a waif of a boy, are already in the Grand's swim of popular favor.

"The Great Metropolis" is up for holiday run of crowded houses.

New California Theatre.

This week is the last of "Hans the Boatman" at the California, with Charles Arnold in the title role. Mr. Arnold is a sympathetic actor of the Joseph Emmet style, who has won high praise from the press everywhere. The play was written by Clay M. Greene, and abounds in touches of human nature and in sweet songs that appeal to the heart sympathies, and is American in theme and characters.

The company render effective support.

The play is interesting and very handsomely staged. It has won its share of public patronage.

The Boston Howard Athenæum Star Specialty Company commence their holiday season here on Monday night.

The company consists of Conroy & Fox, Irish comedians; the Irwin Sisters, popular sketch artistes; Geo. Thatcher, the well known minstrel comedian; Wilton & More, horizontal bar performers; Wood & Shephard, the clever musical sketchers; "Dutch" Daly; Lottie Collins, vocalist; Mons. Brunin, French grotesque; Abachi & Mazus, Arab tumblers, and Mons. Francois de Blanche and M'lle de Blanche, magicians. The company is notedly a strong one, and the six artists mentioned last are on their first visit to this coast.

Baldwin Theatre.

J. C. Duff's Comic Opera Company have done well in "Paola," by the author of "Erminie," a charming opera that is having its first production here at the Baldwin this week.

Next week, a spectacular production of "The Queen's Mate," another new opera.

Orpheum Theatre

The Orpheum presents a star collection of Eastern specialty talent this week, fifteen first-class performers in a varied and entertaining programme.

The entertainment is an unusually strong and pleasing one, even for the Orpheum.

Herr John Plagemann, an eminent baseo cantante, made his debut Wednesday night, assisted by the Harmonic Singing Society, and proved himself to be a singer of fine quality.

The Ravell-Martinetta Pantomime of glorious memory and wonderful stage effects, "Sheep's Foot" will be the holiday entertainment at the Orpheum; produced in 3 acts and 15 tableaux, with a chorus of 40 voices and an auxiliary force of 100 people. Money has been spent lavishly on "Sheep's Foot," and it will be given with all its startling effects, prismatic fountains, beautiful transformation scenes, grand ballet etc., as presented in European productions.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The comedian and character actor from the Haverly Street Comedy Theatre, Chicago, Mr. F. E. Wallace, is in his last week in California here in the sensational drama of "The Boy Detective."

Mr. Wallace appears this week in the character of Lobster McMullen in the sensational drama of New York life, entitled "Nan, the News-Boy."

The drama is eventful in incident and action, and is well staged with good scenic effects.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Manager Morosco presents for his Christmas week's bill that strong, moral drama, so full of sensational and emotional scenes, "Ten Nights in a Bar Room," effectively cast and carefully staged. Extra care has been taken in its production.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis; Jessie Heiworth and Jennie Ripley, vocalists, and Thatcher & Drew are in this week's bill.

Montague appears this week as the Original Dude in the seashore comedy of "The Dear Boy," and in his screaming farce of "The Elopement," supported by the entire company.

Carroll & Lewis' performances sustains their reputation in artistic merit, and Montague's plays have the element of hilarity very prominent in them, the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness.

Harry Montague's "Burlesque Mikado," full of life, music and merriment, selected from Gilbert & Sullivan's "Mikado," and localized and specially arranged for a Christmas treat will be next week's feature here. Yank-Ho and the Circassian lady Omene will also add their inexplicable performances to the bill.

Extra matinee Christmas day.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

They have a laugh-provoking comedy on this week at the Cremorne, "The Four Shamrocks," all the company in the cast,

Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Sully & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others appear in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

The Cremorne's Christmas piece will be a very fine production of the burlesque, "Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden."

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Edna Earle, the popular lady vocalist, and Billy Do Ome and his clever trained dog, Josh, are new this week.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "A Rural Ramble," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Travers, J. Burns, Jennie Fowler, Blanche Long, Alice Dale, Helena Richman, John Gilmore and Billy De Ome.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

Four new stars at Meier's this week: Tom Carroll, the Delaport Sisters and Ada Brandon.

Pete Smith and Lottie Ellis, two popular and clever all around performers, have lately returned to Meier's.

The olio acts are Gottlob's "Euchre" and "Actor in Luck," and Smith and Ellis' and Carroll's specialties.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, J. D. Fox, Rosa Stange and others.

Bottle Meier's is the popular north-end resort. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horse-shoe gallery of larger houses.

THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

The Evening Post of Dec. 18th has these good words to say of the Grand:

While the new houses in this city were being built there were but few who ever thought of the Grand Opera House as a possible competitor. The unexpected, however, always happens, and the Grand Opera House has just taken unto itself a new lease of life, which promises to be permanent. The size of the house is enormous, and it is drawing patronage from all sides. Since George Osbourne went there it is almost a foregone conclusion that the Grand will take the lead in melodramatic entertainments.

Last night was the first of "The Great Metropolis." The house was simply packed from floor to roof, and the play was received throughout with enthusiasm. Usually this big over-grown looking house strikes a chill into the casual spectator. Last night, however, it was full of warmth and had a bright appearance. There were signs of live men being engaged in every department. What is more, they all pull together, and that is everything in an institution of this kind.

"The Great Metropolis" is a great play, and at the Grand it is played by the greatest stock company that has been seen in this city for years. Some may regret that George Osbourne did not assign himself a more prominent part, but on contemplating the amount of work he has to do as stage manager one is not surprised. The excellence of all the scenes is a tribute to his great skill in this department.

The individual members of the company were all excellent. Some, indeed, were a genuine surprise. Harry Bell, for instance, as the real estate broker, received rounds of applause and won himself favor from the first. E. J. Henley acted as only a long experienced, genuine actor can act, and came near getting the call of the evening. Will Morris is the very quintessence of a hero, while all the rest were well up in their parts.

Without any exaggeration we can predict that more people will be anxious to see "The Great Metropolis" than any melodrama that has been produced in San Francisco during the year. The bedrock prices of admission put this really great entertainment within the means of all.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

They had a great time at a Providence museum the other day. Two freaks ate the fat woman had a big turkey dinner. The fat woman broke through her chair and screamed herself, "but constantly kept on with her work." The freaks ate themselves sick, and a woman who appeared to be very much confused in the stage had her dress torn open, but they went on with the show all the same.

Billie Mack comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walderstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

William Lester, of Lester & Allen, was shot in Washington recently and seriously injured.

"A Castle in the Air" is the name of a new comic opera for De Wolf Hopper's Company.

Rufus Thompson, the venerable father of Denman Thompson (Uncle Josh Whitcomb), was lately married to Mrs. Sarah A. Walker, of Westminster, Vt. The bride is only 75 and the groom 83.

Booth and Modjeska rest Christmas and New Year's weeks, resuming their tour Jan. 6th in Providence, R. I.

"The Great Metropolis" drew nearly $7,000 in one week at the National Theatre, Philadelphia, where it was so successful that a return engagement has been booked for next season.

Mary Anderson is wintering at Nice. There is no present talk of her returning to the stage.

A dispatch from New Orleans announces the death in that city of David Bidwell, on the 18th, the most prominent theatrical manager in the South, and one of the oldest and best known managers in the Union.

The parties who play the wolves in the

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The German Theatre at Pesth, Hungary, was entirely destroyed by fire just before the time of opening the doors to the public last evening. Several firemen were injured by falling from the roof.

John Allen, one of San Francisco's pioneer leaders, now Myra Goodwin's musical director, fell from the leader's platform at Taunton, Mass., recently, and badly fractured his left wrist. He will enter a damage suit against the local manager.

Sadie McDonald has joined Charles Bowser's "Cheek" Co.

"My Jack," a melodrama produced in London this season, has its first presentation in America at the Grand Opera House, New York, December 23d. The cast will include J. H. Gilmour, Wilton Lackaye, W. J. Ferguson, Dan Leason, Russell Bassett, Katharine Rogers, Isabelle Everson and Emily Lytton. Manager T. Henry French promises entirely new and handsome scenery and accessories.

Messrs. Jefferson and Florence open in Toledo January 1st.

Joseph Anderson, the brother of "Our Mary" and the son-in-law of Lawrence Barrett, has decided to give up the stage. [He was never anything but an outside passenger on it.]

The success of "Shenandoah" in New York seems to be in process of duplication in Chicago. The play has met with such favor in the lake city that a contract has been made with Manager McVicker to play it for thirteen weeks next Summer in his theatre. With the success of "The Great Metropolis" added, we can realize that the American drama is on the top wave of popularity at present.

Ned Thayer does an admirable bit of character acting as Captain Carr in "The Great Metropolis."

Digby Bell is exceedingly funny as Sapolo in the first act of 'Paola."

Work on the new Tacoma Theatre is progressing rapidly and it will be ready for opening on Jan. 6th with Duff's Opera Company as the attraction.

Robert Buchanan's new drama, "Man and Wife," had its first production at the Criterion Theatre, London, on the 19th inst. Dispatches indicate that it is a literary play, but not a dramatic one; strong in diction and dialogue, but weak in plot, with scarcely enough incidents in it to hold it together unto the end. Miss Myra Kemble, an Australian actress, made her first appearance in London as the heroine of the play, and proved herself a most valuable addition to the list of London actresses. She has a fine stage presence, a musical and expressive voice, and great powers of sustained passion. She is favorably known in Australia, where she has achieved particular distinction in some of Buchanan's pieces, notably in "Joseph's Sweetheart."

A New York dispatch says that A. M. Palmer has completed arrangements with D'Oyley Carte by which he acquires control of Gilbert & Sullivan's new opera, "The Gondoliers." Palmer will probably produce the opera at either the Madison Square or Palmer's Theatre, though Carte's original intention may be carried out and the opera be given at the Park Theatre. The exact time of the production is not settled, but will not be far off. It is understood that Henderson, the Chicago manager, will have the rights of "The Gondoliers" for his section of the "West," and that Al Hayman will hold the Pacific Coast rights.

Alonzo E. Stoddard, the well known baritone, died on the 19th inst., at the Homeopathic Hospital, Boston. Heart failure, resulting in part from a severe attack of typhoid fever, was the cause of his death. He began his operatic career with the Emma Abbott Company, and in recent years gained high honors with the American and National opera organizations, as well as the Emma Juch Co., of which he was a member when taken ill.

In steps Mr. Octavus Cohen, of Charleston, S. C., already, and puts in a claim to being the "originator" of Gilbert & Sullivan's new opera. Mr. Octavus Cohen, of Charleston, S. C., claims that some months ago he wrote the libretta of a comic opera called "Niatrici," in which the two leading ideas were original. This, Mr. Cohen says, he sent to Sir Arthur Sullivan early last Summer, who courteously replied and declined to enter into any arrangement with him. Mr. Cohen now asserts that Gilbert & Sullivan's new comic opera, "The Gondoliers," embodies his original ideas and is a deliberate piracy. Mr. Octavus Cohen, of Charleston, S. C., is not taking an original method of seeking notoriety. It is an old dodge.

Col. T. Allston Brown, the veteran editor of the New York Clipper, now tarrying in this city with his successful dramatic venture, "Hans the Boatman," is in receipt of a New York letter stating that Lawrence Barrett's retirement from the stage is permanent, as far as this season goes; and that it was in compliance with the absolute command of his medical advisor that he cancelled all his dates, and would subject himself to the surgical operation—since undergone. Mr. Brown states the persons who have not seen Barrett since last year can have no idea of how greatly the disfigurement of his neck has become since then. His correspondent also writes that T. H. French has effected a combination for next season's campaign of Margaret Mather, Louis James and Wm. Terris, to be supported by a strong company.

"Mankind," the holiday piece for the Alcazar, a melodrama by Geo. Conquest and Paul Merritt, has made a hit at Chicago.

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Extra Matinees will be given on Christmas Day at all the Theatres.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

"Davy Crockett," next to "Uncle Tom's Cabin," the most successful play on the American stage, having been before the public for 17 years, has been the attraction this week, with Frank Mayo in his incomparable character of the backwoods' hero. For many years the public has recognized that Davy Crockett with his noble traits of character, with his touching love that reaches every heart, and his manly bearing and bravery is the very personification of romance, if Mr. Mayo has not realized it. The play is a poem of the heart, and will never grow old while Mayo remains to give it life.

Marie Burries plays Eleanor Vaughn charmingly, and with a decidedly strong mental impress. Dame Crockett, Little Bob, and particularly the Oscar Crompton of Edwin F. Mayo are effectively rendered.

—o—

The Bush's holiday attraction will be Gill & Fraser's diverting pantomimic burlesque, so successful in the East, "Spider and Fly." It is pronounced a great novelty in itself, and is full of novelties in the way of introduced amusing, interesting and first-class specialties.

Besides the burlesque and comedy company, the performance is illustrated by the following vaudeville and specialty artists: The operatic star, Bessie Cleveland; the charming vocalist, Hilda Thomas; the great Parisian dancing grotesques, Dorst & Oreste; the marvelous European gymnasts, the Dare Brothers; the popular dancers, Allen Sisters (Louise and Ray); the greatest of all funny clowns, Tommy Dare, and the famous pantomimists, Jas. R. Adams and August Siebrit.

The comedy-burlesque, "Spider and Fly," calls for twenty-six characters in its distribution besides the above mentioned specialists. It is actually a double bill, and comes here with all its Eastern stage garniture and appointments.

Seats now on sale.

Alcazar Theatre.

Mrs. Clayton's melodramatic success, "The World Against Her," with Buckley, Stockwell and Miss Ethel Brandon in the leading roles, for the first time Sunday night. It is a strong play and has an effective production in cast and appointments.

Ethel Brandon is notably strong in Madge Carrol, the woman who had "the world against her." Buckley gives his usual incisive work to James Carlton, and Stockwell has the audience at his back as the proprietor of a Punch and Judy show. He is great in it. The play is finely mounted, and the support is, as usual, competent, and carefully rendered.

"Manhind," a very strong melodrama, written by Paul Merritt and George Conquest, authors of "Youth" and "The World," two of the cleverest melodramatic writers in London, will be the Alcazar's holiday attraction. The central figure of the play is Daniel Grudge, of the firm of Grudge & Sharpley—a character-study—a picture of meanness and selfish wickedness worthy of the pen of a Dickens or the brush of a Hogarth. J. H. Stockwell who has assured himself a comedian of wide range of ability, will be seen for the first time in connection with the Alcazar in a part that, although exactly in his way, is entirely opposed to those he has hitherto essayed.

The scenic effects of "Manhind" are notable. Those in the second act are pronounced, and anything ever attempted on the local stage. The curtain rises and a vessel is seen in motion upon the waters, with the characters on board. During the action of the scene a fog rises and completely envelopes the stage for a moment and then slowly disappears. When the atmosphere is clear again the vessel is gone; nothing but wide expanse is seen of sea and sky. It will be a wonderful bit of stage realism, and with the different treatment it will always been characterized by liberality and judgment. The managers are determined that "Mankind" shall be no exception to the rule.

The scenic artists have been hard at work on the scenery, and it is certain that its scenic effects will excel anything ever seen at the Alcazar.

Grand Opera House.

The Grand's Holiday piece, "The Great Metropolis," a spectacular melodrama of New York life and characters, is a strong play by George Jessop and Ben Teal, two former residents of San Francisco, that has merit and money in it, both for managers and authors.

The sensational scenes of "The Great Metropolis" are the great light-house scene, the realistic life-saving station, the thrilling ship-wreck and rescue of passengers by the mortar projected life-line, the last being a grand scene, one of the best specimens of skill in stage-setting ever seen in San Francisco.

The whole stage of the Grand is utilized for the wreck scene. In the rear the stranded ship by the lightning's vivid flashes appears at intervals out of the surrounding darkness and storm with startling reality. All is excitement in front of the stage occupied by the life-savers. The mortar line is fired, and the survivors are brought from the wreck by aid of the life-line in regular life-saving station manner. The scene is one of the most exciting ones ever on our local boards. The whole production is a study in stage work, for which stage director George Osbourne, scenic artist John R. Wilkins, master mechanic Thomas Andrews and assistants deserve high praise.

The cast is not only very full, but very strong as well. It would take more space in our columns than we can grant to individualize the merits of the performances. Those who did so well in "Hands Across the Sea;" Wm. Morris, James J. Lent, E. N. Thayer, Lorimer Johnstone, Miss Isabel Morris and Miss Kate Chester strengthened their popularity by the good work they do in this play; and the new comers, Edwin J. Henley, a strong melodramatic actor; Harry Bell, a capital light comedian; Miss Mary Hampton, a pleasing ingenue; Miss Joan Sep, a character actress, and Miss Indalene Cotton as a waif of a boy, are already in the Grand's swim of popular favor.

"The Great Metropolis" is up for holiday run of crowded houses.

New California Theatre.

This week is the last of "Hans the Boatman" at the California, with Charles Arnold in the title role. Mr. Arnold is a sympathetic actor of the Joseph Emmet style, who has won high praise from the press everywhere. The play was written by Clay M. Greene, and abounds in touches of human nature and in sweet songs that appeal to the heart sympathies, and is American in theme and characters.

The company render effective support.

The play is interesting and very handsomely staged. It has won its share of public patronage.

The Boston Howard Atheræum Star Specialty Company commence their holiday season here on Monday night.

The company consists of Conroy & Fox, Irish comedians; the Irwin Sisters, popular sketch artistes; Geo. Thatcher, the well known minstrel comedian; Wilton & Mora, horizontal bar performers; Wood & Shephard, the clever musical sketchers; "Dutch" Daly; Lottie Collins, vocalist; Mons. Brunin, French grotesque; Abachi & Mazuz, Arab tumblers, and Mons. Francois de Blanche and M'lle de Blanche, magicians. The company is notedly a strong one, and the six artists mentioned last are on their first visit to this coast.

Orpheum Theatre

The Orpheum presents a star collection of Eastern specialty talent this week, fifteen first-class performers in a varied and entertaining programme.

The entertainment is an unusually strong and pleasing one, even for the Orpheum.

The Ravell-Martinetta Pantomime of glorious memory and wonderful stage effects, "Sheep's Foot" will be the holiday entertainment at the Orpheum; produced in 3 acts and 15 tableaux, with a chorus of 40 voices and an auxiliary force of 100 people. Money has been spent lavishly on "Sheep's Foot," and it will be given with all its startling effects, prismatic fountains, beautiful transformation scenes, grand ballet, etc., as presented in European productions.

Matinee Christmas.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The comedian and character actor from the Halsted Street Comedy Theatre, Chicago, Mr. F. K. Wallace, is in his last week in California here in the sensational drama of "The Boy Detective."

Mr. Wallace appears this week in the character of Lobster McMullen in the sensational drama of New York life, entitled "Nan, the News-Boy."

The drama is eventful in incident and action, and is well-staged with good scenic effects.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conclin, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Manager Morosco presents for his Christmas week's bill that strong, moral drama, so full of sensational and emotional scenes, "Ten Nights in a Bar Room," effectively cast and carefully staged. Extra care has been taken in its production.

Matinee Christmas Day.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Carroll & Lewis; Jessie Harworth and Jennie Ripley, vocalists, and Thatcher & Drew are in this week's bill.

Montague appears this week as the Original Dude in the seashore comedy of "The Dear Boys." Montague's plays have the element of hilarity very prominent in them, the ring of his quick observation and dramatic cleverness.

Harry Montague's "Burlesque Mikado," full of life, music and merriment, selected from Gilbert & Sullivan's "Mikado," and localized and specially arranged for a Christmas treat will be next week's feature here. Yank-Ho and the Circassian lady Omene will also add their inexplicable performances to the bill.

Extra matinee Christmas day.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

They have a laugh-provoking comedy on this week at the Cremorne, "The Four Shamrocks," all the company in the cast,

Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Sully & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Clarice West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Seay, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others appear in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

The Cremorne's Christmas piece will be a very fine production of the burlesque, "Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden."

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Edna Earle, the popular lady vocalist, and Billy Do Ome and his clever trained dog, Josh, are new this week.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "A Rural Ramble," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Travers, J. Burns, Jennie Fowler, Blanche Long, Alice Dale, Helena Richman, John Gilmore and Billy De Ome.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

Four new stars at Meier's this week: Tom Carroll the Delsport Sisters and Ada Brandon.

Pete Smith and Lottie Ellis, two popular and clever all around performers, have lately returned to Meier's.

The olio acts are Gottlob's "Euchre" and "Actor in Luck," and Smith and Ellis' and Carroll's specialties.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, J. D. Fox, Rosa Stange and others.

Bottle Meier's is the popular north-end resort. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horse-shoe gallery of

Eureka Music Hall

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Prof. Paul, the ventriloquean comedian, and Soldene, burlesque artiste, are new here.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell Netta Latelle, Addie Bennett, Mamie Woods, Billy Akarman, Pearl Iola and Charley Morrell make up the company.

The opening is H. M. S. Pinafore first-part of choice music, and the bill is full of acts and specialties, including the can-can.

Extra Christmas matinee.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

If you are troubled with bald spots, or falling out of hair, by all means use Diefenbacher's Hair Tonic. It is invaluable. Try it and be convinced.

DR. HENLEY'S REMEDIES.—"Nothing like success" is a general truth, but applied to the phenomenal success of Henley's remedies, especially his 1XL Tamarack, the saying has peculiar force. The sale of these beneficial preparations is enormous throughout the United States, and gratifying to know that it is fast becoming a standard remedy in the principal cities of Europe.

All pipe smokers agree there is nothing like "Seal of North Carolina Plug Cut."

Pauline Hall has taken such good care of her salary and perquisites during the past few years that she is reputed to be the wealthiest comic-opera prima donna in this country.

Handsome, convenient, healthy, light, cool, and airy in summer, warm and cheaply heated in winter. Tells intending builders of homes what to do, and warns them what not to do. Describes houses adopted to all climates. $1.00 by mail. NATIONAL ARCHITECTS UNION, 927 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

The Evening Post of Dec. 18th has these good words to say of the Grand:

While the new houses in this city were being built there were but few who ever thought of the Grand Opera House as a possible competitor. The unexpected, however, always happens, and the Grand Opera House has just taken unto itself a new lease of life, which promises to be permanent. The size of the house is enormous, and it is drawing patronage from all sides. Since George Osbourne went there it is almost a foregone conclusion that the Grand will take the lead in metropolitan entertainments.

Last night was the first of "The Great Metropolis." The house was simply packed from floor to roof, and the play was received throughout with enthusiasm. Usually this big, over-grown looking house strikes a chill into the casual spectator. Last night, however, it was full of warmth and had a bright appearance. There were signs of live men being engaged in every department. What is more, they all pull together, and that is everything in an institution of this kind.

"The Great Metropolis" is a great play, and at the Grand it is played by the greatest stock company that has been seen in this city for years. Some may regret that George Osbourne did not assign himself a more prominent part, but on contemplating the amount of work he has to do as stage manager one is not surprised. The excellence of all the scenes is a tribute to his great skill in this department.

The individual members of the company were all excellent. Some, indeed, were a genuine surprise. Harry Bell, for instance, as the real estate broker, received rounds of applause and won himself favor from the first. E. J. Henley acted as only a long experienced, genuine actor can act, and came near getting the call of the evening. Will Morris is the very quintessence of a hero, while all the rest were well up in their parts.

Without any exaggeration we can predict that more people will be anxious to see "The Great Metropolis" than any melodrama that has been produced in San Francisco during the year. The bedrock prices of admission put this really great entertainment within the means of all.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

They had a great time at a Providence museum the other day. Two freaks and the fat woman had a big turkey dinner. The fat woman broke through her chair and sprained herself, "but courageously kept on with her work." The freaks ate themselves sick, and a woman who appeared in a bayonet combat on the stage had her cheek laid open, but they went on with the show all the same.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

William Lester, of Lester & Allen, was shot in Washington recently and seriously injured.

"A Castle in the Air" is the name of a new comic opera for De Wolf Hopper's Company.

Rufus Thompson, the venerable father of Denman Thompson (Uncle Josh Whitcomb), was lately married to Mrs. Sarah A. Walker, of Westminster, Vt. The bride is only 75 and the groom 83

Booth and Modjeska rest Christmas and New Year's weeks, resuming their tour Jan. 6th in Providence, R. I.

"The Great Metropolis" drew nearly $7,000 in one week at the National Theatre, Philadelphia, where it was so successful that a return engagement has been booked for next season.

A dispatch from New Orleans announces the death in that city of David Bidwell, on the 18th, the most prominent theatrical manager in the South, and one of the oldest and best known managers in the Union.

"Mankind," the holiday piece for the Alcazar, a melodrama by Geo. Conquest and Paul Merritt, has made a hit at Chi-

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The holiday attractions of all the principal theatres in San Francisco can be found advertised in FIGARO, with full programmes, cast and synopsis. They present a varied and inviting field of amusements for the pleasure seekers.

The orchestra was routed out of their box on Sunday night to make room for a fraction of the overflow at the Grand Opera House. "Standing Room" was hung out long before the curtain rose.

Frederick Rust, the business manager for the Nellie McHenry troupe, who was injured in the recent Allen House fire at New Orleans, died from his injuries.

"The Senator," Wm. H. Crane's new play by D. D. Lloyd and Sidney Rosenfeldt, is described as being a comedy in the true sense of the term, but of such skillful construction that it moves with a briskness and constancy of action unusual in pieces which hide, as does this, a serious motive behind their whimsical humor. The character of the Senator, the chief among the many cleverly outlined sketches of Washington society, is said to be portrayed by Mr. Crane with realistic fidelity as well as unctuous humor.

Otto Hegner, the boy prodigy pianist will appear at the Baldwin in a series of concerts shortly.

Leavitt's "Spider and Fly" made a great hit throughout the Northwestern circuit.

Paul Potter and Russell, the author and manager of "The City Directory," have been sued by a man named Frederick L. Grunewald for an accounting, claiming that he is the author of the play; that he adapted it from "Preh Schultze," a German farce by Salinger; that he submitted it to Potter, who rejected it; and that he was surprised to find the identical play in Potter's creation, "The City Directory." The courts have not yet decided the question.

John Allen, one of San Francisco's pioneer leaders, now Myra Goodwin's musical director, fell from the leader's platform at Taunton, Mass., recently, and badly fractured his left wrist. He will enter a damage suit against the local manager.

Sadie McDonald has joined Charles Bowser's "Cheek" Co.

"My Jack," a melodrama produced in London this season, has its first presentation in America at the Grand Opera House, New York, December 23d. The cast will include J. H. Gilmour, Wilton Lackaye, W. J. Ferguson, Dan Leason, Russell Bassett, Katharine Rogers, Isabelle Everson and Emily Lytton. Manager T. Henry French promises entirely new and handsome scenery and accessories.

Joseph Anderson, the brother of "Our Mary" and the son-in-law of Lawrence Barrett, has decided to give up the stage. [He was never anything but an outside passenger on it.]

The success of "Shenandoah" in New York seems to be in process of duplication in Chicago. The play has met with such favor in the lake city that a contract has been made with Manager McVicker to play it for thirteen weeks next Summer in his theatre. With the success of "The Great Metropolis" added, we can realize that the American drama is on the top wave of popularity at present.

Ned Thayer does an admirable bit of character acting as Captain Carr in "The Great Metropolis."

The German Theatre at Pesth, Hungary, was entirely destroyed by fire just before the time of opening the doors to the public last evening. Several firemen were injured by falling from the roof.

Robert Buchanan's new drama, "Man and Wife," had its first production at the Criterion Theatre, London, on the 19th inst. Dispatches indicate that it is a literary play, but not a dramatic one; strong in diction and dialogue, but weak in plot, with scarcely enough incidents in it to hold it together unto the end. Miss Myra Kemble, an Australian actress, made her first appearance in London as the heroine of the play, and proved herself a most valuable addition to the list of London actresses. She has a a fine stage presence, a musical and expressive voice, and great powers of sustained passion. She is favorably known in Australia, where she has achieved particular distinction in some of Buchanan's pieces, notably in "Joseph's Sweetheart."

A New York dispatch says that A. M. Palmer has completed arrangements with D'Oyley Carte by which he acquires control of Gilbert & Sullivan's new opera, "The Gondoliers." Palmer will probably produce the opera at either the Madison Square or Palmer's Theatre, though Carte's original intention may be carried out and the opera be given at the Park Theatre. The exact time of the production is not settled, but will not be far off. It is understood that Henderson, the Chicago manager, will have the rights of "The Gondoliers" for his section of the "West," and that Al Hayman will hold the Pacific Coast rights.

Col. T. Allston Brown, the veteran editor of the New York Clipper, now tarrying in this city with his successful dramatic venture, "Hans the Boatman," is in receipt of a New York letter stating that Lawrence Barrett's retirement from the stage is permanent, as far as this season goes; and that it was in compliance with the absolute command of his medical advisor that he cancelled all his dates, and would subject himself to the surgical operation—since undergone. Mr. Brown states the persons who have not seen Barrett since last year can have no idea of how greatly the disfigurement of his neck has become since then. His

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and only paper that publishes their full programmes

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Extra Matinees will be given on Christmas Day at all the Theatres.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

The Bush's holiday attraction will be Gill & Fraser's diverting pantomimic burlesque, so successful in the East, "Spider and Fly." It is pronounced a great novelty in itself, and is full of novelties in the way of introduced amusing, interesting and first-class specialties.

Besides the burlesque and comedy company, the performance is illustrated by the following vaudeville and specialty artists: The operatic star, Bessie Cleveland; the charming vocalist, Hilda Thomas; the great Parisian dancing grotesques, Dorst & Oreste; the marvelous European gymnasts, the Dare Brothers; the popular dancers, Allen Sisters (Louise and Ray); the greatest of all funny clowns, Tommy Dare, and the famous pantomimists, Jas. R. Adams and August Siegrist.

The comedy-burlesque, "Spider and Fly," calls for twenty-one characters in its distribution besides the above-mentioned specialties. It is actually a double bill, and comes here with all its Eastern stage garniture and appointments.

Seats on sale for the week.

Alcazar Theatre.

"Mankind," a very strong melodrama, written by Paul Merritt and George Conquest, authors of "Youth" and "The World," two of the cleverest melodramatic writers in London, will be the Alcazar's holiday attraction. The central figure of the play is Daniel Groodge, of the firm of Groodge & Sharpley—a centenarian—a picture of meanness and selfish wickedness worthy of the pen of a Dickens or the brush of a Hogarth. L. R. Stockwell, who has proved himself a comedian of wide range of ability, will be seen for the first time since his connection with the Alcazar in a part that, although exactly in his way, is entirely opposed to the sympathies of his audiences.

The scenic effects of "Mankind" are notable. There is one scene in it that is promised to excel anything ever attempted on the local stage. The curtain rises and a vessel is seen in motion upon the waters, with the characters on board. During the action of the scene a fog rises and completely envelopes the stage for a moment and then slowly disappears. When the atmosphere is clear again the vessel is gone; nothing but a wide expanse is seen of sea and sky. It will be a wonderful bit of stage realism, and with the efficient treatment it will receive at the Alcazar is sure to prove a success. The mounting of plays at the Alcazar has always been characterized by liberality and judgment. The managers are determined that "Mankind" shall be no exception to the rule.

The scenic artists have been hard at work on the scenery, and it is certain that its scenic effects will excel anything ever seen at the Alcazar.

Grand Opera House.

The Grand's Holiday piece, "The Great Metropolis," a spectacular melodrama of New York life and characters, is a strong play by George Jessop and Ben Teal, two former residents of San Francisco, that has merit and money in it, both for managers and authors.

The sensational scenes of "The Great Metropolis" are the great light-house scene, the realistic life-saving station, the thrilling shipwreck and rescue of passengers by the mortar projected lifeline, the last being a grand scene, one of the best specimens of skill in stage-setting ever seen in San Francisco.

The whole stage of the Grand is utilized for the wreck scene. In the rear the stranded ship by the lighthouse's vivid flashes appears at intervals out of the surrounding darkness and storm with startling reality. All is excitement in front of the stage occupied by the life-savers. The mortar line is fired, and the survivors are brought from the wreck by aid of the life-line in regular life-saving station manner. The scene is one of the most exciting ones ever on our local boards. The whole production is a study in stage work, for which praise director George Osbourne, scenic artist John R. Wilkins, master mechanic Thomas Andrews and assistants deserve high praise.

The cast is not only very full, but very strong as well. It would take more space in our columns than we can grant to individualize the merits of the performances. Those who did so well in "Hands Across the Sea;" Wm Morris, James J. Lent, E. N. Thayer, Lorimer Johnstone, Miss Isabel Morris and Miss Kate Chester strengthened their popularity by the good work they do in this play; and the new comers, Edwin J. Henley, a strong melodramatic actor; Harry Bell, a capital light comedian; Miss Mary Hampton, a pleasing ingenue; Miss Joan Sep, a character actress, and Miss Indalene Cotton as a waif of a boy, are already in the Grand's swim of popular favor.

"The Great Metropolis" is up for holiday run of crowded houses.

New California Theatre.

The Boston Howard Athenæum Star Specialty Company commence their holiday season here this week.

The company consists of Conroy & Fox, Irish comedians; the Irwin Sisters, popular sketch artistes; Geo. Thatcher, the well known minstrel comedian; Wilton & Mora, horizontal bar performers; Wood & Shephard, the clever musical sketchers; "Dutch" Daly; Lottie Collins, vocalist; Mons. Brunin, French grotesque; Abachi & Mazur, Arab tumblers, and Mons. Francois de Blanche and M'lle de Blanche, magicians. The company is notedly a strong one, and the six artists mentioned last are on their first visit to this coast.

Orpheum Theatre

The Ravell-Martinetta Pantomime of glorious memory and wonderful stage effects, "Sheep's Foot" will be the holiday entertainment at the Orpheum; produced in 3 acts and 15 tableaux, with a chorus of 40 voices and an auxiliary force of 100 people. Money has been spent lavishly on "Sheep's Foot," and it will be given with all its startling effects, prismatic fountains, beautiful transformation scenes, grand ballet, etc., as presented in European productions.

Matinee Christmas.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Manager Morosco presents for his Christmas week's bill that strong, moral drama, so full of sensational and emotional scenes, "Ten Nights in a Bar Room," effectively cast and carefully staged. Extra care has been taken in its production.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinee Christmas Day.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Yank-Hoe and Omene; Jessie Herworth and Jennie Ripley, vocalists, and Thatcher & Drew are in this week's bill.

Harry Montague's "Burlesque Mikado," full of life, music and merriment, adapted from Gilbert & Sullivan's "Mikado," and localized and specially arranged for a Christmas treat will be this week's feature here. Yank-Ho and the Circassian lady Omene will also add their inexplicable performances to the bill.

Extra matinee Christmas day.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The Cremorne's Christmas piece is a very fine production of the burlesque, "Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden," with fine new scenery, elegant costumes and surprising mechanical effects.

Gilbert & Goldie, Franke & Marion, Sully & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others appear in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Kitty Lorraine, a very pleasing actress and vocalist is new.

Edna, Earle, the popular lady vocalist, and Billy De Ome and his clever trained dog, Josh, are late additions.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "The Mountain Musicians," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Travers, J. Burne, Kitty Lorraine, Blanche Long, Helena Richman, John Gilmore and Billy De Ome.

The afterpiece is "New Years Calls"—very seasonable.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

Three new stars at Meier's this week: Tom Carroll, Annie Gardner and Ada Brandon.

Pete Smith and Lottie Ellis, two popular and clever all around performers, have lately returned to Meier's.

The bill opens with Fox's stirring act of "A Fireman's Life," with a big fire scene and all the company in the cast.

The olio acts: "The Lost Fortune," "Christmas Presents" and Smith and Ellis' and Carroll's specialties.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, J. D. Fox, Rosa Stange and others.

Bottle Meier's is the popular north-end resort. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horse-shoe gallery of larger houses.

Extra matinee Christmas.

Family Matinee every Sunday.

Eureka Music Hall

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

John Merritt, character actor, and Soldene, burlesque artiste, are new here.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell Netta Latelle, Addie Bennett, Mamie Woods, Billy Akarman, Pearl Iola and Charley Morrell make up the company.

The opening is Female Boarding School, with choice music, and the bill is full of acts and specialties, including the can-can.

Extra Christmas matinee.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

The Colusa Herald says the churches of Arbuckle were left open during the late storm (flood?) so as to provide shelter for stray pigs, cattle and poultry from the inclement weather. That was genuine missionary work.

Alonzo E. Stoddard, the well known baritone, died on the 19th inst., at the Homeopathic Hospital, Boston. Heart failure, resulting in part from a severe attack of typhoid fever, was the cause of his death. He began his opera ic career with the Emma Abbott Company, and in recent years gained high honors with the American and National opera organizations, as well as the Emma Juch Co., of which he was a member when taken ill.

Work on the new Tacoma Theatre is progressing rapidly and it will be ready for opening on Jan. 6th with Duff's Opera Company as the attraction.

Orchestra Leader William Dietrich has obtained judgment against Clara Louise Kellogg for $768 50, which he claimed for unpaid salary.

Helen Bancroft, one of the most attractive women on the stage, has become a member of the company supporting Miss Rose Coghlan.

Kathryn Kidder is to star next year in a play by Nelson Wheatcroft.

Frank Evans is going to try it once more with "The Galley Slave." He has engaged in suppport Jeffreys-Lewis, Eva Clayton, Gussie De Forrest, Ruth Hamilton, Theodore Hamilton, Hudson Liston, Frank Roberts, James Bevins, John Walsh and Fred Lawrence. Andy McKay is manager and E. M. Kayne treasurer.

Barton Hill and Fred Ross are members of the Marie Wainwright Co. at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, N. Y.

Charles H. Hoyt intends to produce his latest play, "A Texas Steer," for a single week before the close of the present season. This will be done merely with the idea of giving the "Steer" a send-off, and testing its worth. After it has been played seven times it will be laid to one side and largely re-written for next Autumn.

AN OPERA BOUFFE HIT.

Dispatches from Paris of December 18th recount the great success at the Bouffes Parisiennes of Messager's three-act opera, "Le Mari de la Reine," produced for the first time that evening. The plot is wild and extravagant. The scene is laid in Central Asia, in the land of the Khokistanians, but the motive of the operetta is evidently very catching and effective. The authors of the libretto, Grenet Jancourt and Octave Fradelli, appear to have made it merry with many effervescent little bits of purely Parisian wit, repartee and double entente, and Messager's music was very enthusiastically applauded. It is tuneful and charming. The Parisians seem to have been delightfully enthused over the birth of an opera bouffe at the Parisiennes of the Offenbach kind, bright, witty and vivacious. Who will get it for the American market?

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

The members of Herrmann's variety troupe, headed by the moral Gus Williams, protested that if the Gaiety dancers were restored to the programme they would quit in a body. The Gaiety dancers are a long skirted ballet. Where does the objection come in?

The Kansas City Star says of the decline of negro minstrelsy: "Perhaps the attempt to raise it above the natural level of plantation life strangled it. To turn a roustabout into a dancing master and a cotton field negro into an operatic tenor was to invite disaster. Ambition and pretension were the evil geniuses of minstrelsy."

A theatrical paper takes notice of the death of Jefferson Davis because he was a celebrated female impersonator.

They had a great time at a Providence museum the other day, Two freaks and the fat woman had a big turkey dinner. The fat woman broke through her chair and sprained herself, "but courageously kept on with her work." The freaks ate themselves sick, and a woman who appeared in a bayonet combat on the stage had her cheek laid open, but they went on with the show all the same.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

William Lester, of Lester & Allen, was shot in Washington recently and seriously injured.

"A Castle in the Air" is the name of a new comic opera for De Wolf Hopper's Company.

Rufus Thompson, the venerable father of Denman Thompson (Uncle Josh Whitcomb), was lately married to Mrs. Sarah A. Walker, of Westminster, Vt. The bride is only 75 and the groom 83

Booth and Modjeska rest Christmas and New Year's weeks, resuming their tour Jan. 6th in Providence, R. I.

"The Great Metropolis" drew nearly $7,000 in one week at the National Theatre, Philadelphia, where it was so successful that a return engagement has been booked for next season.

A dispatch from New Orleans announces the death in that city of David Bidwell, on the 18th, the most prominent theatrical manager in the South, and one of the oldest and best known managers in the Union.

"Mankind," the holiday piece for the Alcazar, a melodrama by Geo. Conquest and Paul Merritt, has made a hit at Chicago.

Barton Hill and Fred Ross are members of the Marie Wainwright Co. at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, N. Y.

A New York dispatch says that A. M. Palmer has completed arrangements with D'Oyley Carte by which he acquires control of Gilbert & Sullivan's new opera, "The Gondoliers." Palmer will probably produce the opera at either the Madison Square or Palmer's Theatre, though Carte's original intention may be carried out and the opera be given at the Park Theatre. The exact time of the production is not settled, but will not be far off. It is understood that Henderson, the Chicago manager, will have the rights of "The Gondoliers" for his section of the "West," and that Al Hayman will hold the Pacific Coast rights.

The success of "Shenandoah" in New York seems to be in process of duplication in Chicago. The play has met with such favor in the lake city that a contract has been made with Manager McVicker to play it for thirteen weeks next Summer in his theatre. With the success of "The Great Metropolis" added, we can realize that the American drama is on the top wave of popularity at present.

Ned Thayer does an admirable bit of character acting as Captain Carr in "The Great Metropolis."

John Allen, one of San Francisco's pioneer leaders, now Myra Goodwin's musical director, fell from the leader's platform at Taunton, Mass., recently.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The Campobello Opera Company has hove up the operatic sponge and given up the unequal fight at the Bijou. It was knocked out by bad business, and will not appear in the operatic ring any more.

"Jules Levy, the cornet player, is having trouble with his company because he will allow nobody to take encores but himself." That's so like the dear fellow.

Louise Dillon, who deserted "The Wife" Company while in St. Louis on account of ill health, is now Mrs. Henry G. Chapman, and has retired from the stage. She is one of the brightest of ingenue actresses.

Marie Gilchrist, well known as a dancer on the variety stage, died in New York December 9th at her residence, 183 Third avenue. She was a graduate of the London music halls, and has been for several seasons with Danier's Humpty Dumpty Company in this country.

Manager M. B. Leavitt has returned from his run Northward to Portland, and reports that the weather is decidedly moist there, even for Oregon climate.

The Handel and Haydn Society will give Handel's grand oratorio of "The Messiah" at Mechanics' Pavilion on Friday evening under the direction of H. J. Stewart, assisted by the following artists: Mme. Sanderini, soprano; Miss Mary Barnard, contralto; Mr. Alfred Wilkie, tenor; Mr. J. C. Hughes, bass, and a chorus of 400 voices. The building will be closed in and made warm. A large attendance is assured.

A dispatch from Portland of the 23d states that John Williams, of the "Peck's Bad Boy" Company, arrived there from Tacoma and reports that E. J. Jewell, one of the managers of the Essie Tittel Company, has been missing for the past ten days. He is supposed to have been drowned. Jewell up to the last few months resided in San Francisco.

Mary Anderson is reported to have so far recovered from her recent illness as to be making plans for the production of "The Tempest," with Weldon Grossmith of "Pantomime Rehearsal" fame as Caliban.

Francesco Tamagno, the robusto tenor of the Patti Opera Company, is a big fellow six feet tall and well proportioned. He can roll out high B flats and C naturals with a fine volume of tone and apparently with easy command of these extreme notes.

Boston's theatrical critics rate Mr. Kendal as "not any better than a first class walking gentleman," and Mrs Kendal is "not so good or so artistic as either Agnes Booth or Annie Clark."

"The Night Maloney Landed in New York" is the latest catchy song in Gotham, and is hummed and whistled pretty generally everywhere.

The holiday attractions of all the principal theatres in San Francisco can be found advertised in FIGARO, with full programmes, cast and synopsis. They present a varied and inviting field of amusements for the pleasure seekers.

The orchestra was routed out of their box on Sunday night to make room for a fraction of the overflow at the Grand Opera House. "Standing Room" was hung out long before the curtain rose.

Frederick Rust, the business manager for the Nellie McHenry troupe, who was injured in the recent Allen House fire at New Orleans, died from his injuries.

"The Senator," Wm. H. Crane's new play by D. D. Lloyd and Sidney Rosenfeldt, is described as being a comedy in the true sense of the term, but of such skillful construction that it moves with a briskness and constancy of action unusual in pieces which hide, as does this, a serious motive behind their whimsical humor. The character of the Senator, the chief among the many cleverly outlined sketches of Washington society, is said to be portrayed by Mr. Crane with realistic fidelity as well as unctuous humor.

Otto Hegner, the boy prodigy pianist will appear at the Baldwin in a series of concerts shortly.

Leavitt's "Spider and Fly" made a great hit throughout the Northwestern circuit.

Sadie McDonald has joined Charles Bowser's "Cheek" Co.

"My Jack," a melodrama produced in London this season, has its first presentation in America at the Grand Opera House, New York, December 23d. The cast will include J. H. Gilmour, Wilton Lackaye, W. J. Ferguson, Dan Leason, Russell Bassett, Katharine Rogers, Isabelle Everson and Emily Lytton. Manager T. Henry French promises entirely new and handsome scenery and accessories.

Joseph Anderson, the brother of "Our Mary" and the son-in-law of Lawrence Barrett, has decided to give up the stage. [He was never anything but an outside passenger on it.]

Work on the new Tacoma Theatre is progressing rapidly and it will be ready for opening on Jan. 6th with Duff's Opera Company as the attraction.

Orchestra Leader William Dietrich has obtained judgment against Clara Louise Kellogg for $768 50, which he claimed for unpaid salary.

Helen Bancroft, one of the most attractive women on the stage, has become a member of the company supporting Miss Rose Coghlan.

Kathryn Kidder is to star next year in a play by Nelson Wheatcroft.

Frank Evans is going to try it once more with "The Galley Slave." He has engaged in suppport Jeffreys-Lewis, Eva Clayton, Gussie De Forrest, Ruth Hamilton, Theodore Hamilton, Hudson Liston, Frank Roberts, James Perkins, Harry Lee, Frank Roberts, Jr., Miss Lillian Lee, Miss Ethel Lee, Miss Ethel Lee, Miss Ethel

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Extra Matinees will be given on Christmas Day at all the Theatres.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

The Bush's holiday attraction is Fraser & Gill's diverting pantomimic burlesque, so successful in the East, "Spider and Fly." It is really a great novelty in itself, and is full of novelties in the way of introduced amusing, interesting and first-class specialties.

Besides the burlesque and comedy company, the performance is illustrated by the following vaudeville and specialty artists: The operatic star, Bessie Cleveland; the charming vocalist, Hilda Thomas; the great Parisian dancing grotesques, Dorst & Oreste; the marvelous European gymnaste, the Dare Brothers; the popular dancers, Allen Sisters (Louise and Ray); the greatest of all funny clowns, Tommy Dare, and the famous pantomimists, Jas. R. Adams and August Siegrist.

The prologue introduces the mythological characters of the piece, representing Progress, Knowledge and Industry on the one hand, taken respectively by Bessie Cleveland, Marguerite Wood and Lulu Reddan; and Anarchy, Ignorance and Idleness on the other, personated by Ada Dare, Lida Leah and Louise Allen, in an unequal war for power. The dialogue is humorous and pungent with hits of the day. Three fine scenes are displayed in the prologue, each disappearing as if by magic in the files as its successor appears. The last scene represents Progress producing a tableau of triumph to Anarchis, a magnificent view of Brooklyn Bridge as the result of her work, aided by Knowledge and Industry. The prologue closes with a handsome Ballet of the Nations with the principals richly costumed, each in national colors.

The first act is given up mostly to pantomimic fun, and Jas. R. Adams, Thos. S. Dare do inconceivable things in mirth-making. It winds up with a big scene in Sandi's grocery store, in which Sam. Ryan as the policeman and all the company participate.

In the second act are introduced the remarkably clever specialties that adorn the play: Bessie Cleveland's fine vocalisms; Hilda Thomas' admirable character song medley, that deserves its encores; Louise Allen's long-skirt gaiety dance; the pretty Calesthenic Exercises by ballet; specialties by Ryan and E. Edwards, the latter a very humorous and clever monologist; a finished and graceful Pas de duc by Mons. Oreste and M'lle Dorste; and the wonderful horizontal bar-act of the Dares, Thos. S. and Henry T., the originals, the cleverest and most difficult exhibition of bar gymnastics on the stage. There is no one that can compare with the clowning of Tommy Dare in this act.

The features of the last act are the duel in the snow, a remarkable scene copyrighted by Thos. S. Dare, the gathering up of the spider webs of the story, the climax, the transformation scene and grand march of Civilization's troops.

The comedy-burlesque, "Spider and Fly," calls for twenty-one characters in its distribution besides the above mentioned specialties. It is actually a double bill, and comes here with all its Eastern stage garniture and appointments. It is a thoroughly good holiday entertainment, admirably arranged and managed, and entertaining and humorous. It is up for a run.

Seats on sale for next week.

Alcazar Theatre.

"Mankind," a very strong melodrama, written by Paul Merritt and George Conquest, authors of "Youth" and "The World," two of the cleverest melodramatic writers in London, will be the Alcazar's holiday attraction. The central figure of the play is Daniel Groodge, of the firm of Groodge & Sharpley—a centenarian—a picture of meanness and selfish wickedness worthy of the pen of a Dickens or the brush of a Hogarth. L. R. Stockwell, who has proved himself a comedian of wide range of ability, is seen for the first time since his connection with the Alcazar in a part that, although exactly in his way, is entirely opposed to the sympathies of his audiences.

It is cast in Groodge's lines to overhear his partner scheming with his son to kill him for his money by poisoning. He comes back and pretends feeling for his partner, proposes to buy him out and gets him to sign a document. While the partner is writing he steals up behind him and strangles him. It is made the scene of the piece in Stockwell's ands. He sustains the character all through with remarkable skill. In spite of his naturally broadly comic personality he makes the deep craft and the heartlessness of old Groodge patent to the audience, and his little touches of humor relieve the hardness of the character and make it all the more natural. He never did a better piece of acting in his life.

E. J. Buckley, Miss Ethel Brandon, John Jack, the Coopers, Jean Clara Walters, Geo. H. Wood and Fanny Young in comedy parts, do good work in the melodrama; in fact the support throughout is strong.

The scenic effects of "Mankind" are notable There is one scene in it that is as effective as anything ever attempted on the local stage. The curtain rises and a vessel is seen in motion upon the waters, with the characters on board. During the action of the scene a fog rises and completely envelopes the stage for a moment and then slowly disappears. When the atmosphere is clear again the vessel is gone; nothing but a wide expanse is seen of sea and sky. It is a wonderful bit of stage realism, and with the efficient treatment it has received at the Alcazar is sure to prove a success. The mounting of plays at the Alcazar has always been characterized by liberality and judgment. The managers have made "Mankind" notably so.

Grand Opera House.

The Grand's Holiday piece, "The Great Metropolis," a spectacular melodrama of New York life and characters, is a strong play by George Jessop and Ben Teal, two former residents of San Francisco, that has merit and money in it, both for managers and authors.

The sensational scenes of "The Great Metropolis" are the great light-house scene, the realistic life-saving station, the thrilling shipwreck and rescue of passengers by the mortar projected life-line, the last being a grand scene, one of the best specimens of skill in stage-setting ever seen in San Francisco.

The whole stage of the Grand is utilized for the wreck scene. In the rear the stranded ship by the lightning's vivid flashes appears at intervals out of the surrounding darkness and storm with startling reality. All is excitement in front of the stage occupied by the life-savers. The mortar line is fired, and the survivors are brought from the wreck by aid of the life-line in regular life-saving station manner. The scene is one of the most exciting ones ever on our local boards. The whole production is a study in stage work, for which stage director George Osbourne, scenic artist John R. Wilkins, master mechanic Thomas Andrews and assistants deserve high praise.

The cast is not only very full, but very strong as well. It would take more space in our columns than we can grant to individualize the merits of the performances. Those who did so well in "Hands Across the Sea;" Wm Morris, James J. Lent, E. N. Thayer, Lorimer Johnstone, Miss Isabel Morris and Miss Kate Chester strengthened their popularity by the good work they do in this play; and the new comers, Edwin J. Henley, a strong melodramatic actor; Harry Bell, a capital light comedian; Miss Mary Hampton, a pleasing ingenue; Miss Joan Sep, a character actress, and Miss Indalene Cotton as a waif of a boy, are already in the Grand's swim of popular favor.

"The Great Metropolis" is up for holiday run of crowded houses.

New California Theatre.

The Boston Howard Atheræum Star Specialty Company commence their holiday season here this week.

The company consists of Conroy & Fox, Irish comedians; the Irwin Sisters, popular sketch artistes; Geo. Thatcher, the well known minstrel comedian; Wilton & Mora, horizontal bar performers; Wood & Shephard, the clever musical sketchers; "Dutch" Daly; Lottie Collins, vocalist; Mons. Brunin, French grotesque; Abachi & Mazuz, Arab tumblers, and Mons. Francois de Blanche and M'lle de Blanche, magicians. The company is notedly a strong one, and the six artists mentioned last are on their first visit to this coast.

Conroy & Fox are clever Irish comedians; those well-known favorites, the Irwins, Geo. Thatcher and Wood & Shephard sustain their popularity and need no brush; "Dutch" Daly is clever; Wilton & Mora do a dashing horizontal bar-act; the Arab tumblers, Abachi & Mazuz, are wonderful gymnasts; Mons. Brunin is novel and grotesque in his song and dance, and the De Blanches explain to the audience many of the tricks of the magician's art.

The reputation of the "Atheræum's" constellations is well borne out by this company.

Orpheum Theatre

The Ravell-Martinetta Pantomime of glorious memory and wonderful stage effects, "Sheep's Foot" will be the holiday entertainment at the Orpheum; produced in 3 acts and 15 tableaux, with a chorus of 40 voices and an auxiliary force of 100 people. Money has been spent lavishly on "Sheep's Foot," and it will be given with all its startling effects, prismatic fountains, beautiful transformation scenes, grand ballet, etc., as presented in European productions.

Matinee Christmas.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Dashway, of Moulton & Dashway, the trouble bar performers that went to Australia with the Silbon troupe, broke his leg recently while doing a double somersault from the bar. He struck on his head sideways in alighting, and fractured the bone badly.

Belle Chester, of the Olympic Varieties, Denver, Col., was lately arrested on an East bound train for eloping with Frank Smith, son of a New York Assemblyman. Why not arrest Smithy too? Or does the fact of his being a "son of a New York Assemblyman" permit him to capture a poor variety actress' too susceptible heart and run away with her with impunity on an Eastern bound train?

Clara Chester, the pretended wife of Lederer, was recently interviewed by a Denver reporter. Miss Chester said: "It was getting too hot for me in New York, so I have accepted a good engagement at the Bella Union, San Francisco, and have written my sister to follow me." When will Clara come?

The members of Herrmann's variety troupe, headed by the moral Gus Williams, protested that if the Gaiety dancers were restored to the programme they would quit in a body. The Gaiety dancers are a long skirted ballet. Where does the objection come in?

The Kansas City Star says of the decline of negro minstrelsy: "Perhaps the attempt to raise it above the natural level of plantation life strangled it. To turn a roustabout into a dancing master and a cotton field negro into an operatic tenor was to invite disaster. Ambition and pretension were the evil geniuses of minstrelsy."

A theatrical paper takes notice of the death of Jefferson Davis because he was a celebrated female impersonator.

Bottee Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walkerstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

William Lester, of Lester & Allen, was shot in Washington recently and seriously injured.

SEAL ROCK STARS.

The Savannah News describes a show of educated seals in that city. The animals are in a large tank, where they swim, float, smoke pipes, tow boats, dance and do various other things. On the stage they also do amusing tricks. One large sealion named 'Frisco, caught on this coast, is valued by the showman, Professor Woodward, at $6,000.

We are glad to hear such good report of the professional doings of our Seal Rock stars in the East. There is a good deal of money in the business of educating these children of the deep if some one fitted for the business would only start a school for acting to develop their professional instincts.

Who will establish the San Francisco College of Seals? We call upon Dudley, Nevin and other energetic members of the B. P. O. Elks to make a move in this direction. Years ago there was a theatrical organization in San Francisco, of which Sherry Corbyn was the mainspring, called "The Seals," that has since been swallowed up by the Elks.

But the seals still exist in thousands, strong in limb and lungs, and ready to be educated into a condition of professional eminence that will emblazon their representation upon the coat of arms of California with additional fame and glory.

The success of "Shenandoah" in New York seems to be in process of duplication in Chicago. The play has met with such favor in the lake city that a contract has been made with Manager McVicker to play it for thirteen weeks next Summer in his theatre. With the success of "The Great Metropolis" added, we can realize that the American drama is on the top wave of popularity at present.

"The Great Metropolis" drew nearly $7,000 in one week at the National Theatre, Philadelphia, where it was so successful.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

"Hard Lights" will be the next piece at the Grand.

Mr. J. J. Gottlob, manager of Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre, is the recipient of a handsome testimonial of esteem from those nearest connected with him in business, the employes of the theatre. The presentation took place on the stage after performance on Christmas Eve., and was in the form of a valuable gold watch, suitably inscribed. As the presenting speech was made by Mr. Chretien, the critic of the Examiner, let us add that the present is a Chreterion of the good feeling existing between men, critics and manager that any man might be proud of.

There were regular old-fashioned Christmas matinees at all the theatres, and every one overflowed. The Grand relegated its orchestra to under the stage again in the evening and filled its orchestra box with auditors.

J. Charles Davis, the Eastern manager, is in town.

Frank McKee, who is managing "The Exiles" and "Mankind" this season for Eugene Tompkins, will next year again associate himself with Hoyt & Thomas, taking the management of their attractions. Frank is one of the best liked men on the road.

Horace Townsend's play, "Cirillo," was recently produced by Alexander Salvini at the Holiday Street Theatre in Baltimore.

Alexander Comstock, who is now in Paris, has engaged General Boulanger for a lecturing tour in this country.

The De Wolf Hopper Comic Opera Company promises well. It opens its season at the Broadway Theatre, New York, on May 5, 1890, where it plays some four months under the direction of Messrs. Charles E. Locke and J. Charles Davis, assisted by Ben D. Stevens (so long the acting manager of the McCaull opera organization). The opera has been selected and it is called "Castles in the Air." The music is composed by Gustav Kerker, and the libretto, which is said to be decidedly Gilbertian, is by Charles Alfred Byrne. Mr. W. W. Randall, who has the bookings in hand, says that he has already booked this organization for some seventy-five weeks in the leading theatres and cities of the country.

Charles Norris, a well known actor, formerly of this city, died on the 10th inst. at St. Vincent's Hospital, N. Y., and was buried in the Actors' Fund plot.

Ullie Akerstrom is taking in the cities in Kansas and Nebraska this week. San Francisco will see the nimble Ullie next Summer.

Manager John Stetson, of Boston, will have two "Gondoliers" companies in New England so soon as D'Oyley Carte's company has been played at Palmer's Theatre on January 6th.

Edwin Booth and Mme. Modjeska resume their tour, Jan. 6th, in Providence, R. I., and are to appear in Fall River, Mass., Jan. 13th; Holyoke, 14th; Springfield, 15; New Haven, 16th; Hartford, 17th and 18th, reaching the Boston Theatre Jan. 20th.

Mlle. Rhea is to fill Lawrence Barrett's time at the Broadway Theatre, N. Y., beginning January 20th.

"Jules Levy, the cornet player, is having trouble with his company because he will allow nobody to take encores but himself." That's so like the dear fellow.

Manager M. B. Leavitt has returned from his run Northward to Portland, and reports that the weather is decidedly moist there, even for Oregon climate.

Mary Anderson is reported to have so far recovered from her recent illness as to be making plans for the production of "The Tempest," with Weldon Grossmith of "Pantomime Rehearsal" fame as Caliban.

Boston's theatrical critics rate Mr. Kendal as "not any better than a first-class walking gentleman," and Mrs Kendal is "not so good or so artistic as either Agnes Booth or Annie Clark."

"The Night Maloney Landed in New York" is the latest catchy song in Gotham, and is hummed and whistled pretty generally everywhere.

The holiday attractions of all the principal theatres in San Francisco can be found advertised in FIGARO, with full programmes, cast and synopsis. They present a varied and inviting field of amusements for the pleasure seekers.

"The Senator," Wm. H. Crane's new play by D. D. Lloyd and Sidney Rosenfeldt, is described as being a comedy in the true sense of the term, but of such skillful construction that it moves with a briskness and constancy of action unusual in pieces which hide, as does this, a serious motive behind their whimsical humor. The character of the Senator, the chief among the many cleverly outlined sketches of Washington society, is said to be portrayed by Mr. Crane with realistic fidelity as well as unctuous humor.

Otto Hegner, the boy prodigy pianist, will appear at the Baldwin in a series of concerts shortly.

"My Jack," a melodrama produced in London this season, had its first presentation in America at the Grand Opera House, New York, December 23d. The cast will include J. H. Gilmour, Wilton Lackaye, W. J. Ferguson, Dan Leason, Russell Bassett, Katharine Rogers, Isabelle Everson and Emily Lytton. Manager T. Henry French promises entirely new and handsome scenery and accessories.

Joseph Anderson, the brother of "Our Mary" and the son-in-law of Lawrence Barrett, has decided to give up the stage. [He was never anything but an outside passenger on it.]

Work on the new Tacoma Theatre is progressing rapidly and it will be a credit

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush st. Theatre.

The Bush's holiday attraction is Fraser & Gill's diverting pantomimic burlesque, so successful in the East, "Spider and Fly." It is really a great novelty in itself, and is full of novelties in the way of introduced amusing, interesting and first-class specialities.

Besides the burlesque and comedy company, the performance is illustrated by the following vaudeville and specialty artists: The operatic star, Bessie Cleveland; the charming vocalist, Hilda Thomas; the great Parisian dancing grotesques, Dorst & Oreste; the marvelous European gymnasts, the Dare Brothers; the popular dancers, Allen Sisters (Louise and Ray); the greatest of all funny clowns, Tommy Dare; the comical German specialist, E. Edwards; and the famous pantomimists, Jas. R. Adams and August Siegrist.

The prologue introduces the mythological characters of the piece, representing Progress, Knowledge and Industry on the one hand, taken respectively by Bessie Cleveland, Marguerite Wood and Lulu Redmen; and Anarchy, Ignorance and Idleness on the other, personated by Ada Dare, Lina Lash and Louise Allen, in an unequal war for power. The prologue is humorous, and pungent with hits of the day. Three fine scenes are displayed in the prologue, each disappearing as if by magic in the fires of its successor appears. The last scene represents Progress producing a tableau of triumph to Anarchis, a magnificent view of Brooklyn Bridge as the result of her work, aided by Knowledge and Industry. The prologue closes with a handsome Ballet of the Nations with the principals richly costumed, each in national colors.

The first act is given up mostly to pantomimic fun, and Jas. R. Adams, Thos. S. Dare do inconceivable things in mirth-making. It winds up with a big scene in Sam's grocery store, in which Sam Ryan, the funny policeman and all the company participate.

In the second act are introduced the remarkably clever specialties that adorn the play: Bessie Cleveland's fine vocalisms; Hilda Thomas' admirable character song medley, that deserves its encores; Louise Allen's long-skirt gaiety dance; the pretty Calisthenic Exercises by ballet; specialties by Ryan and E. Edwards, the latter a very humorous and clever monologist; a finished and graceful Pas de duc by Mons Oreste and M'lle Dorst; and the wonderful horizontal bar-act of the Dares, Thos. S. and Henry T., the originals, the cleverest and most difficult exhibition of bar gymnastics on the stage. There is no one that can compare with the clowning of Tommy Dare in this act.

The features of the last act are the end in the show, a remarkable scene copyrighted by Thos. S. Dare, the gathering up of the spider web of the story, the climax, the transformation scene and grand march of Civilization's troops.

The comedy-burlesque, "Spider and Fly," calls for twenty-one characters in its cast, but each people the above with new specialties. It is actually a children's carnival, and opens here with all its Lenten splendor and performances. It is handsomely and richly costumed throughout, tastefully staged and managed, and lively and humorous. It is up for a run.

Seats on sale at the box office.

Alcazar Theatre.

"Master Wits," a very funny production, written by Leon Mead and Benjamin Hapgood, and entitled "Up and Down the World," was the curtain-raiser last night to Lester Wallack's famous comedy of "Rosedale," which has been the play at the Alcazar for the past two weeks. The farce is a clever satire on the methods of the Bohemian writers in London in search of material for their stories, and the author has taken the opportunity of the play to have a fling at the methods of the London Standard, L. R. Stockwell, who has proved himself a comedian of wide range of acting, is seen for the first time since his connection with the Alcazar in a part that, although exactly in his way, is entirely opposed to the sympathies of his audiences.

It is cast in Groodge's lines to overhear his partner, Fleming, with his son to kill him for his money by poisoning. He comes back and pretends a feeling for his partner, proposes to buy him out and gets him to sign a document. While the partner is writing he steals up behind him and strangles him. It is made the scene of the piece in Stockwell's hands. He sustains the character all through with remarkable skill. In spite of his naturally broadly comic personality he makes the deep craft and the heartlessness of old Groodge patent to the audience, and his little touches of humor relieve the hardness of the character and make it all the more natural. He never did a better piece of acting in his life.

E. J. Buckley, Miss Ethel Brandon, John Jack, the Coopers, Jean Clara Walters, Geo. H Wood and Fanny Young in comedy parts, do good work in the melodrama; in fact the support throughout is strong.

The scenic events of "Mankind" are notable. There is one scene in it that is as effective as anything ever attempted on the local stage. The curtain rises and a vessel is seen in motion upon the waters, with the characters on board. During the action of the scene a fog rises and completely envelopes the stage for a moment and then slowly disappears. When the atmosphere is clear again the vessel is gone; nothing but a wide expanse is seen of sea and sky. It is a wonderful bit of stage realism, and with the efficient treatment it has received at the Alcazar is sure to prove a success. The mounting of plays at the Alcazar has always been characterized by liberality and judgment. The managers have made "Mankind" notably so.

Grand Opera House.

The Grand's Holiday piece, "The Great Metropolis," a spectacular melodrama of New York life and characters, is a strong play by George Jessop and Ben Teal, two former residents of San Francisco, that has merit and money in it, both for managers and authors.

The sensational scenes of "The Great Metropolis" are the great light-house scene, the realistic life-saving station, the thrilling ship-wreck and rescue of passengers by the mortar projected life-line, the last being a grand scene, one of the best specimens of skill in stage-setting ever seen in San Francisco.

The whole stage of the Grand is utilized for the wreck scene. In the rear the stranded ship appears by the lightning's vivid flashes at intervals out of the surrounding darkness and storm with startling reality. All is excitement in front of the stage occupied by the life-savers. The mortar line is fired, and the survivors are brought from the wreck by aid of the life-line in regular life-saving station manner. The scene is one of the most exciting ones ever on our local boards. The whole production is a study in stage work, for which stage director George Osbourne, scenic artist John R. Wilkins, master mechanic Thomas Andrews and assistants deserve high praise.

The cast is not only very full, but very strong as well. It would take more space in our columns than we can grant to individualize the merits of the performances. Those who did so well in "Hands Across the Sea;" Wm Morris, James J. Lent, E. N. Thayer, Lorimer Johnstone, Miss Isabel Morris and Miss Kate Chester strengthened their popularity by the good work they do in this play; and the new comers, Edwin J. Henley, a strong melodramatic actor; Harry Bell, a capital light comedian; Miss Mary Hampton, a pleasing ingenue; Miss Joan Sep, a character actress, and Miss Idalene Cotton as a waif of a boy, are already in the Grand's swim of popular favor.

"The Great Metropolis" is up for holiday run of crowded houses.

"Harbor Lights," another melodrama, full of strong scenes, will follow "The Great Metropolis" at the Grand.

New California Theatre

The Boston Howard Athenæum Star Specialty Company commence their holiday season here this week.

The company consists of Conroy & Fox, Irish comedians; the Irwin Sisters, popular sketch artistes; Geo. Thatcher, the well known minstrel comedian; Wilton & Mora, horizontal bar performers; Wood & Shephard, the clever musical sketchers; "Dutch" Daly; Lottie Collins, vocalist; Mons. Brunin, French grotesque; Abachi & Mezuz, Arab tumblers, and Mons. Francois de Blanche and M'lle de Blanche, magicians. The company is notedly a strong one, and the six artists mentioned last are on their first visit to this coast.

Conroy & Fox are clever Irish comedians; those well-known favorites, the Irwins, Geo. Thatcher and Wood & Shephard sustain their popularity and need no brush; "Dutch" Daly is clever; Wilton & Mora do a dashing horizontal bar-act; the Arab tumblers, Abachi & Mezaz, are wonderful gymnasts; Mons. Brunin is novel and grotesque in his song and dance, and the De Blanches explain to the audience many of the tricks of the magician's art.

The whole performance is a commendable one, and the reputation of the "Athenæum's" constellations is well borne out by this company.

Orpheum Theatre

The Ravell-Martinetta Pantomime of glorious memory and wonderful stage effects, "Sheep's Foot" is the holiday entertainment at the Orpheum, presented with 3 sets and 15 tableaux with a chorus of 30 voices and an auxiliary force of 100 people. Money has been spent lavishly on "Sheep's Foot," and it is given with all the startling effects, brilliant tableaux, additional transformation scenes and ballet, etc., as presented in European productions.

The managers of the Orpheum have given us a costly and elaborate production, and Mr. and Mrs. Leon Washburn, the Ravells, and Fritz Lafontaine, under whose direction it was produced, deserve especial credit for their labors. The piece is very entertaining to all, and is a world of wonders for children. It should draw large family audiences.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Manager Morosco presents for his Christmas week's bill that strong, moral drama, so full of sensational and emotional scenes, "Ten Nights in a Bar Room," effectively cast and carefully staged. Extra care has been taken in its production.

The lessons of this play are as good as the precepts of a sermon. Darrell Vinton is very strong as John Morgan, and all the company act their parts earnestly and effectively.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklin, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conclits, Miss Kitty Belmour and the whole company.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Yank-Hoe and Omene; Jessie Herworth and Jennie Ripley, vocalists, and Thatcher & Drew are in this week's bill.

Harry Montague's "Burlesque Mikado," full of life, music and merriment, adapted from Gilbert & Sullivan's "Mikado," and localized and specially arranged for a Christmas treat is this week's feature here. Yank-Ho and the Circassian lady Omene also add their inexplicable performances to the bill, that is alive with merriment and as jolly as the season.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The Cremorne's holiday piece is a very fine production of the burlesque, "Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden," with fine new scenery, elegant costumes and surprising mechanical effects. The Cremorne also presents something beyond its usual order in Will Baker's piece, so full of enjoyable sallies, mirth and music.

Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Sully & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others appear in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents a holiday bill this week with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists, and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Kitty Lorraine, a very pleasing actress and vocalist is new.

Edna Earle, the popular lady vocalist, and Billy De Orme and his clever trained dog, Josh, are late additions.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "The Mountain Musicians," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Travers, J. Burns, Kitty Lorraine, Blanche Long, Helena Richman, John Gilmore and Billy De Orme.

The afterpiece is "New Years Calls"—very seasonable.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

Three new stars at Meier's this week: Tom Carroll, Annie Gardner and Ada Brandon.

Pete Smith and Lottie Ellis, two popular and clever all around performers, have lately returned to Meier's.

The bill opens with Fox's stirring act of "A Fireman's Life," with a big fire scene and all the company in the cast.

The olio acts: "The Lost Fortune," "Christmas Presents" and Smith and Ellis' and Carroll's specialties.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Miss Dolly Parton, J. D. Fox, Rosa Stange and others.

Bottle Meier's is the popular north-end resort. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horse-shoe gallery of larger houses.

Family Matinee every Sunday.

An extra matinee will be given New Year's day.

Eureka Music Hall

This is one of the neatest and most of our minor theatres. Manager W runs a very strong company, and Billy provides the stage with a fresh b holidays.

John Merritt, character actor, and burlesque artiste, are new here.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss Ma Netta Latelle, Addie Bennett, Man Billy Akerman, Pearl Iola and Ca rell make up the company.

The opening is Female Boarding S choice music, and the bill is full o specialties, including the can-can.

The Eureka gives a matinee every

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Dashway, of Moulton & Dashway, the triple bar performers that went to Australia with the Silbon troupe, broke his leg recently while doing a double somersault from the bar. He struck on his foot sideways in alighting, and fractured the bone badly.

Belle Chester, of the Olympic Varieties, Denver, Col., was lately arrested on an East bound train for eloping with Frank Smith, son of a New York Assemblyman. Why not arrest Smithy too? Or does the fact of his being a "son of a New York Assemblyman" permit him to capture a poor variety actress' too susceptible heart and run away with her with impunity on an Eastern bound train?

A theatrical paper takes notice of the death of Jefferson Davis because he was a celebrated female impersonator.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

William Lester, of Lester & Allen, was shot in Washington recently and seriously injured.

SEAL ROCK STARS.

The Savannah News describes a show of educated seals in that city. The animals are in a large tank, where they swim, float, smoke pipes, tow boats, dance and do various other things. On the stage they also do amusing tricks. One large sealion named 'Frisco, caught on this coast, is valued by the showman, Professor Woodward, at $6,000.

We are glad to hear such good report of the professional doings of our Seal Rock stars in the East. There is a good deal of money in the business of educating these children of the deep if some one fitted tor the business would only start a school for acting to develop their professional instincts.

Who will establish the San Francisco College of Seals? We call upon Dudley, Nevin and other energetic members of the B. P. O. Elks to make a move in this direction. Years ago there was a theatrical organization in San Francisco, of which Sherry Corbyn was the mainspring, called "The Seals," that has since been swallowed up by the Elks.

But the seals still exist in thousands, strong in limb and lungs, and ready to be educated into a condition of professional eminence that will emblazon their representation upon the coat of arms of California with additional fame and glory.

The De Wolf Hopper Comic Opera Company promises well. It opens its season at the Broadway Theatre, New York, on May 5, 1890, where it plays some four months under the direction of Messrs. Charles E. Locke and J. Charles Davis, assisted by Ben D. Stevens (so long the acting manager of the McCaull opera organization). The opera has been selected and it is called "Castles in the Air." The music is composed by Gustav Kerker, and the libretto, which is said to be decidedly Gilbertian, is by Charles Alfred Byrne. Mr. W. W. Randall, who has the bookings in hand, says that he has already booked this organization for some seventy-five weeks in the leading theatres and cities of the country.

"Harbor Lights" will be the next piece at the Grand.

Edwin Booth and Mme. Modjeska resume their tour, Jan. 6th, in Providence, R. I., and are to appear in Fall River, Mass., Jan. 13th; Holyoke, 14th; Springfield, 15; New Haven, 16th; Hartford, 17th and 18th, reaching the Boston Theatre Jan. 20th.

Mlle. Rhea is to fill Lawrence Barrett's time at the Broadway Theatre, N. Y., beginning January 20th.

"The Night Maloney Landed in New York" is the latest catchy song in Gotham and is hummed and whistled pretty generally everywhere.

The holiday attractions of all the principal theatres in San Francisco can be found advertised in FIGARO, with full programmes, cast and synopsis. They present a varied and inviting field of amusements for the pleasure seekers.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Jas. M. and Carrie Clarke Ward give three "Happy New Year" nights at the Oakland Theatre, commencing Monday, in "Ranch 10."

Wm. H. Crane will begin an engagement of eight weeks at the Star Theatre January 13th. "The Senator," his new play, will then be given for the first time in New York.

"The Great Metropolis" will be seen in Boston for the first time shortly after the holidays.

W. A. Mestayer and Theresa Vaughn are contemplating a trip to Australia next season with "The Tourists in a Pullman Car."

R. D. McLean has paid the John McCullough estate $6,000 for the manuscript, scenes and properties of "The Gladiator" for the McLean-Prescott Co.

The Handel and Haydn Society have postponed their concert, announced for to-night at the Mechanics' Pavilion, on account of bad weather, until some time after New Years. The next rehearsal will be held at Pioneer Hall on Jan. 2nd.

The Abbey Opera Company go direct from Chicago to the City of Mexico, opening there January 11th and closing February 2nd. Dates at Los Angeles February 7th and 8th, in this city from the 10th to 22nd, Denver 27th and 28th. Thence Kansas City, Louisville, Cincinnati, Washington, Boston and New York, opening in the latter city March 24th.

The new song, "The Wild Man of Borneo," written by W. T. Barton, of this city, especially for Hoyt's "Brass Monkey" and first introduced in this city, has made a great success East, where it is repeatedly encored whenever it is sung. Mr. Barton is a good comic song writer, and "The Wild Man of Borneo" bids fair to become quite as popular as his "Razzle Dazzle," if not more so.

The lot of the Johnnies is not a happy one, owing to the edict of Manager Sanger, who believes in running his business on business principles. He has issued positive orders to the attaches of the Broadway Theatre, New York, to prevent lounging about the stage entrance, and, with the co-operation of Captain Reilly, the occupation of the Johnnies is a lost one, so far as the stage entrance of the Broadway is concerned, and great is the disappointment caused thereby, not only to the Johnnies, but also to the Gaiety girls, who lose the opportunity of swell suppers and escorts to their various homes. Mr. Sanger has caused the arrest of several pertinacious loungers as evidence of his sincerity.

After the second act of "Faust" at Miner's Newark (N. J.) Theatre on the 18th inst., constables attached the property of Emma Juch's English Opera Co. at the instance of Manager H. C. Miner to satisfy a claim of $3,000 loaned by him to organize the company. The matter was subsequently compromised by a transfer of $2,300, amount of advance sales at Pittsburg, where the company were to play the following week.

Sardou has entirely rewritten the last act of "Theodora," which Miss Fanny Davenport will add to her repertory next season. She expects to receive the revised manuscript from the author on or about January 1st.

Miss Annie Pixley expects to present "22, Second Floor," at the Strand Theatre in London on Easter Monday.

Alberta Gallatin, a pretty girl and a good actress, has been engaged to replace Grace Henderson when the latter retires from the New York Lyceum Theatre Company.

Mlle. Rhea has rented the Broadway Theatre, New York, for two weeks, beginning Mareh 24th, and will then present her new play, "Josephine, Empress of the French," in New York for the first time.

A late dispatch from London states that Boulanger denies that he has been engaged to lecture in this country.

Helen Tracy has joined the Webster-Brady Company in Dalles, Texas, to play She.

Margaret Mather has announced her intention to manage her own business next year.

Mr. J. C. Williamson, of the firm of Williamson, Musgrove & Garner, Australian managers, is expected to arrive in this city in January. He will visit the Eastern states and Europe, while his wife (nee Maggie Moore), at present in this city, will remain here until his return, when they will probably play a short engagement in this city in their first great success, "Struck Oil."

A leopardess showed her affection for her young cubs, in the Philadelphia Zoological Garden, by clandestinely eating them up the other night, and the keeper whipped the spots off her for doing it.

J. Charles Davis, the Eastern manager, is in town.

Frank McKee, who is managing "The Exiles" and "Mankind" this season for Eugene Tompkins, will next year again associate himself with Hoyt & Thomas, taking the management of their attractions. Frank is one of the best liked men on the road.

Alexander Comstock, who is now in Paris, has engaged General Boulanger for a lecturing tour in this country.

Charles Norris, a well known actor, formerly of this city, died on the 10th inst. at St. Vincent's Hospital, N. Y., and was buried in the Actors' Fund plot.

Ullie Akerstrom is taking in the cities in Kansas and Nebraska this week. San Francisco will see the nimble Ullie next Summer.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

The Bush's holiday attraction is Fraser & Gill's diverting pantomimic burlesque, so successful in the East, "Spider and Fly." It is really a great novelty in itself, and is full of novelties in the way of introduced amusing, interesting and first-class specialities.

Besides the burlesque and comedy company, the performance is illustrated by the following vaudeville and specialty artists: The operatic star, Bessie Cleveland; the charming vocalist, Hilda Thomas; the great Parisian dancing grotesques, Dorst & Oreste; the marvelous European gymnasts, the Dare Brothers; the popular dancers, Allen Sisters (Louise and Ray); the greatest of all funny clowns, Tommy Dare; the comical German specialist, E. Edwards; and the famous pantomimists, Jas. R. Adams and August Stegrist.

The prologue introduces the mythological characters of the piece, representing Progress, Knowledge and Industry on the one hand, taken respectively by Bessie Cleveland, Marguerite Wood and Lulu Reddan; and Anarchy, Ignorance and Idleness on the other, personated by Ada Dare, Lida Leah and Louise Allen, in an unequal war for power. The dialogue is humorous, and pungent with hits of the day. Three fine scenes are displayed in the prologue, each disappearing as if by magic in the flies as its successor appears. The last scene represents Progress producing a tableau of triumph to Anarchie, a magnificent view of Brooklyn Bridge as the result of her work, aided by Knowledge and Industry. The prologue closes with a handsome Ballet of the Nations with the principals richly costumed, each in national colors.

The first act is given up mostly to pantomimic fun, and Jas. R. Adams, Thos. S. Dare do inconceivable things in mirth-making. It winds up with a big scene in Sand's grocery store, in which Sam. Ryan, the funny policeman, and all the company participate.

In the second act are introduced the remarkably clever specialties that adorn the play: Bessie Cleveland's fine vocalisms; Hilda Thomas' admirable character song medley, that deserves its encores; Louise Allen's long-skirt gaiety dance; the pretty Calesthenic Exercises by ballet; specialties by Ryan and E. Edwards, the latter a very humorous and clever monologist; a finished and graceful Pas de duc by Mons. Oreste and M'lle Dorste; and the wonderful horizontal bar-act of the Dares, Thos. S. and Henry T., the originals, the cleverest and most difficult exhibition of bar gymnastics on the stage. There is no one that can compare with the clowning of Tommy Dare in this act.

The features of the last act are the duel in the snow, a remarkable scene copyrighted by Thos. S. Dare, the gathering up of the spider webs of the story, the climax, the transformation scene and grand march of Civilization's troops.

The comedy-burlesque, "Spider and Fly," calls for twenty-one characters in its distribution besides the above-mentioned specialties. It is actually a double bill, and comes here with all its Eastern stage garniture and appointments. It is a thoroughly good holiday entertainment, admirably arranged and managed, and lively and humorous. It is up for a run.

Seats on sale for next week.

Alcazar Theatre.

"Mankind," a very strong melodrama, written by Paul Merritt and George Conquest, authors of "Youth" and "The World," two of the cleverest melodramatic writers in London, is the Alcazar's holiday attraction. The central figure of the play is Daniel Groodge, of the firm of Groodge & Sharpley—a centenarian—a picture of meanness and selfish wickedness worthy of the pen of a Dickens or the brush of a Hogarth. L. R. Stockwell who has proved himself a comedian of wide range of ability, is seen for the first time since his connection with the Alcazar in a part that, although exactly in his way, is entirely opposed to the sympathies of his audiences.

It is cast in Groodge's lines to overhear his partner scheming with his son to kill him for his money by poisoning. He comes back and pretends a feeling for his partner, proposes to buy him out and gets him to sign a document. While the partner is writing he steals up behind him and strangles him. It is made the scene of the piece in Stockwell's hands. He sustains the character all through with remarkable skill. In spite of his naturally broadly comic personality he makes the deep craft and the heartlessness of old Groodge patent to the audience, and his little touches of humor relieve the hardness of the character and make it all the more natural. He never did a better piece of acting in his life.

E. J. Buckley, Miss Ethel Brandon, John Jack, the Coopers, Jean Clara Walters, Geo. H Wood and Fanny Young in comedy parts, d good work in the melodrama; in fact the sup port throughout is strong.

The scenic events of "Mankind" are notable. There is one scene in it that is as effective as anything ever attempted on the local stage. The curtain rises and a vessel is seen in motion upon the waters, with the characters on board. During the action of the scene a fog rises and completely envelopes the stage for a moment and then slowly disappears. When the atmosphere is clear again the vessel is gone; nothing but a wide expanse is seen of sea and sky. It is a wonderful bit of stage realism, and with the efficient treatment it has received at the Alcazar is sure to prove a success. The mounting of plays at the Alcazar has always been characterized by liberality and judgment. The managers have made "Mankind" notably so.

Grand Opera House.

The Grand's Holiday piece, "The Great Metropolis," a spectacular melodrama of New York life and characters, is a strong play by George Jessop and Ben Teal, two former residents of San Francisco, that has merit and money in it, both for managers and authors.

The sensational scenes of "The Great Metropolis" are the great light-house scene, the realistic life-saving station, the thrilling shipwreck and rescue of passengers by the mortar projected life-line, the last being a grand scene, one of the best specimens of skill in stage-setting ever seen in San Francisco.

The whole stage of the Grand is utilized for the wreck scene. In the rear the stranded ship appears by the lightning's vivid flashes at intervals out of the surrounding darkness and storm with startling reality. All is excitement in front of the stage occupied by the life-savers. The mortar line is fired, and the survivors are brought from the wreck by aid of the life-line in regular life-saving station manner. The scene is one of the most exciting ones ever on our local boards. The whole production is a study in stage work, for which stage director George Osbourne, scenic artist John R. Wilkins, master mechanic Thomas Andrews and assistants deserve high praise.

The cast is not only very full, but very strong as well. It would take more space in our columns than we can grant to individualize the merits of the performances. Those who did so well in "Hands Across the Sea;" Wm Morris, James J. Lent, E. N. Thayer, Lorimer Johnstone, Miss Isabel Morris and Miss Kate Chester strengthened their popularity by the good work they do in this play; and the new comers, Edwin J. Henley, a strong melodramatic actor; Harry Bell, a capital light comedian; Miss Mary Hampton, a pleasing ingenue; Miss Joan Sep, a character actress, and Miss Indalene Cotton as a waif of a boy, are already in the Grand's swim of popular favor.

"The Great Metropolis" is up for holiday run of crowded houses.

"Harbor Lights," another melodrama, full of strong scenes, will follow "The Great Metropolis" at the Grand.

New California Theatre

The Boston Howard Athenæum Star Specialty Company commence their holiday season here this week.

The company consists of Conroy & Fox, Irish comedians; the Irwin Sisters, popular sketch artistes; Geo. Thatcher, the well known minstrel comedian; Wilton & Mora, horizontal bar performers; Wood & Shephard, the clever musical sketchers; "Dutch" Daly; Lottie Collins, vocalist; Mons. Brunin, French grotesque; Abachi & Mazuz, Arab tumblers, and Mons. Francois de Blanche and M'lle de Blanche, magicians. The company is notedly a strong one, and the six artists mentioned last are on their first visit to this coast.

Conroy & Fox are clever Irish comedians; those well-known favorites, the Irwins, Geo. Thatcher and Wood & Shephard sustain their popularity and need no brush; "Dutch" Daly is clever; Wilton & Mora do a dashing horizontal bar-act; the Arab tumblers, Abachi & Mazuz, are wonderful gymnasts; Mons. Brunin is novel and grotesque in his song and dance, and the De Blanches explain to the audience many of the tricks of the magician's art.

The whole performance is a commendable one, and the reputation of the "Athenæum's" constellations is well borne out by this company.

Orpheum Theatre

The Ravell-Martinetta Pantomime of glorious memory and wonderful stage effects, "Sheep's Foot" is the holiday entertainment at the Orpheum; produced in 3 acts and 15 tableaux, with a chorus of 40 voices and an auxiliary force of 100 people. Money has been spent lavishly on "Sheep's Foot," and it is given with all its startling effects, prismatic fountains, beautiful transformation scenes, grand ballet, etc., as presented in European productions.

The managers of the Orpheum have given "Sheep's Foot" a costly and elaborate production, and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Imhaus, its adapters, and Fritz Lafontaine, under whose direction it was produced, deserve especial credit for their labors. The piece is very entertaining to all, and is a world of wonders for children. It should draw immense family audiences.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Manager Morosco presents for his Christmas week's bill that strong, moral drama, so full of sensational and emotional scenes, "Ten Nights in a Bar Room," effectively cast and carefully staged. Extra care has been taken in its production.

The lessons of this play are as good as the strong as John Morgan, and all the company act their parts earnestly and effectively.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklin, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmour and the whole company.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Yank-Hoe and Omene; Jessie Herworth and Jennie Ripley, vocalists, and Thatcher & Drew are in this week's bill.

Harry Montague's "Burlesque Mikado," full of life, music and merriment, adapted from Gilbert & Sullivan's "Mikado," and localized and specially arranged for a Christmas treat is this week's feature here. Yank-Ho and the Circassian lady Omene also add their inexplicable performances to the bill, that is alive with merriment and as jolly as the season.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The Cremorne's holiday piece is a very fine production of the burlesque, "Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden," with fine new scenery, elegant costumes and surprising mechanical effects. The Cremorne also presents something beyond its usual order in Will Baker's piece, so full of enjoyable sallies, mirth and music.

Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Sully & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others appear in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents a holiday bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists, and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Kitty Lorraine, a very pleasing actress and vocalist is new.

Edna Earle, the popular lady vocalist, and Billy De Ome and his clever trained dog, Josh, are late additions.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "The Mountain Musicians," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Kitty Lorraine, Blanche Long, Helena Richman, John Gilmore and Billy De Ome.

The afterpiece is "New Years Calls"—very seasonable.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre,

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

Three new stars at Meier's this week: Tom Carroll, Annie Gardner and Ada Brandon.

Pete Smith and Lottie Ellis, two popular and clever all around performers, have lately returned to Meier's.

The bill opens with Fox's stirring act of "A Fireman's Life," with a big fire scene and all the company in the cast.

The olio acts; 'The Lost Fortune," "Christmas Presents" and Smith and Ellis' and Carroll's specialties.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

The company is rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, J. D. Fox, Rosa Stange and others.

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Frank Binney, a good light comedian and a competent stage manager, with an endless repertory of pieces, closes an eleven months engagement as manager of the Theatre Comique, Butte City, Mont., on January 5th.

Dashway, of Moulton & Dashway, the triple bar performers that went to Australia with the Silbon troupe, broke his leg recently while doing a double somersault from the bar. He struck on his foot sideways in alighting, and fractured the bone badly.

A leopardess showed her affection for her young cubs, in the Philadelphia Zoological Garden, by clandestinely eating them up the other night, and the keeper whipped the spots off her for doing it.

A theatrical paper takes notice of the death of Jefferson Davis because he was a celebrated female impersonator.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

William Lester, of Lester & Allen, was shot in Washington recently and seriously injured.

"Harbor Lights" will be the next piece at the Grand.

The holiday attractions of all the principal theatres in San Francisco can be found advertised in FIGARO, with full programmes, cast and synopsis. They present a varied and inviting field of amusements for the pleasure seekers.

After the second act of "Faust" at Miner's Newark (N. J.) Theatre on the 18th inst., constables attached the property of Emma Juch's English Opera Co. at the instance of Manager H. C. Miner to satisfy a claim of $3,000 loaned by him to organize the company. The matter was subsequently compromised by a transfer of $2,300, amount of advance sales at Pittsburg, where the company were to play the following week.

Sardou has entirely rewritten the last act of "Theodora," which Miss Fanny Davenport will add to her repertory next season. She expects to receive the revised manuscript from the author on or about January 1st.

Miss Annie Pixley expects to present "22, Second Floor," at the Strand Theatre in London on Easter Monday.

Alberta Gallatin, a pretty girl and a good actress, has been engaged to replace Grace Henderson when the latter retires from the New York Lyceum Theatre Company.

Mlle. Rhea has rented the Broadway Theatre, New York, for two weeks, beginning March 24th, and will then present her new play, "Josephine, Empress of the French," in New York for the first time.

A late dispatch from London states that Boulanger denies that he has been engaged to lecture in this country.

Helen Tracy has joined the Webster-Brady Company in Dalles, Texas, to play She.

Margaret Mather has announced her intention to manage her own business next year.

Mr. J. C. Williamson, of the firm of Williamson, Musgrove & Garner, Australian managers, is expected to arrive in this city in January. He will visit the Eastern states and Europe, while his wife (nee Maggie Moore), at present in this city, will remain here until his return, when they will probably play a short engagement in this city in their first great success, "Struck Oil."

Jas. M. and Carrie Clarke Ward give three "Happy New Year" nights at the Oakland Theatre, commencing Monday, in "Ranch 10."

Frank McKee, who is managing "The Exiles" and "Mankind" this season for Eugene Tompkins, will next year again associate himself with Hoyt & Thomas, taking the management of their attractions. Frank is one of the best liked men on the road.

Charles Norris, a well known actor, formerly of this city, died on the 10th inst. at St. Vincent's Hospital, N. Y., and was buried in the Actors' Fund plot.

Manager Maguire, of the Grand Opera House, will take out the Maguire, Rial and Osbourne stock company, while Jim Love attends to the advance busi-

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Like the Czar of Russia several of the members of the New York Casino chorus have the fashionable influenza's grip upon their throats. Besides, the wires tell us that Chas. O'Brien, a New York grotesque dancer, is down with it, delirious and with his life endangered; Marie Jones, of the London Gaiety Company, is another prominent sufferer; Agnes Booth has it, and had to give up her part to Maude Harrison for several nights; Henry Kirkland has not been able to play for a week; it has its clutches on Harry Dixey's throat, and a number of the chorus of the Metropolitan Opera House are badly demoral—influenzaized. We hear that Mr. Maloney is a local sufferer from the 'fluenza. So it has reached San Francisco already.

Mr. Louis Jacobson, the leader of the Grand, carries a new cane, out of the orchestra, and leads with a new Voorine violin bow when in it; both holiday testimonials from his orchestra. The presentations were made on the stage, accompanied by a few kindly words of approbation for his professional work from Stage Manager Osbourne, that added additional value to the testimonials.

W. H. Thompson, formerly of this city, was the original American creator of Daniel Croodge in "Mankind."

John Murphy is starring in Southern California in his brother Joe's plays.

Roland Reed has had an operation performed on his nose to remove a bone growth, which made it necessary to breathe entirely through one nostril.

Mme. Patti is loud in her praise of Chicago. She will be singing the praises of 'Frisco in February, providing her engagement does not prove a failure.

The Rosalind of Ada Rehan is always superlatively womanly. The assumption of doublet and hose is resorted to by her only as a necessity, and there is never a moment that her girlish tenderness and delicate feminine instincts are not apparent. This is the correct conception of the character, and Miss Rehan maintains it consistently throughout the performance. Miss Rehan's costumes are taul less, and her boy's dress is a model of good taste. She discards boots or leggings altogether.

Many clever specialties are introduced in "The Spider and Fly," notably the laughable horizontal bar act of the Dare Bros., the graceful dancing of Louise Allen and the vocal selections of Bessie Cleveland and Hilda Thomas.

Mrs. Beebohn Tree, the celebrate actress, known as "the English Bernhardt," contemplates a visit to this country next year.

Louis Harrison, a San Francisco favorite, will play the leading comedy role in the comic opera, "The Pearl of Pekin," which will visit this city in a few weeks.

A concert will be given at Irvin Hall on Friday evening, January 3d, by Mme de Sadowska-Peixotto, the celebrated contralto, assisted by Mme. Sanderini, Miss Charlotte Tomlinson, Mr. Thomas Rickard, Mr. H. J. Stewart, and the Henry Heyman string quartet. The programme will be an interesting one. Mme. Peixotto will render some celebrated Russian songs.

The Boston Quintet Club, whose concerts were a feature of last season's musical events, will be here again in the latter part of February.

"The Last Hope," a California drama which Marcus Meyer engaged to produce in New York, has, on investigation, been found too crude, and been relegated to Archie Clavering Gunter to be rewritten and rearranged. "Last Hope" concerns a particular episode in San Francisco history.

J. Charles Davis, the Eastern manager, is in town.

"Harbor Lights," the next piece at the Grand Opera House, is being most carefully rehearsed, and will be very elaborately produced.

The grocery store scene, in the second act of the "Spider and Fly," is the gem of the piece. It is quick and lively and keeps the audience in an uproar from beginning to the end.

W. A. Mestayer and Theresa Vaughn are contemplating a trip to Australia next season with "The Tourists in a Pullman Car."

R. D. McLean has paid the John McCullough estate $6,000 for the manuscript, scenes and properties of "The Gladiator" for the McLean-Prescott Co.

The Abbey Opera Company go direct from Chicago to the City of Mexico, opening there January 11th and closing February 2nd. Dates at Los Angeles February 7th and 8th, in this city from the 10th to 22nd, Denver 27th and 28th. Thence Kansas City, Louisville, Cincinnati, Washington, Boston and New York, opening in the latter city March 24th.

The new song, "The Wild Man of Borneo," written by W. T. Barton, of this city, especially for Hoyt's "Brass Monkey" and first introduced in this city, has made a great success East, where it is repeatedly encored whenever it is sung. Mr. Barton is a good comic song writer, and "The Wild Man of Borneo" bids fair to become quite as popular as his "Razzle Dazzle," if not more so.

The lot of the Johnnies is not a happy one, owing to the edict of Manager Sanger, who believes in running his business on business principles. He has issued positive orders to the attaches of the Broadway Theatre, New York, to prevent lounging about the stage entrance, and, with the co-operation of Captain Reilly, the occupation of the Johnnies is a lost one, so far as the stage entrance of the Broadway is concerned, and great is the disappointment caused thereby, not only to the Johnnies, but also to the Gaiety girls, who lose the opportunity of swell suppers and escorts to their various homes. Mr. Sanger has caused the arrest of several pertinacious loungers as evi-

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

The Bush's holiday attraction is Fraser & Gill's diverting pantomimic burlesque, so successful in the East, "Spider and Fly." It is really a great novelty in itself, and is full of novelties in the way of introduced amusing, interesting and first-class specialities.

Besides the burlesque and comedy company, the performance is illustrated by the following vaudeville and specialty artists: The operatic star, Bessie Cleveland; the charming vocalist, Hilda Thomas; the great Parisian dancing grotesques, Dorst & Oreste; the marvelous European gymnasts, the Dare Brothers; the popular dancers, Allen Sisters (Louise and Ray); the greatest of all funny clowns, Tommy Dare; the comical German specialist, E. Edwards; and the famous pantomimists, Jas. R. Adams and August Siegrist.

The prologue introduces the mythological characters of the piece, representing Progress, Knowledge and Industry on the one hand, taken respectively by Bessie Cleveland, Marguerite Wood and Lulu Reddan; and Anarchy, Ignorance and Idleness on the other, personated by Ada Dare, Lida Leah and Louise Allen, in an unequal war for power. The dialogue is humorous, and pungent with hits of the day. Three fine scenes are displayed in the prologue, each disappearing as if by magic in the flies as its successor appears. The last scene represents Progress producing a tableau of triumph to Anarchie, a magnificent view of Brooklyn Bridge as the result of her work, aided by Knowledge and Industry. The prologue closes with a handsome Ballet of the Nations with the principals richly costumed, each in national colors.

The first act is given up mostly to pantomimic fun, and Jas. R. Adams, Thos. S. Dare do inconceivable things in mirth-making. It winds up with a big scene in Sand's grocery store, in which Sam Ryan, the funny policeman, and all the company participate.

In the second act are introduced the remarkably clever specialities that adorn the play: Bessie Cleveland's fine vocalisms; Hilda Thomas' admirable character song medley, that deserves its encores; Louise Allen's long-skirt gaiety dance; the pretty Calesthenic Exercises by ballet; specialties by Ryan and E. Edwards, the latter a very humorous and clever monologist; a finished and graceful Pas de duc by Mons, Oreste and M'lle Dorste; and the wonderful horizontal bar-act of the Dares, Thos. S. and Henry T., the originals, the cleverest and most difficult exhibition of bar gymnastics on the stage. There is no one that can compare with the clowning of Tommy Dare in this act.

The features of the last act are the duel in the snow, a remarkable scene copyrighted by Thos. S. Dare, the gathering up of the spider webs of the story, the climax, the transformation scene and grand march of Civilization's troups.

The comedy-burlesque, "Spider and Fly," calls for twenty-one characters in its distribution besides the above-mentioned specialities. It is actually a double bill, and comes here with all its Eastern stage garniture and appointments. It is a thoroughly good holiday entertainment, admirably arranged and managed, and lively and humorous. It is up for a run.

Seats on sale for next week.

Alcazar Theatre.

"Mankind," a very strong melodrama, written by Paul Merritt and George Conquest, authors of "Youth" and "The World," two of the cleverest melodramatic writers in London, is the Alcazar's holiday attraction. The central figure of the play is Daniel Groodge, of the firm of Groodge & Sharpley—a centenarian—a picture of meanness and selfish wickedness worthy of the pen of a Dickens or the brush of a Hogarth. L. R. Stockwell who has proved himself a comedian of wide range of ability, is seen for the first time since his connection with the Alcazar in a part that, although exactly in his way, is entirely opposed to the sympathies of his audiences.

It is cast in Groodge's lines to overhear his partner scheming with his son to kill him for his money by poisoning. He comes back and pretends a feeling for his partner, proposes to buy him out and gets him to sign a document. While the partner is writing he steals up behind him and strangles him. It is made the scene of the piece in Stockwell's hands. He sustains the character all through with remarkable skill. In spite of his naturally broadly comic personality he makes the deep craft and the heartlessness of old Groodge patent to the audience, and his little touches of humor relieve the hardness of the character and make it all the more natural. He never did a better piece of acting in his life.

E. J. Buckley, Miss Ethel Brandon, John Jack, the Coopers, Jean Clara Walters, Geo. H Wood and Fanny Young in comedy parts, d good work in the melodrama; in fact the support throughout is strong.

The scenic events of "Mankind" are notable. There is one scene in it that is as effective as anything ever attempted on the local stage. The curtain rises and a vessel is seen in motion upon the waters, with the characters on board. During the action of the scene a fog rises and completely envelopes the stage for a moment and then slowly disappears. When the atmosphere is clear again the vessel is gone; nothing but a wide expanse is seen of sea and sky. It is a wonderful bit of stage realism, and with the efficient treatment it has received at the Alcazar is sure to prove a success. The mounting of plays at the Alcazar has always been characterized by liberality and judgment. The managers have made "Mankind" notably so.

Grand Opera House.

The Grand's Holiday piece, "The Great Metropolis," a spectacular melodrama of New York life and characters, is a strong play by George Jessop and Ben Teal, two former residents of San Francisco, that has merit and money in it, both for managers and authors.

The sensational scenes of "The Great Metropolis" are the great light-house scene, the realistic life-saving station, the thrilling shipwreck and rescue of passengers by the mortar projected life-line, the last being a grand scene, one of the best specimens of skill in stage-setting ever seen in San Francisco.

The whole stage of the Grand is utilized for the wreck scene. In the rear the stranded ship appears by the lightning's vivid flashes at intervals out of the surrounding darkness and storm with startling reality. All is excitement in front of the stage occupied by the life-savers. The mortar line is fired, and the survivors are brought from the wreck by aid of the life-line in regular life-saving station manner. The scene is one of the most exciting ones ever on our local boards. The whole production is a study in stage work, for which stage director George Osbourne, scenic artist John B. Wilkins, master mechanic Thomas Andrews and assistants deserve high praise.

The cast is not only very full, but very strong as well. It would take more space in our columns than we can grant to individualize the merits of the performances. Those who did so well in "Hands Across the Sea:" Wm Morris, James J. Lent, E. N. Thayer, Lorimer Johnstone, Miss Isabel Morris and Miss Kate Chester strengthened their popularity by the good work they do in this play; and the new comers, Edwin J. Henley, a strong melodramatic actor; Harry Bell, a capital light comedian; Miss Mary Hampton, a pleasing ingenue; Miss Joan Sep, a character actress, and Miss Indalene Cotton as a waif of a boy, are already in the Grand's swim of popular favor.

"The Great Metropolis" is up for holiday run of crowded houses.

"Harbor Lights," another melodrama, full of strong scenes, will follow "The Great Metropolis" at the Grand.

New California Theatre.

The Boston Howard Athenæum Star Specialty Company commence their holiday season here this week.

The company consists of Conroy & Fox, Irish comedians; the Irwin Sisters, popular sketch artistes; Geo. Thatcher, the well known minstrel comedian; Wilton & Mora, horizontal bar performers; Wood & Shephard, the clever musical sketchers; "Dutch" Daly; Lottie Collins, vocalist; Mons. Brunin, French grotesque; Abachi & Mazus, Arab tumblers, and Mons. Francois de Blanche and M'lle de Blanche, magicians. The company is notedly a strong one, and the six artists mentioned last are on their first visit to this coast.

Conroy & Fox are clever Irish comedians; those well-known favorites, the Irwins, Geo. Thatcher and Wood & Shephard sustain their popularity and need no brush; "Dutch" Daly is clever; Wilton & Mora do a dashing horizontal bar-act; the Arab tumblers, Abachi & Mazus, are wonderful gymnasts; Mons. Brunin is novel and grotesque in his song and dance, and the De Blanches explain to the audience many of the tricks of the magician's art.

The whole performance is a commendable one, and the reputation of the "Athenæum's" constellations is well borne out by this company.

Orpheum Theatre

The Ravell-Martinetta Pantomime of glorious memory and wonderful stage effects, "Sheep's Foot" is the holiday entertainment at the Orpheum; produced in 3 acts and 15 tableaux, with a chorus of 40 voices and an auxiliary force of 100 people. Money has been spent lavishly on "Sheep's Foot," and it is given with all its startling effects, prismatic fountains, beautiful transformation scenes, grand ballet, etc., as presented in European productions.

The managers of the Orpheum have given "Sheep's Foot" a costly and elaborate production, and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Imbaus, its adapters, and Fritz Lafontaine, under whose direction it was produced, deserve especial credit for their labors. The piece is very entertaining to all, and is a world of wonders for children. It should draw immense family audiences.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Manager Morosco presents for his Christmas week's bill that strong, moral drama, so full of sensational and emotional scenes, "Ten Nights in a Bar Room," effectively cast and carefully staged. Extra care has been taken in its production.

The lessons of this play are as good as the precepts of a sermon. Darrell Vinton is very strong as John Morgan, and all the company act their parts earnestly and effectively.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklin, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmour and the whole company.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Bella Union Theatre.

Harry Montague, author and actor; Carrie Duncan, actress; Yank-Hoe and Omene; Jessie Herworth and Jennie Ripley, vocalists, and Thatcher & Drew are in this week's bill.

Harry Montague's "Burlesque Mikado," full of life, music and merriment, adapted from Gilbert & Sullivan's "Mikado," and localized and specially arranged for a Christmas treat is this week's feature here. Yank-Ho and the Circassian lady Omene also add their inexplicable performances to the bill, that is alive with merriment and as jolly as the season.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The Cremorne's holiday piece is a very fine production of the burlesque, "Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden," with fine new scenery, elegant costumes and surprising mechanical effects. The Cremorne also presents something beyond its usual order in Will Baker's piece, so full of enjoyable sallies, mirth and music.

Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Sully & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others appear in a fine programme.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Jack Hallinan is waking things up. Ed Homan engineers the business department with energy and success, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage interests. The Cremorne is in the theatrical boom.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents a holiday bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists, and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Kitty Lorraine, a very pleasing actress and vocalist is new.

Edna Earle, the popular lady vocalist, and Billy De Ome and his clever trained dog, Josh, are late additions.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "The Mountain Musicians," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Kitty Lorraine, Blanche Long, Helena Richman, John Gilmore and Billy De Ome.

The afterpiece is "New Years Calls"—very seasonable.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Frank Binney, a good light comedian and a competent stage manager, with an endless repertory of pieces, closes an eleven months engagement as manager of the Theatre Comique, Butte City, Mont., on January 5th.

Dashway, of Moulton & Dashway, the triple bar performers that went to Australia with the Silbon troupe, broke his leg recently while doing a double somersault from the bar. He struck on his foot sideways in alighting, and fractured the bone badly.

A leopardess showed her affection for her young cubs, in the Philadelphia Zoological Garden, by clandestinely eating them up the other night, and the keeper whipped the spots off her for doing it.

A theatrical paper takes notice of the death of Jefferson Davis because he was a celebrated female impersonator.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

[illegible] keeps the house well up to the front with good [illegible] and good company.

Willard Lester of Lester & Allen, was shot in Washington recently and seriously injured.

"Harbor Lights" next week at the Grand.

Margaret Mather has announced her [illegible] manage her own business hereafter.

Mr. J. C. Williamson, of the firm of Williamson, Musgrove & Garner, Australian managers, is expected to arrive in this city in January. He will visit the [illegible] and [illegible], with his wife (nee Maggie Moore), at present in this city, will remain here until his return, when they will probably play a short engagement in this city in their first great success, "Struck Oil."

Jas. M. and Carrie Clarke Ward give three "Happy New Year" nights at the Oakland Theatre, commencing to-night in "Ranch 10."

Frank McKee, who is managing "The Exiles" and "Mankind" this season for Eugene Tompkins, will next year again associate himself with Hoyt & Thomas, taking the management of their attractions. Frank is one of the best liked men on the road.

Manager Maguire, of the Grand Opera House, will take out the Maguire, Rial and Osbourne stock company, while Jim Love attends to the advance business

Sardou has entirely rewritten the last act of "Theodora," which Miss Fanny Davenport will add to her repertory next season. She expects to receive the revised manuscript from the author on or about January 1st.

The De Wolf Hopper Comic Opera Company promises well. It opens its season at the Broadway Theatre, New York, on May 5, 1890, where it plays some four months under the direction of Messrs. Charles E. Locke and J. Charles Davis, assisted by Ben D. Stevens (so long the acting manager of the McCaull opera organization). The opera has been selected and it is called "Castles in the Air." The music is composed by Gustav Kerker, and the libretto, which is said to be decidedly Gilbertian, is by Charles Alfred Byrne. Mr. W. W. Randall, who has the bookings in hand, says that he has already booked this organization for some seventy-five weeks in the leading theatres and cities of the country.

Edwin Booth and Mme. Modjeska resume their tour, Jan. 6th, in Providence, R. I., and are to appear in Fall River, Mass., Jan. 13th; Holyoke, 14th; Springfield, 15; New Haven, 16th; Hartford, 17th and 18th, reaching the Boston Theatre Jan. 20th.

Manager John Stetson, of Boston, will have two "Gondoliers" companies in New England as soon as D'Oyley Carte's company has been played at Palmer's Theatre on January 6th.

Ullie Akerstrom is taking in the cities in Kansas and Nebraska this week. San Francisco will see the nimble Ullie next Summer.

Mlle. Rhea is to fill Lawrence Barrett's time at the Broadway Theatre, N. Y., beginning January 20th.

"The Night Maloney Landed in New [illegible]

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Like the Czar of Russia several of the members of the New York Casino chorus have the [illegible] influenza's grip upon [illegible]. Besides, the wires tell us that Chas. O'Brien, a New York grotesque dancer, is down with it, delirious and with his life endangered; Marie Jones, of the London Gaiety Company, is another prominent sufferer; Agnes Booth has it, and had to give up her part to Maude Harrison for several nights; Henry Kirkland has not been able to play for a week; it has its clutches on Harry Dixey's throat, and a number of the chorus of the Metropolitan Opera House are badly demoral—influenzaized. We hear that Mr. Maloney is a local sufferer from the 'fluenza. So it has reached San Francisco already.

Mr. Louis Jacobson, the leader of the Grand, carries a new cane, out of the orchestra, and leads with a new Voorine violin bow when in it; both holiday testimonials from his orchestra. The presentations were made on the stage, accompanied by a few kindly words of approbation for his professional work from Stage Manager Osbourne, that added additional value to the testimonials.

W. H. Thompson, formerly of this city, was the original American creator of Daniel Groodge in "Mankind."

John Murphy is starring in Southern California in his brother Joe's plays.

Mme. Patti is loud in her praise of Chicago. She will be singing the praises of 'Frisco in February, providing her engagement does not prove a failure.

Many clever specialties are introduced in "The Spider and Fly," notably the laughable horizontal bar act of the Dare Bros., the graceful dancing of Louise Allen and the vocal selections of Bessie Cleveland and Hilda Thomas.

Mrs. Beebohn Tree, the celebrate actress, known as "the English Bernhardt," contemplates a visit to this country next year.

Louis Harrison, a San Francisco favorite, will play the leading comedy role in the comic opera, "The Pearl of Pekin," which will visit this city in a few weeks.

The Boston Quintet Club, whose concerts were a feature of last season's musical events, will be here again in the latter part of February.

J. Charles Davis, the Eastern manager, is in town.

"Harbor Lights," for next week at the Grand Opera House, is being most carefully rehearsed, and will be very elaborately produced.

The grocery store scene, in the second act of the "Spider and Fly," is the gem of the piece. It is quick and lively and keeps the audience in an uproar from beginning to the end.

The Abbey Opera Company go direct from Chicago to the City of Mexico, opening there January 11th and closing February 2nd. Dates at Los Angeles February 7th and 8th, in this city from the 10th to 22nd, Denver 27th and 28th. Thence Kansas City, Louisville, Cincinnati, Washington, Boston and New York, opening in the latter city March 24th.

The Rosalind of Ada Rehan is always superlatively womanly. The assumption of [illegible] and [illegible] by her only as a necessity, and there is never a moment that her girlish tenderness and delicate feminine instincts are not apparent. This is the correct conception of the character, and Miss Rehan maintains it consistently throughout the performance. Miss Rehan's costumes are faultless, and her boy's dress is a model of good taste. She discards boots or leggings altogether.

The new song, "The Wild Man of Borneo," written by W. T. Barton, of this city, especially for Hoyt's "Brass Monkey" and first introduced in this city, has made a great success East, where it is repeatedly encored whenever it is sung. Mr. Barton is a good comic song writer, and "The Wild Man of Borneo" bids fair to become quite as popular as his "Razzle Dazzle," if not more so.

The lot of the Johnnies is not a happy one, owing to the edict of Manager Sanger, who believes in running his business on business principles. He has issued positive orders to the attaches of the Broadway Theatre, New York, to prevent lounging about the stage entrance, and, with the co-operation of Captain Reilly, the occupation of the Johnnies is a lost one, so far as the stage entrance of the Broadway is concerned, and great is the disappointment caused thereby, not only to the Johnnies, but also to the Gaiety girls, who lose the opportunity of swell suppers and escorts to their various homes. Mr. Sanger has caused the arrest of several pertinacious loungers as evidence of his sincerity.

The holiday attractions of all the principal theatres in San Francisco can be found advertised in FIGARO, with full programmes, cast and synopsis. They present a varied and inviting field of amusements for the pleasure seekers.

A late dispatch from London states that Boulanger denies that he has been engaged to lecture in this country.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akerman provides the stage with a fresh bill for the holidays.

Gus Leonard and his troupe, Jessie Eldridge, the vocalist and Soldene, burlesque artiste, are new here.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss Jessie Eldridge, Netta Lutelle, Addie Bennett, Mamie Woods, Billy Akerman and Pearl Iola make up the company.

The opening is a Burlesque First Part, with choice music, and the bill is full of acts and specialties, including the can-can.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Extra Matinees will be given on New Year's Day at all the Theatres.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

The Bush's holiday attraction, Fraser & Gill's diverting pantomimic burlesque, holds the stage for its last week. It is really a great novelty in itself, and is full of novelties in the way of introduced amusing, interesting and first-class specialties.

Besides the burlesque and comedy company, the performance is illustrated by the following vaudeville and specialty artists: The operatic star, Bessie Cleveland; the charming vocalist, Hilda Thomas; the great Parisian dancing grotesques, Dorst & Oreste; the marvelous European gymnasts, the Dare Brothers; the popular dancers, Allen Sisters (Louise and Ray); the greatest of all funny clowns, Tommy Dare; the comical German specialist, E. Edwards; and the famous pantomimists, Jas. R. Adams and August Siegrist.

The prologue introduces the mythological characters of the piece, representing Progress, Knowledge and Industry on the one hand, taken respectively by Bessie Cleveland, Marguerite Wood and Lulu Reddan; and Anarchy, Ignorance and Idleness on the other, personated by Ada Dare, Lida Leah and Louise Allen, in an unequal war for power. The dialogue is humorous, and pungent with hits at the day. Three fine scenes are displayed in the prologue, each disappearing as if by magic in the fires as its successor appears. The last scene represents Progress producing a tableau of triumph to Anarchie, a magnificent view of Brooklyn Bridge as the result of her work, aided by Knowledge and Industry. The prologue closes with a handsome Ballet of the Nations with the principals richly costumed, each in national colors.

The first act is given up mostly to pantomimic fun, and Jas. R. Adams, Thos. S. Dare do inconceivable things in mirth-making. It winds up with a big scene in Sands's grocery store, in which Sam. Ryan, the funny policeman, and all the company participate.

In the second act are introduced the remarkably clever specialties that adorn the play. Bessie Cleveland's fine vocalisms; Hilda Thomas' admirable character song medley, that deserves its encores; Louise Allen's long skirt gaiety dance; the pretty Calisthenic Exercises by ballet; specialties by Ryan and E. Edwards, the latter a very humorous and clever monologist; a finished and graceful Pas de deux by Mons. Oreste and M'lle Dorste; and the wonderful horizontal bar act of the Dares, Thos. S. and Henry T., the originals, the cleverest and most difficult exhibition of bar gymnastics on the stage. There is no one that can compare with the clowning of Tommy Dare in this act.

The features of the last act are the duel in the snow, scene copyrighted by Thos. S. Dare, the gathering up of the spider webs of the story, the climax, the transformation scene and grand march of Civilization's troops.

The comedy-burlesque, "Spider and Fly," calls for twenty-one characters in its distribution besides the above-mentioned specialties. It is actually a double bill, and comes here with all its Eastern stage furniture and appointments. It is a thoroughly good holiday entertainment, admirably arranged and managed, and lively and humorous. It has drawn fine business.

Matinee New Years.

That brilliant comedienne, vocalist and vaudeville actress, Vernona Jarbeau, supported by her own company, will be next week's attraction in her new comedy.

Alcazar Theatre.

"Mankind" is a very strong melodrama, written by Paul Merritt and George Conquest, authors of "Youth" and "The World," two of the cleverest melodramatic writers in London, is the Alcazar's New Year's week attraction. The central figure of the play is James Groodge, of the firm of Groodge & Sharpley—a celebrity—a picture of moneyless and selfish worthiness worthy of the pen of a Dickens or the brush of a Hogarth. L. R. Stockwell who has raised himself a comedian of wide range of ability, is seen for the first time since his connection with the Alcazar in a part that, although exactly in his way, is entirely opposed to the sympathies of his audiences.

He cast in Groodge's lines to overhear his partner scheming with his son to kill him for his money by poisoning. He comes back and pretends a feeling for his partner, proposes to buy him out and gets him to sign a document. While the partner is writing he steals up behind him and strangles him. It is made the scene of the piece in Stockwell's hands. He sustains the character all through with remarkable skill. In spite of his naturally broadly comic personality he makes the deep craft and the heartlessness of old Groodge patent to the audience, and his little touches of humor relieve the hardness of the character and make it all the more natural. He never did a better piece of acting in his life.

E. J. Buckley, Miss Ethel Brandon, John Jack, the Coopers, Jean Clara Walters, Geo. H. Wood and Fanny Young in comedy parts, did good work in the melodrama; in fact the support throughout is strong.

The scenic events of "Mankind" are notable. There is one scene in it that is as effective as anything ever attempted on the local stage. The curtain rises and a vessel is seen in motion upon the waters, with the characters on board. During the action of the scene a fog rises and completely envelopes the stage for a moment and then slowly disappears. When the atmosphere is clear again the vessel is gone; nothing but a wide expanse is seen of sea and sky. It is a wonderful bit of stage realism, and with the efficient treatment it has received at the Alcazar is sure to prove a success. The mounting of plays at the Alcazar has always been characterized by liberality and judgment. The managers have made "Mankind" notably so.

Business A 1.

Matinee New Years.

Grand Opera House.

The Grand's Holiday piece, "The Great Metropolis," a spectacular melodrama of New York life and characters, is a strong play by George Jessop and Ben Teal, two former residents of San Francisco, that has merit and money in it, both for managers and authors.

It has proven the greatest success, and has been witnessed by 25,000 persons in the last two weeks. This is the last week of this play. It gives way to a grand production of "Harbor Lights" on Monday next.

Matinee New Year's Day.

The sensational scenes of "The Great Metropolis" are the great light-house scene, the realistic life-saving station, the thrilling shipwreck and rescue of passengers by the mortar projected life-line, the last being a grand scene, one of the best specimens of skill in stage-setting ever seen in San Francisco.

The whole stage of the Grand is utilized for the wreck scene. In the rear the stranded ship appears by the lightning's vivid flashes at intervals out of the surrounding darkness and storm with startling reality. All is excitement in front of the stage occupied by the life-savers. The mortar line is fired, and the survivors are brought from the wreck by aid of the life-line in regular life-saving station manner. The scene is one of the most exciting ones ever on our local boards. The whole production is a study in stage work, for which stage director George Osbourne, scenic artist John R. Wilkins, master mechanic Thomas Andrews and assistants deserve high praise.

The cast is not only very full, but very strong as well. It would take more space in our columns than we can grant to individualize the merits of the performances. Those who did so well in "Hands Across the Sea;" Wm. Morris, James J. Lent, E. N. Thayer, Lorimer Johnstone, Miss Isabel Morris and Miss Kate Chester strengthened their popularity by the good work they do in this play; and the new comers, Edwin J. Henley, a strong melodramatic actor; Harry Bell, a capital light comedian; Miss Mary Hampton, a pleasing ingenue; Miss Joan Sep, a character actress, and Miss Indalene Cotton as a waif of a boy, are already in the Grand's swim of popular favor.

"Harbor Lights," another melodrama, full of strong scenes, will follow "The Great Metropolis" at the Grand. This grand scenic play will be another notable production at this theatre. Isabel Morris, Wm. Morris, George Osbourne, Edward Henley and Harry Bell are in the cast.

New California Theatre

The Boston Howard Athenæum Star Specialty Company continue their holiday season here this week.

The company consists of Conroy & Fox, Irish comedians; the Irwin Sisters, popular sketch artistes; Geo. Thatcher, the well known minstrel comedian; Wilton & Mora, horizontal bar performers; Wood & Shephard, the clever musical sketchers; "Dutch" Daly; Lottie Collins, vocalist; Mons. Brunin, French grotesque; Abachi & Mazuz, Arab tumblers, and Mons. Francois de Blanche and M'lle de Blanche, magicians. The company is notedly a strong one, and the six artists mentioned last are on their first visit to this coast.

Conroy & Fox are clever Irish comedians; those well-known favorites, the Irwins, Geo. Thatcher and Wood & Shephard sustain their popularity and need no brush; "Dutch" Daly is clever; Wilton & Mora do a dashing horizontal bar act; the Arab tumblers, Abachi & Mazuz, are wonderful gymnasts; Mons. Brunin is novel and grotesque in his acting and dance, and the De Blanches explain to the audience many of the tricks of the magician's art.

The whole performance is a commendable one, and the reputation of the "Athenæum's" constellations is well borne out by this company.

Orpheum Theatre

The Ravell-Merritt-Pantomime of glorious memory and world-renowned stage effects, "Sheep's Foot" is the holiday entertainment at the Orpheum; produced in 3 acts and 15 tableaux with a chorus of 40 voices and an auxiliary force of 100 people. Money has been spent lavishly on "Sheep's Foot," and it is given with all the startling effects, prismatic fountains, beautiful transformation scenes, grand ballet, etc., as presented in European productions.

The managers of the Orpheum have given "Sheep's Foot" a costly and elaborate production, and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Imbau, its adapters, and Fritz Lafontaine, under whose direction it was produced, deserve especial credit for their labors. The piece is very entertaining to all, and is a world of wonders for children. It should draw immense family audiences.

THE OLD YEAR.

Good-by, old '89. You have been a year of floods, fires and disasters, but you have given us the Eiffel Tower, the Chicago Auditorium, and wiped out the last refuge of kingcraft rule on our own continent; so we will call it square. In San Francisco theatricals the year has been a prosperous and progressive one. It has given us the handsome re-constructed New Bush Street Theatre, the New California Theatre, and energetic management has placed the Grand Opera House in the full tide of popular favor, with every indication of its staying there. To be sure, the Bijou has received a blight, but we are the gainers in the New Bush, the New California and the revivified Grand. Though our theatrical interests grow steadily with the growth of San Francisco, there is no talk of new theatres, nor do we need them. With the theatres mentioned, the Baldwin, the Alcazar, Morosco's and the minor theatres, we are amply supplied with places of amusements for a year to come, at least.

LONDON VAUDEVILLE ARTISTS.

Some philosophical writer in the Cornhill Magazine says:

The music hall stage will often be found a resting place for those who are going up and for those who are coming down in the theatrical world. Ladies and gentlemen who are now the lights of comic opera, drawing their £20, £30, £40 a week, not so very long ago were dancing and singing in the smoke here and doing their two or three turns a night elsewhere, while others who even in my memory [illegible] of opera [illegible] stage at its present standard to win back some of [illegible] to.

Here's a striking example. I remember in the best days of Offenbach as never any one below a prince, or, at any rate, a shepherd that climbed by hook or by crook to royal honors, and now, poor dear, thin and worn, in a pink dress that is worn and thin, and a voice to suit, she pipes one of those abject ditties with a waltz refrain that in this atmosphere are supposed to be descriptive of love. She seems very tired of it all, and, depend upon it, would not be here if she could help it.

I suppose when money was coming in fast, there was some scamp making it his business to see that it went out faster, or, perhaps, just at an unluckly time, she was taken ill and recovered only to find her part occupied by somebody whom she has never been able to displace.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

A leopardess showed her affection for her young cubs, in the Philadelphia Zoological Garden, by clandestinely eating them up the other night, and the keeper whipped the spots off her for doing it.

A theatrical paper takes notice of the death of Jefferson Davis because he was a celebrated female impersonator.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

William Lester, of Lester & Allen, was shot in Washington recently and seriously injured.

Margaret Mather has announced her intention to manage her own business next year.

The Boston Quintet Club, whose concerts were a feature of last season's musical events, will be here again in the latter part of February.

"Harbor Lights," for next week at the Grand Opera House, is being most carefully rehearsed, and will be very elaborately produced.

The Rosalind of Ada Rehan is always peculiarly womanly. The assumption of doublet and hose is resorted to by her only as a necessity, and there is not a moment that her girlish tenderness and delicate feminine instincts are not apparent. This is the correct conception of the character, and Miss Rehan maintains it consistently throughout the performance. Miss Rehan's costumes are all less, and her boy's dress is a model of good taste. She discards boots and leggings altogether.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

A City of Mexico dispatch of the 30th says: "At a bull fight at Villa [illegible] on Sunday the amphitheatre fell, killing one hundred persons were injured, several fatally."

The Auditorium, the name of the theatre-hall, is a big success. It has been tried and not found wanting. St. Louis is building a new Academy of Music with very different result. It collapsed before it was finished. Cause, its foundations were erected on quicksand. The timbers began cracking and trembling and the men at work on it left in time to avoid disaster. Chicago is still ahead.

Jas. M. and Carrie Clarke Ward give three "Happy New Year" nights at the Oakland Theatre, commencing Monday night in "Ranch 10," in which Miss Alice Farrington, a sister to Miss Marie Burroughs and a well-known Oakland girl, made her debut and was well received. Miss Farrington is a pleasing young lady with a good delivery and stage presence, and her successful debut argues a prominent future.

A Florence, Italy, dispatch recounts the burning of the Umberto Theatre in that city on the night of the 30th.

The telegraph tells us that popular Jack Mason, the leading man in the celebrated Boston Museum stock company, was gripped by the influenza so violently a few days since that he was compelled only a few hours after first being taken to go to bed, and began to sink rapidly. He is now being nursed by his mother, in a very dangerous condition. Mr Mason made his first strongest hits in "Rosedale," "Shenandoah" and "On the Main Line," and plays of a similar melodramatic character. He is quite young, not being much over thirty, and has too much to live for to be transported to the other life by the influenza route.

A Paris dispatch of the 30th says Sara Bernhardt was standing on the top of the pile of faggots used in the performance of "Joan of Arc" when a stage-hand fired the combustible faggots prematurely. Bernhardt shrieked and fainted, but was saved from injury by two of the stage-hands, who were severely burned. The dispatch adds: "Bernhardt had a narrow escape from cremation." Was it prophetic?

John Murphy is starring in Southern California in his brother Joe's plays.

Mme. Patti is loud in her praise of Chicago. She will be singing the praises of 'Frisco in February, providing her engagement does not prove a failure.

Many clever specialties are introduced in "The Spider and Fly," notably the laughable horizontal bar act of the Dare Bros., the graceful dancing of Louise Allen and the vocal selections of Bessie Cleveland and Hilda Thomas.

Louis Harrison, a San Francisco favorite, will play the leading comedy role in the comic opera, "The Pearl of Pekin," which will visit this city in a few weeks.

Mr. J. C. Williamson, of the firm of Williamson, Musgrove & Garner, Australian managers, is expected to arrive in this city in January. He will visit the Eastern states and Europe, while his wife (nee Maggie Moore), at present in this city, will remain here until his return, when they will probably play a short engagement in this city in their first great success, "Struck Oil."

The grocery store scene, in the second act of the "Spider and Fly," is the gem of the piece. It is quick and lively and keeps the audience in an uproar from beginning to the end.

The Abbey Opera Company go direct from Chicago to the City of Mexico, opening there January 11th, thence to this city, opening here February 3rd. The Eastern stopping places are Denver, Kansas City, Louisville, Cincinnati, Washington, Boston and New York, opening in the latter city March 24th.

The holiday attractions of all the principal theatres in San Francisco can be found advertised in FIGARO, with full programmes, cast and synopsis. They present a varied and inviting field of amusements for the pleasure seekers.

Frank McKee, who is managing "The Exiles" and "Mankind" this season for Eugene Tompkins, will next year again associate himself with Hoyt & Thomas, taking the management of their attractions. Frank is one of the best liked men on the road.

Manager Maguire, of the Grand Opera House, will take out the Maguire, Rial and Osbourne stock company, while Jim Love attends to the advance business

Edwin Booth and Mme. Modjeska resume their tour, Jan. 6th, in Providence, R. I., and are to appear in Fall River, Mass., Jan. 13th; Holyoke, 14th; Springfield, 15; New Haven, 16th; Hartford, 17th and 18th, reaching the Boston Theatre Jan. 20th.

"Harbor Lights" next week at the Grand.

Eureka Music Hall

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akerman provides the stage with a fresh bill for the holidays.

Gus Leonard and his troupe, Jessie Eldridge, the vocalist and Soldene, burlesque artiste, are new here.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss Jessie Eldridge, Netta Latelle, Addie Bennett, Mamie Woods, Billy Akerman and Pearl Iola make up the company.

The opening is a Burlesque First Part, with choice music, and the bill is full of acts and specialties, including the can-can.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

On New Year's day an extra matinee will be given.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Extra Matinees will be given on New Year's Day at all the Theatres.

Leavitt's New Bush St. Theatre.

The Bush's holiday attraction, Fraser & Gilfs diverting pantomimic burlesque, holds the stage for its last week. It is really a great novelty in itself, and is full of novelties in the way of introduced amusing, interesting and first class specialties.

Besides the burlesque and comedy company, the performance is illustrated by the following vaudeville and specialty artists: The operatic star, Bessie Cleveland; the charming vocalist, Hilda Thomas; the great Parisian dancing grotesques, Dorst & Oreste; the marvelous European gymnasts, the Dare Brothers; the popular dancers, Allen Sisters (Louise and Ray); the greatest of all funny clowns, Tommy Dare; the comical German specialist, E. Edwards; and the famous pantomimists, Jas. R. Adams and August Siegrist.

The prologue introduces the mythological characters of the piece, representing Progress, Knowledge and Industry on the one hand, taken respectively by Bessie Cleveland, Marguerite Wood and Lulu Reddan; and Anarchy, Ignorance and Idleness on the other, personated by Ada Dare, Lida Lesh and Louise Allen, in an unequal war for power. The dialogue is humorous, and pungent with hits of the day. Three fine scenes are displayed in the prologue, each disappearing as if by magic in the flies as its successor appears. The last scene represents Progress producing a tableau of triumph to Anarchie, a magnificent view of Brooklyn Bridge as the result of her work, aided by Knowledge and Industry. The prologue closes with a handsome Ballet of the Nations with the principals richly costumed, each in national colors.

The first act is given up mostly to pantomimic fun, and Jas. R. Adams, Thos. S. Dare do unconceivable things in mirth-making. It winds up with a big scene in Sands's grocery store, in which Sam Ryan, the funny policeman, and all the company participate.

In the second act are introduced the remarkably clever specialties that adorn the play, Bessie Cleveland's fine vocalisms; Hilda Thomas's admirable character song medley, that deserves its encores; Louise Allen's long skirt dance; the pretty Calisthenic Exercises by ballet; specialties by Ryan and E. Edwards, the latter a very humorous and clever monologist; a finished and graceful Pas de deux by Mons. Oreste and Mlle Dorst; and the wonderful horizontal bar act of the Dares, Thos. S. and Harry T., the originals, the cleverest and most difficult exhibition of bar gymnastics on the stage. There is no one that can compare with the clowning of Tommy Dare in this act.

The features of the last act are the duel in the new scene copyrighted by Thos. S. Dare, the gathering up of the spider webs of the story, the climax, the transformation scene and grand march of Civilization's troops.

The comedy-burlesque, "Spider and Fly," calls for twenty-one characters in its distribution besides the above-mentioned specialties. It is actually a double bill, and comes here with all its Eastern stage garniture and appointments. It is a thoroughly good holiday entertainment, admirably arranged and managed, and lively and humorous. It has drawn fine business.

Matinee New Years.

That brilliant comedienne, vocalist and vaudeville actress, Verona Jarbeau, supported by her own company, will be next week's attraction in her new comedies, "Starlight" and "Strictly Confidential."

Alcazar Theatre.

"Mankind," a very strong melodrama, written by Paul Merritt and George Conquest, author of "Youth" and "The World" two of the best and most dramatic writers in London, is the Alcazar's New Year's week attraction. The figure of the play is Daniel Groodge, head of Groodge & Sharpley's office, a picture of meanness and selfishness worthy of the pen of a Dickens or the of a Hogarth. L. R. Stockwell, who has himself a comedian of wide range of ... as seen for the first time since his connection with the Alcazar in a part that, al... It is cast in Groodge's home to overhear his partner scheming with his son to kill him for his money by poisoning. He comes back and pretends a feeling for his partner, proposes to buy him out and gets him to sign a document. While the partner is writing he steals up behind him and strangles him. It is made the scene of the piece in Stockwell's hands. He sustains the character all through with remarkable skill. In spite of his naturally broadly comic personality he makes the deep craft and the heartlessness of old Groodge patent to the audience, and his little touches of humor relieve the hardness of the character and make it all the more natural. He never did a better piece of acting in his life.

E. J. Buckley, Miss Ethel Brandon, John Jack, the Coopers, Jean Clara Walters, Geo. H Wood and Fanny Young in comedy parts, d good work in the melodrama; in fact the sup port throughout is strong.

The scenic events of "Mankind" are notable. There is one scene in it that is as effective as anything ever attempted on the local stage. The curtain rises and a vessel is seen in motion upon the waters, with the characters on board. During the action of the scene a fog rises and completely envelopes the stage for a moment and then slowly disappears. When the atmosphere is clear again the vessel is gone; nothing but a wide expanse is seen of sea and sky. It is a wonderful bit of stage realism, and with the efficient treatment it has received at the Alcazar is sure to prove a success. The mounting of plays at the Alcazar has always been characterized by liberality and judgment. The managers have made "Mankind" notably so.

Business A 1.

Matinee New Years.

Grand Opera House.

The Grand's Holiday piece, "The Great Metropolis," a spectacular melodrama of New York life and characters, is a strong play by George Jessop and Ben Teal, two former residents of San Francisco, that has merit and money in it, both for managers and authors.

It has proven the greatest success, and has been witnessed by 25,000 persons in the last two weeks. This is the last week of this play. It gives way to a grand production of "Harbor Lights" on Monday next.

Matinee New Year's Day.

The sensational scenes of "The Great Metropolis" are the great lighthouse scene, the realistic life-saving station, the thrilling shipwreck and rescue of passengers by the mortar projected life-line, the last being a grand scene, one of the best specimens of skill in stage-setting ever seen in San Francisco.

The whole stage of the Grand is utilized for the wreck scene. In the rear the stranded ship appears by the lightning's vivid flashes at intervals out of the surrounding darkness and storm with startling reality. All is excitement in front of the stage occupied by the life-savers. The mortar line is fired, and the survivors are brought from the wreck by aid of the life-line in regular life-saving station manner. The scene is one of the most exciting ones ever on our local boards. The whole production is a study in stage work, for which stage director George Osbourne, scenic artist John R. Wilkins, master mechanic Thomas Andrews and assistants deserve high praise.

The cast is not only very full, but very strong as well. It would take more space in our columns than we can grant to individualize the merits of the performances. Those who did so well in "Hands Across the Sea," Wm Morris, James J. Lent, E. N. Thayer, Lorimer Johnstone, Miss Isabel Morris and Miss Kate Chester strengthened their popularity by the good work they do in this play; and the new comers, Edwin J. Henley, a strong melodramatic actor; Harry Bell, a capital light comedian; Miss Mary Hampton, a pleasing ingenue; Miss Joan Sep, a character actress, and Miss Judalaine Cotton as a waif of a boy, are already in the Grand's swim of popular favor.

"Harbor Lights," another melodrama, full of strong scenes, will follow "The Great Metropolis" at the Grand. This grand scenic play will be another notable production at this theatre. Isabel Morris Wm. Morris, George Osbourne, Edward Henley and Harry Bell are in the cast.

New California Theatre.

The Boston Howard Athenæum Star Specialty Company continue their holiday season here this week.

The company consists of Conroy & Fox, Irish comedians; the Irwin Sisters, popular sketch artistes; Geo. Thatcher, the well known minstrel comedian; Wilton & Mora, horizontal bar performers; Wood & Shephard, the clever musical sketchers; "Dutch" Daly; Lottie Collins, vocalist; Mons. Brunin, French grotesque; Abachi & Mazuz, Arab tumblers, and Mons. Francois de Blanche and Mlle de Blanche, magicians. The company is notably a strong one, and the six artists mentioned last are on their first visit to this coast.

Conroy & Fox are clever Irish comedians; those well-known favorites, the Irwins, Geo Thatcher and Wood & Shephard sustain their popularity and need no brush; "Dutch" Daly is clever; Wilton & Mora do a dashing horizontal bar act; the Arab tumblers, Abachi & Mazuz, are wonderful gymnasts; Mons. Brunin is novel and grotesque in his song and dance, and the De Blanches explain to the audience many of the tricks of the magician's art.

The whole performance is a commendable one, and the reputation of the "Athenæum's" constellations is well borne out by this company.

Orpheum Theatre

"Sheppy's Feat" has been played down and out at the Orpheum, and in its place this week we have a varied and entertaining bill by a talented company of specialists that includes everything, from burlesque to scientific ballet reading. See names of company and their specialties in Orpheum programme.
